Open Debate on City Tomorrow

BY WILLIAM FULTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 15—The united nations preparatory commission tonight voted to establish permanent headquarters of the new world organization in the United States. The decision was reached after a long, bitter debate between delegates of the British-European bloc and the boosters for America.

The action taken at this session will be transmitted in the form of a recommendation to the first meeting of the united nations general assembly which is scheduled to convene in London on Jan. 10.

The commission will start debating Monday the question of which city or locality in the United States should be the site of the headquarters. Forty places, including Chicago, which is one of the half dozen most likely contenders, have offered to open up their gates.

Squelch Secret Ballot

The final vote was 30 nations for the United States, 14 opposed, and six abstaining. The test really came on the question of whether the voting should be accomplished by secret ballot. The British and Europeans wanted this procedure in the belief some South American countries might break away from the United States.

Amid cries from the delegates that secret diplomacy did not augur well for a start on a new world organization, the proposal was defeated by the narrow margin of 26 to 24. There also was a roll call on Europe as the host country. Europe was defeated, 25 to 23.

On the final roll call the 14 countries which voted against the United States were: Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Greece, Iraq, Lebanon, Liberia, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Saudi Arabia, Union of South Africa, and the United Kingdom. The United States abstained on this roll call along with Colombia, Ecuador, Ethiopia, New Zealand, and Syria.

On Canada's motion the vote for the United States was made unanimous.

Briton Leads Debate

P. J. Noel-Baker, British minister of state, led off the debate with an appeal for the adoption of a secret ballot on the grounds that it would save the delegates from the embarrassment of going on record for or against any country.

China's delegate, Victor Hoo, rose in opposition, declaring that the representatives should vote openly in spirit with the aims of the new organization.

The commission had before it an executive committee recommendation that the United States be chosen for permanent headquarters. Chairman Don R. E. McEachen, Uruguayan ambassador in London, urged those who favored Europe to bring up an amendment for a vote.

Refuse to Offer Europe

The European delegates sat glued in their seats. They hoped the vote would first be on the United States and would fail because a two-thirds majority was needed. Then they could bring up Europe. Andrei Gromyko, soviet ambassador to the United States, scolded them.

Other delegates attempted to taunt the silent European proponents into offering their continent. Finally, Chairman McEachen said he would be the "scapegoat" and put the motion on a vote on Europe.

Adlai Stevenson of Bloomington, Ill., acting American delegate, explained his vote against a secret ballot and expressed thanks for the final decision.

"I voted against the secret ballot because I feel, and my delegation and government feel, that secrecy is a bad precedent for a decision which should be arrived at openly after the frankest expression of views. I am happy that in its infancy the united nations organization has not adopted methods of secrecy."

CHICAGO "PERFECT PLACE"

Chicago is "the perfect place" as headquarters of the united nations organization, Mayor Kelly said last night.

"Soldiers, sailors, and marines would choose Chicago as a paradise city," he said. "I don't know what will determine the site committee's decision, but Chicago is undoubtedly the perfect place in all aspects."

HOW AMERICAN CHARITY WENT TO PROPAGANDA

BY WILLARD EDWARDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15—Warmhearted Americans gave a quarter of a billion dollars in cash to private relief agencies in the 1939-1945 period for the starving and destitute of war-torn Europe.

An investigation disclosed today that some of these groups spent as high as 87 per cent of the money thus collected on publicity, promotion, politics, propaganda, and other "administrative expenses." The few remaining dollars went abroad.

More than 700 agencies at one time were scrambling for the privilege of collecting and distributing American dollars. They received government licenses after pledging themselves not to engage in political activity or propaganda. The survey indicated widespread violation of these promises.

Huge Totals Collected

A total of $254,140,000 in cash and $224,407,000 in supplies was collected in the United States by these agencies. This amount, of course, was apart from lend-lease and UNRRA billions sent abroad.

The money and supplies were supposed to feed and clothe the war waifs of Great Britain, France, Poland, Greece, Russia, and other nations. Food, warm clothing, shoes, soap, and medicine were to be purchased.

Many agencies held their administrative costs to a comparatively low level and shipped supplies abroad which represented values of 90 per cent or more of the funds collected.

Press Agents Hired

But others took the American money and spent most of it on high-powered publicity agents whose main purpose apparently was not only to stimulate further donations, but also to propagandize the United States in behalf of the nations receiving the donations.

Such a noted organization as Bundles for Britain, Inc., the investigation disclosed, spent as high as 76.2 per cent of its cash receipts on "publicity, promotion, and administrative expense" in 1943. The percentage was 42.1 in 1944 and 44.9 in the first six months of 1945.

The agencies claim that these percentages should be reduced by taking into account the estimated value of clothing, food, and similar supplies collected. But even under this unusual system of accounting the "promotional" cost of Bundles for Britain in 1943 was 30.7 per cent.

Number Cut to 100

The number of licensed agencies has been reduced to 100 under the control of the President's war relief control board, which plans to fold up its operations by the end of March. These remaining agencies take an average of 7.4 cents of every dollar for administrative expenses, including publicity and promotion. By comparison, many reputable agencies spend only a fraction of a penny of each collected dollar for such expenses.

The President's war relief control board, set up by executive order of the late President Roosevelt, is headed by Joseph E. Davies, former United States ambassador to Russia, and later a personal foreign emissary of Presidents Roosevelt and Truman. He was the central figure in the film, "Mission to Moscow," widely criticized as totalitarian propaganda.

While 600 private agencies have been weeded out in five years by the Davies board, one of the groups which still retains a license is the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee committee, a well known communist front organization, with headquarters in New York City.

The Committee's Chief

Chairman of this agency, licensed to collect American money for relief abroad, is Edward J. Barsky, leader of a number of the Communist party's fronts which feature relief for Spain.

Altho the agencies receiving licenses pledge themselves not to engage in "political activity or propaganda," this group is closely associated with the political action committee of the CIO. Helen R. Bryan, executive secretary, has been an active leader in numerous communist fronts, including the American League for Peace and Democracy, branded subversive by the justice department.

Barsky was one of the principal speakers at a huge rally for Spanish refugee funds in Madison Square Garden last Sept. 24 which was also addressed from London by Prof. Harold Laski, chairman of the British Labor party's executive committee. Laski included an attack on the Vatican at Rome in his remarks.

REDS EMPTY IT, UNRRA REFILLS CZECH LARDER

See U.S. Paying Bill for Reparations

BY LARRY RUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 15—American taxpayers are being called upon to finance Czechoslovakia's reparations to Russia. While UNRRA relief supplies are pouring into Czechoslovakia from the American operated port of Bremerhaven at the rate of two to three thousand tons a day, the withdrawing Russian armies are taking Czech goods of all descriptions out of the country.

UNRRA's budget provides for relief donations amounting to $20 for each man, woman, and child in the country but there is no record of the value of goods the Russian army is taking back with them.

Americans and others who have visited Hungary or Austria tell of long caravans of trucks, motor cars, and horse drawn vehicles crammed with goods.

"One convoy we saw near Bratislava must have been five miles long," one American said. "Household furniture, from ice boxes to chandeliers, was piled up to a point where you could not have put on another chair without upsetting the loads."

Russian Heads UNRRA Team

The chief of the UNRRA team in Prague is a Russian who is now in Washington, D. C. But it was pointed out that the team has nothing to do with the problem of distribution of UNRRA supplies—this is taken care of by the Czech government. As soon as UNRRA material crosses the frontier it is taken over by the government. Much of it is then distributed to the stores for sale.

The Czech government has promised to use funds thus received for welfare work, but so far there has been no report on the amount obtained thru the transactions. Two Prague spokesmen said that all such figures can be obtained only in Washington.

UNRRA representatives here minimize the extent to which the Russians are stripping their Czech allies, explaining that altho the Russians may have made mistakes they took only property which they believed was owned by Germans.

Reds Take Czech's Car

"That's nonsense," a Czech industrialist said. "They hooked a horse to my car right in front of this hotel only three weeks ago and hauled it away without even a thank you."

Czech farmers complained that many farms—where Germans never lived—have been stripped of livestock and agricultural machinery. UNRRA admits it is importing farm machinery, but insists this is not to replace any which the Russians have taken out of the country.

Take Shoe Factory Output

"The Russians made no distinction between Czechs or Germans," one farmer from Moravia said. "They came into our small village, rounded up 100 Czech women, and killed two who tried to resist. They not only took everything they wanted but destroyed much they could not take with them."

The Bata shoe factory is turning over its entire shoe production to the Russians, informants said. The company's output between September and December was scheduled at 6,500,000 pairs. Meanwhile, UNRRA is importing shoes. The Russians were said to have supplied the raw materials for some of their shoes, but there were enough hides on hand when the Russians moved in to manufacture 15 million pairs.

UNRRA sources here refuse to give figures on how much the organization is contributing to fill the vacuum in consumer goods and food taken by the Russians.

Vote Raises to 23,500 on City Pay Roll

BY EDWARD SCHREIBER

With the approval of Mayor Kelly, the city council finance committee, headed by Ald. Bowler [25th], yesterday voted a salary increase approximating 7 per cent for 17,000 city employes and then wound up an all day session by voting themselves a 20 per cent increase over the $5,000 aldermanic yearly salary in the form of a $1,000 expense account, which is exempt from federal income tax.

Sixty-five hundred employes who are members of building trades unions will receive an increase of 8.9 per cent to meet the scales set by the war labor board.

The expense account for the aldermen was voted at the urgence of the mayor.

Mayor's Reasoning Meets Approval

"You have set up increases for the employes and I think you're entitled to an increase yourselves," the mayor said. "Take $1,000. You have plenty of expenses and the cost of living for an alderman has risen as much as it has for any one else."

There was no argument over the mayor's reasoning, and the committee quickly voted the increase.

The committee's action in raising salaries increased the corporate fund budget by nearly 3½ million dollars from the $69,888,330 that City Controler Robert B. Upham estimated would be the amount the city could appropriate for 1946.

Largest in City History

It virtually assured passage by the council of the largest budget in the city's history. The corporate purposes fund this year was $64,552,227, in 1944 it was $65,055,694, and in 1943 $62,822,556.

Ald. Lindell [9th], chairman of a finance committee subcommittee which had worked for several weeks to find additional sources of revenue and at the same time reduce departmental operating expenses, said the increased amount could be met by setting up $1,853,000 in assets that are appropriable in the form of uncollected back taxes, $894,000 in revenue from recently increased license fees, and $894,000 from a fund released early this year after the city had won a court decision but which was not scheduled in the 1946 budget until yesterday.

Mayor and Attorney Excluded

In the general raise for the city employes, the committee ruled, at the mayor's suggestion, that those earning more than $15,000 a year be excluded. This will mean that only the mayor, whose salary is $18,000 a year, and Special Traction Attorney William H. Sexton, who earns $22,500 yearly, will have the same salaries as last year.

Adjustments that differ slightly from the general 7 per cent were made in the police and fire department on a plea that the differential between officers and men was slight.

The committee also voted that the budgets of the department of subways and super-highways, welfare administration, vehicle tax fund, and water fund be passed. All will be submitted to the council at a meeting Dec. 27 when dates for public hearings will be set.

The committee rewarded Lindell with a $12,000 a year job by creating a budgetary director for the group.

PREDICT COLD WAVE WILL CONTINUE FOR THREE OR MORE DAYS

From a predicted low point of 5 below zero last night, the mercury today probably will not rise beyond 6 degrees above zero, Forecaster H. L. Jacobson said last night, and if not, it will set a new weather bureau record.

A maximum temperature of 6 above today would break the previous low maximum record for Dec. 16 of 9 above, recorded in 1901. Jacobson sees no relief in sight until the middle of the week. Tomorrow's high temperature is expected to be 10 above zero.

And the cold, if it will make you feel any better, is coming to Chicago directly from the north pole, wafted by a northwest wind at upper levels.

Broadus, Mont., was the coldest place in the nation yesterday with a reading of 31 below zero. Custer, Mont., was a close second with 30 below.

Generally, below zero temperatures were reported thruout Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska, most of Wyoming, Colorado and Montana, and parts of Illinois and Indiana.

Rush of Ships Crowds Ports, Delays Troops

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 15 (AP)—Homebound troops are debarking at Pacific coast ports faster than they can be moved east and, by Monday, staging areas in the San Francisco region will be filled to a point exceeding their capacity, Maj. Gen. Homer M. Groninger, commanding the San Francisco port of embarkation, said today.

So great is the flow that it will be necessary to tie up some troop ships to the piers and leave the men aboard until further movement east releases space in the staging areas for them to move in, Maj. Gen. Groninger explained.

Filled to Capacity

"All camp units of the San Francisco port of embarkation, including Camp Stoneman, Camp Knight, Fort Mason, and Fort McDowell are filled to capacity with soldiers awaiting transportation east," the general said in a statement telling of the pre-Christmas jam.

In Los Angeles the situation was so acute that Brig. Gen. J. K. Herbert, commanding the port, reported that 1,900 troops were being held aboard the Olmstead in the harbor for 24 hours to give the staging area time to clear. Gen. Herbert said staging camps were bulging with 17,000 men awaiting transportation to separation centers.

75,000 Due in 15 Days

Brig. Gen. Eley P. Denson, commanding general of the Seattle port of embarkation, said today that at least 75,000 army personnel are scheduled to arrive in Seattle, Tacoma, and Portland during the last 15 days of December, bringing the total of debarkations for the month close to 150,000.

POSTAL RECORDS SHOW SANTA HAS MORE TO CARRY

Santa Claus is going to be toting a heavier sack when he makes his rounds in Chicago, postal records indicated yesterday. Postoffice receipts and incoming parcel post have increased this year, Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen said.

Receipts, which cover postage, money order, and registry fees, were $3,901,935 during the first 14 days of December, compared with $3,592,371 last year, or a gain of 8.6 per cent. Incoming parcel post filled 250,000 sacks, compared with 233,000 in 1944, or an increase of 12.3 per cent.

Facing Arrest, Kin of Mikado Takes Poison

TOKYO, Dec. 16 [Sunday]—(AP)—Prince Fumimaro Konoye, 54, thrice premier in the 10 years leading up to Pearl Harbor, took his life with poison early today at his lavish home, rather than surrender as a suspected war criminal.

Prince Konoye

Princess Konoye went into the prince's bedroom at 6 a. m. and found him lying in a Japanese-style bed on the floor, with a vial of poison at his side. She reported he left no notes.

Japanese newspapermen and photographers had swarmed to the entrance of Sugamo prison, where Konoye had until midnight tonight to report. Shocked when informed of his suicide, they made a dash for his home on Tokyo's outskirts.

Had Evening Guests

Last night the prince entertained friends and relatives at his home. He gave no indication he had any plan other than to give himself up before midnight. Around 2 a. m., he retired to his bedroom.

Others in the household reported Konoye was "normal" when he retired. His guests included many persons high in Japan's social and political life. Among them were the Baron Miyagawa and wife, the wife of Marquis Oyama, who is Konoye's sister, and his brother, Viscount Hidemaro, who recently returned from Germany.

Princess Konoye was prompted to investigate on noting a light still was burning.

Had Been Restless

Konoye's secretary, T. Uchiba, said, "Looking back it is obvious now Konoye did not intend to give himself up to American authorities." He added that his last days had been restless, worried ones. Konoye seldom slept in his own house, moving from one friend's house to another to elude possible assassins.

Konoye is a cousin of the emperor. He was premier at the time of the China incident in 1937 and held the post the last time just before Pearl Harbor, when he was succeeded by Hideki Tojo.

Recently he had been active in revision of the Japanese constitution, and altho he asserted he was doing this work at the request of Gen. MacArthur, allied headquarters denied it.

He was named minister without portfolio when Prince Higashi-Kuni organized the cabinet last August. On Dec. 6 Gen. MacArthur ordered his arrest as a war criminal along with Marshal Koichi Kido and seven other prominent Japs.

Blamed War on Militarists

In an interview last September, Konoye revealed that he had proposed to President Roosevelt in the summer of 1941 that he meet Konoye at Honolulu or Juneau, Alaska, in an effort to settle the problems between the two nations. The plan fell thru, he said, because the final decision rested upon the Japanese military leaders and they would not consent to the removal of Japanese troops from China, which was the only basis upon which President Roosevelt agreed to the conference.

Other Suspects Surrender

Other war criminal suspects named on the Dec. 6 list began reporting today to Sugamo prison. The first to surrender were Viscount Masatoshi Okachi, former head of the Riken industries and advisor to the Tojo cabinet; Count Tadamsa Saki, minister of agriculture and forestry in the 1940 Abe cabient, and Shigeo Odate, minister in the Koiso cabinet.

All arrived with a retinue of servants and members of their families carrying bedding and belongings.

Documents Destroyed

Joseph B. Keenan, prosecutor of Japan's higher war criminal suspects, charged today that they or their friends "destroyed, altered, or secreted" incriminating documents before the Americans landed. He announced that the trials would begin about Feb. 1.

"The men we are going to try or their frends had many days in which to act before our troops landed," Keenan said. Consequently, he and his staff are having to "dig out everything we get," and cannot possibly be ready for the first trials by mid-January as originally planned.

TRUMAN MOVES TO FORCE QUICK PEACE IN CHINA

Marshall Goes with 'Pressure' Plan

Washington, D. C. Dec. 15 (AP)—President Truman called urgently today for quick political unification of China, beginning with a truce between the communists and the nationalists.

He backed his plan with outright American economic pressure.

He justified American intervention in the interest of Chinese unity on the ground that such unity is vital to world peace.

The chief executive thus furnished Gen. Marshall who left by plane today for China, with a specific program for putting an end to factionalism in China.

Secret Instructions Given

Marshall, special presidential representative with the rank of Ambassador, left for Chungking with a secret letter of instructions from the President on which the White House statement, released tonight, was based.

Marshall succeeds Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley in China and diplomatic authorities estimated that the policy laid down by Mr. Truman brings greater pressure to bear on the government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek than Hurley was willing to use.

Will Consider a Loan

Economic pressure took the form of a statement by the President that as China "moves toward peace and unity" along the lines Mr. Truman laid down, the United States would be prepared to consider favorably a Chinese request for credits and loans to build up the country.

In his public statement the President set forth these two essential actions:

"1. That a cessation of hostilities be arranged between the armies of the national government and the Chinese communists and other dissident Chinese military forces for the purpose of completing the return of all China to effective Chinese control, including the immediate evacuation of the Japanese forces.

"2. That a national conference of representatives of major political elements be arranged to develop an early solution to the present internal strife—a solution which will bring about the unification of China."

Marines There to Help

In connection with evacuation of the Japanese troops, of whom about 325,000 are in communist contested North China and upwards of a million in the rest of China, the President reiterated that American marines are in China to help get those troops out. He said emphatically that United States support for the government of Chiang Kai-shek "will not extend to United States military intervention to influence the course of any Chinese internal strife."

The political conference for which the President calls would, according to Mr. Truman, have as its objective the creation of a Chinese national government giving "a fair and effective representation" to major political factions in the country.

This would require a drastic change in the theory of "political tutelage" set up by the founder of the Chinese republic, Dr. Sun Yatsen, by which one party would rule China until it was ready for full-fledged democracy.

TEXT OF STATEMENT

Truman's statement of policy said:

"The government of the United States holds that peace and prosperity of the world in this new and unexplored era ahead depend upon the ability of the sovereign nations to combine for collective security in the united nations organization.

People Responsibile

"It is the firm belief of this government that a strong, united, democratic China is of the utmost importance to the success of this united nations organization and for world peace. A China disorganized and divided either by foreign aggression, such as that undertaken by the Japanese, or by violent internal strife, is an undermining influence to world stability and peace, now and in the future.

"The United States government has long subscribed to the principle that the management of internal af-

BRITISH ASKED TO INTERCEDE IN G. M. STRIKE

Thomas Letter to Attlee Cites 'Stock Holdings'

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 15 (AP)—The CIO United Auto workers, describing the British government as a holder of General Motors corporation common stock, today asked Prime Minister Attlee's Labor government to intervene in the 25 day old G. M. strike.

R. J. Thomas, UAW president, disclosed that he had made a direct appeal in a letter to the prime minister, but Attlee said at London, "I have not seen the letter."

Thomas suggested that the prime minister "make known" to the corporation his [Attlee's] feelings that "profits are indeed the concern of the workers and the owners of any company."

Informed About Stock

The UAW president said he was "reliably informed" that "as of October, 1945, the British government was the owner of 434,000 shares of General Motors common stock, 36,000 shares of the common stock of Chrysler corporation, and 34,800 shares of common stock of the Briggs Manufacturing company."

A General Motors spokesman said Thomas' disclosure was "news to me" and that any comment on the reported British interest in G. M. would "have to come from the company's stock transfer division at New York."

The G. M. official said the company has 40 million shares of common stock and 3½ million shares of preferred stock outstanding.

At Washington, D. C., Charles Campbell, chief of the British information service, said the British government owns a block of G. M. stock outright and controls the stock's voting rights.

Campbell said no official report had been released on the extent of the British holdings and he added he was unable to confirm or deny Thomas' figure of 434,000 shares.

Briton Gives Explanation

The British official gave this explanation of how his government acquired control of the stack:

During the war, it took over all American assets from British subjects. It paid them in sterling for these assets. Some were sold. Some, turned in after the sales, were kept.

Of the latter, the greater part was put up as security for a loan from the American Reconstruction Finance corporation. The block of General Motors stock is included in the assets that weren't sold.

Spokesmen at the British treasury and foreign office in London said no one in authority would be available to comment on Thomas' letter before Monday.

[In Washington on Nov. 30 Sen. Moore (R., Okla.) listed British government holdings in General Motors common stock as 434,000 shares. General Motors common stock closed on the stock market yesterday at 74¾. On the basis of the closing price the reported British holdings would be worth $32,441,500. Chrysler common stock closed yesterday at 134⅛, which would make the reported British holdings of 36,000 shares worth $4,842,000. On the basis of the yesterday closing price of Briggs common stock at 48⅞, the reported British holdings in that company would be worth more than 1½ million dollars.]

The surprise move by UAW executives followed repetition of their assertions that General Motors has refused to discuss profits during current bargaining with the union. The company said Friday that 64 of its 79 plants are closed as a result of the strike, with 162,273 union workers idle.

Thomas Confident of It

Thomas said he was confident the "present management" of General Motors "does not reflect the thinking of the vast majority of the owners of the corporation," and added:

"And above all we are certain that it by no means reflects the attitude and opinion of the British labor government, a substantial owner of General Motors shares.

"For that reason and because a statement by the labor government of Great Britain would be a welcome demonstration of the solidarity that binds together the working people of all nations, we are hopeful that you will be able to make known to the management of General Motors corporation your belief that profits are indeed the concern of the workers and the owners of any company."

Thomas' letter to Attlee, a 700 word document, came as General Motors and the union were preparing for appearances next week before President Truman's fact finding board which is to inquire into the dispute.

Informed of Letter

Several representatives of both General Motors and the UAW-CIO will appear at the Washington hearing. The union's strike over its demand for a 30 per cent wage increase within GM's present price structure has idled approximately 200,000 workers.

Thomas opened his letter to Attlee with the statement:

"It has been brought to my attention that the British government thru ownership of large blocks of shares in various American industries has a substantial interest in this country's automobile industry."

The dispute with General Motors, Thomas wrote Attlee, is "over the matter of wage increases," adding:

"But in its broadest sense it bears directly on matters which in the long run will determine very materially whether or not the United States and all other nations will again follow the road that leads to depression and war or the road that leads to peace and prosperity with constantly rising standards of living for the common people."

Negotiations in the UAW-CIO's wage disputes with both General Motors and the Ford Motor company resume Monday.

It was felt that the General Motors meeting, coming shortly before the Washington sessions with President Truman's fact finders, might not be immediately productive.

On the other hand reports persisted today that Ford would offer the union a wage proposal despite the company's demand for full "employe productivity" before wage discussions.

General Motors, which previously sought court injunctions at Chicago and Cleveland, O., to halt what it termed "illegal picketing" by the UAW, filed a third action at Trenton, N. J., Friday.

Vice Chancellor Wilfred H. Jayne of New Jersey Chancery court issued a temporary injunction restraining pickets at the Fisher-Ternsted plant at Trenton. The court set Wednesday for a show cause hearing at which the union must outline its reasons why the order should not be made permanent.

Jayne's order limits pickets to a maximum of five at plant gates at any one time, forbids them to walk or stand less than 10 feet apart, and prohibits them from threats or use of violence against any one entering or leaving the plant.

GREYHOUND BUS STRIKE SETTLED IN SOUTHWEST

Houston, Tex., Dec. 15 (AP)—Southwest Greyhound bus drivers who have been on strike since Nov. 4 will receive their demanded 5 cents a mile pay under terms of a union-company settlement, a Houston AFL union official said today.

E. M. McFarlane, co-chairman of the Houston local AFL International Amalgamated Electric Street Railway and Motor Coach Employes' union, said he was informed of terms of the settlement in a telephone conversation with C. E. Ellis, chairman of the Houston local. Ellis was attending the company-union conference in Fort Worth at which the settlement was made.

The 5 cent pay is a raise of ¾ of a cent a mile, McFarlane said. Under the settlement drivers will receive 70 cents an hour overtime in addition to mileage pay.

MYSTERY SHIPS SIGHTED 10 DAYS BEFORE ATTACK

Boise's Log Shows Navy Did Nothing

BY PHILIP DODD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15—Two strange vessels, one believed to be a Japanese cruiser, were sighted by an American convoy northeast of Guam 10 days before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, but no investigation was made of their presence near the convoy, the congressional Pearl Harbor investigating committee learned today.

Sighting of the vessels was disclosed by the log of the United States cruiser Boise of Nov. 27 and 28, 1941, produced at the request of Rep. Gearhart [R., Cal.], who stated a month ago at the hearing he had received reports that the Boise had sighted the Japanese task force that hit Pearl Harbor.

"Location" of Ships

Gerhard Gesell, assistant committee counsel, said the navy had informed him the spot the supposed Jap vessels were seen by the Boise was not less than 1,400 miles from the course the Japanese task force is believed to have taken from the Kuriles to Hawaiian waters.

The Nov. 27 log entry reported the sighting of a "darkened ship" at about 16,000 yards at 6:40 p. m.

"Challenged ship, received no reply," the log showed.

On the 28th, the log reported a darkened ship was sighted hull down at 5:33 p. m.

"Ship appeared to be Atago type" [a class of Jap cruiser], the log stated.

Battle Stations Manned

The log showed that battle stations were manned and the Boise's speed and course changed on each occasion, but indicated no other action was taken. Nor has testimony been given in the hearing thus far about the presence of unidentified, darkened Jap war vessels in American shipping lanes.

The disclosures of the Boise's log are expected to be the subject of questions asked Vice Adm. T. S. Wilkinson, navy intelligence chief in 1941, when he takes the stand before the Pearl Harbor committee Monday.

The Pearl Harbor committee remained intact today, Sen. Barkley [D., Ky.], its chairman, not having reached a decision on whether he shall resign following the wholesale resignation of the committee's legal staff yesterday. William D. Mitchell, chief counsel, told reporters he had not reconsidered his decision.

Comment by Democrats

Democratic members of the committee squelched rumors that the congressional investigation of the Pearl Harbor disaster will break up as a result of yesterday's events.

Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.] and Rep. Murphy [D., Pa.] declared the inquiry "must continue." However, Barkley has not yet acted to extend the life of the committee beyond Jan. 3, the expiration date of the resolution which created it.

In Republican circles, it was said Barkley's resignation would be welcome. "He never should have been chairman. He is the political representative of the administration in the senate," one Republican told a reporter.

Many Documents Introduced

In an apparent effort to clear the desks of the committee counsel, Gesell today introduced a mass of documents which had been requested during the past four weeks by committee members.

They included a cable dated Aug. 18, 1941, from President Roosevelt to Winston Churchill, then British prime minister, reporting that Mr. Roosevelt had warned the Japanese against further moves in the southwest Pacific, in accordance with an agreement the two leaders had reached at the Atlantic conference a week before. The cable read:

"I made to him [the Japanese ambassador] a statement covering the position of this government with respect to the taking by Japan of further steps in the direction of military domination of force along the lines of the proposed statement such as you and I had discussed. The statement made to him was no less vigorous and was substantially similar to the statement we had discussed."

A Churchill Memo

The committee already has before it an Aug. 10, 1941, memorandum of Churchill's suggesting the United States warn Japan of "counter measures even tho these might lead to war." Former State Secretary Hull has told the committee the President's oral statement to the Japanese was a "watered down" version of Churchill's plan, altho this was not indicated in Mr. Roosevelt's cable.

Gesell said no record has been found in state department files of a similar warning by the British. However, he said the state department had telegraphed American Ambassador Grew in Tokyo extracts from Churchill's radio address of Aug. 24, 1941, in which the British leader said Japanese aggression "has got to stop" and that Britain would place itself "unhesitatingly alongside the United States" should negotiations with the Japanese fail.

A German Angle

Gesell produced testimony taken at the Nurenberg, Germany, trial of German war leaders concerning discussions between Hitler and Japanese Ambassador Matsuoka on a United States-Japanese war. He said he has asked for a document produced at that trial on a plea by Nazi Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop that Japan attack the United States.

Gesell revealed that he has been making copies of intercepted Japanese diplomatic messages available to Supreme Court Justice Jackson and J. B. Keenan, American prosecutors at Nurenberg.

"They are finding them of great value and interest," Gesell said.

Succeeds King

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15 (AP)—Fleet Adm. Nimitz today took over as chief of naval operations and pledged in a 16 word statement to do his utmost. The former Pacific fleet commander relieved Fleet Adm. King, who is retiring after holding the navy's top job since Nov. 18, 1942.

Nimitz, who led the fleet to victory after the Japanese blasted it at Pearl Harbor, told fellow officers at the navy department upon assuming his new duties: "I have just taken on a great responsibility. I will do my utmost to meet it."

In a farewell message, King gave thanks to the men of the navy and the army, and to the allies, for their efforts in defeating the axis.

SHORT 'JUSTIFIED'

BY LAURENCE BURD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15—A former member of the army general staff admitted today that Gen. Short, Hawaiian commander in 1941, was justified in assuming his defense alert just before the Japs struck Pearl Harbor had full approval of the army high command in Washington.

The admission came from Gen. Gerow, chief of the war plans division at the time of Pearl Harbor, as he concluded his testimony before the joint congressional committee investigating the nation's greatest naval disaster.

Questioned by Senator

Gerow's statement that Short could assume he had properly alerted his command came under questioning by Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] as to the warning message sent Short on Nov. 27, 1941, by Gen. Marshall, then chief of staff, and Short's reply of Nov. 28. Gerow helped draft the warning and also examined the reply from the Pearl Harbor commander.

Short's answer told Marshall he had alerted the base against sabotage and was carrying on liaisons with the navy. Gerow and Marshall have contended the Nov. 27 message called for an all-out alert against air or sea attack, but have admitted they failed to order such precautions after Short indicated he was preparing against sabotage only.

Ferguson at today's hearing read Gerow portions of the "staff officers' field manual" outlining duties of the general staff. The manual said the general staff is responsible for making sure its instructions to field commanders are understood and for enforcing execution of such instructions.

Question and Answer

Ferguson then asked Gerow:

"Did Gen. Short, having sent his Nov. 28 reply to his superiors and having heard nothing more before Dec. 7, have a right to believe that he had properly understood the Nov. 27 order and that he had taken the proper action."

"Yes, sir," replied Gerow.

The witness added that Short could properly have asked the chief of staff for clarification of the Nov. 27 warning, if it was not clear to him.

Ferguson noted that a secret portion of the army board's Pearl Harbor report, just released this week, called Marshall's warning a "do-don't message on the ground it admonished Short against taking any action that would alarm the civilian population or disclose defense measures taken, and also warned against committing an "overt act."

Sees No "Don't"

Gerow declared he couldn't see any "don't" in the message.

"It was a warning," he added, "that gave the commander [Short] the right to do anything in his discretion to safeguard the island of Oahu and carry out his mission."

Ferguson asked Gerow whether he thought the Japs would have been "defeated" in their thrust at Pearl Harbor if the army had been properly alerted.

"I think our losses would have been much less and Japan's would have been more," the witness replied. He added that we might have downed some Jap planes and sunk some of Japan's six carriers in the striking force if the Hawaiian base had been fully on guard. Gerow declined to say categorically whether the enemy would have been "defeated."

"Yes" to One Query

Later Gerow answered "yes" when asked by Chairman Barkley [D., Ky.] whether Japan's success would have been greatly lessened "if a proper alert had been in effect."

Asked by Ferguson whether he was informed that Jap scouting planes were over the Philippine Islands before Dec. 7, 1941, Gerow said he had a "very hazy recollection of some one saying the Japs had sent planes over that area."

The general disclosed that he talked with Gen. MacArthur, commander in the Philippines, by telephone on the afternoon of Dec. 7, after the Pearl Harbor attack but before the Philippines attack 10 or 12 hours later.

Quizzed by Lucas

Asked by Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.] about this conversation, Gerow said:

"I told Gen. MacArthur that Hawaii had been attacked by the Japs and he asked me what damage had been done. I told him the telephone was not secret and I could not tell him. I asked if there had been any damage out there. He said no, but told me there was a group of unidentified planes approaching the Philippines and that he was sending up his planes to meet them."

Lucas asked what happened to our bombers at Clark field in the Philippines and Gerow said he didn't recall ever getting an "operations report" on this. He promised to check the army files for this information.

Lucas then launched a series of questions on the need for keeping secret in war time the fact that the United States had cracked the Jap codes thru "magic" and was translating intercepted Jap messages thru special machines.

Those Who Knew

Gerow said that this fact was supposedly known during the war only to the secretary of war, chief of staff, the chief of intelligence, the chief of war plans [Gerow himself], and Gerow's assistant, Col. Bundy.

In answer to a question from Lucas as to what penalty should be assessed against an officer who gave away the "magic" secret, Gerow said he, as a member of a court-martial, would vote the death penalty if evidence showed an officer acted deliberately with full knowledge of the consequences.

Dewey and "Magic"

Lucas told reporters at the close of the hearing he wants to know where Gov. Dewey of New York first learned that we had "magic." He said there are "indications" that Dewey learned of it before it was brought to his attention in a letter from Gen. Marshall during the 1944 Presidential campaign. The senator said he plans to question Dewey about it when the governor is called as a witness.

Marshall told Dewey about the code cracking process and asked him not to mention it during the campaign in the interest of military security. Dewey complied. The former chief of staff told the committee he had heard before he wrote the letter that Dewey knew about "magic" and that he was fearful Dewey might discuss it in campaign speeches. Marshall insisted his sole interest in writing the governor was the protection of our troops and naval forces.

23 SHIPS WENT TO HAWAII JUST BEFORE ATTACK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15—Twenty-three of the 46 fighting vessels of the United States navy lined up in Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, when the Japanese attacked the base, among them four of the eight battleships, had arrived there within a week of the attack, it was revealed today.

The information was given to the congressional Pearl Harbor investigating committee in a special memorandum from the navy department which was read into the record by Gerhard Gesell, assistant committee counsel. The information had been requested by members of the committee.

Arrival of Battleships

Arrival dates of the eight battleships were as follows:

Arizona, Oklahoma, and Nevada, Dec. 5; Pennsylvania, Dec. 1; California, West Virginia, Maryland, and Tennessee, Nov. 28.

The arrival schedule of the eight cruisers was:

Detroit, Dec. 5; Honolulu, Raleigh, Phoenix, Helena, and St. Louis, Nov. 28; San Francisco and New Orleans, the only heavy cruisers, prior to Dec. 1, exact time unknown.

Destroyer Dates

Destroyers' arriving times:

Zane and Selfridge, Dec. 6; Patterson, Helm, Blue, Henley, Gamble, Ralph Talbot, Dale, Wasmuth, and Trever, Dec. 5; Bagley, Jarvis, Mugford, Ramsay, Breese, Conyngham, and Montgomery, Dec. 4. Phelps, Farragut, Monoghan, Alwin, Hull, Dewey, Warden, McDonough, Cummings, Tucker, Reid, and Case, prior to Dec. 1.

Committee members who have vainly sought the reason for the concentration of the Pacific fleet in the crowded waters of Pearl Harbor when relations with the Japanese were in a critical stage are expected to use today's information for further close questioning of navy witnesses next week.

DEPARTMENT STORE HELD UP

Saul Feldman, owner of the Devon Department store, 2715 Devon av., was robbed of two wristwatches and $125 yesterday by two armed men who forced his wife, Esther, and four women customers to stand in the rear of the store, he told police.

HOUSE GROUP DELAYS ACTION ON TRUMAN'S FACT FINDING BILL

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15 (AP)—Congress today put the lid on new labor legislation for this week, and key legislators said it probably will be mid-February before major action is taken.

Following the pattern set yesterday by its senate counterpart, the house labor committee voted against considering new labor bills now and called for resumption of hearings on a broader basis in January.

President Truman had asked specifically for passage by Christmas of legislation setting up fact finding commissions to recommend solutions for major industrial disputes.

The house committee's decision for delay was by a unanimous vote. It came after rejection by a 10 to 7 count of a motion by Rep. Fisher [D., Tex.] to meet again Monday to ballot on the President's proposal.

BRITAIN DENIES FREE NEWS TO ITS DOMINIONS

Empire Reads Stories with London Slant

BY QUENTIN POPE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Dec. 5 [By air mail]—British government leaders, wielding influence upon the newspaper barons of the United Kingdom, are able to deny their empire intellectual freedom by refusing it free news.

For the British to do this before World War II. was easy. London has been the clearing house for European news. In Australia and New Zealand, monopolistic press organizations interested more in cheap foreign services than in vigorous news coverage have been satisfied to take their estimate of almost any situation from London bureaus drawing upon British news sources. Thus the pproach to any vital problem is colored.

With London bureaus of the empire newspapers operating largely on what the London newspapers would print, it was easy for the British government to hold the empire in line on the news front. When the British censorship cracked down, the empire learned nothing. The most notable case of this was the Edward VIII-Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson romance, concerning which London sent not a line to the dominions.

Prudishness Aids Britain

Smoothing the road of the London string-pullers is English prudishness, which is widespread in the dominions and holds there are many things unfit to print. High on this list are those things that "would embarrass Britain."

An example came during the opening of the Washington, D. C., talks between Ambassador Halifax and John Maynard Keynes and American leaders on aid for Britain. Detecting the falsity of British claims to have thrown greater weight into the war than the United States, this correspondent prepared statistics of comparative efforts. The figures were checked by officers of the United States legation and circulated to Antipodean newspapers. They disclosed how much heavier was the burden of the American taxpayer than that of the Briton, how much greater was the United States national debt. But they were out of line with London's policy and not a newspaper printed them.

Government "Guides" Press

In World War II. the British found the job of controling the empire press even more simple. They took to issuing weekly "guides" to the newspapers in the United Kingdom, indicating the line they should take in treatment of the news and in editorial policy. When cabled to the various censorship offices of the empire, these "guides" were reverently accepted and followed. In the days of United States neutrality they indicated with care how to handle American news so noninterventionists should get no help.

When the war began the British used their nationally owned broadcasting service to beam news to the empire. Jammed cables and censorship delays made the service welcome to remote parts of the empire. The news session of this BBC service was heavily salted with propaganda.

In peace time the British have continued their relaxation of the copyright in this broadcast "news" and it is still widely used by empire newspapers.

A Sample of Service

The nature of its service was shown on Oct. 22 when the news session reported that 7,000 dockers had struck at Singapore, Straits Settlements, the previous day. "Among other things," the report said, "they are demanding higher wages." The "other things" were cessation of shipments of war materials to be used against the Indonesians. Virtually thruout the war in Java the BBC has disparaged the Indonesian leaders, terming them "self-appointed" and "so-called ministers." The Indonesians themselves have become "terrorists."

The British have begun to develop another contact to influence the empire press. It is the high commissioners who went abroad to represent the London government after the statute of Westminster transformed the governors of the dominions into the personal representatives of the king. These commissioners, informed of British viewpoints by the dominions office, pass on the information to the empire press.

Today, under a Socialist government, things are no different from what they were under the conservative Winston Churchill.

AN 'OLD BRITISH TRICK' SCENTED IN ALIBI ON JAVA

Halifax's Claim on U. S. Role Angers Senators

BY WILLIAM MOORE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15 (AP)—Official Washington today received with incredulity and expressions of anger British Ambassador Halifax's charge that Americans share with British the responsibility for the British military action against Java.

Halifax said in an address before the English Speaking union last night:

"We did not send our troops to Java on our own initiative. They went there to carry out work which had been assigned to them by the combined chiefs of staffs [American and British]. The decision was not British, but Anglo-American."

The war department declined to confirm or deny the ambassador's statement. The navy deferred making a statement.

Senator 'Appalled'

But vehement comments came from congress when members were interviewed.

Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.], a leading figure in the senate military affairs committee, said:

"I am appalled that we are directly responsible for the war against the liberated peoples of Java."

Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.] commented:

"Apparently the internationalists of the administration are going to make us take over the responsibility of putting down subjugated people all over the world. It's time we reappraised our whole relationship with the British."

U. S. Responsibility Doubted

Sen. Ellender [D., La.], expressed doubt that the Americans had any part in the decision.

"It's an old British trick," he said. "They are trying to cloud the issue and dirty the United States in the eyes of the natives so that we will share equal blame for the reprehensible things that have been done out there.

"The only explanation for the British concern over the Dutch empire is their desire to control the rubber and tin and other strategic materials with which the East Indies abound."

Jap Troops Used

"But the British have gone much further than we have and any thinking person must object to the use of Jap troops against the natives who are fighting for their independence.

"The British have attempted to poison the rest of the world against us before, and they evidently are attempting to do it all over again in spite of all that they owe this country."

Rep. Short [R., Mo.] said: "If this is true, the American people ought to hang their heads in shame for financing a war against helpless people fighting for their liberty. The British get the por Indians to do the fighting—with American lend-lease equipment.

"This goes to show we've gone to bed with the British again. They came. They wooed. They won."

INDONESE ARMY MAY BE HURLED AGAINST NATIVES

British Say 'Peace' Force Is Ready

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 15 (AP)—Indonesian people's peace army forces may be hurled full strength against their nationalist compatriots, the British indicated today amid reports of nationalist activity in western areas of Java.

The British announced that Indonesian Army Chief Arosdji had recommended strong action against the nationalist forces, "even to full military action." The statement added that despite reports of nationalist movements east of Batavia and in the Bandoeng area, "there is more evidence of positive action by the Indonesian peace army in cooperating with British authorities." The peace army is the force of the Indonese Republic.

Indonesian army units have been convoying British supplies to and from Bandoeng, northwest of which increasing nationalist activity was reported.

Mass Near Batavia

At Tjikampek, 70 miles east of Batavia, nationalist forces were reported by Aneta news agency to be massing in an attempt to make the town the anchor of a first line of defense to slow down any allied advance eastward from Batavia.

The agency said several thousand nationalists were based in readiness at Tjikampek, junction of two main rail lines running from Batavia thru north and south Java.

The pivot of nationalist defense was said to have been shifted from Bekassi, which was almost destroyed by the British Thursday in reprisal for the recent slaying of occupants of an R. A. F. transport plane. Some 600 houses there were reported leveled.

Aneta said quantities of arms had been transported from the Bandoeng area to Tjikampek and that reinforcements had been reported arriving there from various parts of the island.

Lifts News Restriction

Maj. R. B. Smyth, in charge of public relations for the British, said today restrictions which prohibited officers from talking to newsmen had been lifted. Correspondents have charged that the restriction prevented them from getting the news and constituted a form of censorship.

The prohibition against officers talking with newsmen was ordered several weeks ago after a press conference by Lt. Gen. Philip Christison, British commander in Java, caused the British war office to clamp down.

British authorities suppressed yesterday's edition of the Evening News, published by the British psychological warfare department, because of the "disproportionately heavy play" the newspaper gave to a speech in the British house of commons by Tom Driberg, an independent.

Eyewitness dispatches by seasoned reporters who write from the American viewpoint—that's what you get from The Chicago Tribune's foreign correspondents, now delivering the world's most distinguished foreign news service.

BRIGHT EYED AND MILD: THAT IS 'BLUEBEARD'

Women Like Him, and He's a Model Prisoner

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 15 [Special]—Alfred Leonard Cline, held here as a murder suspect while the deaths of four widows he married or promised to marry are being investigated in four other cities, is a mild mannered man whose blue eyes twinkle behind his spectacles.

The four deaths now under investigation are incidents of the post-Folsom career of this so-called "buttermilk Bluebeard," which began in 1943 when he completed a term in Folsom penitentiary for drugging and robbing a Los Angeles business man. Four other deaths, two those of women who married him, are also under investigation in his pre-Folsom career.

He Sleeps Soundly

In little more than a week, Cline's status in city prison has changed from that of a forgery suspect to suspect of multiple murder, but Cline has been quietly eating the prison fare, sleeping soundly, and avidly reading accounts of his exploits in the newspaper.

He refuses to talk to his jailers or to would be interviewers. Police from cities where he is suspected of doing away with wealthy widows have tried vainly to make him answer questions. He tells them all, "I'll talk to nobody but my lawyer." The lawyer, Jake Ehrlich, says, however, "He won't even talk to me."

"He is a model prisoner," Pat Meehan, in charge of city prison's felony section, said today. "He doesn't complain about anything and eats what we put before him."

The Luncheon Menu

For lunch today the prisoner cleaned up a plate of wieners, cabbage, potatoes boiled with their skins on, and tea.

His only request since his arrest has been for a razor, Meehan said. This was denied. A prison rule prohibits those in the felony section from having access to any article which might be used in a suicide attempt. His belt, suspenders, and necktie were taken from him when he went in.

Ehrlich said he has learned in his attempts at conversation with Cline that the latter doesn't smoke, drink, or play cards.

Born in Kansas

Records in the police bureau of identification show that Cline was born in Kansas in 1889 but do not list the town or exact date. He claims English ancestry, but whether he has any relatives is not known. He is 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighs 190 pounds, is of medium build, and has a sallow complexion and gray hair.

Local women who knew Cline are unanimous in describing him as "a very nice man." Several of these women were found by police thru tracing persons whose names and addresses were found in notebooks in his hotel room. These women tell of meeting him at churches or at social clubs.

He was a pleasant spoken man with women acquaintances, according to all evidence. He dressed neatly and gave the appearance of modest wealth. To some women he was a student of religion; others knew him as a retired banker, or a painter.

A "Wonderful Man"

Mrs. Isabelle Van Natta of San Francisco, missing since she left San Francisco with Cline last Nov. 17, said in a letter to a friend that he was a "wonderful man" and professed herself unable to understand how a man so much younger than she could be interested in her. She was 73.

Apparently, Cline convinced Mrs. Van Natta that his interest was real, however, for she sold her furniture, gave up her apartment, and went away with him. Police believe she is the woman who died in Portland, Ore., Nov. 29, under the name of Mrs. Delora Krebs Cline, former wealthy Chicago widow.

Cline's way to Mrs. Van Natta's heart was as a musician. He met her at a church and improved his acquaintanceship by offering to tune her piano. He did so and she sang for him while he played.

AMERICAN JEWS TOLD THEY MUST SAVE EUROPE'S

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 15 (AP)—Paul Baerwald, honorary chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, told 800 American Jewish leaders today that they must formulate plans at a meeting here to rescue the surviving 1,250,000 Jews in Europe.

In a speech before the opening session of the three day national conference, Baerwald said "The fate of many thousands of Jews in Europe will be determined by the results of the deliberations of this meeting."

"This meeting is dedicated to those who have survived," he said. "It is to those who look to us and us along to give them every assurance within our power that we shall do our utmost to let them live."

POLICE GUARD HOME OF RADIO NEWSCASTER

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 15 (AP)—H. R. Ekins, news commentator of radio station WSYR, said today he had received threats of bodily harm unless he ceases or moderates his criticism of participants in what he terms "industrial strife."

H. R. Ekins

Ekins, who was expelled from Italy in 1939 by the Italian government for his writings for a news service, said he has received both letters and telephone calls threatening himself, his wife, and their 4 year old son.

Police Chief John A. Kinney said he had dispatched police cars to pat'ol the area around Ekin's house.

PALACE MAY BE HOSPITAL

BERN, Switzerland, Dec. 15 [Reuters]—The old league of nations palace at Geneva might be turned into a hospital or maternity home, Dr. Max Petitpierre, Swiss foreign secretary, suggested.

Bar Expansion of Areas by Jap Fishing Fleets

TOKYO, Dec. 15 (AP)—Fishing areas available to Japanese fleets cannot be expanded unless the industry demonstrates it has exhausted every possible means to increase catches. This was announced today by allied headquarters, which expressed disappointment that "fishing is not being resumed on a scale commensurate with the number of fishermen, boats, and nets available."

TEXAS MURDER CHARGES TOLD TO 'BLUEBEARD'

He Faces Court Smiling; Needs a Shave

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 15 [Special]—Alfred Leonard Cline, 56, bespectacled wooer of wealthy widows, was arraigned in court here today as a murder fugitive from Dallas, Tex.

Unshaven but self composed and smiling, Cline was brought before Municipal Judge Edward Molkenbuhr for his first public appearance since his arrest as a forgery suspect here Dec. 7 touched off a nationwide investigation of 15 years of romances in which six women died.

Cline stood mute before the court as Judge Molkenbuhr gave him a week to decide whether he wishes to fight or waive extradition to Dallas. He was ordered held without bail.

One Woman's Death

The Dallas charge is the result of the death in a hotel there Oct. 17, 1944, of a woman he represented as Mrs. Alice W. Carpenter of St. Petersburg, Fla., but who is believed by police to have been the former Mrs. Delora Krebs of Chicago, whom Cline married in Chicago May 26, 1944.

While Cline was facing the court here, the ashes of the woman who died in Dallas were being exhumed from Rosehill cemetery in Bloomington, Ind., girlhood home of Mrs. Carpenter.

Present at the exhumation were George I. Carpenter, brother-in-law of Mrs. Carpenter, who had the ashes sent to Bloomington last June; John Rawlins, Bloomington chief of police, and J. Homer Andreas, Chicago attorney representing heirs of the late Mrs. Krebs. Rawlins said the copper urn will be sent to the state police laboratory at Indianapolis for examination and chemical analysis of the ashes.

An Automobile Trip

Mrs. Carpenter was last seen alive Feb. 12, 1944, when she left St. Petersburg in an automobile with Cline after telling friends she intended to marry him. Cline reported her death in Dallas the following October, but in the meantime he had met and married Mrs. Krebs, who disappeared a few days before the death of the woman in Dallas.

Chief Rawlins said the police laboratory will be asked to sift the ashes for residue of dental fillings and to test them for the presence of arsenic. He said that in some instances, traces of arsenic can be detected in the ashes of persons killed by that poison. A laboratory report is expected by Tuesday, he said.

In Dallas, Chief of Detectives Will Fritz said the murder case against Cline will be presented to the grand jury Jan. 7. If an indictment is voted steps to hasten extradition will be taken promptly, he promised.

"We Want Him"

"Even if other cities get ahead of us in getting jurisdiction over Cline, we want him here and will insist on his being brought here for trial, unless, of course, he gets the death penalty somewhere else," Fritz said.

A formal investigation of Cline's activities in Macon, Ga., got under way today when Solicitor Gen. Charles H. Garrett assigned two city detectives to gather evidence in regard to the death of an elderly widow in that city Feb. 21, 1944.

This woman, who died in a hotel after being brought there by a man using the name of Frederick Klein, was cremated by "Klein's" orders Feb. 23 under the name of Mrs. Alma Willa Carter of San Francisco. Macon authorities believe she may have been Mrs. Carpenter.

Doctor Is Uncertain

Dr. L. L. Rawls, who signed a death certificate for the Macon woman, said he is unable to recall the circumstances of her death. He said he had been working as much as 20 hours a day at that time, because of the shortage of physicians, and was so busy he often kept no record of his calls.

The ashes of "Mrs. Carter" are unclaimed at a Macon mortuary, it was said, altho "Klein" paid for the cremation.

Police in Jacksonville, Fla., were continuing their investigation of the death and cremation there in November, 1943, of a woman registered as Elizabeth Hannah Klein but believed to have been an Oakland, Cal., widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Hunt Lewis, who left California with Cline a few weeks earlier.

Because several of the persons who died after meeting Cline are reported to have been given buttermilk by him shortly before they became ill, Cline has been dubbed locally a "buttermilk Bluebeard."

The Buttermilk Cases

Buttermilk figured in the death of one of his wives and her brother in 1933 and in the death in Portland, Ore., last Nov. 29 of a woman Cline said was the former Mrs. Krebs but who police insist was Mrs. Isabelle Van Natta, San Francisco widow.

Mrs. Krebs inherited an estate of $250,000 from her late husband, Charles E. Krebs, Chicago manufacturer, in 1936, and is believed to have had a total fortune of about $400,000 when Cline married her. Since Cline's arrest, about $235,000 in cash and securities has been recovered in safety deposit boxes and bank accounts.

FIND CLEW TO RICHES

Clews to the missing wealth of Mrs. Eva Delora Krebs Cline, 73, Chicago widow, who vanished Oct. 27, 1944, were discovered yesterday in the Anderson Brothers warehouse, 3141 Sheffield av., among effects stored by her second husband, Alfred L. Cline, 56, suspected Bluebeard.

The evidence turned up during an appraisal ordered by Jack Rubens, chief investigator for the public administrator, acting on a writ issued by Judge John F. O'Connell of Probate court, which has assumed jurisdiction over Mrs. Krebs Cline's estate.

Wooden Box Discovered

The discovery was made by the appraiser, Walter Blinstrub, in a wooden box inside a trunk filled with Mrs. Krebs Cline's belongings and with personal articles that once belonged to her first husband, Charles Krebs, Chicago manufacturer.

The most significant clew was what appeared to be a list of stocks and bonds owned by Mrs. Krebs Cline. Blinstrub said the box also contained correspondence on business matters and a large sheaf of Mrs. Krebs Cline's canceled checks.

Rubens said the documents appeared to be what he has been seeking as a basis for tracing Mrs. Krebs Cline's fortune—her own wealth as well as the $250,000 estate she inherited from Krebs. The missing riches are estimated tentatively at $215,000.

Firm Forbids Removal

While Rubens was notified at once of the discovery of the box, the warehouse officials declined to allow removal of the contents without a written order from the public administrator's office. This formality will delay a thoro examination until tomorrow.

Cline placed the trunk in storage on June 5, 1944, along with other funishings of the elderly bride's apartment at 3000 Sheridan rd. The goods occupy an entire section of the warehouse.

Blinstrub's item by item inventory and appraisal of the goods has not been completed. He said, however, that the four rooms of furniture were surprisingly ordinary for a woman of Mrs. Krebs Cline's means and that the oriental rugs had little value.

Whirlwind Courtship

Cline's courtship of Mrs. Krebs was described by Detective Timothy Allman, one of the policemen assigned to the case, as a whirlwind affair which started when Cline met the wealthy widow at a church on the north side in April, 1944.

Allman said Mrs. Krebs and Cline were married on May 26, 1944, and Cline immediately moved his bride from her Sheridan rd. apartment to the Palmer House and saw to it that she was cut off from her friends and associates.

During the next 10 days, Cline persuaded his wife to make him co-owner of stocks and bonds, to give him control of other assets, and to execute a will making him the beneficiary, Allman asserted.

Cline never lived at the Sheridan rd. apartment, Allman said, but went there and took charge of the packing and removal of the furniture and oriental rugs.

Police were told that Cline appeared anxious that nothing should be overlooked, and engaged in a heated argument with the building manager because he wanted to remove the radiator covers, which belonged to the building. He finally was dissuaded, but "he didn't leave anything else," the police were informed.

Cline apparently was determined that his bride should sever all her old associations and none of her friends can recollect ever having met him, Allman said.

Leave in Battered Truck

As soon as the apartment's furnishings were stored, Cline took his bride to Columbus, O., returning in August, 1944, for a few days. Before Mrs. Krebs' marriage to Cline, she had allowed her attorney, John Ryan, to handle most of her affairs. She was accustomed to travel luxuriously in drawing rooms and had Ryan make her reservations.

Nevertheless, when she and Cline left Chicago for the last time, they traveled in an old, battered Dodge pickup truck, which Cline had purchased. Their baggage was in the back seat, with Mrs. Cline's expensive furs—coats, neck piece, and muff—covered by canvas.

Joseph O'Brien, 78, of 3604 Lowe av., died yesterday in County hospital of injuries suffered Oct. 3 in a fall at his home.

Woman Knocked Down by Draft of Streamliner

Crossing in front of a streamlined Chicago and North Western train at Central av. in Wilmette, Miss Elizabeth Klein, 71, of 1600 Central av., Wilmette, yesterday missed being struck by the train but was spun around and blown down by the draft of air. Policeman Charles Taylor said she walked around the lowered gates and barely succeeded in getting across the tracks ahead of the train. She was treated at the Evanston hospital for bruises.

SYNDICATE RUNS 'A POLICE FORCE' TO HELP BOOKIES

Robber Says One of Gang Faced 'Showup'

How Chicago's gambling syndicate set up its own police system, including showups of suspects, to combat the activities of a band of handbook robbers, whose deeds included the slaying of two policemen and assassination of one of their own members, was disclosed yesterday.

Armed "detectives" were used by the gambling operators to bring in men suspected of the robberies. A house on the west side served as the showup room, where handbook operators and customers who were robbed gathered to look at suspects.

Similar to Police Force

The setup appeared to operate in a behind the scenes manner in much the same way that the city's police force operates.

The disclosures were made by Lawrence [Tiny] Mazzanars, 34, of 3402 Lyndale st., the most talkative member of the robbery and murder gang. He already has told how one of his henchmen, Cecil [Red] Smith, shot and killed Detectives George H. Hellstern and Charles A. Brady last Sept. 2, and how Smith himself was executed by the gang and buried in a corn field because the gang feared he would break and talk if seized for questioning.

Other members of the gang who have been accounted for are Christ Perres, 27, of Joliet, shot and killed by police on Dec. 7, and Renoro Lolli, James J. Kelly, and Richard Todd, who are in custody. Others are being sought.

Rob Gambling Operators

The band made lucrative raids on a number of handbooks and gambling joints. Disclosure of the steps taken against them by the gambling operators came to the gang thru chance, Mazzanars said. He told this story:

Early in October, Lolli, Kelly, and Perres set out to rob a west side handbook. Kelly carried a submachine gun. The door of the place was opened at their knock but slammed shut when the attendant saw the guns.

Perres was in the lead and his right shoe was caught in the closed door. He was unable to pull it loose. Using a knife to cut off the top, he pulled his foot out and fled with the other men, leaving the shoe in the door.

Four Put Guns Against Him

Ten days later, Mazzanars said, Kelly was in a tavern near Madison and Laflin sts. Four men who had been seated at a table walked over to Kelly at the bar and put guns against him.

"Get your coat," they said. "We want to talk to you."

Kelly was put in an automobile, Mazzanars related, and was driven west. On the way, the men told Kelly he was suspected of robbing handbooks and added:

"We have a shoe lost by a robber. If it fits you, you'll never wear another pair."

Told to Watch His Step

He was taken to the west side house, where a number of customers and gamblers had been assembled. They looked at Kelly, but were unable to identify him. Then Perres' shoe was placed on his right foot, but it did not fit.

The gunmen warned Kelly to "watch his step" and sent him on his way.

Police efforts to clean up the band of robbers and murderers turned yesterday to an intensified search for Virgil and Neal [Monk] Summers, ex-convict brothers of Mount Vernon, Jefferson county.

Virgil, 32, has been described as the "tough guy" of the band, who had threatened that he would take over operation of the syndicate's handbooks "if it were not for all the bookkeeping involved."

Sent to Prison for Slaying

He went to the penitentiary in March, 1934, to serve a 17 year sentence for murder. He was sentenced with three other downstate men for the murder of Rosie R. Green on a farm near Bluford, Jefferson county. They were accused of torturing the man to death in belief he had buried a large sum of money.

Virgil was discharged from prison Dec. 1, 1943, and later came to Chicago with his brother, Neal, 45.

The Summers brothers' mother, Sarah, and a brother, the Rev. Mr. Ace Summers, pastor of the Pentecostal Mission church, live in Mount Vernon.

Released and Seized Again

Detective bureau police yesterday resorted to legal strategy to regain custody of Lolli and Kelly, the gang members who were taken last week to the county jail to await grand jury action.

No bills were voted by the grand jury. This permitted release of the men, who were taken into custody as soon as they walked out of the jail.

Both men were reluctant to go back to police headquarters for further questioning about disclosures made by Mazzanars since Lolli and Kelly were taken to the jail. These included disclosures that Smith had murdered Detectives Hellstern and Brady and that Smith had been murdered by the gang, with Lolli firing the fatal shot.

Tries to Kill Self

Lolli late yesterday tried to strangle himself in a cell at the detective bureau by twisting his tie about his neck. He was found on the floor by the lockup keeper and was revived.

Questioned by Sgt. John Hanrahan, Lolli admitted he killed Smith after Perres' weapon had misfired. He said Perres had unloaded his own revolver so the task would fall to Lolli.

Before he was removed from jail to the detective bureau, Kelly pleaded with Warden Sain, "Can't I stay? I don't want to leave here."

In a special showup late yesterday at the detective bureau, several persons who were in the vicinity of the shooting of the two policemen saw Mazzanars and listened to Police Capt. Michael Ahern and Sgt. Hanrahan question him. None of the spectators was able to identify Mazzanars and all said they did not see him the night of the shooting. Police said after the showup that they were almost certain that Mazzanars was not connected with the slaying of the officers.

Dennis Casey Jones, 3, will spend Christmas with his father instead of in an orphanage. Dennis was brought to Chicago from Waterloo Iowa, three weeks ago by his mother, Alma, and placed in a nursery at 1645 N. Richmond st., while she went to look for work. Three days later, the nursing home operator took Dennis to the North av. police station believing him abandoned. Police took him to St. Vincent's orphanage.

Arrested the next day, Mrs. Jones told police she had been ill and did not know how to contact the nursery.

Meanwhile, her husband, Oscar, from whom she is separated, obtained a court order in Iowa for the baby's custody. He drove to Chicago yesterday and took the baby back to Waterloo.

MAYOR PRAISES SOLVING OF TWO POLICE MURDERS

The fatal shooting of Detectives Charles Brady and George Hellstern in Rogers Park by a holdup man last Sept. 2 was a tragic illustration of the reason policemen should take no chances when questioning suspicious persons, Mayor Kelly said yesterday.

"The solving of this shooting was a remarkable job of police work," he said. "The deaths of these two officers proved that policemen should not be censored for having their guns in their hands when they stop a subject for questioning."

SLAIN EX-WAVE GOES TO GRAVE IN SIMPLE RITES

Fifty Pay Last Tribute in Home Town

BY GLADYS PRIDDY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service].

Richmond, Ind., Dec. 15—Frances Brown, 33, former Richmond girl who moved to Chicago and a business career 12 years ago, was buried here today in rites so simple the bizarre circumstances of her death were hard to imagine.

Only 50 family friends attended services for the ex-Wave who became known as the Lipstick Murder victim last Monday when she was found slain in the Pine Crest hotel in Chicago. Challenging the police was a message scrawled with lipstick on the wall of her apartment: "For heaven's sake catch me before I kill more. I cannot control myself."

No Curiosity Seekers

There were no curiosity seekers at the rites. Even the police who manned the escort car to the cemetery inquired whose funeral they were leading. Most of the mourners were white haired women, obviously friends of the dead girl's widowed mother, Mrs. Ethel Brown, proprietor of a little notions shop here.

The mother stepped from an ante room as people began to arrive and sat in the front of the chapel where each group of arrivals would greet her after they had walked up to the couch casket.

As services began, Mrs. Brown was joined by her family—her son, John, and his wife, and her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Adelsperger, and her husband. There were no Waves, but flowers from offices in which Miss Brown served during her more than two years of military duty showed they had remembered her.

Roommate at Services

Miss Viola Butler, roommate of Miss Brown who was absent on the night of the murder, attended the services.

The trip to the cemetery began in a flurry of snow which cleared as the 13 car procession arrived inside the burial ground. It was at the graveside that Mrs. Brown gave away a little to her grief. That occurred as James Lentzeris of the American Legion squad presented her with the flag which had draped the coffin.

The Legionnaires fired a volley, and taps ended the services.

POET SUSPECT IN MURDER OF FORMER WAVE

Donald I. Montgomery, 27, of 27 S. Halsted st., a blond, blue eyed poet, was seized by Town Hall police yesterday for questioning in the investigation of the "lipstick murder" of Miss Frances Brown, 33, attractive former WAVE, who was found shot and stabbed last Monday in her apartment in the Pine Crest hotel, 3941 Pine Grove av.

Capt. Frank Reynolds said Montgomery was arrested at his home on an anonymous tip. The suspect, who wears his hair unusually long, gave his occupation as a dishwasher. His pockets were filled with poetry written on restaurant menu cards.

The poetry and other clews to Montgomery's handwriting were given to the police crime detection laboratory for comparison with the writing which was found, in lipstick on a wall in Miss Brown's room.

Capt. Reynolds asked Montgomery to write the words on the wall: "For heaven's sake, stop me before I kill more."

As he complied, Montgomery said: "So that's what you want me for, to ask about the murder of the woman."

Shift of 76 Patrolmen, 15 Sergeants Announced

Police Commissioner Allman yesterday announced the transfer of 15 sergeants and 76 patrolmen. The order became effective at 12:01 a. m. today. He said the transfers were made for "the good of the service."

4 CONFESS STARTING FIRES BY USING OWN 'MOLOTOV COCKTAILS'

Jack Culver, 17, of 3808 Main st.; Dan Drogoin, 17, of 3603 Ivy st.; Floyd Darnell, 17, of 3811 Butternut st., and Robert Heine, 18, of 3927 Pulaski st., all of East Chicago, Ind., confessed yesterday, police said, that they set four fires in East Chicago, using bottles of gasoline containing a lighted wick. They told Detectives Walter Raszkowski and Michael Gorman that they devised their incendiary device after reading about Molotov cocktails, employed by the Russians against German tanks.

On Dec. 13 they started fires at the home of Herman Eisenstein, 3939 Deal st., East Chicago, causing damage estimated at $700, and in a building at 39th st. and Parrish av., causing $800 damage.

The next night they started fires at the front door of the public library, 36th st. and Grand blvd., and the Lincoln school, 36th and Elm sts., East Chicago, and minor damage resulting. All four have been turned over to juvenile authorities.

SON, 16, SEIZED IN SLAYING OF FATHER, A POET

Easton, Pa., Dec. 15 (AP)—Walter Davidge, 16, was held without charge today for questioning in the slaying of his father, Willis D. Davidge, better known as William O'Davage, Dist. Atty. Stanley J. Fehr reported.

County Detective John Trout said the boy told him he shot and killed his father, 47, with a .22 rifle as he was beating Walter's mother, Gladys, 45.

Fehr said Mrs. Davidge told him her husband, home on leave from the maritime service, was a writer of poetry for sports papers. The boy and his mother said the shooting took place when O'Davage came home after drinking early today.

"He had been drinking and he started cursing me," Trout quoted the boy as saying. "He said he was coming for me. When he started, I had to shoot."

LANGE SLAYING CLEWS SOUGHT AMONG FRIENDS

Three Women, Four Men to Be Questioned

Among the close friends of Lawrence A. Lange, 36, who was found stabbed and slashed to death Friday night in his apartment at 3148 Wilson av., police yesterday sought clews to the identity of his murderer.

Lange, personal secretary to Charles H. Morse, 77, retired president of Fairbanks, Morse & Co., was believed to have been killed between 8:30 and 9:15 p. m. Wednesday.

Capt. Thomas Kelly of the Albany Park station said he believed the murderer would bear deep marks from biting and scratching since relatives of the slain man said he fought that way since a child.

Six Men, Woman Questioned

Six men whose names were in a small red "memo" book found in Lange's apartment were questioned by Capt. Kelly but threw no light on the murder. He also questioned a woman from whom Lange recently purchased a health lamp.

Detectives were checking thru papers and personel records Lange kept in his home and office. Several other men and women were being sought for questioning.

At the head of the list of men sought was one known to police only as "John," and said to be an insurance company official with whom Lange had been friendly for three years.

It was learned that the men had spent two weeks at Winter Park, Fla., returning two weeks ago. Also sought was a cab driver who was reported to have spent a half hour Wednesday night in Lange's apartment after bringing him home with the health lamp. A finger print found on the lamp was being checked.

Florida Officials' Aid Asked

In a communication to Florida authorities, Capt. Kelly requested them to question Mrs. E. J. Heiss of West Palm Beach. Several letters written by her and signed "Penny" were found in Lange's apartment. They indicated she wanted Lange to quit his job in Chicago and enter the real estate business in Florida.

Capt. Kelly said he learned from associates of Lange that a number of persons had sought to dissuade him from leaving Chicago. Lange was said to have cautioned family members and friends not to reveal his whereabouts to anyone in case he did decide to go.

Possibility was being considered, Capt. Kelly said, that Lange had determined to go to Florida and that this decision precipitated a quarrel resulting in his murder.

Edward and Henry Lange, brothers of the slain man, reside at 4427 N. Artesian av. Their address was given erroneously in yesterday's TRIBUNE as 4424 N. Artesian av.

EXPRESS OWNER, EMPLOYE HELD UP. Ray Casazze, 1528 N. Wells st., owner of the Nu-Way Express and Van company, 902 S. Morgan st., and John Connelly, 2124 Lincoln av., an employe, were held up in the company's offices last night by a man carrying a revolver, Casazze told police. Casazze was robbed of $450, Connelly of $40, Casazze said.

KELLY OPPOSES BIG REDUCTION AT GREAT LAKES

Mayor Kelly yesterday added his voice to those of midwest governors and other leaders who are opposing a reported move to strip the Great Lakes Naval Training center to a token installation only.

"The midwest is entitled to a potent naval training station at Great Lakes," the mayor said. "The best men of the army, navy, and marine corps came from this section of the country. We've got the kind of people that can do everything better. We should keep Great Lakes strong on the record these men made."

The mayor pointed out that Great Lakes location is perfect for a training station and that it has every advantage needed. "It wouldn't be a favor to the midwest to keep Great Lakes open—because the midwest is entitled to it," the mayor said.

MAGIC, NEW INFRA-LECTRIC HEATER $29.95

PERFECT FOR HARD-TO-HEAT ROOMS!
- No flames, no glow, no fumes—the Infra-Lectric heater employs the entirely new heating principle of radiant heat by infra-red light rays emanating from the glass surface.
- No exposed parts—the Infra-Lectric is the last word in safety. It's perfect for nurseries and playrooms! Even delicate garments can be dried on it without fear of scorching.
- No moving parts to get out of whack—the heating element is an aluminum alloy band fused into the back of tempered glass plate. It's a lifetime investment.
- Practical safeguard to health—the Infra-Lectric heater will prevent sudden changes in temperature the year 'round.
- Inexpensive to operate—the Infra-Lectric heater automatically reduces rate of current consumption as temperature of room goes up. Uses 1000 to 800 watts—and heats from both sides.
- Easy to move from room to room—this heater weighs only 18 pounds.
- For 110 volts, A.C. only—Decorative fused-glass heating element in polished aluminum frame—it will blend with any room scheme. Over-all dimensions—20x20¼x4 inches.

MOTHER TO GET MENTAL TESTS IN KIDNAP HOAX

Held on Death Charge in Baby Fake

Chelsea, Mass., Dec. 15 (AP)—Mrs. Rose Carlan, 23, mother of "kidnaped" Ronald Carlan, whose body was found yesterday under a china closet in his home, was held tonight on a charge of assaulting and beating to death the baby.

The court was packed with spectators when Stephen White, assistant clerk, read the charge that Mrs. Carlan assaulted and beat the baby "with intent to murder him, and by such assault and beating did murder" him.

She replied "that is not true" and dropped into a chair, sobbing.

No formal plea was entered and Judge John W. McLeod ordered her held without bail for hearing Dec. 24 and committed her to the Boston Psychopathic hospital for mental observation.

She "Can't Understand"

As she left the police station for the hospital, Mrs. Carlan told reporters she could not understand how she was able to carry out the kidnap hoax.

"I got in deeper and deeper," she said. "I am relieved that I can tell the truth now. At first I was afraid my folks would think I was neglecting my child and I would lose my husband's love. I don't care about anything else if I can keep his love."

As she entered the police car she thanked Police Chief Charles M. Finn "for being so understanding during this ordeal" and added:

"I swear on the crucifix that I have around my neck that I never harmed my baby."

Mrs. Carlan was arrested after police found the body of the 6 month old boy stuffed in vacant space beneath the lower drawer of a built-in china closet in an apartment dining room used as a bedroom.

Tells of Finding Him Dead

The denouement came 16 days after Mrs. Carlan had reported the baby kidnaped from his carriage, which she had placed near a school across the street from her home.

Last night police quoted her as saying she had found the baby dead Nov. 24—four days before she reported the child kidnaped—when she returned from the third floor apartment of her mother-in-law where a party was in progress.

She said she was panic-stricken when she discovered the baby was dead, and after an ineffectual attempt to restore life to the infant, she returned to the party with a phonograph and records.

Bundles Baby in Bunting

Fearing people would say she had "neglected" the child, the mother's story went on, she bundled his body into a blue bunting and secreted it under the china closet. Then she reported him kidnaped.

Her husband, James, 28, a navy machinists' mate, obtained emergency leave to fly from the west coast to be with his wife in the search for their child—the baby he never had seen. The Carlans have another boy, James Jr., 3.

SURVIVORS SAY McVAY ORDERED SHIP ABANDONED

10 Minute Wait Told at Court Martial

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15 (AP)—The defense in Capt. Charles B. McVay's court martial presented testimony today that the accused officer was heard to order the doomed cruiser Indianapolis abandoned 10 minutes after it was shaken by explosions.

Capt. McVay, skipper of the ship, is on trial on charges of negligence and inefficiency in the loss of the Indianapolis while en route from Guam to Leyte. The ship was sunk shortly after midnight July 30 by enemy action, 15 minutes after it was blasted by explosions pre sumably caused by enemy torpedoes.

The charge of inefficiency is based on the contention that he failed to issue "timely" abandon ship orders, which resulted in the loss of hundreds of lives.

Heard Order to Leave

Seaman K. M. Lanter of Thomasville, Ga., testified he heard Capt. McVay and the ship's executive officer in conversation on the signal bridge from eight to 10 minutes after the explosion and the captain ordered the executive officer to pass told by the officer in charge that the word had been passed to abandon ship.

H. H. Hodge, radioman 2/c of Lyndhurst, N. J., said he was asleep at the time of the explosions. When he went on deck, he said, he was ordered by a watch supervisor to go to the radio shack to help send out distress signals. When he got there, he said, he was told by the officer in charge that the word had been passed to abandon ship.

Doctor Heard Command

Lt. [j. g.] M. W. Modisher, Meadville, Pa., one of the ship's medical officers, said word came from the bridge that the captain had ordered abandon ship. He estimated the time at 8 to 10 minutes after the explosion.

"Seven or eight minutes later," he said, the ship sank.

Ensign J. D. Howison, New Albany, Ind., said he got the word to abandon ship shortly after he reached the dock eight to 10 minutes reached the deck 8 to 10 minutes the opinion that the word was given early enough for all men to get life jackets and prepare to go over the side.

CAPTAIN SLAIN, 5 IN CREW HELD, WIFE INFORMED

Capt. Austin Fithian

Lynbrook, N. Y., Dec. 15 (AP)—Mrs. Jane Thompson Fithian, wife of Merchant Marine Capt. Austin Fithian, 30, said today she had been informed her husband had been shot and killed and that five members of his crew were being held in naval custody at Manus, in the Admiralty Islands, in connection with the death.

She said the information was contained in a cablegram received from naval sources by Edward A. Richmond of the war shipping administration in Washington. He made the cablegram available to P. P. Lanning, operations manager of the Seas Shipping company, who relayed the message to her, Mrs. Fithian said.

Commander of Ship

Her husband was commanding officer of the Liberty ship Arthur R. Lewis, which was operated by the Seas Shipping company for the war shipping administration.

The message contained no information which would indicate when or where her husband was killed or under what circumstances, Mrs. Fithian said.

In New York City, Lanning confirmed the report of Fithian's death and said he was trying to obtain additional information.

Brought Troops Back

Fithian had been in the maritime service since 1935, when he was graduated from the New York State Merchant Marine academy. His wife said he was home last September, when his ship brought troops from Greece to the United States.

The couple have an infant daughter, Margo.

Little Willie Hurls a Rock and $260 Bounces Back

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 15 (AP)—William Roehl, 13, likes to throw stones at bottles in the city dump. Six months ago one of the stones broke a bottle and out popped $260 in currency which William turned over to police. Since no one claimed the cash, police today turned it over to the boy.

TRUMAN MOVES TO FORCE QUICK PEACE IN CHINA

Marshall Leaves; Carries Demand for Unity

fairs is the responsibility of the peoples of the sovereign nations. Events of this century, however, would indicate that a breach of peace anywhere in the world threatens the peace of the entire world.

"It is thus in the most vital interest of the United States and all the united nations that the people of China overlook no opportunity to adjust their internal differences promptly by methods of peaceful negotiation.

"The government of the United States believes it essential:

"1—That a cessation of hostilities be arranged between the armies of the national government and the Chinese Communists and other dissident Chinese armed forces for the purpose of completing the return of all China to effective Chinese control, including the immediate evacuation of the Japanese forces.

"2—That a national conference of representatives of major political elements be arranged to develop an early solution to the present internal strife—a solution which will bring about the unification of China.

Only Legal Government

"The United States and the other united nations have recognized the present national government of the Republic of China as the only legal government in China. It is the proper instrument to achieve the objective of a unified China.

"The United States and the United Kingdom by the Cairo declaration in 1943 and the union of soviet socialist republics by adhering to the Potsdam declaration of last July and by the Sino-soviet treaty and agreements of August, 1945, are all committed to the liberation of China, including the return of Manchuria to Chinese control. These agreements were made with the national government of the Republic of China.

U. S. Assumes Obligation

"In continuation of the constant and close collaboration with the national government of the Republic of China in the prosecution of this war, in consonance with the Potsdam declaration and to remove possibility of Japanese influence remaining in China, the United States has assumed a definite obligation in the disarmament and evacuation of the Japanese troops.

"Accordingly the United States has been assisting and will continue to assist the national government of the Republic of China in effecting the disarmament and evacuation of Japanese troops in the liberated areas. The United States marines are in north China for that purpose.

"The United States recognizes and will continue to recognize the national government of China and cooperate with it in international affairs and specifically in eliminating Japanese influence from China. The United States is convinced that a prompt arrangement for a cessation of hostilities is essential to the effective achievement of this end.

"United States' support will not extend to United States military intervention to influence the course of any Chinese internal strife.

"Great Price" Paid

"The United States has already been compelled to pay a great price to restore the peace which was first broken by Japanese aggression in Manchuria. The maintenance of peace in the Pacific may be jeopardized, if not frustrated, unless Japanese influence in China is wholly removed and unless China takes her place as a unified, democratic, and peaceful nation. This is the purpose of the maintenance for the time being of United States military and naval forces in China.

"The United States is cognizant that the present national government of China is a 'one-party government' and believes that peace, unity, and democratic reform in China will be furthered if the basis of this government is broadened to include other political elements in the country. Hence, the United States strongly advocates that the national conference of representatives of major political elements in the country agree upon arrangements which would give those elements a fair and effective representation in the Chinese national government.

Must Magnify Policy

"It is recognized that this would require modification of the one-party "political tutelage" established as an interim arrangement in the progress of the nation toward democracy by the father of the Chinese republic, Dr. Sun Yat-Sen.

"The existence of autonomous armies such as that of the communist army is inconsistent with, and actually makes impossible, political unity in China. With the institution of a broadly representative government, autonomous armies should be eliminated as such and all armed forces in China integrated effectively into the Chinese national army.

"In line with its often expressed views regarding self-determination, the United States government considers that the detailed steps necessary to the achievement of political unity in China must be worked out by the Chinese themselves and that intervention by any foreign government in these matters would be inappropriate.

China Has Responsibility

"The United States government feels, however, that China has a clear responsibility to the other united nations to eliminate armed conflict within its territory as constituting a threat to world stability and peace—a responsibility which is shared by the national government and all Chinese political and military groups.

"As China moves toward peace and unity along the lines described above, the United States would be prepared to assist the national government in every reasonable way to rehabilitate the country, improve the agrarian and industrial economy, and establish a military organization capable of discharging China's national and international responsibilities for the maintenance of peace and order.

"In furtherance of such assistance, it would be prepared to give favorable consideration to Chinese requests for credits and loans under reasonable conditions for projects which would contribute toward the development of a healthy economy thruout China and healthy trade relations between China and the United States."

CHIANG TO SEEK A UNITED, FREE AND EQUAL CHINA

Calls for Regeneration of Country

PEIPING, China, Dec. 15 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek reiterated today his determination to build a united, free, and equal China, and called on those who struggled heroically against Japanese domination to work with equal devotion for the regeneration of their country.

Chiang spoke in the Hall of Cherished Benevolence at the former winter palace of the Manchus. His audience included many of his friends and associates of early revolutionary days as well as foreign diplomatic representatives and a group of United States marine officers headed by Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey, commander of the 3d marine amphibious corps.

Mme. Chiang Silent

Madame Chiang Kai-shek also attended but did not address the gathering.

After thanking his "old friends of the early revolution" for their sturdy resistance during the Japanese occupation, the generalissimo paid tribute to the United States marines for the part they played in China's liberation.

The venerable Gen. Chin Yun-peng, who was premier of China in the days when this was the capital, responded to Chiang's address with the hope that China would have "six five-year plans" and that the generalissimo would lead the nation for another 30 years.

Diplomats Hail Chiang

American, Russian, French, Swiss, and British diplomats greeted Chiang in the brilliantly illuminated hall where the presidents of China held their receptions in the early days of the republic.

Among the Chinese notables present were Gen. Lt. Tsung-jen, commander of the generalissimo's field headquarters; Gen. Ma Tsung-hsan, commander of Chinese forces at Mukden when the Japanese invaded Manchuria; Pu Chi, brother of the last emperor of the Ching dynasty; Dr. William Hung, dean of Yenching university, and the Rev. Z. T. Kiang, the Methodist clergyman who baptized Chiang.

Flags of the United States, Britain, Russia, and China were draped on the wall, while across the ceiling spread the huge, 12 pointed sun emblem of the Kuomintang [Nationalist party].

Tomorrow Generalissimo and Madame Chiang will review the 5th regiment of United States marines and present awards to men cited for bravery on Okinawa.

Fred Dillon

Mrs. Marilyn Dillon, 21, was arrested by Oak Park police at 6:30 a. m. yesterday when she returned to her apartment at at 1191 S. Taylor av., in the suburb, where she had left her 2 year old son, Fred alone the night before.

Lt. William Koerber investigated when neighbors said the baby had been crying for several hours. He said the baby, wearing only a shirt, was in a filthy crib and was suffering from skin trouble and undernourishment.

The child was taken to Oak Park hospital. Police said the mother had been in a Berwyn tavern. Police said Mrs. Dillon is estranged from her husband, John.

M'ARTHUR EDICT ABOLISHES JAPS' STATE SHINTOISM

TOKYO, Japan, Dec. 16 [Sunday]—(AP)—Gen. MacArthur today ordered state Shintoism abolished in Japan to destroy the compulsory religious ideology which his staff asserted led the nation into war.

With the expressed aim of freeing people from "direct or indirect compulsion" to believe in "manufactured" religion, the allied directive laid down a program of broad revision. It called for:

1. Withdrawal of all government control and support of state Shinto—"The Way of the Gods."
2. Purging of militaristic and ultra-nationalistic ideology from the doctrine of the cult, which preaches ancestor worship and deifies the emperor.
3. Removal of Shinto teachings from schools.

Affects State Shintoism

Allied officers emphasized that the action, carrying out a policy announced recently by the United States state department, involves state Shintoism but does not affect the sect of Shinto which, in 1941, had an estimated 17,000,000 adherents. Nor is it an attempt, they said, to dictate religious beliefs of any kind to the Japanese. However, the entire population of 70,000,000 is considered members of state Shinto, including 45,000,000 Buddhists and 315,000 Christians.

Brig. Gen. Ken R. Dyke, who described development of state Shinto as "a masterly job of promotion," said Gen. MacArthur's order liberates the Japanese from compulsory support of the ideology which "has contributed to their war guilt, defeat, suffering, privation, and the present deplorable condition."

All Creeds on Same Basis

Gen. Dyke is chief of the information and education section which drafted terms of the new religious freedom in Japan. In a statement for the Japanese press, he said that all creeds were placed upon the same legal basis.

"Shinto shrines that have a real religious following," he said, "will be able to exist on voluntary contributions."

Lt. William K. Bunce of the United States navy, former professor of oriental history, who prepared the text of the order, said the divorcing of Shinto from government control would cause its influence to wane.

Asked whether steps affecting the Japanese conception of the emperor's divinity were contemplated, Gen. Dyke said he could not answer that question at this time.

Emperor Still Spiritual Head

He added that he saw no reason why the emperor should not continue to worship at the grand shrine of Ise, to which Hirohito journeyed recently to report war's end to his ancestors. In the future, however, the emperor cannot be accompanied by state officials.

"The emperor is still the spiritual head of Japan," said the general.

Under the heading of militaristic and ultra-nationalistic ideology which must be abolished are doctrines that the emperor is superior to heads of other states and the Japanese superior to other peoples because of descent from the sun goddess.

The order abolishes the home ministry's shrine bureau, which has exercised jurisdiction over all shrines and appointed priests of state Shinto.

CHINESE REDS ARE 'NUISANCE,' SAYS SEN. HART

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15 (AP)—Sen. Hart [R., Conn.], former commander of the United States Asiatic fleet, declared tonight Chinese Communists are "making themselves a general nuisance" in the United States-Chinese effort to get Japanese soldiers out of China.

Hart discussed the presence of United States marines in north China in a radio speech. He said:

"There has now been some progress in withdrawing the Japanese to the seacoast, but it has been slow because the communist guerrillas have seen fit to interfere with the process by tearing up railroad tracks, smashing bridges, and making themselves a general nuisance."

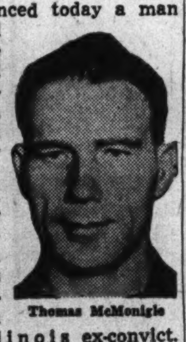
ADMITS KILLING GIRL, HURLING BODY OFF CLIFF

Ex-Convict Held by FBI; Tells Kidnaping



Thomas McMonigle

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 15 (AP)—The FBI announced today a man they arrested had admitted he shot and killed Thora Chamberlain, 15, of San Jose, Cal., and threw the body in the ocean.

The office said FBI Director Hoover announced the man was Thomas Henry McMonigle, 35, of San Mateo, an Illinois ex-convict. Hoover said McMonigle had confessed kidnapping the girl last Nov. 2. The body has not been found and no charge has been filed against him.

Body Thrown from Cliff.

The announcement said McMonigle related that the girl's body had been thrown from a 350 foot cliff, about 10½ miles north of Half Moon bay.

The FBI said "the undertow and swell is such that if the body were to float it would have been torn to pieces in two or three days."

An intensive search by navy men was made along the surf line and in cave formations at the base of the high cliff where, even at low tide, there is 10 feet of rough water.

Girl Picked Up

The FBI statement said "McMonigle has admitted picking up Thora Chamberlain, daughter of a contractor, by asking her the direction to Santa Cruz and claims that she got into the automobile to direct him." The girl was picked up while she was leaving school.

"Then, according to his story," the statement resumed, "they became lost because of unfamiliarity with the roads. Later he reached Santa Cruz and proceeded north to a point three-tenths of a mile south of the Santa Cruz-San Mateo county line.

"Here, McMonigle has confessed, the girl was shot to death with an automatic pistol."

The FBI refused to say whether McMonigle had admitted a motive in the kidnaping or whether there was an attempt at rape. He was turned over to the sheriff and taken to San Quentin prison.

Photo Identified

The FBI said McMonigle told them he then drove to the cliff, from which the body was thrown.

The FBI statement continued: "McMonigle disappeared from his home shortly after the abduction and made a trip to Illinois where relatives reside.

"He later hitch-hiked back to California and arrived in San Francisco on Dec. 6. Thruout the trip he was under close surveillance of the FBI and was taken into custody on his return to San Francisco."

Served Time in Illinois

The FBI said McMonigle's father lives in Cottage Hills, Ill. He married a San Mateo woman in September, 1943, and was arrested in 1933 and 1934 at Edwardsville and Alton, Ill., for vagrancy, and in December, 1934, was arrested at Menard, Ill., on a charge of assault with intent to rape and was sentenced to 14 years in the reformatory at Pontiac. He was transferred to the state prison at Menard and released March 16, 1943.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Dec. 16—Boston Tea Party

THE mass meeting in old South meeting house, Boston, had been in session all day. Finally, about 6 o'clock, a messenger arrived with the news that Gov. Hutchinson, who supported the royal prerogative in Massachusetts, definitely would not allow the English tea ships in Boston harbor to leave without unloading their cargoes. Public opinion in the colony demanded the ships leave with the cargoes. The cargo was the taxed tea which large groups among the colonists had vowed not to drink.

Samuel Adams, long one of the strongest and most radical of the fighters for colonial liberties, rose in the meeting and exclaimed:

"This meeting can do nothing more to save the country!"

His words were evidently a signal, for a band of men who had been loitering around dressed in Indian costumes immediately set out for the water front. "Boston harbor a tea pot tonight!" they are said to have shouted.

They boarded the three ships, ripped open 342 chests of tea, and dumped the contents into the harbor. The townspeople clustered around. Perhaps a hundred actually joined the work of destruction.

This "Boston tea party," which occurred Dec. 16, 1773, infuriated England. It was one of the major events leading up to the Revolutionary war. In America, too, there was some criticism. Benjamin Franklin was one of the men who condemned it.

The tea party climaxed a struggle between the colonies and England over the question of the right of the mother country to tax imports into America. England had repealed most of the taxes which a little earlier had stirred up storms of protest in the colonies, but she retained a tax on tea lest what she believed to be her right to tax should be impaired by disuse.

The tax was so small, and governmental arrangements with the East India company, the exporter, so advantageous, that tea was actually cheaper in America than in England. However, it was the principle of the thing that rankled the colonists, and they would not have the taxed tea at any price.

FRENCH AUTHOR GETS LIFE FOR AIDING GERMANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Dec. 15 — Abel Hermant, 84, a member of the French academy of immortals and noted author, was sentenced to prison for life together with confiscation of his property and "national indignity" by the Paris court of justice today. Hermant was charged with collaboration during the German occupation. He wrote articles in Matin and Nouveaux Temps favoring Marshall Petain's government policies.

Because of the author's age and ill health, it was expected that the prison sentence might be relaxed.

PARIS ASKS U. S., BRITISH TALK ON SPAIN RUPTURE

BY DAVID DARRAH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Dec. 15—The French government today proposed to the United States and Britain that the three governments hold consultations to devise joint measures on what to do about Generalissimo Franco's government of Spain.

The text of the French note, about which there have been rumors for several days, was not made public, but it was considered to be a definite sounding by the French on whether the British and Americans would join the government of Gen. de Gaulle in a speedy break-off of relations with Franco's government.

Since the Potsdam conference last summer called for turning the heat on Franco, Socialists and Communists in France have been pressing Gen. de Gaulle to take the lead in a break with Spain. Spaniards who would have key posts in a republican government to succeed Franco's have been assembled in Paris and Toulouse for some weeks waiting for the signal to cross the frontier.

Want Allied Assurances

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15 [Special]—Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson today received Dr. Juan Negrin, last prime minister of the Spanish republic, for an informal conversation at the state department. It was the first time since the republican Spanish government had an ambassador here in 1939, that a top ranking state department official had talked with a leader of the Spanish republicans.

At the same time the state department admitted receipt of a note from France proposing discussions with the United States and Britain on policy toward the Franco regime. No decision on such a meeting is expected before Secretary Byrnes' return from Moscow.

BYRNES WARNED ON 'FINANCING' U. S.-SOVIET WAR

Polish Congress Demands End of Secrecy

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15—The Polish American congress today warned State Secretary Byrnes that providing financial aid to Russia would be equivalent to financing a future war against the United States.

The organization called upon Byrnes to correct blunders in foreign policy which it said were made by the Roosevelt administration. The Polish congress is headed by Charles Rozmarek of Chicago. In a memorial to Byrnes, it said:

Red Propaganda Cited

"The repairing of former mistakes requires first of all a break with the practices of secret diplomacy. A firm, consistent policy of advancing liberty and resisting the spread of totalitarianism requires the support of an enlightened public opinion.

"Pro-communist fifth column propaganda in this country thrives on secrecy, which makes it possible to misrepresent the actual course of American-soviet relations.

"The excuse of necessary military secrecy has now lost its validity. The American people should know the truth and the whole truth about the state of international relations.

"If the American government continues to keep the American public in ignorance, if official information about soviet behavior in Europe and Asia is deliberately withheld from the people, the future may hold another Pearl Harbor."

Indorses Aid to Britain

The memorial, delivered to the state department by Charles Burke, Washington representative of the Polish organization, indorsed the wisdom of financial aid to Great Britain.

"On the other hand," the memorial said, "to supply credits to the soviet union would be equivalent to financing a future war against the United States."

The Poles called for the United States to repudiate the Yalta agreement, asserting that it provided "for the partition of Poland and the imposition on Poland of a 'made in Moscow' communist minded government without any consultation of the wishes of the Polish people."

Denouncing American foreign policy, the statement said: "While the peoples of eastern Europe have been left to the mercy of the soviet dictatorship, the United States government has neglected many steps which would have led to a firm integration of the European peoples outside the sphere of soviet influence into a democratic bloc."

ADMIRAL SEES NAVY CHAOS IN MERGER PLAN

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15 (AP) — Adm. H. K. Hewitt told the senate military committee today that the immediate effect of combining the armed services would be "chaos as far as the navy is concerned." The committee is studying proposals to merge the services.

Hewitt recommended retention of individual departments coördinated at the top by a national security council, with the joint chiefs of staff functioning as a strategic planning and executive agency.

At the same time, Hewitt urged that the officers of each service be educated in the functions and problems of the other, thru interchange of schooling and training and thru frequent joint exercises.

"We have now the greatest navy in the world," declared Hewitt, a member of the navy general board. "The retention of a strong navy is of the utmost importance to our national security. This navy should not be placed under the control of those who do not understand its functions and problems."

Bennett Crain resigned tonight as a director of the Navy League of the United States in protest against its activities in opposing a proposed single department of defense. Crain resigned also as president and a member of the District of Columbia council of the league.

SENATORS URGE TRUMAN TO END GERMAN FAMINE

34 Sign Appeal for Quick Action

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15 (AP)—An appeal to President Truman "to take immediate steps toward relieving the appalling famine in Germany and Austria" appeared today on Capitol hill over the names of 34 senators.

The petition bore no organization caption. Sen. La Follette [Prog., Wis.] said he did not know who sponsored it, altho he thought it originated within the senate itself. Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.] said he understood it was circulated by a Congregationalist minister of whose name he was not sure.

Terms of Appeal

The appeal asked Mr. Truman:

1. "To give order at once to our armed forces in Germany and Austria to raise food rations above the present starvation level in the United States zone of occupation and restore immediately mail and postage service.

2. "To start negotiations at once with the head of the Russian state with the object of gaining his permission to send American food supplies into the Russian zone of occupation in order at least to diminish the appalling daily death toll.

3. "To give permission now to private relief organizations to start operations in Germany and Austria, in order to support the efforts of our occupation forces.

4. "To authorize and create an independent American relief mission to avert this impending disaster of wholesale starvation and pestilence now threatening Europe, even beyond the assistance now being furnished by UNRRA."

MRS. ROOSEVELT SLATED FOR HIGH POSITION IN UNO

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15 (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is under White House consideration for appointment to an important position with the united nations organizations, it became known today.

Sources close to the administration who asked not to be quoted directly said the delegation to the UNO would be announced before long.

SENATE PASSES DEFICIENCY BILL FOR 2½ BILLIONS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15 (AP)—The senate today passed a catchall deficiency appropriation of more than 2½ billion dollars for government agencies, including another 750 millions for foreign relief under UNRRA. The measure now goes back to the house for action on more than 950 million of senate increases.

Largest of the funds added by the senate are the UNRRA item; $167,400,000 to the national housing administration for housing war veterans; $19,576,000 for the federal works administration, and lesser amounts to scattered agencies.

CHICAGO IS BOOMING

Chicago, which was outstanding in the nation for war production, is going into peace time production with greatly expanded facilities. To realize how fortunate our own city is, Chicagoans should go to other cities and see vast plants standing idle and deserted. One of the best indications of Chicago's increased potentialities as a manufacturing center is the number of war plants here which have been leased or purchased and will be reconverted as rapidly as possible.

The biggest purchase so far has been that of the Buick airplane motor plant in Melrose Park, for which International Harvester company paid $13,750,000. Western Electric company has leased the Studebaker plane engine plant on the southwest side which cost the War Plants corporation 20 million dollars to build. Several concerns have shown interest in the Dodge-Chicago plant, the world's largest factory, which represented in war time costs an investment of $162,430,000. The plant is an admirable example of modern industrial construction. The leaders of the community should devote their attention to seeing that it is sold or leased and put to use.

Reynolds Metals has been negotiating for the 43 million dollar rolling mill and fabricating plant at McCook, which the Aluminum company operated during the war. Negotiations are in progress for disposal of the huge steel plant which Republic Steel built and put in operation on the south side. With the electric furnace capacity at the South works of the Carnegie-Illinois company, the new Republic plant makes Chicago the nation's center for the manufacture of alloy steel, on which the steel industry must depend to compete with the light metals developed during the war.

The only dark spot on Chicago's future as a steelmaking center, applying to all plants from Pittsburgh west, is the approaching exhaustion of the high grade ores in the Minnesota ranges. Reserves there will last a decade or more, during which period the industry faces the problem of developing methods to use the billions of tons of low grade ore without too great increases in costs. The industry is hopeful that before the better ore is exhausted the technical problem will have been solved.

The purchase of the Palmer House and Stevens hotels by the Hilton interests, and of the Merchandise Mart by Joseph P. Kennedy, did not add, of course, to existing facilities, but they did demonstrate the confidence which two very capable business men had in its future. Mr. Hilton, in particular, has announced that he intends to establish the headquarters of his chain in this city, altho he also operates two large New York hotels.

The near north side and upper Michigan avenue are also to see extensive developments, both as a shopping center and as the site of regional headquarters of national corporations. The recent sale of the old Cyrus McCormick residence and adjoining property is expected to provide the site of a large store building for eastern merchandising interests, as yet unidentified. Some months ago General Motors corporation bought half a block near-by and is going to put up a building there soon. Work has started on a large commercial art studio on Fairbanks court and another potential builder is the National Broadcasting company, which may provide quarters both for its activities and those of the Radio Corporation of America. Northwestern university has a 17 million dollar expansion program for its Chicago campus.

Chicago radio companies, which during the war made this city a center for communications equipment, are expanding their plants for peace time manufacturing. Sentinel Radio is building in Evanston and Majestic Radio and Television at Elgin. The A. O. Smith corporation, Milwaukee's second largest industrial concern, has started work on a 2 million dollar plant at Kankakee to make household appliances, for which at least three future additions have already been projected.

Chicago will also continue to be an important center of munitions manufacture. The navy, which since 1869 has built its torpedoes at Newport, R. I., is transferring the bulk of that activity to the plant which was built during the war in Forest Park. The Rhode Island citizens who undertook to keep the pay roll in their state were told that the Forest Park plant is more efficient and also that the navy is interested in removing its arsenals from vulnerable locations on the coast. The army, while it is yielding the Douglas plane plant as a new municipal air terminal, is going to keep a number of the buildings there with their millions of dollars' worth of machine tools and maintain them as air force shops.

Industry has great confidence in Chicago and its future, as all of these developments testify. It remains to be seen whether the people of Chicago have the same confidence. Chicago's government and Chicago taxpayers have a big job ahead of them, both in the development of the airport and super-highways and in cleaning up the police department and other wasteful and inefficient agencies of local government. Those are just as essential to the future prosperity of Chicago as are new plants and bigger pay rolls.

CONGRESS AND LABOR

The outburst of indignation in the house on Tuesday and Wednesday cannot fairly be called an anti-labor demonstration. The majority of the members of congress represent districts in which people who work in factories, mines, and commerce cast a substantial share of the votes. Simple self-interest will always keep all but a handful of congressmen from really being anti-labor. The expressions on Tuesday were a direct reaction to excesses by leaders of organized labor and a minority of their followers. Congress was merely reflecting the general concern of the country at the present state of affairs.

The parliamentary outcome of the debate was to bring up consideration of the Hobbs bill and to pass it. The purpose of this bill is to reverse by legislation the only opinion of the Supreme court that ever openly licensed highway robbery. The bill makes it a felony to extort fees by violence or threats against persons engaged in interstate commerce. The practice at which it is aimed is that of the teamsters' union, which for years has stopped trucks driven by farmers and other nonunion drivers at the outskirts of New York, Detroit, and other cities and extorted toll from them before they were permitted to take their products into the city. The excuse for the exploitation was that the payments were for a union driver to take the wheel of the truck. Actually, when requests were made for such drivers the union agents, in some instances refused to furnish them. They took the money anyway.

Some of these highwaymen were indicted and convicted in the federal courts in New Jersey for a conspiracy to interfere with interstate commerce. The Supreme court reversed the convictions, holding in effect that any union can commit any breach of the law in what it may choose to call union activity so long as it doesn't coöperate with employers or other second parties in the conspiracy. The Hobbs bill would outlaw this practice. It has now been passed three times by the house, but it has been stopped in the senate in previous sessions. Its passage will put an end to one of the more vicious forms of labor racketeering.

SUBSIDIARY AMERICA

The British-American diplomatic and military conferences early in 1941, which committed the United States to rescue Britain from Hitler and to defend the colonial holdings of the European imperialisms against Japanese attack, constitute one of the strangest chapters in Mr. Roosevelt's administration. These deals were a secret until the Pearl Harbor investigation ferreted them out. They show unmistakably that the Roosevelt administration was intent upon war while it was promising the people peace. They also show that while our leaders were undertaking to assume the main burden of the war they considered America as a mere satellite of Britain.

The military conversations held in Washington between Jan. 29 and March 27, 1941, were predicated on the thesis that "the broad strategic objective of the associated powers [the United States, Britain, Canada, and Holland] will be the defeat of Germany and her allies." The report of the conference flatly assumed an American obligation to get into the war as quickly as the administration could manage it.

"The staff conference assumes," its report read, "that when the United States becomes involved in the war with Germany it will at the same time engage in war with Italy. In these circumstances, the possibility of a state of war arising between Japan and an association of the United States, the British commonwealth, and its allies, including the Netherlands East Indies, must be taken into account."

The important word in this declaration is "when." Note that there was no "if." Soon after the third term campaign, in which the people were promised "again, and again, and again" that their sons would not be sent into foreign wars, it was agreed that American manhood should be consecrated to the salvation of the empires.

We voluntarily took upon our shoulders the principal task in overcoming the axis. The declaration assigned the Atlantic and European area as the theater in which "the principal United States effort will be exerted." We also assumed the defense of all but the far western areas of the Pacific, that is, Malaya, Burma, and part of the Indies, which the British and Dutch later proved incapable of holding.

American interests were contemptuously dismissed as of secondary or tertiary importance to the objective of preserving the empires. When American, British, and Dutch staff conferences were held at Singapore in April to define Pacific strategy in the light of the Washington agreement the paramount interests of the three nations were listed as the security of sea communications and the security of the British naval base at Singapore. The security of Luzon in the Philippines was listed as "an important subsidiary interest," because it lay on the flank of sea lanes between Japan and Malaya and the Dutch East Indies.

This language is shockingly bald. A year before the American garrisons on Bataan and Corregidor were forced to capitulate they were already doomed—because they were of only "subsidiary interest" to the objective of defending British and Dutch territory which Mr. Roosevelt conceded was the really important thing.

Our representatives accepted the enormous losses of American life and treasure which were inevitable in such a global war as was being planned in a casual, almost unthinking fashion. Only a few men reckoned the cost or protested, even faintly, against the lopsided apportionment of the tasks. Secretary of State Hull had momentary qualms. He described a conference which he had with British Ambassador Halifax, Chinese Ambassador Hu Shih, Australian Minister Richard G. Casey, and Netherlands Minister A. Louden.

"They seemed to be thinking of the advantages to be derived without any particular thought of what we should pay for them, if anything," Mr. Hull noted. "I remarked that each of their governments was more interested in the defense of that area of the world [Southwest Pacific] than this country, but they expected this country, in the event of a Japanese outbreak, to be ready to move in a military way and take the lead in defending the entire area."

Chief of Staff Marshall also had misgivings. "The British," he said, "wanted us to base a number of vessels at Singapore. We opposed it. The British didn't have much at Singapore. They felt that if we would base part of our navy there it would greatly strengthen Britain's position in the Pacific."

Both these men, if only briefly, had compunctions about letting the British tail wag the American dog, but these sentiments were soon overcome. Their inclinations to assert that America was not an inferior nation, to be ordered about at British pleasure, were subdued, either in response to White House orders or because Hull and Marshall wilted before the overbearing British attitude.

America performed the duties in the war which Britain had planned for her. This country, its diplomacy, and its military might became mere agencies of British interest, and so they have remained ever since.

Editorial of the Day

SECRET, BUT NOT URGENT

[New York World-Telegram]

Two months before the attack we learned that the Japs were seeking detailed information about our fleet anchorages at Pearl Harbor. Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles, then head of military intelligence in Washington, tells the congressional investigating committee that this information "taken alone," would have carried great military significance.

Why shouldn't it have been taken alone, as well as studied along with any other information in our hands? Failure to evaluate that tip properly seems to indicate an absence of acuteness. The army seems to have been more interested in guarding the information that we knew the Jap code than in using the information we gained by knowing the code.

OUR BILL OF RIGHTS

[Following is an address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune, and broadcast in the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK

You are about to hear the delightful operetta, "Hansel and Gretel," but before listening to that I ask your attention to the rights which you citizens of tomorrow will inherit from your forbears. These rights are only enjoyed by citizens of the United States. They say:

Article I.

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

Article II.

"A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed.

Article III.

"No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house, without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

Article IV.

"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

Article V.

"No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation.

Article VI.

"In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the state and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

Article VII.

"In suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury, shall be otherwise reexamined in any court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law.

Article VIII.

"Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

Article IX.

"The enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

Article X.

"The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people.

Article XIII.

"Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction."

Next week I will discuss the extent to which they have been upheld and overthrown by the legislature, the executive, and the courts.

APPARENTLY MR. JACKSON GOT HIS ROLES TANGLED

[Baltimore Sun]

Alfred Krupp was not included in the first list of indictments in the war crimes trial. His father, Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, head of the sinister Krupp enterprises, was indicted. The father fell ill—too ill to be tried.

At this point Justice Jackson, the American prosecutor, began to insist that the younger Krupp be substituted for his father on the prisoner's bench. His French and Russian colleagues concurred. Justice Jackson was reported to have said that the Americans wanted a "live Krupp" on trial. If the justice used this vengeful and frivolous reasoning, it is charitable to recall that he is officiating now not as a judge but as a prosecutor.

For the truly objective and judgelike slant on the question is clear enough. The younger Krupp should have been indicted in the first place if evidences of his guilt were thought sufficient to bring him to trial. If he was passed over then the only reason for substituting him now would be some ferocious and outmoded notion of blood guilt, that the sins of the fathers should be expiated by the sons. But that old rule was outlawed as long ago as Jeremiah's time—the rule that "the fathers have eaten a sour grape, and the children's teeth are set on edge." On the contrary, "every one shall die for his own iniquity: every man that eateth the sour grape, his teeth shall be set on edge. . . ."

That seems an acceptable rule in the new war crime jurisprudence.

"A columnist is of the opinion that Hitler is in Philadelphia." This sounds plausible. Philadelphia is a town in which one could play dead without attracting any attention.—Jackson [Miss.], Clarion Ledger.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

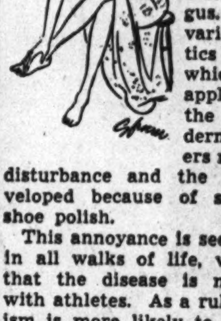
[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

A NEW REMEDY FOR RINGWORM



INDIVIDUALS who exhibit a rash between the toes, more often than not, are victims of ringworm infection. Many try home remedies and when they fail, the patient is likely to consult a physician. By this time the original disorder has undergone many changes. A careful study of the lesions at this stage may not disclose the fungus. In some the various antiseptics and salves which had been applied may be the cause of the dermatitis. Others never had the disturbance and the eruption developed because of sensitivity to shoe polish.

This annoyance is seen in persons in all walks of life, which proves that the disease is not exclusive with athletes. As a rule, the organism is more likely to attack when the ordinary rules of good foot hygiene are relaxed. Altho the infection is more prevalent during hot weather, it may develop at any time in those whose "dogs" become warm and moist, particularly following violent exercise. Heavy and poorly ventilated shoes also may contribute to overheating.

Recurrences are common, but it is difficult to ascertain whether this is due to a new invasion or to the fact that the initial infection was not cured. At any rate, some of the culprits may remain in the nails; others continue to grow in shoes, clothing, or floors. With so many potential sources lurking about, it is conceivable how the disease can return.

Much can be done to minimize a second attack if certain precautions are observed. First and foremost is to keep the feet clean and dry, with special attention to the toes. Whenever possible, light shoes should be selected. When they are not being worn, exposing them to sunlight and air is recommended. Dusting the feet with a powder containing 10 per cent boric acid, morning and night, is necessary. This helps to absorb excess moisture. Walking barefooted in showers, locker rooms, or any damp quarters must be avoided. Too much reliance cannot be placed on foot baths.

Numerous remedies have been suggested for treatment but, unfortunately, the success of one solution does not mean that the same results will be obtained in all sufferers. Extreme caution must be exercised in accepting some one's "pet" remedy. It may be too strong during one phase or too weak at another. In general, if home treatment is to be used, it is best to try simple preparations, such as boric acid powder or a dilute solution of potassium permanganate. Shoes must not be overlooked and by utilizing formaldehyde, sterilization is possible.

Medical research during the war has produced a new preparation—undecylenic acid-zinc undecylenate mixture. The navy reports spectacular results in a large series of cases in the prevention and treatment of athlete's foot. The powder and ointment forms were employed, but the powder was preferred because of its convenience. In this vast study, the incidence of infection was reduced from 28 per cent among those using no prophylaxis to 4 per cent in the trainees who dusted the new formula on the feet.

Ringworm in the groin was also controled materially and about 90 per cent of moderate and severe cases were cured in two or three weeks. These results are encouraging and should the preparation be as effective among our civilian population, we can anticipate another victory for medical science.

A DAMPER

E. B. writes: A friend in Europe has been troubled with a leg ulcer for some time. Do you think that if I sent her some penicillin in powdered form, for self-administration, she would be helped?

REPLY

If you know what type of lesion it is and the causative germ, penicillin may be of benefit. But the powdered form is frequently too irritating for raw surfaces. Furthermore, in the treatment of ulcers in this area the local application of any product is not as effective as eliminating the underlying cause, such as varicose veins. There is also the question of shipping, as penicillin should be kept in a cool environment. Lastly, I'm not in favor of lay persons sending medicines to others unless a physician has seen the case and believes that it is indicated.

SMOKE SCREEN

Mrs. M. writes: I consulted a doctor and misinformed him on certain facts. I'm getting no better under his treatment. The question now is, should I humiliate myself by telling him the truth or consult another man and start all over again with some one else.

REPLY

By telling the truth you will derive the benefit and will in no way humiliate yourself. The reason your physician wants to know the facts is obvious for he takes pride in doing a good job. Go back to him and tell all. Physicians have heard everything and you can't shock them.

OVERGROWTH

A. Z. writes: Is there any treatment for a spur on a heel?

REPLY

If pain is present, padding in and about the involved area is advised. Occasionally the heel of the shoe is cut to fit the deformity. If a protective callus does not grow and discomfort persists, surgical removal may be necessary.

SMOKING AND ASTHMA

S. W. D. writes: Does smoking make asthma worse?

REPLY

Any added irritation may aggravate the disorder.

INDICES THAT DON'T INDICATE

Mount Vernon, Ill., Dec. 6—The opinion that the OPA "has done a fine job of avoiding inflation, in spite of the nuisance it has created" seems to be prevalent in Washington. The authority for such an opinion is that present price indices on commodities have not gone completely out of sight at a time when they normally would be expected to. Also, the stock market, while it is high, has not gone clear out of sight as might be expected with wild inflation.

This attitude is just plain silly.

What Henry Wallace has called the "old, outmoded law of supply and demand" still functions. Naturally the price index is not going to reflect anything above the OPA ceiling, but the true index would be apparent if any one had an accurate check of black market prices.

When there were no nylons or cigarets I could have bought either article by paying a black market price. I didn't do so because my need wasn't great enough. Had it been sulfa drugs for my children, I would have been a ready customer for the black market operators.

Today I know for a fact that I can get a truck which I need badly for my farm, provided I pay a black market price. I can buy lumber which I need for various real estate holdings under the same conditions. My meat market has lunch meats in the meat case when some others have better grades of beef that we cannot buy. It is not my intention to buy or sell in violation of the OPA regulations. The result has been a loss on turkey sales for the last two Thanksgivings. The only reason we carried them at all was a matter of good will to our customers.

I also have no intention of constituting myself a policeman to check or to report violations of OPA regulations. In the years when my income was such that I paid income taxes, that money was supposed to provide for such activities by the OPA inspectors and the FBI.

The situation is comparable to that during prohibition. At no time was I, then a minor, unable to buy liquor if I wanted to anywhere in the country. I paid terrible prices for terrible whisky. The government got no revenue from this sale and the attendant gangsterism is a matter of record. Today I am older and not inclined to violate the law. The large packing houses, who pay income taxes, are not inclined to violate the law either, but nobody can say what happens to his product after it is sold to some one else. There are people on the waiting list for automobiles, tires, trucks, etc., who will take the dealer's product at the ceiling price and peddle it at another price to somebody who really needs it.

The only possible way of stopping black markets and relieving the legitimate operator of the unbearable burden of increased cost and reduced income is to stamp out the black market just as the bootlegger was stamped out by the repeal of the 18th amendment. The stock market, quoting prices on legitimate enterprise, offers no true index at all. OPA ceiling prices are a joke. They are neither the product of intelligent economic thinking nor are they enforceable. Anything approaching recovery waits on the abandonment of the OPA.

INCULCATING HATRED OF THE ARMY

Chicago, Dec. 9 — Forcing infantry men who have seen actual combat to take basic training at Camp Campbell, Ky., is one of the schemes of communists infesting our army to plant the seed of hatred for the army and the American way of life in the hearts of young American soldiers.

It is our duty at home to get these boys out of the army and back to a normal school life. If they are left in the hands of Secretary Patterson, they will rot away in bitterness toward the army, just as certain individuals in our war department have planned.

HIS FEELINGS HAVE CHANGED

Chicago, Dec. 13—While my brother was at camp he wrote to a girl he had known only a short time and asked her to marry him. He is now overseas and his feelings for the girl have changed. He does not want to marry her when he returns. The girl has put the announcement of their engagement in the paper. He is going to write and tell her how he feels, but he wonders whether she can hold him to his written promise. Is there anything the girl can do? T. P.

The Illinois heart balm law forbids action for breach of promise of marriage, but it has been held invalid in several trial court decisions. We would not undertake to say that she cannot recover.

We assume that she agreed to marry him. Unless there were mutual promises, his promise would not be enforceable for lack of consideration. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT

REPUBLICAN DOUBLE TALK

Chicago, Dec. 9—The national committee of the Republican party has just staged another marvelous exhibition of double talk—double or nothing—and the $64 question is: "Are they trying to fool the voters or themselves?"

Gov. Green's speech inspired his hearers, the papers stated, but what he did not say should dishearten the electorate of Illinois. He lamented that the four freedoms and the Atlantic Charter had been violated by the New Deal, but even Mr. Churchill knew and stated that the Atlantic Charter was not binding upon the United States since it had not been ratified by the senate as a treaty. Gov. Green could not have been aware of this since he found no fault with the Republican members of the senate who, with three exceptions, voted for the ratification of the united nations charter which, under our Constitution, they had no right to do.

Said Sen. Hart of Connecticut: "We must not let Europe's affairs loom too largely in our own picture and we must not exhaust ourselves too greatly in alleviating their plight," but this same senator, in voting to ratify the united nations charter, pledged the United States [in chapter IX, article 55], as follows:

"With a view to the creation of conditions of stability and well being which are necessary for peaceful and friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, the united nations shall promote:

[a] Higher standards of living, full employment, and conditions of economic and social progress and development.

[b] Solutions of international economic, social, health, and related problems; and international cultural and educational coöperation. [Article 56.]

All members pledge themselves to take joint and separate action in coöperation with the organization for the achievement of the purposes set forth in article 55."

Europe's troubles are too much for Sen. Hart, but he does not hesitate to underwrite the social, educational, and economic problems of the entire globe. Which views of the senator are we to believe, those of Dec. 8 or July 28, 1945?

The Republican attacks upon the New Deal's domestic and present foreign policies are rather strange considering the fact that some of the leaders of the party have been so engrossed in helping the New Deal achieve its objectives internationally and sometimes nationally. Surely they recall that heinous Austin-Wadsworth slave labor bill, sponsored by a Republican senator and a prominent Republican in the house.

Macaulay apparently foresaw America's end more than a century ago when he stated: "Your Republic will be pillaged and ravaged in the 20th century, just as the Roman empire was by the barbarians of the fifth century, with this difference, that the devastators of the Roman empire came from abroad, while your barbarians will be the people of your own country and the product of your own institutions."

HELENE E. JOHNSON

HYPOCRISY

Warren, O., Dec. 5—Mr. Roosevelt and his yes men knew that Japan was going to war against us. They had read every decoded message. In those messages the Japs were ascertaining the position of the United States fleet at Pearl Harbor, yet Mr. Roosevelt never surmised the Japs logically would first attack to destroy the American defenses that would be first used in reprisal against them. Even the village idiot could have figured that out had he possessed as much secret information as the master minds.

Why did Mr. Roosevelt fake such horrified surprise when he knew all the time we were going to be involved? He led the American people to believe he was horribly shocked by the "sneak" attack—yet, by the decoded messages, the head man of the United States government knew we were soon to be involved in war! No word of warning to his nation! Feigned surprise when death and destruction rained down upon Pearl Harbor!

LENORA CRALEY

A NOBLE SPORT

Chicago, Nov. 18—A popular illusion is that football is a noble sport. It is supposed to make a man of you, but, unless you're pretty much of a man to begin with, you will not stand a chance to get on the team. Its enthusiasts say it develops ability to coöperate, yet if you're the uncoöperative type, you're off the team. It is said to build morale, but more despondent than a man who has lost his business and his home is a boy whose team has lost a game.

The best that can be said of football is that it furnishes a lucrative income for football coaches, sports writers, and ticket scalpers, and of the three, the scalpers are the only ones who honestly state their true object.

MARK TABER

KANGAROO COURTS

Chicago, Dec. 10—Your great newspaper is performing a valuable public service in criticizing editorially from time to time the Nuernberg kangaroo court and the arbitrary and unfounded notions of law put forward to excuse its activities. The comment in The Tribune of Dec. 9, "Kangaroo Courts for America," is especially timely. That the Nuernberg performance, in addition to being without legal sanction of international or military law, is a direct threat to preservation of fundamental rights of free men in America is made apparent by the words of Justice Jackson, the American chief prosecutor, in a press release of Nov. 12. There the chief prosecutor, in an angry retort to criticism from lawyers, is quoted as saying "I have no patience with those who object to this tribunal because our grandfathers had nothing like it." It is evident that the chief prosecutor is of the belief that the restraints of the Magna Charta and the Constitution of the United States, which have protected our grandfathers and their forebears against arbitrary government action for generations, [i. e., no man shall be deprived of life or liberty except by the law of the land, and ex post facto laws are prohibited] have become outmoded and ought to be ignored at the pleasure of government.

Moreover, as a super colossal propaganda stunt, with bright lights and sound effects, the Nuernberg show manifestly is a flop. The Germans, according to press reports, are not impressed. They are bright enough to see thru the smoke screen of legalistic pretense and to realize that the performance is a phony trial by a phony court adrift on an ocean of phony law.

P. F. GAULT

THE TRUMAN DICTIONARY

Oconomowoc, Wis., Dec. 5—We're going to have to revise some of our traditional concepts. According to Mr. Truman, compulsory military training is not "conscription." And we were also surprised to hear that medicine subsidized and supervised by the government is not "socialized medicine."

By the way, Mr. Truman, what is the current definition of the "Democratic party"?

ROBERT EAGAN

SEN. BROOKS' STAND

Chicago, Dec. 7—While our good Sen. Brooks opposed the step to surrender American independence to the global state in the preliminary skirmishes concerning it, I wonder why later he joined the mob and voted for it. I should think he would want to be recorded as opposing it to the bitter end and keep his record consistent.

Friend of the YANKS

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veteran's bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0800, gives personal interviews.]

B. F. writes: "My husband and I were divorced several years before the war. He was discharged in November after two years in service. Under court order he was directed to pay $60 a month for the support of two minor children. The monthly allowance was paid for the children for the first year he was in service. He then remarried and payment was reduced. If he returns to school to complete his college degree, will I receive an allowance for the children from the government, or will their father be responsible for the payments?"

If your former husband returns to school under the GI bill he will receive free tuition and books from the government and may receive up to $75 a month for subsistence if he makes application. The amount he will receive will depend upon whether he is a full or part time student. The $75 is the maximum a veteran who is attending school can obtain from the government under the GI bill regardless of the number of dependents. The subsistence allowance is paid directly to the veteran. Entitlement of your children to family allowance from the government stopped with his discharge.

Mrs. H. R. writes: "My husband, an army officer, is on 45 day leave after 26 months overseas. He is remaining in service and has been told he will be sent to his new assignment at the end of his leave. Has the army made any provisions for wives to accompany their husbands overseas and remain with them?"

Not yet; the reason being lack of housing, shortage of food and travel conditions. Some army commanders have spoken in favor of permitting wives to go to Europe next summer.

HOOSIER SONS PAY $20 APIECE FOR NIGHT OUT

Governors and Military Attend Annual Dinner

In an Indiana farm setting, complete with live cow, chickens, and goats, natives of the Hoosier state met last night in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel for an evening of hilarity. The occasion was the annual dinner of the Indiana Society of Chicago and was for men only.

More than a thousand native Hoosiers attended the party at a cost of $20 a plate. There were only three speakers, all prominent natives of the state, and their talks were short. The remainder of the program consisted of vaudeville acts, singing groups, and wisecracks similar to those of the annual Press club dinner in Washington, D. C.

Queen "Christens" Chairman

The program started with the beautiful queen of Indiana, Miss Diana Hunt, breaking a simulated bottle of champagne on the head of the dinner chairman, Mark A. Brown, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank.

During the dinner guests witnessed aerial acrobatic acts and adagio dances. The entertainment was climaxed when all members of the Olsen and Johnson cast in "Laffing Room Only" walked into the banquet hall and staged a special show they had prepared for the Hoosiers. Ole Olsen is a Hoosier and was chairman of the entertainment committee.

Plead for Strong America

Speakers included Adm. Jonas H. Ingram, commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet; Maj. Gen. Hershey, director of selective service, and Samuel D. Jackson, former United States senator of Indiana.

Adm. Ingram and Gen. Hershey pleaded for a strong America and a navy and army large enough to command respect from other nations of the world.

Adm. Ingram said, "I can only say that in the world of today the masses respect force or the threat of the application of force alone," and made a plea that the nation not demobilize its forces too quickly.

Governors Green, Gates Attend

Other prominent personages who attended for fun and not in official capacities included Gov. Green, Gov. Gates of Indiana, and John T. McCutcheon, cartoonist of THE TRIBUNE, and his three sons, Lt. Comdr. John T. Jr., Barr, and Shaw.

The Great Lakes Naval Training center band provided music. A short memorial service was held for Indianans who died within the last year, including Ernie Pyle, war correspondent, killed on Ie Island in the Pacific.

ACCUSED FINNS SAY THEY TRIED TO SAVE NATION

Speedy Conviction Is Urged by Reds

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

HELSINKI, Finland, Dec. 15—Former Premier Edwin Linkomies and his foreign minister, Henrik Ramsay, pleaded today before the war responsibility tribunal that far from risisting peace their government had striven to find the first opening for a withdrawal from the war on terms which would not jeopardize Finland's independence. The soviet press and radio, meanwhile, expressed impatience over the way the trial has dragged and urged speedy conviction of the accused.

Linkomies said he formed a cabinet in March, 1943, for the express purpose of concluding peace and made every effort toward achieving it. He called the indictment against him "the most unjustified which ever came before any court of justice against any person whatsoever."

Blame Soviets

The defendants argued that fault for failure to achieve peace sooner did not lie with the Finnish government but with the soviets which consistently insisted on terms amounting to unconditional surrender. Neither statesman could take on his conscience the putting of his country at the mercy of Moscow, they said.

Linkomies declared that "to facilitate peace I had already in February, 1944, attempted to persuade Marshal Carl Mannerheim to assume the post of chief of state so as to enable a solution of the kind which actually, in September, 1944, led to conclusion of the armistice."

Pressure by Germans

Ramsay said that those Finns responsible for foreign affairs during the war made repeated attempts to start peace negotiations. He deplored that "now it is attempted to throw the entire guilt for their miscarriage on Finland." He said that the Linkomies cabinet from the start was not acceptable to the Germans who realized that its ultimate aim was jumping off the nazi military machine.

He stated that the Germans applied constant pressure to force the Finns to issue a declaration that Finland would not make a separate peace but that Finland managed to maintain an independent position.

The pact finally was signed with German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop only because the other alternative would have been capitulation and soviet occupation, Ramsay said.

PAUL HINDEMITH CONCERT GIVEN CRITIC'S PRAISE

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY

More concerts like Paul Hindemith's at Orchestra hall last night would make Chicago vastly more interesting to people curious about what is going on in music. It was a stimulating and beautiful performance that quite made you forget the plunging thermometer. There was only minor irony in the fact that the concert was an accident, an inspired replacement on the Harry Zelzer series, caused by the death of Argentinita the dancer.

With the aid of a flexible, handpicked ensemble from the Chicago Symphony orchestra, the mezzo soprano, Margery Mayer, and the pianist, Jane Carlson, Mr. Hindemith chose from his vast output the song cycle, "Die Junge Magd," and three ballet scores, "Herodiade," which Martha Graham will dance here in the spring, "Noblissime Visione," a superb suite from the memorable "Saint Francis," and "The Four Temperaments," which hit a balletic snag when George Balanchine, according to the composer, proposed to twine the score about a tale concerning intestines.

An Enchanting Score

Just to do ballet a favor someone ought to twine "The Four Temperaments" around a delightful ballet. It is an enchanting score for piano and string orchestra, a theme and witty variations dubbed melancholic, sanguine, phlegmatic and choleric. It reflects Mr. Hindemith's fastidious tonal palette, his wonderful ear for the texture of instrumentation and the lovely sense of music in motion that makes his scores irresistible to the imaginative choreographer.

"Herodiade," also heard for the first time here, is described as an orchestral recitation to the poem of Mallarmé, a declamation for chamber orchestra of the dialogue between Queen Herodias and the old nurse who vainly attempts to invade her solitude.

Tinged with Mystery

It is a dark, rather sad score tinged with mystery and made delicately evocative by the gentle interchange of strings and winds. As subtly somber is the song cycle to poems of George Trakl, which Miss Mayer sang beautifully, almost as if her voice matched the viola that is Hindemith's chosen instrument, and last night was richly played by Milton Preves.

For that matter, the entire concert was admirably played in response to the composer's simple and lucid conducting. The 30 players were not enough to do "Noblissime Visione" ful tonal justice, but they captured the texture and mobility, even the nobility of that music which may well be the finest done for ballet in our time. Where is that ballet? In the storehouse, moulding away, while comparative junk is danced to shreds all over the country.

CHICAGO DRIVE FOR WAR FUND ENDS TOMORROW

The final meeting of the Community and War Fund will be held tomorrow evening in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House, Walter P. Paepcke, general chairman, announced yesterday. Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, commander of the famed Flying Tigers, will be the guest of honor. He will arrive in Chicago shortly before the meeting and will go directly to the Palmer House from the airport.

The grand total of money raised by the campaign thruout Cook, Lake and Du Page counties will be announced. Figures from the latest audit indicated that $10,646,547 was raised. The goal was $13,040,700.

"Considering the adverse conditions that every fund raising campaign faced this year with reconversion and strike problems, we feel that our campaign has proved above average when compared with similar drives in other metropolitan cities." Paepcke said.

AUSSIE GENERAL AWAITS FINDINGS ON HIS ESCAPE

Bennett Fled Singapore Without Orders

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 15 (AP)—Lt. Gen. H. Gordon Bennett, commander of Australian forces in Malaya in 1942, has arrived in Sydney from Melbourne to await findings of a public hearing into his escape from the Japanese at Singapore.

A commissioner of inquiry, Justice George C. Ligertwood, will decide whether Bennett was justified in fleeing Singapore without orders from his superior, Arthur Percival, British lieutenant general who had arranged the surrender with Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita.

Bennett and other officers escaped in a Chinese junk, using only a page from a school atlas to guide them to Sumatra. When Japanese planes appeared, they hid and left their Chinese crew in view. The Chinese were placed back in the hold when the planes disappeared to make sure the junk would not be sailed back to Singapore.

The Australian general left Singapore the night of the surrender, Feb. 15, 1942. He reached Australia nine days later. Since then, the commonwealth has been debating whether he was justified in escaping, even tho he fled with intentions of placing in allied hands his knowledge of Japanese tactics.

250,000 Word of Testimony

To prepare his report on the inquiry for Prime Minister Joseph B. Chifley, Ligertwood is pondering 250,000 words of testimony taken from 22 witnesses in 14 days of hearings.

However, when counsel completed their addresses Thursday, the Melbourne justice said he did not expect there would be much delay in the presentation of his report.

It was considered likely that the Australian government would act on Ligertwood's recommendation, whatever it may be. An adverse recommendation might subject Bennett to removal from the reserve officers' corps. [The general, upon his own request, was removed from active command in April, 1944, and placed on reserve. He reëntered civilian life as an accountant.]

Should Bennett's action be vindicated, no positive steps appeared likely. A government apology probably would be considered unnecessary because the government retained thruout the inquiries from expressing an opinion.

The public hearings resulted from a request by the general and strong public demand.

Walks Out of Court

Two weeks before, Bennett walked out of a military inquiry court ordered by Gen. Thomas Blamey, commander in chief of Australian military forces, after Blamey received a report from Percival. Blamey's findings were not made public.

While the military inquiry proceeded in his absence, Bennett was in Sydney welcoming back his 8th division troops who had been in Japanese prison camps. Their cheers indicated he had retained his popularity with them.

The public inquiry concerned whether Bennett became a prisoner of war at the moment of the cease fire order, at 8:30 p. m. on the day of Singapore's surrender.

Bennett and his counsel, Brian Clancy, contended that from that time, Bennett was under command of the Japanese and that it was his duty to escape if he could. Wilfred Dovey, who appeared as assistant to the commissioner in a role similar to a prosecuting attorney, contended that a soldier did not become a prisoner until he was in the enemy's physical control and that Bennett should have remained with his troops.

Clancy contended that Bennett had special knowledge of Japanese tactics, had evolved methods to counter them, and believed that "the very fate of his country depended on his getting back to Australia to explain to authorities the dangers that confronted it."

ACCUSE HOMMA OF REFUSING TO GRANT QUARTER

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 15 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma, already accused of permitting the Bataan death march, was charged today with refusing quarter when Gen. Wainwright offered to surrender May 6, 1942.

The new charge was announced by United States army headquarters, which also postponed for one day the arraignment of the former Japanese commander in the Philippines. Homma will be arraigned Wednesday and will go on trial for his life Jan. 7.

The criminal information alleged that despite Wainwright's offer Homma fired on Corregidor and three other islands in Manila bay, "thus killing and wounding United States troops."

QUESTION 15,161 IN LONDON DRIVE ON CRIME WAVE

Comb City for 10,000 Army Deserters

LONDON, Dec. 15 (AP)—Scotland Yard, moving swiftly in the wake of a series of unprecedented raids, had clews tonight from 54 arrested men which may solve many of the recent armed robberies, kidnapings, and other violent crimes in this metropolis, authorities announced.

But London's crime wave was not wiped out. Even as 3,000 Scotland Yard men and military police of three nations struck, a half dozen new major offenses were reported—some within the cordon which had been thrown about the heart of London.

The raiders hit suddenly last night with a vast dragnet, under the the code name of "operation dragnet." From all parts of the city from swank Mayfair to the back alleys of the Soho district—15,161 persons were brought in for questioning.

Nab A.W.O.L. U.S. Officer

All day long there was a constant procession in and out of police stations. Most of those questioned were persons who lacked identity cards when they were halted.

One of those brought in was an A.W.O.L. American officer. Three American enlisted men also were apprehended by American authorities for service violations.

The Evening Star complained of "Gestapo" methods and said the arrests was a "small result." It hoped the authorities would not make a habit of "violating the tradition of English life."

Tonight there was a noticeable thinning out of idlers in Piccadilly Circus, where the net had been drawn tightest. Scotland Yard said it was satisfied with the results.

Seek 10,000 Deserters

The drive, police said, had been aimed principally at 10,000 American, British and Canadian army deserters who they believed were hiding out in London.

The dragnet swooped down with military precision, blocking off main streets, halting pedestrians, covering places of entertainment and subway entrances. Men stationed at the back doors of many places were rewarded with a large bag of suspects.

Thirty jeeps in formation swept up to one of London's largest dance halls. As police entered, the 2,000 patrons stopped their merrymaking and were lined up against the wall while police moved quietly among them, questioning suspects.

During the afternoon an RAF military police group on motorcycles surrounded a football stadium and questioned RAF personnel found there.

At the height of the checkup, four burglars entered a store just outside the police cordon. They hauled away a safe containing $800.

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 15 (AP)—United States army tabulations today disclosed that on the basis of present progress in demobilization there would be 33,500 American troops remaining in the India-Burma theater on Feb. 1. At present there are 72,000. All Americans who were to reach home by Christmas already have departed, with the exception of a small number of air travelers.

CRIMINAL BRAND FOR NAZI GROUPS SOUGHT BY U. S.

Cabinet, Gestapo, SS and Others Accused

BY HAL FOUST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 15 — Evidence against the reich cabinet, Hitler's inner war cabinet, the Gestapo, and other organizations of the nazi regime will be presented before the international tribunal Monday. United States prosecutors will seek to prove the criminality of these groups, not so much to aid in the conviction of the high nazis now on trial but to obtain a declaratory verdict against the organizations so that their members if and when arraigned in other future trials will not be able to challenge the verdict of this trial as to the character of the organizations.

German counsel has been appointed to represent each of the accused organizations, even the hated and feared Gestapo and SS [elite guard]. By stipulation, to expedite the proceedings, all evidence in this phase of the trial will be admitted into the record subject to defense challenge as to its admissibility at the end of the prosecution's case.

Already Involved by United States

In the four weeks of the trial so far the United States has involved these organizations incidentally in prosecuting the first count of the indictment, the charge that the defendants were members of a conspiracy to wage an aggressive war and to commit crimes against humanity.

Among the approximately 1,500 documents introduced into the record, most of them are captured German papers, incriminating decrees, instructions, directives, and official reports bearing the letterheads of one of these organizations and the signature of an officer or agent of one of these organizations.

Hermann Goering has been implicated in half a dozen capacities, including reichsmarshal, Luftwaffe commandant, deputy fuehrer, and boss of the four year plan. He was a member of the nazi leadership corps [Hitler's inner cabinet], the high command, and the reich cabinet.

Outranking Goering was Rudolf Hess, the fuehrer's heir designate when he parachuted into Scotland in May of 1941 with proposals for Great Britain to capitulate. Evidence against Hess, who has admitted faking much of his demonstration of amnesia during his four and a half years of confinement, will implicate his various organizations prior to his flight.

High Command Implicated

The high command has been implicated by evidence tending to show that the two naval and two army chiefs in the prisoners' dock participated in nazi policy formation. Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, as head of the supreme command, was the muscle man at Hitler's elbow when the Fuehrer put pressure on reich neighbors and with his co-defendant, Chief of Staff Alfred Jodl, drafted secret invasion plans in violation of treaties. Karl Doenitz and Erich Raeder, as grand admirals, involved the navy high command in the conspiracy to wage an aggressive war.

In evidence against other defendants, former high diplomats and admistrative officers, the vicious roles of other accused organizations have been documented. The Gestapo, SS [security police] and SA [storm troopers], both accused by the United States prosecution, left records of their atrocities, mass murders, and persecutions which first suppressed Germany to nazi domination and then occupied countries by a campaign of terror. The SD, also accused of criminality, was the foreign branch of the Gestapo.

After the Christmas recess, starting Friday, the schedule calls for American prosecutors to present evidence of criminality against the general staff and high command.

Verdict by March Possible

The United States, which is shouldering the bulk of the prosecution as well as furnishing the bulk of the evidence, will complete its case about the middle of January. The British took only two days to prosecute their count in the indictment, the charge that aggressive wars were waged in violations of treaties, introducing copies of treaties and statements of governments conquered by Hitler. The French and Russians are expected to take about a week each in prosecuting the count charging crimes against humanity.

How much time will be given the defense is speculative, but with 22 defendants, one, Martin Bormann, being tried in absentia, altho presumed dead, the trial is expected to last at least a month after the close of the prosecution. This would bring a verdict in early March.

New York, Dec. 15 (AP) — The Joseph Hooker, a converted Liberty ship which left Marseille, France, Nov. 28 carrying 526 high point men, members of the 141st field artillery battalion, tied up at Brooklyn army base last night with more than six feet of water in her number three hold. The vessel had sent out a distress message Wednesday after her skipper, Capt. Cecil E. Foltz Jr., Yonkers, N. Y., said she had sprung a leak due to a heavy pounding in a storm.

The Hooker had been shepherded since yesterday morning by the cruiser Honolulu.

TRIAL OF LESSER NAZI GENERALS ON ZONAL BASIS

BERLIN, Dec. 15 (AP)—Robert D. Murphy, U. S. political adviser, said tonight there were no present arrangements for the trial of German generals below the rank of those now on trial at Nuernberg.

But when the trials of the lesser generals come, he said, they will be on a zonal rather than an international basis with each power trying those it had in custody in its zone of occupation.

Asked whether, as sections of the Berlin press suggest, any will be handed over to the Germans for trial as "criminals against Germany," he said he doubted that would happen.

Calumet Bridge at 95th St. to Close Wednesday

The 95th st. bridge over the Calumet river will be closed for repairs from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Wednesday, W. W. De Berard, city engineer, said yesterday.

U. S. AND BRITISH FOREIGN CHIEFS MEET MOLOTOV

MOSCOW, Dec. 15 (AP)—Foreign Commissar Molotov met individually today with Secretary of State Byrnes of the United States and with Foreign Minister Bevin of Britain. There were indications that the three foreign ministers would hold the first formal sessions of their momentous conference on Monday.

Moscow newspapers gave the conference an auspicious send-off. The arrival of the ministers was prominently displayed in Izvestia, Pravda and Red Star, indicating the importance the Russians attach to the forthcoming talks. But the press still refrained from editorial comment on the meeting or its prospects. Control of atomic energy is the prime subject for discussion.

Bevin Expresses Thanks

Bevin arrived in a British plane this afternoon from Berlin, bundled up against the bitter Russian weather. Three other planes in his party had turned back. He was greeted at the airport by Deputy Foreign Commissar A. J. Vishinsky and expressed thanks for the cordial welcome.

"I bring you greetings of the people of Great Britain and I hope that this conference and our association will still further strengthen the bond of friendship between us and help to contribute toward peace and prosperity," Bevin said in a statement.

Shortly afterward Bevin met with Molotov, Vishinsky, Archibald Clark Kerr, the British ambassador, and Alexander Cadogan, British undersecretary for foreign affairs. Earlier Byrnes had made a courtesy call on the soviet foreign minister.

Byrnes Stays Up Late

When Bevin arrived in Moscow, officials still were awaiting a soviet plane from Tehran, bearing William Reader Bullard, British ambassador to Iran, and John D. Jernigan, United States legation attache in Iran. The question of Azerbaijan province, where a movement has started seeking autonomy within the Iranian state, is on the agenda of the foreign ministers' conversations.

Despite his long, hard trip during which his plane was lost in a storm for an hour, Byrnes remained up late last night at Spasso house, home of W. Averell Harriman, the American ambassador, and held informal discussions with the ambassador and his aides.

The secretary of state spent a restful night, however, and was up early, preparing his plans. His secretarial staff also was busy at an early hour, making themselves at home in special quarters set aside for them at Spasso house.

YOUNG F. B. I. AGENT SMASHES AUTO THEFT RING IN PHILIPPINES

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 15 (AP)—A young federal bureau of investigation operative on military leave today smashed Manila's biggest auto theft ring and recovered a dozen staff cars stolen from the United States army.

The former FBI man, Master Sgt. Harry J. Painter of Parsons, W. Va., picked up the trail when military police discovered a Filipino civilian driving a sedan that had originally been painted olive drab.

Police said arrest orders were issued for five American soldiers, presently or formerly connected with the army headquarters motor pool—two of whom were already en route home aboard transports.

Altho serving in combat, Painter found time during his 14 months overseas to round up Japanese stragglers and saboteurs. Last June he sent 14 American enlisted men and one officer to jail for five to seven years for black marketing.

ALLIED DISTRUST STILL HAMPERS YANKS IN REICH

Team Work Missing Year After Bulge Battle

BY HENRY WALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Germany, Dec. 15—One year ago tonight German army units were stealing thru the snow clad Ardennes forest and armored divisions were crunching over icy roads to take up positions. One year ago tomorrow morning, three hours before daybreak, these formations launched the last convulsive struggle to delay the defeat already regarded as inevitable by all save Hitler and a few fanatics.

Today Hitler is dead by his own hand, according to the best testimony, and his lieutenants are on trial before allied judges at Nuernberg. Shattered Germany, the remains divided into four parts, starves and freezes from the lack of food, fuel, shelter, clothing, and hope, and the chief of these elements is despair.

One year ago Marshal von Rundstedt launched a mighty offensive by 40 divisions on a 40 mile front. He hurled his last remaining shock troops into the battle to seize Liege, Belgium, where 5,000,000 gallons of American gasoline were stored, gasoline sorely needed by German planes and tanks.

Yanks Hold at Hinges

But American GIs at St. Vith, on the northern shoulder, and Bastogne, on the southern shoulder, held fast as German armor and shock troops fought desperately to widen the base of the Belgian bulge. German tanks reached the Meuse near Namur, achieving a penetration of 70 miles, but the long corridor was too narrow, while the St. Vith and Bastogne hinges held, to pour thru the masses necessary to drive to Liege and the American gasoline.

Within a few weeks, American pressure made the Germans' position precarious and Von Rundstedt's beaten troops began retreating to the east. The German army writhed in a last spasm at the Roer river crossing and soon collapsed.

Today the Yanks live in a Berlin split into four parts, the capital of a nation slashed into quarters. They find everywhere the unwillingness of certain of our allies to coöperate for effective team play in administeringf the country. They find road barriers and sentinels with loaded rifles preventing them from entering a street or proceeding down a road. They are delayed, examined, grilled, and arrested or turned back as tho they were enemies instead of allies.

A year ago tonight nazi officers were correcting their watches for the approaching H-hour. Tonight Yanks were selling watches to Russians for $500 apiece and spending marks that they could not send home in buying Christmas trees, ornaments, and gifts for children and the objects of their fraternization.

Education Up to Germans

"If we cannot find Germans who want democratic freedom, we shall just sit here with the military occupation until we get tired and go home, and there will be another war," said Lt. Col. John Taylor, Baton Rouge, La., military government officer in charge of reëducation.

"The Germans must reëducate themselves. We cannot force anything down their throats with American teachers and American textbooks. That is not reëducation. Hitler did that sort of thing much more efficiently than we could. We can reorient selected, thinking persons who realize what the former regime has brought them to.

"There is a justifiable German national pride in what Germans and Germany have accomplished in history. In art, music, science, and literature they gave great contributions. That pride must be reawakened, and hope must be reborn among Germans.

"If there are not enough influential Germans who want democracy and liberty, we are licked and might as well pack up."

20 Year Occupation Hinted

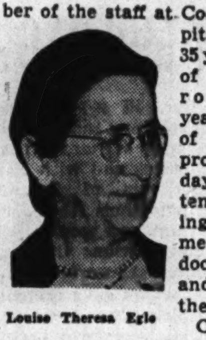
Taylor indicated an opinion regarding the possible length of American occupation by referring to "the five, 15, or 20 years we remain here, depending on the political decision."

The united nations relief and rehabilitation administration has opened a university at Munich for displaced persons and is bearing the cost of scholarship, Taylor disclosed. Almost 2,000 students already have enrolled at Heidelberg to study medicine, law, philosophy, and theology. Duels will be barred and German graduates will not be recognized by saber scars on their jowls.

Bad Weather Sends Him to Venezuela and Back

Lewes, Del., Dec. 15 (AP)—Capt. C. A. Chambers, 72, Delaware river pilot, was home today after an impromptu two-week cruise to Venezuela and back. Capt. Chambers said two weeks ago he was aboard the oil tanker Sinco in Delaware bay and that the weather was too bad for him to return to his pilot boat. At the skipper's invitation, he went along to Venezuela.

HONOR HOSPITAL 'ANGEL' RETIRING AFTER 35 YEARS



Louise Theresa Egle

Miss Louise Theresa Egle, a member of the staff at Cook county hospital for the last 35 years and head of the operating rooms for 28 years, bowed out of the medical profession yesterday at a party attended by leading Cook county medical officials, doctors, nurses, and interns in the hospital.

Clayton Smith, president of the Cook county board and a former warden at the hospital, who acted as master of ceremonies, referred to Miss Egle as the "Cook county Florence Nightingale." Members of the operating and hospital staffs gave Miss Egle a leather handbag trimmed in tortoise shell, a cash gift, and a gold wristwatch.

All of the commendation and gifts were accepted by the hospital's top operating nurse with the same modesty with which she ran the functions of the hospital's seven operating rooms and two amphitheaters for 28 years. She directed 280,000 operations in that time, or 10,000 operations yearly.

THEATER OF AIR REVIVES MAGIC OF 'HANSEL' TALE

The captivating tale of "Hansel and Gretel" retained all of its wonder last night over the Chicago Theater of the Air when Humperdinck's operatic version of the tale was broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Four thousand guests witnessed the performance, including more than 1,100 pupils from suburban high schools and members of their music faculties.

The dramatic script was written in rhyme by Jack La Frandre, writer and producer. Marian Claire, leading W-G-N soprano, sang the role of Gretel, and Ruth Slater, contralto, the role of Hansel. The role of their father was sung by Bruce Foote, baritone. Henry Weber directed the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and ensemble.

After the broadcast, the high school pupils recorded a special Christmas program for the Citizens of Tomorrow show which will be heard over W-G-N at 9:30 a.m. next Sunday.

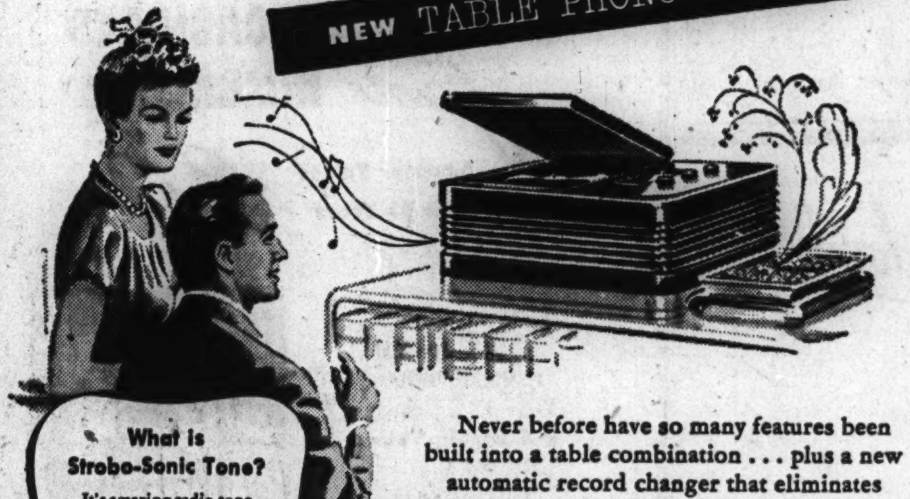
Just Listen to These New Stewart-Warner Radios with Strobo-Sonic Tone!

NEW TABLE PHONO-RADIO

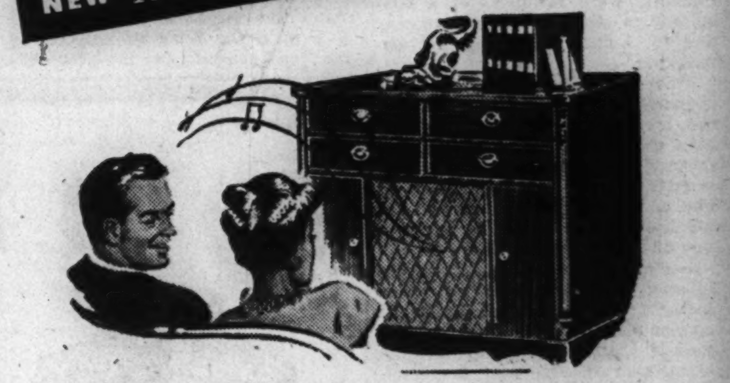


What is Strobo-Sonic Tone?

It's amazing radio tone so faithful you can understand each word, distinguish every instrument, hear music in its true dimensions . . . tone that gives you picture-clear fidelity!

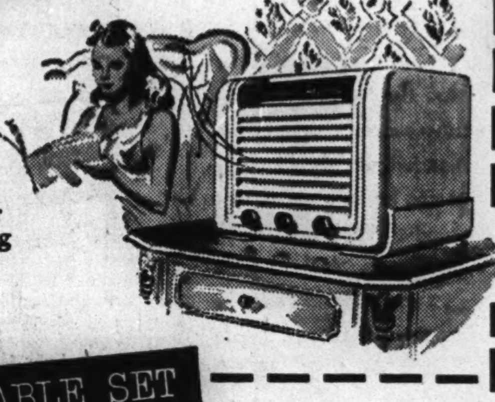
Never before have so many features been built into a table combination . . . plus a new automatic record changer that eliminates all but one control! And the tone . . . true, real—a tone rich with the depth you used to expect only in a big console! Just listen . . . to hear the difference!

NEW RADIO-PHONOGRAPH CONSOLE



When Stewart-Warner electronics engineers were asked to create this model, no one thought it could be done. Yet here it is . . . the most amazing combination in radio. Never before have all the improvements you have wanted been combined in a set like this . . . features found before only in the most expensive models. Brilliant radio reception . . . gorgeous Strobo-Sonic Tone . . . single-control automatic record changer. Listen . . . for the difference!

NEW 6-TUBE* TABLE MODEL



The biggest listening pleasure in a small radio today! Never has so much performance . . . so much listening enjoyment been engineered into a set this size. Up to 60 per cent more sensitive and more selective than prewar models. New Radair Antenna and new Signal Sentry bar annoying static pops and crackles . . . give you "velvet-smooth" reception.

NEW 3-WAY 6-TUBE* PORTABLE

Up to 50 hours of use on rechargeable dry batteries . . . enough for a 2-week vacation! Operates also on AC or DC current. Charges overnight, shuts off current automatically when charged. Rich, powerful tone . . . sensitive, selective. New high-affinity Radair Antenna. Lightweight, handsome, packed with pleasure. Listen to it!

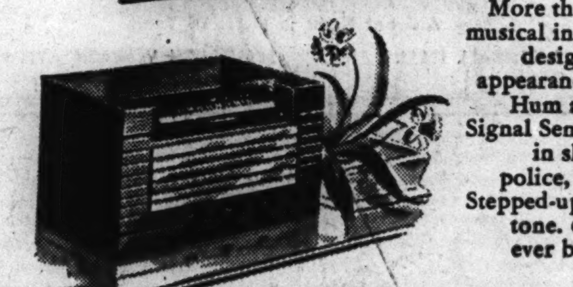
NEW 2-BAND TABLE SET



More than a small radio . . . it's a musical instrument . . . an all-new set designed for both handsome appearance and living tone quality. Hum and crackle are barred by the Signal Sentry. Distant stations come in sharp and clear. Standard, police, and short-wave bands. Stepped-up power output plus full-range tone. 60 per cent better than ever before! Hear the difference!

Timely Advice
ON HOW TO BUY A GOOD RADIO SET

Everyone wants a new radio that won't become an "orphan," and yet the odds are 6 to 1 that the average buyer may choose just such a set.

Look at the figures if you don't believe it: In the period between 1922 and 1939, there were 886 different brands of radio receiving sets offered to the public, according to authoritative reports. Yet—742 were discontinued by 1940!

Stewart-Warner—a name we are proud of . . . a name that is the trade-mark of a $50,000,000 institution known around the world . . . has been a leading manufacturer of radio sets for 22 years. A Stewart-Warner set will never be an orphan.

Buy wisely today for years of enjoyment tomorrow!

90th Division En Route to U. S.

PARIS, Dec. 15 (AP)—Rear elements of the United States 90th infantry division are now on the sea en route home along with the rest of the outfit, service headquarters announced today.

An advance party of the 100th infantry division is at a staging area at Marseille to prepare for the unit's embarkation. A similar party is at Le Havre for the 80th infantry division.

ABSOLVES GIs OF BLAME FOR DIVORCE GAIN

Judge Schnackenberg

The great majority of the divorce cases he is handling involve persons who were married before Pearl Harbor, Judge Elmer J. Schnackenberg of the Circuit court said yesterday. Moreover, only a minority of his cases concern couples one or both of whom were in military service in the war, he added.

"The increase in divorces is not caused by GI Joe and his wife," Judge Schnackenberg said.

He submitted figures showing that of the 324 cases that have come before him for decision during the last 22 court days only 58, or 18 per cent, involved marriages contracted since Dec. 7, 1941.

Another table indicated that of these same 324 cases there were 109, or 34 per cent, in which one or both parties saw military service during the last four years.

$5,465,020 Taxes Paid; Record in Lake County

Treasurer Gustaf H. Frebeck of Lake county said yesterday that 1945 tax receipts of $5,465,020 set an all-time record. The receipts totaled 97.18 per cent of the assessments, compared with 96.25 per cent last year, when the collections totaled $4,939,691. Frebeck said the increase in receipts was largely due to the payment of delinquent personal property taxes.

TRAVELERS AID DINNER DANCE GAY, PROFITABLE

Paris Rendezvous Nets $15,000

BY HARRIET PRIBBLE

April in Paris, with its legendary chestnuts in blossom, was a far cry from the subzero temperatures that greeted the "Paris Rendezvous" dinner dance staged last night in the Gold Coast room of the Drake by the woman's board of the Travelers' Aid society.

Altho there were few echoes of the Bois de Bologne in the atmosphere that awaited the 800 guests, the board's reputation for planning parties that are festive and at the same time profitable was upheld to the extent of the $15,000 that was the commitee's early estimate of its profits for the evening. Of this sum, $11,000 was netted from advertising alone.

Cocktail Parties Start Evening

For many the evening began with cocktail parties in the homes of board members and friends of the organization, which does volunteer work among travelers and returned veterans in their journeys across the country.

One of the gayest of these parties was given in the home of Mrs. Edwin W. Sims Jr., a former president of the society, and Mr. Sims, who with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cutter invited their guests to an hour or so of pre-benefit cheer by means of clever records written by Mrs. Sims and Mrs. Cutter.

Mrs. Sims' gown was of aquamarine and orchid striped taffeta, matched by a pair of baby orchids in her hair, while Mrs. Cutter was in white, with the sleeves and peplum encrusted with gold sequins.

A quartet of Christmas carrollers greeted guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Huth who, with their daughter, Miss Joan Huth; their son, Sgt. Edward E. Huth, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hall Taylor, were at home from 4 to 7 p. m. to many of the ball's guests.

Prettiest Gowns of Season

Many of the prettiest and most decolleté evening gowns of the season were seen at the party, among them Mrs. Milton Wilson Jr.'s smoke grey chiffon, embroidered with rhinestones, which was one of the favorite choices of Byron Harvey Jr., Daniel Catton Rich, and John Dern, the committee to select Marquise d'Orleans, supposedly the most "distinguée" feminine guest at the ball.

Altho many of the men present shivered at the sight of the bare shoulders and strapless gowns that are appearing in increasing numbers after four war time years, the antithesis was observed in Henry Paulman, who guarded against the freezing outdoor winds by slipping a hunting jacket over his tails, along with a football helmet and a pair of heavy overshoes.

One of the prettiest pictures was made by Miss Jane McKenna, in a gown of emerald green taffeta, cut with a low oval neckline. Her hair usually worn in the long casual style favored by the younger set, was dressed upswept in both braids and a pompadour.

Other Guests Present

Among the many other guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mrs. Richard Nugent, Mr. and Mrs. James Slattery, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Foss Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Dille Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lehmann, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Magary, celebrating one of Mr. Magary's first appearances in civilian evening dress since his release from the coast guard.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lamport, Mr. and Mrs. E. Payson Smith, she in black velvet with a turquoise jacket; Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Sims, and Lt. and Mrs. Richard Culver, who had a real reason for celebrating in that Lt. Culver just has been transferred to Great Lakes.

Mrs. Eugene Howard came in with her nephew, John Howard, who escorted Miss Ruth Bieling of San Francisco, Cal.

Reveals Portugal Still Gets British War Goods

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 15 [Reuters]—Capt. A. Viana Rebelo announced in the Portuguese national assembly today that Portugal was still receiving war material from Britain under the Azores agreement of October, 1943. Under that agreement Portugal leased bases to Britain in return for supplies essential to Portuguese military forces and for the maintenance of Portuguese economy.

COLD AUTO RIDE! 45 PLAN ARCTIC TRIP OF 3,100 MI.

Look to Radar Planes to Find and Feed Them

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 15 — Four United States technical experts will take part in the longest northern military exercise ever attempted on this continent when a Canadian expedition moves off in February on a 3,100 mile trek thru the frozen subarctic and arctic wastelands.

The expedition will leave Churchill on Hudson bay and complete a semi-circular trail to Edmonton, Alberta, by next spring. Some 700 miles of the trek will be over the ice of the Arctic ocean.

Termed "operation muskox," because it will be passing thru territory virtually uninhabited except by wild life, the exercise is designed to test equipment and to prove that an arctic expedition can be supplied solely by air.

Ride U. S. "Weasels"

The ground operation will consist of 45 men. They will travel on two types of vehicles, 12 Canadian-built snowmobiles, with trailers and cabins, and five United States type weasels [troop carriers propelled by continuous tracks], which were used in Europe and have been adjusted to meet arctic conditions.

The ground force will observe weather conditions and the influence of the magnetic pole, and test their vehicles and new types of arctic clothing.

The expedition will start out with three weeks' rations and will have, in addition, some dried food for use in emergency.

The royal Canadian air force has taken on the supply problem, a difficult one because most of the route is over an area devoid of airports. Dakota planes will carry the food and fuel and smaller Norsemen will be available to land alongside the expedition. The Norsemen will have skis, but the Dakotas will not. In some instances the Dakotas will be required to fly 700 miles into the arctic from their bases.

There will be five Dakotas and three Norsemen on the job, manned by 145 airmen, including ground crew. They will drop supplies from four to seven times a week. R. C. A. F. officers believe that by means of one type of radar it will be possible to find the expedition in the frozen wastelands, even if obscured by clouds, and drop supplies within a quarter mile. Another type of radar, it is believed, will allow aerial navigation anywhere in the vast area, unaffected by the magnetic pole.

Moves at 9.6 Miles an Hour

The expedition will return south thru the spring breakup, it being planned to test out the vehicles in mud and muskeg as well as in snow. It is expected to average 9.6 miles an hour, tho the transport vehicles are capable of 35 miles an hour.

The expedition's route is from Churchill to Eskimo Point, Baker Lake, Perry River, Cambridge Bay on the Arctic, Coppermine, Port Radium, Fort Radium, Fort Norman, Fort Simpson, Fort Nelson, and Edmonton.

HEIRS EXPECTED TO GET $100,000 FOR F.D.R. STAMPS

BY CHARLES GOTTHART

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, Dec. 15—Part of the Roosevelt stamp collection, one of the most valuable and extensive in existence, will be sold at auction soon and will contribute an expected $100,000 or more to the late President's estate, which has been estimated at 2 million dollars.

Seventeen cases of stamps found in the White House after Mr. Roosevelt's death and shipped to the family home at Hyde Park were turned over recently to H. R. Harmer, an international stamp auctioneer, and previewed by an appreciative audience of philatelists.

Harmer appraised these stamps, coming from all over the world and collected during a lifetime of avid interest in the hobby, at $80,000. He said the stamps would realize at least $100,000 for the heirs because of the sentimental value attached to the collection.

Others in Hyde Park

Henry T. Hackett of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., attorney and executor of the Roosevelt estate, said another large group remains at Hyde Park, explaining the late President had differentiated carefully between personal stamps and those received while President and which may be regarded as national property.

The stamps to be sold will go on auction in New York on Feb. 4 and 5, and April 1 and 2. They will be exhibited publicly for five days preceding the sales. Catalogs detailing the collection are being advertised for sale at $1.50 apiece.

The auctions will be held in the Harmer showrooms, 32 E. 57th st. For the first three of the five days on which they will be exhibited publicly, the stamps will be at the Harmer rooms, but on the last two the collection will be moved next door to the Parke-Bernet galleries, whose more spacious showrooms will accommodate better the larger crowd that is expected.

Unusual Items Found

Among unusual items in the collection of 17 cases shipped from Hyde Park is a White House invitation sent to President Roosevelt on his birthday, Jan. 30, 1943, autographed by him and bearing postmarks from President, Pa.; Franklin, N. J.; Delano, Pa., and Roosevelt, N. Y.

Large scrap books contain first issues and proofs of new stamps, gifts from former Postmaster James A. Farley. Two wooden chests contain stamps from Panama and Costa Rica. Other stamps are in hand tooled leather volumes.

Many of these albums will be broken up to offer individual buyers, and others will be sold only by the volume, Harmer said.

NAVY CALLS IN A BOMB DISPOSAL AID FOR SAILOR'S OPERATION!

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 15 (AP)—Albert Jack Slosky, navy metalsmith 3/C, 19, of Bentleyville, Pa., was reported in excellent condition today at the naval hospital where surgeons—assisted by a bomb disposal officer—successfully removed the detonator from a 20 mm. shell from Slosky's bladder.

Anti-climatically, the fragment was found to be harmless after it was removed but during the 40 minute operation last Thursday, doctors and nurses, who were directed in part of their work by the bomb disposal officer, operated under the assumption that the piece might explode.

Slosky was wounded when a shell accidentally exploded on the destroyer transport Jack C. Robinson.

10% more than wartime take-home pay refused by UAW-CIO

Before GM workers were called out on strike, the UAW-CIO refused an offer aimed to increase wartime take-home pay by at least 10%.

Read the background and ask yourself, does this make sense?

HERE ARE THE SIMPLE FACTS:

1. During the last year of the war, the average General Motors hourly-rate worker earned $56.93 per week.

This is based on actual records of the money paid and the number of people working. To earn this money they worked an average of 45.6 hours per week.

2. The public demand for GM products and services is enough to keep our plants working at the wartime level of 45 to 48 hours weekly.

During the period of shortages, we plan to operate at this rate, barring work stoppages due to causes beyond our control. In fact, some of our plants were working 48 hours a week when the strike was called. The number of people employed when reconversion is completed and our new plants and facilities are in production, will be larger than before the war.

3. General Motors offered to adjust wage rates in line with the cost of living.

Since January 1941, General Motors' wage rates have increased substantially. Before the strike was called, the union was offered a cost-of-living wage adjustment in line with the Government's stabilization policy. The union rejected this offer and called the strike. This offer has finally been determined to amount to an average of 13½ cents per hour.

4. The UAW-CIO turned down a proposal which would have given the average GM worker $63.44 a week.

Under this offer, the average General Motors hourly-rate worker would have received $63.44 for the same number of hours for which he was paid $56.93 during the war. This is at least 33% more than he would have received in January 1941 if he had worked the same number of hours then. The union rejected the offer. The strike continues. The workers are getting nothing.

5. What does the UAW-CIO want?

Government figures say that the cost of living has gone up 33% since January 1, 1941. As already pointed out, General Motors has offered this much to its workers. But the union insists it wants 30% more than present rates, which are already substantially higher than 1941 rates. Its battle cry is "52 for 40 or fight"—52 hours' pay for 40 hours' work.

It refuses to budge from that demand.

WOMAN KILLED WHEN AUTO AND A TRAIN HIT HER

Mrs. Ethel Lackner, 26, of 1118 Jackson ct., Waukegan, was killed yesterday when her automobile, which had stalled on the North Shore tracks at Cornelia av., Waukegan, was struck by a southbound train.

Her mother, Mrs. Mary Maenhout, 53, of 250 Deerpath, Lake Forest, is in St. Therese's hospital, Waukegan, with back injuries and shock, and Morine Naudts, 8, of 634 S. Elmwood av., Waukegan, another passenger in the car, is in a critical condition in the same hospital with a fractured rib and a punctured left lung.

After the car stalled on the tracks, Mrs. Lackner got out and told her mother to do likewise, Mrs. Maenhout said. Mrs. Maenhout did. She was carrying Mrs. Lackner's daughter, Karen Louise, 14 months old, in her arms. The baby was uninjured except for a scratch on the face. Another daughter, Mary Jo Lackner, 4, and the Naudts girl were in the rear seat of the car when it was struck.

The automobile, after being hit by the train, struck Mrs. Lackner and threw her against the train, which carried her 100 yards down the track. The automobile also struck Mrs. Maenhout. Mary Jo was unhurt.

Mrs. Lackner's husband, Sgt. Joseph Lackner Jr., is in Germany.

KLINSKY — Pfc. Armand Klinsky, killed in action Dec. 17, 1944, in Luxembourg, Germany.
"We think of you always, Armand,
We miss your kind and smiling face;
Every day brings back memories,
Every memory brings our tears;
Deep within our hearts we cherish
Thoughts of one we love so dear."
MOM, DAD, AND BROTHER.

MANIATES—Bessie Maniates. In loving memory of our wife, mother, and grandmother, who passed away one year ago today.
We mourn for her in silence,
No eyes can see us weep;
But many a silent tear is shed
While others are asleep.

MONTANO—Capt. Anthony Montano Jr., killed Dec. 19, 1944, in Belgium. Memorial high mass Wednesday, Dec. 19, 9 a. m., at Presentation church, Springfield and Polk.
He will live in our hearts forever;
Those who knew him all will know
How much we lost one year ago.
MOTHER, DAD, AND SISTER.

NAPIER—Sgt. George Napier, U. S. A. Your birthday, George, you would have been 22 years old today.
To the infinite garden of heaven,
To the land where the angels dwell,
We are sending our birthday greetings
To you, whom we loved so well.
You are spending this birthday without us
In a land that is free from care,
So our token of love and remembrance
Is sent to you thru prayer.
LOVING MOTHER, DAD, BROTHERS, AND SISTERS.

SPEEDY FEDERAL AID IN HOUSING SEEN BY MAYOR

190 Million Dollar Bill Is Now Up in Congress

Immediate federal aid for Chicago and other cities with critical housing shortages is in prospect, Mayor Kelly told the council finance committee yesterday.

Reporting on his trip to attend the United States conference of mayors in New York early last week and his later call on housing authorities in Washington, he said that a bill to provide 190 million dollars for 100,000 temporary dwellings was on its way thru congress. The sum was that suggested by the mayors' conference.

"The cities will pay the costs of sewer, water and other utilities; the government will provide the houses," he said. "I believe there is good reason to expect that the city of Chicago will be repaid for the money already invested in temporary units."

Urges Housing Appropriation

The mayor asked the finance committee to appropriate for emergency housing, particularly for war veterans, in the 1945 budget, which is in preparation. He said he thought the committee should set aside as much as it could for the purpose.

"Chicago is well ahead of most cities, and we want to stay in front," he continued. "Other cities are just starting. We have been planning for two months and we have selected sites and have houses on the way for the use of veterans."

In reply to a communication from the committee on the Chicago housing crises recommending appointment of a temporary housing "expeditor," the mayor said he thought that Miss Elizabeth Wood, director of the Chicago housing authority, and Ald. Lindell [9th], chairman of the council housing committee, were qualified to carry on.

Use of "Scavenger" Law Urged

Clarence W. Beatty Jr., special assistant United States district attorney, who is the government's land condemnation expert, said yesterday that he had written the mayor suggesting use of the state "scavenger" law as a quick means of making 300,000 parcels of land available for building. The act, passed in 1943, authorizes sale of properties 10 years delinquent in taxes.

"These lots are frozen. They are not usable until the burden of taxes and special assessments is torn away," Beatty wrote to the mayor. "These lots have streets, sewers, water, and other utilities already installed—ready for use.

"I am reliably informed that it costs approximately $6 to process each tax bill. At this rate, these delinquent parcels of property cost Cook county $1,800,000 in 1944.

Total Cost of 18 Millions

"If these figures are accurate for the last 10 years, the delinquent taxable parcels of real estate have cost the county a cool 18 million dollars.

"The scavenger act provides that special assessments may be included in the sales. If we make use of this tool, we can do a lot toward clearing land upon which homes may be built when men and material become available. And a lot of other benefits will result, too."

BABY AND MAYOR TO TAKE CHICAGO, LONDON FLIGHT

A baby, a mayor, a radio station manager, and an army officer will be among the passengers aboard the American Overseas Airlines London bound plane when it leaves the Chicago airport tomorrow morning.

The baby, John Francis Gorman, 7 months, will be the first baby to fly from Chicago to London. He will be accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Emma Dorothy Gorman, 29, of 266 May st., Elmhurst. Mayor Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati, O.; Walter Eberle, president of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, and James Ditto Schoust, manager of Cincinnati's radio station WLW, will go to London to present their city's advantages to the united nations headquarters. Col. John G. Edwards, 1509 Fargo st., is the only military passenger scheduled to be aboard the plane.

TRIBUNE'S PRIZE HOMES DESIGNS TO EXCEED 1,000

High Quality Noted in $24,000 Contest

More than 1,000 small homes designs will go before the jury which will select the 24 winners in THE TRIBUNE's $24,000 Chicagoland Prize Homes competition, Boyd Hill, professional adviser, estimated yesterday.

"The response has exceeded our most optimistic expectations," Hill said. "More than 850 entries have been received. Because the contest closed at the height of holiday mail congestion, there is little doubt that the jurors will have more than 1,000 designs to review."

All Designs Appear Excellent

Hill said he particularly was gratified at "the exceptionally high quality" of the designs and the ingenuity shown by entrants in solving the three different housing problems posed by the rules. "In fact," he said, "you could select blindfolded any of the designs and have a good chance of getting an excellent plan."

Hill disclosed that requests for the contest rules came from 12,471 persons, more than 9,000 of whom sent in the coupon from a full page announcement in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Rules Requests from Abroad

Of those asking for the rules, 85 per cent were residents of metropolitan Chicago, Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, and Iowa. The others were residents of every state except Vermont. Fifty requests for rules came from overseas, 40 from Canada, two from Mexico, and one each from Cuba and Egypt.

At the close of registrations, 1,470 persons had registered their intentions to submit one or more entries. Registrations started arriving Oct. 8 and averaged about 150 a week for the next eight weeks.

U. S. CHEMISTS TO OPEN CHICAGO SESSIONS TODAY

War advances in the chemical field will be discussed at the convention of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers which will begin with preliminary meetings in the Stevens hotel today and will continue thru Wednesday. The more than 800 chemical engineers attending will visit more than 20 plants in the Chicago area during the convention.

S. L. Tyler, executive secretary of the institute, said many of the papers to be read will cover subjects only recently removed from secrecy status. He pointed out that chemical engineers were responsible for a large part of the war production program—the atomic bomb, poison gas, high octane gasoline, synthetic rubber, alcohol, and pharmaceuticals.

"A huge chemical business is in the making," Tyler asserted. "One chemical alone, butadiene, has potentialities for chemistry that would not have been realized within a generation without the impetus of the war demand for synthetic rubber. New solvents, chemicals, and intermediates will help make materials with better qualities and longer life."

BLUE BABY PAYS CITY BRIEF VISIT ON HER WAY EAST

Janice Hayden, Michigan City [Ind.], "blue baby" who physicians said would not live until her third birthday on Feb. 8, paid a brief visit to Chicago yesterday as she changed trains here en route to Baltimore, Md., where Johns Hopkins hospital physicians will determine if surgery can save her life.

The child is a victim of a heart deformity called a patent intervetricular septum, a condition which causes insufficient oxygen to reach her lungs.

Janice is being accompanied on the trip, which is financed by $2,500 which was subscribed by well-wishers in the Michigan City area, by her parents, Ray, 22, a bus driver, and Theda, 21. Also in the party is Lt. Thelma Fisch of Michigan City, Ind., an army nurse veteran of 14 months in Saipan. Miss Fisch is devoting part of her leave to caring for the child.

REGIONAL WLB DROPS DISPUTES DIVISION STAFF

Jobs of 25 employes of the disputes division of the regional war labor board ended yesterday when the division quit business. Its findings have not been binding since the end of the war.

Four divisions remain—wage stabilization, enforcement, administration and information. After Jan. 1, according to William G. Brown, WLB chairman, the regional staff will consist of 70 persons as compared with a war time 250. There are fewer than 200 employes at present.

The enforcement division is expected to start soon an expanded drive on violations of the wage stabilization act.

CHICAGO AREA'S BUILDING GAINS FOR NOVEMBER

Volume Is Three Times Total a Year Ago

BY AL CHASE
[Real Estate Editor]

New building construction of all kinds in metropolitan Chicago in November was more than three times larger than a year ago. Permits were issued last month for buildings valued at $18,073,750 compared with $5,314,183 a year earlier.

The building pace set during October, 1945, which totaled $20,800,000 was not maintained. This was caused primarily by seasonal conditions. With the exception of October, 1945, the November total was the largest of any month since November, 1942, the year of biggest war building activity.

Home Building Holds Pace

Home building in the entire Chicago area kept at high speed during November. Permits were issued for nearly twice as many home units as a year earlier, and the dollar volume was three times as much.

In 90 suburban communities permits were taken out last month for 528 homes, costing $4,185,177, compared with 290, and $1,433,102 in November of last year, and with 456 and $3,464,938 in October, 1945.

Bellwood Tops Suburbs

Bellwood led all suburbs last month in home building with 83 homes, costing $633,000. La Grange Park was second with 38 for $348,450. Des Plaines followed with 33 and $251,350.

Other noteworthy totals were reported by Cicero, 32 homes, $167,176; Dolton, 26, $131,450, and Evanston, 24, $196,000.

In addition, 10 suburbs reported 10 or more home permits last month. They were Hammond, 21 residences, valued at $147,000; Evergreen Park, 16, $120,825; Chicago Heights, 16, $94,485; Glenview, 15, $157,576; Geneva, 15, $103,000, and Lombard, 14, $109,750.

Average Cost Rises

Berwyn reported 12 permits for homes costing $85,761. Lyons had 11, $82,850. Others were Broadview, 10, $67,140, and Arlington Heights, 10, $66,550.

The average cost per unit, said the Bell Savings and Loan association, which made the building survey, was $6,866 last month compared with $4,681 a year ago.

MODERNIZATION HELD WAY TO SLOW SHIFT FROM LOOP DISTRICT

What can be done to reclaim an obsolete, run down office building has been demonstrated by the completion of a $250,000 modernization program for the 11 story structure at 417 S. Dearborn st., said L. G. Elliott, president of La Salle Extension university, which bought the property in 1944 for $100,000 cash.

"Reports by building experts and architects that the Dearborn st. building was as sound as the day it was completed and could be made as modern as any in the loop convinced us that it would be wise to buy and rehabilitate it," said Elliott.

New floor layouts were made, fluorescent lighting and air conditioning were installed, and both interior and exterior thoroly cleaned. A new two story carved stone and terra cotta entrance front was built.

"Within the loop and fringing it for blocks around are other worthy buildings grown old in service, run down and neglected, which at heart are as sound as they were in their prime," said Elliott. "All they require is recognition of their virtues and good treatment to restore them to a place of usefulness in the community. Much of the march away from downtown Chicago could be halted by intelligent use of such fine old structures."

Sherman Chain Acquires Near North Side Building

Sherman Wash-Wear, Inc., owner of a coast to coast chain of women's cotton apparel stores, yesterday bought the four story concrete building and land at 234-42 E. Ohio st. for $130,000 thru Arthur Rubloff & Co. The Pelouze Building corporation was seller. The new owner will use the property after remodeling for general offices, design and display rooms, and warehousing for its Chicago area stores.

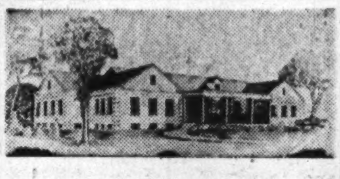
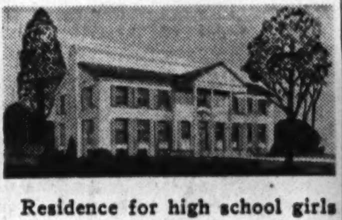
Mooseheart Home



One story living quarters for children between 5 and 12 years to be built at Mooseheart.



Residence for high school girls to be built at Mooseheart.

PLAN EIGHT NEW HOMES FOR 160 AT MOOSEHEART

Plans were announced yesterday for a $400,000 building program at Mooseheart, Ill., which will provide living quarters for 160 children and high school students in eight buildings designed by Scipio Del Campo, Chicago architect. W. J. Leinweber, superintendent of the children's training center of the Loyal Order of Moose, said three buildings, to cost $50,000 each, will be built as soon as possible; the other five will follow.

Each unit will house 20 children, two house-mothers, and a cook. Each will have a complete kitchen, dining room, living room, and recreational facilities. The buildings for girls and boys of high school age will have libraries. One building will house children 5 to 12 years old. Another will be for high school age girls and a third for high school boys. All will be of fireproof construction.

Realty Miscellany

Arthur Rubloff & Co., recently appointed managing agent for the 23 story 100 West Monroe st. office building, at the northwest corner of Clark st., yesterday signed a 10 year lease for the entire 13th floor, comprising 6,500 square feet of floor space. The firm will move its main offices from 300 W. Adams st. to the new address about March 1, Arthur Rubloff said. The offices are to be air conditioned and the ceilings acoustically treated.

Arthur Rubloff

The company, which specializes in the management and sale of real estate, also operates four loop branch offices, and a north side office at Wilson av. and Broadway. A south side office will be opened early in 1946. Beginning business in 1930 with one employe it has a personnel of 60.

Plan Building at Pulaski Rd. and Madison

Walter P. Powers, former west side restaurateur and owner of 250 feet of frontage on Madison st. extending west from Pulaski rd., yesterday announced plans for a $500,000 building at that corner. He also announced leases to six chain store companies in various buildings he owns, all negotiated by J. E. Ehrenhalt & Co.

The corner building, work on which will not be started until May 1, 1947, has been leased to Three Sisters, women's apparel chain. It will be 50 by 175 feet, containing two stories and sales basement, with foundations to support additional floors. It will have no interior columns.

Other leases made were with Katz Exclusive Millinery, Inc., Mrs. Steven's candy shop, Berland shoe store, and Spiegel, Inc., at 4006-4024 W. Madison. The building at 4016-22 was leased to S. S. Kresge company. It will be remodeled on May 1, 1946.

Leichenko & Esser is architect for the new building and remodeling. All stores will be air conditioned. The entire frontage is being developed as a women's shopping center.

Past Title Games

WESTERN teams have won eight league championships against the East's four since the playoff system was started in 1933. Cleveland never has participated in the East-West title show, but Washington won league crowns in 1937 and 1942, each time by whipping the Chicago Bears. History of the competition:

BY EDWARD PRELL
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Cleveland, O., Dec. 15—In 1931 Max Schmeling knocked out Young Stribling with only seconds left in their 15-round heavyweight title fight. Since then the Cleveland folk have known about championship sports events only by what they've read in the papers.

It has been a long, long time, but well worth the wait, for tomorrow afternoon Cleveland's Rams will mush over the snowdrifts surrounding the gridiron in Municipal stadium for a fight to the finish with the Washington Redskins for the top prize in professional football.

Rams Uphold West

The faithful and zestful Rams will be upholding the proud record of the west, at least pro football's geographical west, against a team which has popped up six times as the best in the east. This is the 13th annual battle for National football league supremacy and the western division carries an 8 to 4 edge. It has been such a lop-sided series that only once since 1938 has an eastern entry been triumphant. This was in 1942, when the Redskins surprised themselves and all football by upsetting the awesome Chicago Bears, 14 to 6.

The winner will automatically swish into the 1946 College All-Star game to be played next August in Soldiers' field, Chicago.

No Longer a Detour

Cleveland ceased being a detour on sports' championship trails by winning nine of 10 league games this fall. In their spectacular dash to the heights the Rams bowled over the defending champion Green Bay Packers and the Chicago Bears to mark up four of their victories.

Washington slid into the eastern title picture when the lowly New York Giants unexpectedly whipped the Philadelphia Eagles, 28 to 21. This came to pass a week after the Eagles had routed the Redskins, 17 to 0, to create a tie in this sector. It is the consensus that the Eagles, not the Redskins, are the class of the east and this may be the reason the Rams are 3-point favorites in the local betting marts.

Temperatures will be in the 10-15 degree bracket but there will be no snow flying. At 7 a. m. tomorrow a crew of 225 men with 30 trucks at their disposal will begin the laborious task of removing 900 bales of straw from the playing field.

Chile Walsh, general manager of the Rams, inspected the gridiron today and reported that the turf will afford firm footing.

Advance Sale a Record

A crew of workmen have been removing the snow from the seats of the massive stadium on Lake Erie's shores, which has been scaled to seat 77,600, will settle for a 50,000 crowd which will push gross receipts far over the record for the playoffs, established in the Polo Grounds last year at $146,204.15. In fact, the advance sale passed this figure today.

A $200,000 gate would create a $57,240 pot for the winning team to

NELSON RALLIES TO LEAD FIELD

Record 65 Gives Him 137 Total

Fort Worth, Tex., Dec. 15 (AP)—Byron Nelson, the Denton, Tex., boy who dominates practically every golf tournament he enters, fired a six under par 65 over the Glen Garden course today to take the lead at the half way point in the $10,000 Fort Worth Open. Nelson, who carded 72 for the first round, has a 137 total.

Byron led his fellow Texan, Jimmy Demaret, by a stroke. Jimmy posted a 67 to go with his first round of 71.

In third place were E. J. [Dutch] Harrison of Little Rock and Ed Furgol of Detroit, playing his first tour as a professional, each with 139. Furgol had a 68 this afternoon, Harrison a 70.

47 Reach Final

Forty-seven pros and amateurs qualified for tomorrow's final 36 holes. It required a score of 150 to make the grade, and among the casualties were Denny Shute of Akron, O. ,twice national P. G. A. champion, and Bob Hamilton of Chicago, who held the P. G. A. title last year, each ending up with 151.

The course record is 64, set by Amateur Jimmy McGonagill of Shreveport and tied by Professionals Henry Ransom of Houston and Jack Grout of Harrisburg, Pa., but none of the scores were in tournament play. Thus Nelson's 65 is the competitive course record.

Nelson came into No. 9 today needing only a three foot putt for a 30—seven under par. He missed it by an inch.

Demaret missed a four footer for a birdie on 17 which would have tied Nelson for the lead. Furgol missed an 18 inch putt on No. 18 as he shot a 67.

Ferrier Ties for Fourth

Tied for fourth were Jim Ferrier of Chicago, who had a 69 today and an 18 hole score of 140, and Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., who shot a 70. Next in line at 141 were Jimmy Hines of Chicago, Joe Zarhardt of Norristown, Pa.; Charles Klein of San Antonio, Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., and Amateur Billy Gilbert of Cincinnati.

Mrs. Cooke and Sgt. Parker Get Top 1945 Tennis Ratings

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, who made a sensational comeback this year to win the National women's tennis championship, has been awarded the No. 1 position in the women's rankings for 1945, the United States Lawn Tennis association announced today.

Out of competitive action since she defeated Pauline Betz for the title in 1941, Mrs. Cooke returned to the game this year and again conquered Miss Betz in the Forest Hills final. Miss Betz, who won the national championship in 1942, 1943, and 1944 and the resultant No. 1 ratings, is ranked second to Mrs. Cooke for 1945.

Parker Tops Men's Ranking

Sgt. Frank Parker, the army air forces star from Los Angeles, again is No. 1 in the men's rankings. Parker, who made a flight from Guam to enter the championship meet last September, defeated William Talbert of Wilmington, Del., in the title final for the second straight year. Talbert gained the No. 2 spot followed by Francisco [Pancho] Segura of Ecuador.

Elwood T. Cooke, Mrs. Cooke's husband, who won several tournaments early in the campaign and was beaten by Parker in the national semi-finals, rated No. 4, coming back into the first 10 for the first time since 1940. He had been in the navy. Others in the top 10:

Sidney B. Wood, No. 5; Lt. Gardnar Mulloy, No. 6; Frank X. Shields, No. 7; Lt. Harold Surface, No. 8; Lt. Seymour Greenberg, No. 9, and Jack McManis, No. 10.

Mulloy, Talbert Lead Doubles

Next to Mrs. Cooke, Mrs. Patricia Canning Todd of Hidden Valley, Cal., made the biggest advance among the women, moving from ninth to fifth. Margaret Osborne of San Francisco, was ranked third, followed by Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Cal.

Doris Hart, No. 6; Shirley Fry, No. 7; Mrs. Mary Arnold Prentiss, No. 8; Dorothy May Bundy, No. 9, and Mrs. Helen Pedersen Rihbany, No. 10.

Lt. Mulloy and Talbert were ranked as the No. 1 men's doubles combination.

Tops in Tennis

Sgt. Frank Parker (above) and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, rated No. 1 in men's and women's singles respectively by the United States Lawn Tennis association.

BUCKEYES BEAT ILLINI, 50-46, IN BIG 10 OPENER

Bowen and Risen Pace Ohio State

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 15 [Special]—Ohio State university's basketball team staved off a final half rally tonight to defeat the University of Illinois quintet, 50 to 46, in a game that marked the opening of the Western conference basketball season.

Before a crowd of 5,640 the Buckeyes jumped away to a commanding lead and held a 26 to 16 half time advantage, principally thru the floor work and accurate basket shooting of Robert Bowen and Arnold Risen.

Buckeyes Play Stalling Game

Paced by Bob Doster and Jack Burmaster, the Illini on several occasions in the second half, came within striking distance of the Buckeyes and at one time compelled the Ohio State team to resort to a stalling game to protect its lead.

Risen was replaced by Tom Watson with five minutes of the game remaining after the Ohio State center had committed his fourth personal foul. Barmaster scored on a long shot and Risen was rushed back into the game after Doster narrowed the lead to six points on a free throw. At this point Ohio State started a stalling game to protect a 46 to 40 lead.

Menke Cuts Lead to 2 Points

Paul Hutson committed his fifth personal foul with three minutes of the game remaining to be played and Bob Menke narrowed the count to 46 to 43 with a rebound shot and a few seconds later the Elgin athlete made it 46 to 44 with a free throw.

Risen and Bowen made field goals in quick succession altho the latter missed a chance from the free throw line. Doster ended the scoring for the evening with a pair of free throws.

Bowen led the Ohio State scoring with 18 points and Risen was second with 17. Doster spearheaded the Illini attack with six field goals and six free throws.

Badger Five Loses, 65-51, to Notre Dame

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 15 [Special]—Leo Klier and Vince Boryla scored 47 points between them to lead the Notre Dame basketball team to a 65 to 51 victory over Wisconsin here tonight before 3,000 fans.

Klier, All-American forward for Notre Dame in 1943, pushed in 12 field goals and a free throw to lead Irish scoring, and Boryla was close behind with nine goals and four free tosses. Bob Cook, Wisconsin forward, led scoring for both teams with 26 points. The Irish led, 31 to 28, at half time. Lineups:

N. U. FIVE SCORES 2D IN ROW, 64-35

Marquette No Match for Wildcats

Northwestern university's basketball team won its second straight game of the season, overpowering Marquette, 64 to 35, in the Evanston High School gymnasium last night. The Hilltoppers' made a battle of it in the first half but the Wildcats' turned on the pressure in the second to win handily.

Max Morris, who played all but the closing minutes, led the scoring with 23 points on eight baskets and seven free throws. Leroy King, the Wildcats' 6 foot 7 inch center, contributed 14 points before he was removed on personal fouls midway in the second half.

Marquette Misses Chandler

Marquette played without the services of Bill Chandler, veteran guard, who was declared ineligible under the new Big Ten standards. With Chandler out of the lineup, the Hilltoppers had difficulty getting their defense organized.

After the Wildcats pulled into a 14 to 7 lead. the visitors rallied to tie the score at 14-all on a rally engineered by Howard Kallenberger and Bob Rosendahl, who hit two long baskets in a row. They traded baskets for the remainder of the period and just before the half time gun, Morris made a pair of free throws to give the Wildcats a 23-19 advantage.

Then It Is Different

The complexion of the game changed at the start of the second half as the Wildcats rolled up a 36 to 34 lead on an attack, sparked by Chuck Lindgren, pint sized Freshman from Rockford who connected ith three one-handed shots from the side. He added two more near the end of the game to run his scoring total to 10 points.

Marquette never came close after that splurge and in the closing minutes, the Wildcats put on another drive that was good for 13 straight points and turned the game into a rout. Lineup:

Mikan Totals 37; De Paul Wins Tourney

Big George Mikan, De Paul's all-American center, scored 37 points last night to break the Chicago Stadium record he himself held as he carried his team to a 74 to 56 victory over Indiana State. The conquest gave the Demons mastery in their own collegiate tournament held for the first time this season.

Mikan's 37 points—21 in the first half—obviously were not sufficient, but his superb performance under the backboard, where he garnered all his goals, permitted his mates to shoot uncovered.

Sycamores Show Fight

The Sycamores made a terrific bid and carried the fight well into the second half at which time they trailed, 34 to 30. Just before this Gene Stump had hit three long shots and then Mikan went back into production. His string of points plus a field goal by Ernie Dibenedetto sent the Demons into a 53 to 40 lead and ended any doubt as to the ultimate outcome.

Six players—three on each team—were eliminated on personal fouls. Mikan was the last of the De Paul contingent excused.

Mikan received the trophy awarded the most valuable player in the tournament.

Washington Five Wins

The University of Washington won third place in the tournament by defeating the University of Oregon, 44 to 41, in one of the best played contests of the three nights. Leslie Eathorne led the victors with seven field goals.

1928—Chuck Bennett, Indiana.
1927—Ken Rouse, Chicago.
1926—Benny Friedman, Michigan.
1925—Tim Lowry, Northwestern.
1924—Red Grange, Illinois.

BY WILFRID SMITH

Ollie Cline, Ohio State full back, who scored 54 of the Buckeyes' 138 points and gained 936 yards on the 181 times he carried the ball, was the most valuable football player in the Western conference last season. Cline received this honor from the board of electors which last week considered the merits of the nine most valuable players in the conference who had been nominated by their teammates.

The Buckeye line plunger, who now has played 18 college games in two seasons and is only 19 years of age, will be the 22d player to received the Chicago Tribune Silver Football since the award was established in 1924 and was won by Harold [Red] Grange of Illinois. He is the fourth Ohio State man to receive this highest individual honor.

Buckeyes Top All Others

Wesley Fesler, end on the Buckeyes' 1930 team; Jack Graf, full back in 1941, and Leslie Horvath, who directed Ohio State's 1944 Big Nine championship eleven, are the previous winners. By Cline's selection, the Buckeyes now top all other universities in number of most valuable players. Michigan, Iowa, and Indiana have had three winners each.

Participation by all conference players in the nominations has made the Silver Football award the highest gridiron distinction in the nation since no player can receive the final award unless he has been voted the most valuable player to his team by the boys who played with him. Each of the nine most valuable players—one from each conference university—will receive a miniature white gold football. These players are:

Illinois—Mac Wenskunas, center.
Indiana—Howard Brown, guard.
Iowa—Arthur Johnson, full back.
Michigan—Harold Watts, center.
Minnesota—Bob Fitch, tackle.
Northwestern—Dick Conners, half back.
Ohio State—Ollie Cline, full back.
Purdue—Norman Maloney, end.
Wisconsin—Clarence Esser, tackle.

The final vote was cast by the conference football coaches, nine veteran officials, K. L. Wilson, commissioner of athletics for the conference, Arch Ward, sports editor of THE TRIBUNE, and the writer. Each elector listed his first and second choices and these counted two points and one point, respectively. When final tabulation was made Friday, all votes had been received.

Brown, Conners Close

Where last year Horvath was a dominant choice—he received 15 first place votes—the voting this year centered around Cline, Harold Brown of Indiana, and Dick Conners of Northwestern. They finished as follows: Cline, 22 points [8 first and 6 seconds]; Brown, 16 points [6 firsts and 4 seconds]; Conners, 13 points [5 firsts and 3 seconds]. Others receiving votes were Wenskunas, 5 points; Esser, 3 points; Watts, 2 points, and Maloney, 2 points.

Brown could have won the Silver Football with the change of two first place votes. That he finished second, however, actually is a tribute to the careful balloting, since he had no opportunity to attract attention at his guard position comparable to the headlines Cline received as a ball carrier. Conners' support was remarkable, but anticipated, since he was a constant threat to all opponents and frequently broke away for long runs. Northwestern's attack was built on the fact that Conners had to be covered by all opponents.

Cline's popularity with the electors—14 named him first or second—was due to his dependability and his spirit as well as his skill. In nine games, only Warren Amling, Ohio State guard, played more minutes. Cline played 435½ minutes out of 540 and his percentage of time in Ohio State's seven conference games was even greater.

Had 5 Yard Average

Cline carried the ball 135 times in conference contests and maintained his season average of 5 yards.

Thirty-six of his 54 points were scored against conference opponents. His defensive power matched his attack and it should be noted that Michigan did not gain its touchdown which defeated Ohio State, 7 to 3, in the final game of the season until Cline had been withdrawn in the fourth period because of injury and exhaustion.

CANADIENS AND BRUINS BATTLE TO 3-3 DEADLOCK

Montreal Boosts Hockey Lead to 2 Points

MONTREAL, Dec. 15 (AP)—The Montreal Canadiens boosted their first place lead in the National Hockey league to two points and the Boston Bruins moved into a tie for third place as the two clubs battled to a 3 to 3 tie tonight.

The one point earned in the draw gave the Canadiens a total of 21, two more than the idle, runner-up Chicago Blackhawks. Frankie Brimsek, who is making a comeback after being in service for nearly three years, performed brilliantly in front of the Boston cage.

Hawks to Duel Red Wings 3d Time Tonight

The Chicago Blackhawks and the Detroit Red Wings, bitter National Hockey league rivals these many years, will skate onto the Chicago Stadium rink at 8:30 o'clock tonight for their third clash of the 1945-'46 season. The Wings have won the first two clashes between the two, the first, 5 to 2, in Detroit's Olympia Nov. 15, and the second, 5 to 3, in the Stadium.

The Detroiters and Chicagoans have reversed styles of play considerably. Time was when you expected the Wings to dominate a season's scoring play, while the Hawks were relying on a goalie's frugality and their forwards' poke checking tactics. Now the tables have been turned, at least for that part of the season thus completed, and in spite of the 10 goals this evening's visitors have poured thru the Chicago nets.

The Hawks' forward lines this season, under the aggressive direction of Manager Johnny Gottselig, have been hammering enemy net minders with a fine fury which has seen them trounce such teams as Toronto by 8 to 2 and only last Thursday, the Rangers by a 7 to 4 count.

On the other hand, the Wings have uncovered the stingiest goalie in the league in the person of Harry Lumley. This 20 year old has yielded only 33 goals in 15 contests, a remarkable record in this era of high scoring and pressure maneuvers.

The Hawks' power tactics this year have resulted in five of them being among the first 10 scorers in the league since the season started. Their puck-carrying drives naturally have proven costly to Goalie Mike Karakas, who has had an average of three and one-half goals per game scored upon him since he took over the Chicago goal tending assignment after the first two games. The change in strategy nevertheless has clicked, as witness the Hawks' contending position for first place during the last few weeks.

DETROIT BOWLER TOPS CHICAGO STARS IN MEET

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 15 [Special] — Chicago entries in the annual Vogue individual bowling classic failed to come close to the leader in the eight games here tonight. Best of the lot was George Theel, 1,577, or 146 below Walter Reppenhagen of Detroit, currently in first place.

John D. Lynch fired 1,575; Jerry Skovie, 1,527; Bill Hargadon, 1,572; Vern Anderson, 1,510; Joe Sinke, 1,492, and Leo Faetz, 1,360. Hargadon's 248 finish gave him the high game prize of $25 on his squad.

LOYOLA DEFEATS NORTH CENTRAL FIVE, 39 TO 37

Loyola university's basketball team defeated North Central college last night, 39 to 37, in Naperville. Loyola led, 19 to 14, at the half. Bub Berger, North Central captain, led the scorers with 20 points. Jack Dwan, forward, was high for Loyola with 18. Lineups:

CHICAGO FIVE WINS, 57 TO 40, OVER MACOMB

The University of Chicago's basketball team defeated Macomb, 57 to 40, in a loosely played contest last night in the Maroon fieldhouse.

It was Chicago's fourth victory in five starts and represented the most impressive Maroon performance of the season. Chicago led, 32 to 18, at the half.

Chicago scoring was well balanced among the starting five with Johnny Sharp, forward, setting the pace with 14 points. George Raby, center, followed with 12. Ronald Cook scored 14 points to pace the Macomb quintet.

PURDUE WINS, 32-28

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 15—[Special]—Purdue's basketball squad, making more errors than points, was hard pressed to chalk up its fourth straight victory of the season as it defeated Washigton U. of St. Louis, 32 to 28, in a ragged game tonight.

The erratic Boilermakers lacked their usual dash and precision to enable the Bears to remain within striking distance virtually thruout the game.

MICHIGAN WINS AGAIN, 58 TO 45, AT GREAT LAKES

Michigan's unbeaten Wolverines won their fourth straight basketball game last night as they trounced Great Lakes' Bluejackets, 58 to 45, before 2,000 navy personnel at the naval training center. It was the sailors' second defeat in two nights and their fourth in five games.

The score was close thruout the first half, neither side leading by more than four points until Pete Elliot hit two long ones in a row to give Michigan a 26 to 20 lead. Floyd Magnusson then scored from the field for Great Lakes to cut Michigan's half-time lead to 26 to 22.

With Bob Harrison and Glenn Selbo starting to hit regularly the Wolverines pulled away to a 38 to 27 advantage with five minutes gone in the second half. Michigan was in control the rest of the way.

Selbo captured high scoring honors with 16 points, followed by Harrison with 15. Sammy White, a high school lad from Seattle, paced Great Lakes with 11 points.

MICHIGAN WINS IN A. A. U. SWIM; RECORD BROKEN

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 15 [Special] — Michigan's defending Western conference champion swimming team tonight dominated the Michigan A. A. U. indoor championships and supplied four individual champions as well as winning the 400 yard relay team event. Bob Matter, freshman star, led the Wolverine contingent as he set a new M. A. A. U. record of 1:04.4 in the 100 yard breast stroke. Another Michigan newcomer, Bob Sohl placed third ahead of Heini Kessler, the Wolverines Big Ten titlist.

Other Michigan winners were Dick Weinberg, another freshman, in the 50 yard free style event; Matt Mann III, son of the Michigan coach, who captured the 220 free style, and Alex Cnaja, returned service man, who topped the high divers.

Altho Michigan State had been listed as a distinct threat this year the Spartans had only one individual champion, Howard Patterson, winner of the 100 yard back stroke event.

DON MEADE GETS LICENSE TO RIDE IN MEXICO AGAIN

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 15 (AP)—Don Meade, the veteran jockey, has been licensed to ride in Mexico again, the Mexican racing commission said tonight. The rider was suspended from racing by the stewards of the Hipodromo de las Americas last March after he was accused of making derogatory remarks about the Mexican people.

BIBLE TO RETIRE AS COACH; HEAD TEXAS ATHLETICS

Austin, Tex., Dec. 15 (AP)—Dana X. Bible will retire as head football coach at Texas university in 1947 and will become director of athletics at the school.

The university announced today that Bible's 10 year contract, which calls for $15,600 annually and expires Jan. 1, 1947, will be supplanted by a year to year agreement calling for a salary of $9,000.

Bible, who has coached for 32 years in college ranks, declined a 10 year contract at the $9,000 figure, Dr. Byron E. Short, chairman of the university's athletic council, announced.

Bible has recommended that Assistant Coach Blair Cherry succeed him as head football coach after next season, and this was approved by the athletic council.

Donelli, Ex-Ram Coach, Discharged from Navy

New York, Dec. 15 (AP) — Aldo [Buff] Donelli, former football coach of Duquesne university and of the National league's Cleveland Rams, was honorably discharged from the navy today.

split among its players and coaches with $38,160 for the losers.

Each member of the Packers in last year's contest received $1,449.71. Because of a larger squad this year, this record individual disbursement may not be broken.

Bob Waterfield, the phenom from U. C. L. A., will be pitching passes for the Rams, but the teams most glamorous fan will be absent. She is Jane Russell, Waterfield's movie wife, who has been summoned for film duty on the coast.

Symbol of Youth

Waterfield is a symbol of the western champions' youth, just as Sammy Baugh exemplifies the experience and craftiness of the Redskins. Theirs is the same job, to operate the T formation, which calls for passing skill, selection of plays, and punting ability.

In all these departments this pair has excelled. The 25 year old Waterfield, who was born in Elmira, N. Y., ranked only back of Baugh and the Bears' Sid Luckman in passing efficiency this season. He fired 14 touchdown passes, three more than Baugh produced. This is the ninth pro campaign for the 32 year old Baugh, the one time lion of Texas Christian university.

Each has at his command a fleet set of backs and the all-important line, with adequate replacements. Burly Frank Akins of Washington State; slim Steve Bagarus of Notre Dame, and Bill DeCorrevont of Northwestern, are Sam's aces in the hole for running plays. Waterfield can call on Fred Gehrke of Utah, the league's No. 2 ground gainer; Jim Gillette of Virginia; Don Greenwood, a Detroit native who played at the Universities of Missouri and Illinois, and little Albie Reisz of nearby Lorain, O.

Two Prime Targets

Baugh aims most of his short, crisp pitches at Bagarus or Joe Aguirre, a towering end who also kicks field goals and points after touchdowns. Waterfield's prime target is Jim Benton, who caught 45 passes in 10 league games for 1,067 yards, or 233 more yards than the Packers' Don Hutson picked up after snatching aerials this year.

In the event of a tie, a rarity when pro elevens get together, a coin will be flipped to determine which of the principals will represent the league in the 1946 All-Star game. Line-up:

Washington		Cleveland
Aguirre	L. E.	Benton
Adams	L. T.	Schultz
Lolotai	L. G.	Matheson
Aldrich	C	Scarry
Hanna	R. G.	Mergenthal

NEW YORK, Dec. 16th.—Many a novel career is being created by returning veterans. For instance,—I know two brothers who went South for a rest after leaving the Coast Guard service. Before they knew it, they'd designed and built a couple of sand boats based on ice boat designs. On wheels, instead of runners, these little boats scoot along slick sandy beaches at remarkable speed . . . their tall sails filled with warm breezes. Considerable skill is required for tacking against the wind . . . but it's guaranteed to be full of speed thrills . . . and spills!  But here,—let's get back to our own business of Christmas shopping . . .

* * * * * *

DON'T MISTAKE just any Christmas fruit cake for a HOENSHEL Brandied Fruit Cake. There's a difference between them as between a thin hamburger and a thick juicy steak! It's the ingredients and the making "know-how" that count. HOENSHEL Brandied Fruit Cake is packed with glacé fruits and nuts and laced with rare wines and brandies. Ask for HOENSHEL Plum and Fig Puddings and Brandied Hard Sauce, too! At fine Food Stores. Or write HOENSHEL Fine Foods, Sandusky, O.

GAME BIRDS are bound to delight any man who fancies himself a chef! Also the perfect Season's Greetings to a business friend, your hostess, or for your own Holiday board. Write or wire BERKSHIRE Game Farm for young, plump and delicately flavored Pheasants, Bob White Quail, Mallard Ducks and Chukar Partridge. They will ship the birds at once in all their resplendent plumage in a Gift Box prepaid anywhere in the U. S. (air express extra). Gift package contains a brace of birds, a jar of home-made currant jelly to go with them, an easy-to-follow recipe folder and your greeting card. Address BERKSHIRE Game Farm, 271 Madison Ave., New York 16. Price per brace (2 birds): Pheasants, $12; Bob White Quail, $6; Chukar Partridge, $12; Mallard Ducks, $6. I think this makes the handsomest, the best-tasting, the most truly DIFFERENT gift a man can give!

BING CROSBY SAYS. "I'm so used to playing Santa Claus to my 4 kids . . . I'd about decided Mr. Whiskers was a myth! But the package of 10 PERSONNA Blades I found in my chimney sock last year told me different! PERSONNA Blade shaves are closer than a photo-finish . . . like my latest picture, they're 'The Road to Utopia' in luxury shaving!" I add my vote to Bing's on that,—for PERSONNA Blades are made of premium steel and are hollow-ground for extra keenness. Last longer because they're rust-resistant. A Christmas box of 10 costs only $1. Or choose the De Luxe Gift Box of 50 blades for $5.

LASSO THE STARS for HER this Christmas . . . give her "Bright Stars", the exciting new HARTNELL perfume! She'll appreciate your choice, especially,—for it bears the name of Norman Hartnell, Couturier by Appointment to her Majesty The Queen of England. The fragrance of "Bright Stars" matches the spirit of the Christmas season . . . wholeheartedly warm and lovely and spiritedly gay. Comes in shining white satin box trimmed with gold . . . a gift for the lady who loves luxury and glamour. Find it in $5 to $110 sizes at smart Perfume Counters. Ask for HARTNELL Perfumes this week!

NOTE TO A LATE SANTA CLAUS! Cheer up . . . here's an ideal gift for every man you know . . . from college freshman right to the big boss! Find SEAFORTH Toiletries in those handsome combination Gift Sets from $2 to $7 (single items $1; all plus tax). Ideal good grooming aids that trail a hint of heather and fern as clean and rugged as tweeds. The polished stoneware mugs and jugs make handsome gifts; each holding shaving soap and lotion that puts a new, invigorating freshness and fitness into every day!

* * * * * *

A WISE SANTA CLAUS! My father used psychology,—he knew that nagging at us kids wasn't the way to make us brush our teeth carefully. So he made sure that Santa Claus left us our own personal supply of tooth paste every Christmas . . . and were we proud of those Santa-given tubes! Why not try it? I suggest S. S. White ORALINE Tooth Paste . . . for it's so safe it can't hurt children's delicate teeth. Tastes good, too! It's made by America's oldest manufacturer of dental supplies . . . which is why so many dentists know it so well and favor it for SAFE cleansing! You'll find ORALINE at your Druggist's,—a BUY-LINE you'll want for your own teeth, too!

IT'S OFFICIAL: N. L. CROWN GOES TO CAVARRETTA

Cub Veteran Wins Over Holmes by 3 Points

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—Phil Cavarretta, hard hitting Chicago Cubs first baseman, today was crowned the official National league batting king for 1945 with an average of .355, three point better than Boston's Tommy Holmes.

In becoming the first Cub hitting champ since Heinie Zimmerman in 1912, the Chicago veteran shook off a series of injuries to overhaul Holmes in a stretch duel that was not settled until the final day of the season.

Altho Holmes cracked Rogers Hornsby's league consecutive game hitting mark by connecting safely in 37 successive contests, the Braves' outfielder slacked off in the final months and Cavarretta caught and passed him after disposing of a challenge by Goodie Rosen of Brooklyn who finished third at .325.

The Cubs also won the team hitting honors with a .277 average, four points better than St. Louis which had the most hits. The Brooklyn Dodgers set the pace in scoring most runs, total bases and triples and New York once more led the circuit in home runs with 114. It was the 14th season the Giants drove 100 or more into the stands.

Hack Ties for Fourth

Stan Hack of the pennant winning Cubs collected the most singles, 155, in compiling a .323 mark, good enough to tie for the fourth place with George [Whitey] Kurowski of St. Louis. Counting players who participated in 75 games or more, other members of the top 10 were Augie Bergamo, St. Louis, .316; Luis Olmo, Brooklyn, .313; Bill Salkeld, Pittsburgh, 311; Mel Ott, New York, .308, and Augie Galan, Brooklyn and Ernie Lombardi, New York, tied at .307. Dixie Walker of Brooklyn, the defending title holder, finished in a tie for 14th place at an even .300.

Altho Holmes failed in his bid for the batting championship, the smiling Irishman from Flatbush had most hits, 224; most total bases, 367; most doubles, 47, and most home runs, 28. Ed Stanky of Brooklyn was tops with 128 runs scored, Olmo's 13 triples were high, Don Johnson of Chicago had most sacrifice hits, 22, and Dain Clay of Cincinnati had most times at bat, 656.

Schoendienst Leads Base Thefts

Al [Red] Schoendienst of St. Louis, the only rookie to win a title, led the base stealers with 26 thefts, and three athletes, Emil Verban of St. Louis, Georgie Hausmann of New York, and Holmes played every one of their team's games.

Records fell by the wayside as the Cubs drove to their 16th pennant, beating their own mark of 15 held jointly with New York. In sweeping 20 double headers, the Bruins cracked a major league standard and they tied another by humbling Cincinnati 21 times in 22 games. Charley Girmm's Cubs and the Dodgers each won 11 straight, the longest victory string of the year and the disappointing Cincinnati club contributed the longest slump by their 13 successive losses in August.

Ott Breaks Record, Too

Vince Di Maggio of the Phils tied a major league record with four bases loaded homers and Ott contributed his usual collection of new standards. By playing his 20th year with one club he bettered Charles [Gabby] Hartnett's old mark of 19 with the Cubs. Ott's other new figures are 1,857 runs, 5,032 total bases, 2,161 extra bases on long hits, 1,069 extra base hits, 510 home runs, and 49 games in which he has hit two homers.

The Phillies also broke a modern record. They finished last for the 17th time. They also were defending champs.

OPEN TOBOGGAN SEASON TODAY IN FOREST PRESERVE

The tobogganing season will open in the forest preserves today. Six big slides in the Swallow Cliff winter sports area, the largest in the country, will be ready. ROSS RELEASED BY WHITE SOX; GOES TO PHILLIES

Lee [Buck] Ross, who, despite infrequent mound appearances, had been around long enough to be rated a White Sox veteran, was turned over to the Phillies of the National league on waivers yesterday. At the same time Clay Touchstone and Bob Mistele, also pitchers, were released outright to the Little Rock Southern association team with which the Sox now have a working agreement for next season.

Third Farm Affiliate

That makes three clubs on the Sox list of affiliates, the others being Milwaukee and Shreveport.

The releases marked the last announcement by Harry Grabiner, whose retirement as vice president of the Sox became effective yesterday. All details incidental to the change by which Leslie O'Connor will take over the general management of the club were previously disposed of.

Came from Athletics

Ross was taken on waivers from the Athletics in April, 1941, and altho Manager Jim Dykes enjoyed marked luck with numerous others picked up at bargain prices, the Ross gamble failed. His best season was 11 victories against seven defeats in 1943. Last year he appeared in only 13 games and all that time was on Dykes' waiver lists, but there was always at least one claimant.

Ross follows Johnny Humphries, who was sold to the Phillies last week.

Ripon College Quintet Beats Lawrence, 37-36

Appleton, Wis., Dec. 15 [Special]—Ripon college's basketball team tonight defeated Lawrence, 37 to 36, in a point-for-point battle here. Bruce Buchanan, Viking center, led the scorers with 15 points.

KELLY REPORTS HITTING SNAG ON SERVICE GAME

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

Chicago is continuing to make yardage in its bid for transfer of the annual Army-Navy football game from the east to a 1946 or 1947 venue in Soldiers' field, but several obstacles still remain in the path of the score which would bring the classic between the service elevens to our town for the first time since 1926.

This was revealed yesterday by Mayor Kelly upon his return from a visit in Washington. The mayor, who has bent his efforts toward securing the contest for Chicago since early last fall, reported that Secretary of War Patterson and Secretary of Navy Forrestal repeated their original approval of a shift of the game from its traditional eastern setting. Both cabinet members are willing to have the colorful spectacle, last seen here by a throng of 110,000 on Nov. 26, 1926, transferred.

Fitch Voices Objections

Before the change can be made, however, there remains the task of clearing a number of objections currently being raised by Vice Adm. Aubrey W. Fitch, superintendent of the naval academy. Adm. Fitch is opposed to transfer of the game from the east on a number of counts, chief of which are the movement of the midshipmen corps during a normal class period and the fact that the two academies have been committed to a long term agreement with Philadelphia as the site of the game. Army won this year's battle, 32 to 13, in the Quaker city's Municipal stadium on Dec. 1.

Mayor Kelly said yesterday that he has asked Gael Sullivan, assistant postmaster general and one time executive aid to the mayor, to press a solution to the aforesaid objections, with a view to bringing the Army-Navy game here in 1947, if not next year.

Chicago Is Ideal Site

On last Nov. 8, the mayor, encouraged by a statement from Secretary Patterson that the latter thought it would be a good idea to move the game to various parts of the country, revealed that he already had made advances for a Chicago stage for the game, and that he would continue to repeat them. He pointed out that Chicago was an ideal site for the classic, as proven in 1926, not only because of its location, but also because of the city's enthusiasm for sports and its ability to entertain the personnels of both academies.

Transfer of the 1926 game to Soldiers' field called for the hurdling of a multitude of official obstacles, and the east was stunned when the contest was finally awarded to Chicago. It was one of the most stirring football battles ever seen here, resulting in a 21 to 21 tie. Previously, the game had never been played outside the east, its locales being New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, West Point, Annapolis, and Princeton.

CONCORDIA PREP QUINTET DEFEATS CHRISTIAN, 33-28

Concordia High school's heavyweight basketball team defeated Chicago Christian, 33 to 28, in a heavyweight basketball game last night on the Concordia court. Ted Beck scored 10 points, and Johnny Yochum accounted for eight in pacing the victors. The score was tied, 17—all, at the half. Lineup:

DRAKE IS BEATEN BY VALPARAISO IN OVERTIME

Valparaiso, Ind., Dec. 15 (AP)—Valparaiso university came from behind twice in the closing seconds to defeat Drake in an overtime game tonight, 56 to 54.

The lead changed hands three times in the extra session. Drake led, 54 to 53, with 30 seconds to go, but Forward Bob Dille of Valparaiso, fouled in scoring, made all three points to win.

John Janisch was high point man with 17.

IT'S SERVICE TEAM!

Sports on The Production Line

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS

FOLLOWERS of Chicagoland industrial basketball who last year missed the Wilson Sporting Goods team from listings of leaders in this sport are glad to note that this company again is represented by a capable quintet. The current Wilson team already has given indications that it intends to go places in the North Avenue Y. M. C. A. Industrial league and possibly in outside competition also. There's an interesting story connected with this situation.

As early as last summer, during the industrial softball and golf seasons, a few returned service men began to appear in the lineups of various teams, reclaiming the positions which had been theirs before they left to take part in the biggest and most serious competition of all time. The back home trend is more noticeable in basketball, as the boys come home in increasing numbers and they are reinforcing numerous quintets. In the case of the Wilson team, however, it's not a matter of one or two men coming back to take over places, but of six athletes returning to claim the five starting positions and a first line substitute's role.

They're Just as Interested as Ever in Athletic Competition

The six men rolled up a service total of more than 22 years in different branches, their names and the number of months each served being: Chester Guziel, 54; Walter Sebo, 48; Henry Chisek, 46; Don Scherrer, 42; Chester Wojciechowski, 40, and John Knox, 37.

It is an interesting commentary on the part sports will play in the post-war life of service veterans to learn that all of these men are just as enthusiastic over athletic competion as they were before they left their old jobs three to four and a half years ago to go to war.

Illinois Bell Beats Thompson Elevator in Battle for Lead

The Illinois Bell Telephone company bowling team regained sole possession of first place in the Chicago Association of Commerce Industrial league Thursday by taking two out of three games in its match with Thompson Elevator and Electric. Prior to that session, the two teams had been deadlocked in first place. The Thompsons now are in a triple tie for second place, sharing a spot one game behind the leaders with Savoy Drug and Chemical, and Railway Express Agency. With only six games left in the first round of the league schedule, seven of the 16 teams still have a chance to win or share in the first round title.

Inland Steel Bowlers Test Skill Against Top Ranking Opposition

Bowlers at Inland Steel's Indiana Harbor works can't complain that they are not given a chance to test their skill against worthy opponents. The latest special attraction arranged by Russ Moore, president of the Inland Athletic association, and Joe Helding, manager of the Inland Aces, was a match between the Aces and the Milwaukee Heils. The Heils, one of the nation's better known teams, beat the Inland representatives, 3,078 pins to 2,868, in the three game exhibition. Andy Jeney was high man for the Aces with a score of 648, beaten only by the 662 rolled by Wally Janke of the winners.

Two members of the Chicago Bears squad, Rudy Smeja and Ed Sprinkle, now are employed by Inland. Wedding bells will ring for Sprinkle Dec. 30, when Marion Carlson, also an Inland employee, is to become his bride. A recent addition to the ranks of the newlyweds is Joseph S. Kozacik, sports editor of the Inland News, whose wife is the former Lottie Filipiak, an East Chicago school teacher.

Seaburgs Regain Little Brown Keg from Benton Harbor Plant

J. P. Seeburg corporation bowlers, who have been cutting a wide swath in industrial pin toppling circles this winter, have added an intercity conquest to their recent interplant the league victories. The latest victim was the New Products company, whose teams were beaten, six games to three, in a match in Benton Harbor, Mich.

Curly Engler of New Products had the top individual record, games of 203, 191, and 257, for a 651 series. Howie Schraeder was high for Seeburg with 586. As a result of the triumph, the Little Brown Keg, emblematic of supremacy in the Seeburg-New Products rivalry, now rests in the former's trophy case. It's empty now, but report has it such was not its condition when New Products surrendered possession.

ZOLLNER FIVE BEATS OSHKOSH PROS, 58 TO 48

Oshkosh, Wis., Dec. 15 [Special]—The Fort Wayne Zollners broke even on their Wisconsin invasion tonight by beating the Oshkosh All-Stars, 58 to 48, after losing to Sheboygan two days ago.

Bob Carpenter, Oshkosh forward, was high scorer with 18 points. McDermott led the visitors with 17.

Jesse Yarborough, now coaching the army air corps team, formerly handled a high school team in Miami. Among his boys were Bruce Smith and Pete Williams of Navy and Arnold Tucker of Army.

AMERICAN GEARS PLAY TONIGHT IN INDIANAPOLIS

The American Gears, Chicago entry in the National Basketball league, will meet Indianapolis in the Indiana city tonight and the two teams will play a return engagement in Chicago Friday. These will be the Gears' only league games this week.

Indianapolis and Sheboygan each will play four games during the week, the schedule being:

Tonight—Chicago at Indianapolis, Sheboygan at Cleveland, and Youngstown at Fort Wayne. Monday—Sheboygan at Youngstown. Tuesday—Sheboygan at Rochester. Thursday—Indianapolis at Sheboygan. Friday—Indianapolis at Chicago. Saturday—Fort Wayne at Cleveland, Indianapolis at Oshkosh.

SENATORS GET FINE ROOKIE

Baseball scouts say that Gilbert Coan, the Chattanooga outfielder who led the Southern association in hitting, is ready and will play regularly with Washington next season. Coan's batting average was .372 last season.

5 DAY TOLL OF GEESE: 4½ DEAD BIRDS A MINUTE!

BY BOB BECKER

Wild geese falling dead at the rate of four and a half birds a minute for 1,350 minutes to make a total of more than 6,000 killed during a brief 22½ hour open season was the record which the Horseshoe lake hunting area in southern Illinois made this year.

It's a record that some sportsmen do not consider anything to brag about because blinds are very close to the refuge on which the geese find safety and hunters jammed into these hideouts can wham away at the dumb and rather tame geese as they fly out from the refuge into the zone of shot and shell.

Figures Cover Five Days

We asked W. E. Crouch of the United States fish and wildlife service for the figures on the 1945 goose kill in the highly commercialized Horseshoe lake country. The figures cover just the open season from Nov. 24 to Nov. 28, when the kill of honkers was so heavy that the government closed the shooting gallery down there.

Mr. Crouch reports that the number of birds downed and picked up by hunters was about 5,150. Adding about a 15 per cent loss due to crippling [government estimate], the total number of geese taken from the flock was approximately 6,006.

1,400 Killed First Day

The shooters had only 22½ hours of hunting [1,350 minutes] this year so there were around four and a half geese dropped out of the sky every minute. The kill Nov. 24 alone was 1,400 geese in four and a half hours of shooting.

So far the flock at Horseshoe hasn't totaled above 28,000 birds this fall. Last year there were approximately 35,000 on the Horseshoe refuge of about 3,000 acres. Mr. Crouch says that as high as 1,400 hunters have gotten into blinds around the refuge at one time.

One may expect this kind of a concentrated kill and shooting gallery around Horseshoe as long as the fields next to it are studded with blinds and operated for a profit. When you can get $10 or more per day from a shooter, land next to the refuge is about as desirable a type of farm land as anyone could own.

Two Possible Solutions

Conservationists still are discussing two possible solutions of the Horseshoe lake-dumb-goose-heavy-kill problem. One is to reduce the take of honkers unless the wild goose flock takes a marked upturn, which it may, and the concentration rises to around 35,000 birds, or else have a closed area for a half mile to a mile around the refuge.

All of this adds up to a swell grade A problem for the United States fish and wildlife service to work on before another year goes by.

Pick McMillin as Football's Man of Year

Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 15—(AP)—Bo McMillin, who coached Indiana thru an undefeated season without the help of service trainees, was named football's man of the year today by the Football Writers Association of America.

Polls 101 of 142 Votes

McMillin, who kept Indiana among the top war time teams thru four seasons of depleted material, polled 101 of a total of 142 votes cast by the writers, Bert McGrane, association secretary announced.

Previous winners of the writers' trophy, which will be kept by Indiana university for one year, were Comdr. Tom Hamilton, United States navy, 1942; A. A. Stagg, College of the Pacific, 1943, and the late Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner, 1944.

Used Only Civilian Personnel

Working only with civilian personnel, the Indiana coach's teams in four seasons won 27 games, lost 10 and tied three for a percentage of .731.

Other leaders among the original 23 nominees for the honor were Felix Blanchard, Army full back; Col. Earl Blaik, Army coach; Jimmy Phelan, St. Mary's coach; and Herman Wedemeyer, St. Mary's half back.

"Seems the word got around that 'Beer in cans will be back soon'."

TODAY, canned beer is still a treat reserved for servicemen only.

But that wonderful day is coming when beer, its original fine flavor fully protected from light, will be back in cans for all to enjoy!

Cans are easiest to carry. Don't break. Save refrigerator space. Stay cool longer.

The can is the real one-trip container that's easy to dispose of. You're sure it never enters any home but yours.

FIREWORKS LOOM IN CYO FINALS TUESDAY NIGHT

32 Hard Punchers Wait Opening Bell

BY FRANK MASTRO

Thirty-two of the hardest punchers and most skillful boxers in Chicago are marking time for the finals of the 15th Catholic Youth organization tournament in the Coliseum Tuesday night.

Altho the ticket sale has been brisk there are good seats remaining in all locations. Reserved seats at $3.60, $2.40, and $1.20 will remain on sale at C. Y. O. center gymnasium until Tuesday at 5 p. m.

Exciting Bouts Expected

The 16 bouts—eight each in the open and novice classes—are expected to produce some of the event's most exciting competition, the kind to which Chicago fans have become accustomed since inception of the meet in 1930.

Every one attending the four nights of preliminary fights last month still is talking about the fireworks displayed and they are confident Tuesday's championship finals will be the most exciting sponsored by the C. Y. O. since Pearl Harbor.

For the open division winners the goal is clearly marked. By emerging triumphant they will earn a trip to Kansas City, Mo., for an intercity match there next month. Then they will be ready for the toughest tournament of them all—the annual Golden Gloves meet which opens late in January.

Novices Look Good

Altho the 16 novices, boys who never have won a title in a major tourney, do not have the experience of their open class compatriots, they never have failed to produce an evening of enjoyment in themselves. Several of these lads performed sensationally in the early rounds of the meet, including the Morrissey brothers, Bill and Jack, of Queen of Angels parish, and Goodwain Murry, Corpus Christi.

Murry and Jack Morrissey are two of six ex-service men who advanced to the finals. The 160 pound Murry, 25 year old noncommissioned officer instructor at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., qualified by winning three fights, two by knockouts. He will draw Ernest Ayers, of St. Elizabeth High school, on Tuesday. Jack, lieutenant in the army air forces with 23 missions to his credit, revealed considerable power and ability in eliminating foes from St. Elizabeth High, St. Margaret parish, and St. Gregory High. The 20 year old Jack's opponent will be Rufus Johnson, Elizabeth High.

The open program? It couldn't be more promising if the matches were arranged by a matchmaker instead of by the boxers themselves with their explosive lefts and rights. Take the bantamweight contest between Harry Scorzo, 1945 Chicago Golden Gloves novice 118 pound champion, and Jack [Scotty] McBurnie, navy radioman, who participated in invasions at Palau, Okinawa, and the Philippines.

No Soft Touches

Then there are the featherweight title events involving Joe Plummer and Johnny Mezzano, the welterweight final between Abe Lee and Don Lonergan, and the heavyweight title event involving Charles Hobday and John Polcyn.

Neither has a soft touch. Mezzano, army veteran, who was a prisoner of war in Germany, may be remembered by Chicagoans as the hard punching little fellow who used to fight for the Madison Athletic club prior to entering the service. He still retains the power in his fists, which bodes ill for Plummer. Lonergan, Hobday, who weighs 193 pounds, and Polcyn, 198, are expected to steal the show because of their preference for slugging it out until some one hits the canvas. Hobday has three and a half years service with the 1st Ranger battalion, being one of the original members of this outfit, which won recognition for heroic action. He took part in the battles of Tunisia, Salerno, and Anzio, during which he was wounded three times.

Polcyn also is a war hero, serving overseas 25 months as a marine air corps mechanic and participating in the battles of Guadalcanal, Luzon, Iwo Jima, and Okinawa.

Illinois Tech, Loyola Fives to Meet in Two Games

Ilinois Tech's basketball team will meet Loyola in a home-and-home series to round out a 19 game Techawk schedule, Bernard [Sonny] Weissman, asistant athletic director, anounced yesterday. The first game is scheduled for Jan. 17 at Illinois Tech with the return contest at Loyola on Feb. 2.

Delay Ruling in Dope Case to Make Test

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—A turf board, made up of members of the Jockey club and of the New York racing commission, reserved its decision today in the hearing of stimulation charges against Trainer Tom Smith until an ephedrine test can be made on the horse, Magnific Duel, and the animal's reaction determined.

Smith, trainer for the Maine Chance farms, was suspended by the Jockey club for a year on Nov. 8 on charges that Magnific Duel was stimulated with ephedrine, a fairly common household remedy, prior to a Nov. 1 race at Jamaica.

Defense Asks for Test

Permission to make the test was granted the defense at the conclusion of the second day of an open hearing in which opposing lawyers threw the medical book at each other.

Magnific Duel, now in California, will be given the tests, with the experimenters as nearly as possible duplicating the conditions of Nov. 1. The tests will be made by the defense, the racing board having declined an invitation by Smith's lawyers to conduct them.

It was made clear at the hearing, incidentally, that the 70 year old Smith, himself, had nothing to do with the spraying of Magnific Duel originally, that it was his assistant foreman who did the job—the foreman in turn saying he thought he was using a solution of salt, vinegar and water.

Attorney Attacks Blanket Rule

Near the conclusion of the hearing, Smith's attorney, John T. Cahill, took violent exception to the racing rule in New York state which holds a trainer responsible for such infractions, whether or not he has personal knowledge of them.

Neil McCarthy, California turfman and lawyer who flew here to sit at Smith's counsel table, engaged in heated controversy with William Langley of the racing commission over whether the defense had made proper experiments to find whether Magnific Duel was affected by ephedrine.

McCarthy became incensed when Langley implied that tests made by Dr. Harry Gold of Cornell, by injecting the drug directly into the beast's muscles—and which, Gold testified, caused no reaction—did not mean that he could not be stimulated by nasal dosage. Dr. Gold has testified that the injection method was many times more effective.

ROYAL FLUSH 1ST IN $5,000 RACE AT GULFSTREAM

Miami, Fla., Dec. 15 (AP)—The 5 year old mare, Royal Flush, owned by Vincent Cicero, found a muddy track to her liking as she splashed to a length and a half victory in the $5,000 Okeechobee handicap at Gulfstream Park today. A crowd of 11,812 bet $712,760 on the eight race card.

Danny Scocca was astride Royal Flush in her first victory in four efforts. A length and a half behind was the favorite, Morton Newmeyer's Turbine. B. F. Lister's Eternity, under the burden of 122 pounds, lost the place spot by more than a length. Royal Flush was timed in 1:26 4-5 for the seven furlongs.

Tedious Miss dashed into a lead of nearly two lengths over Royal Flush, only to falter badly upon recahing the head of the stretch.

LITTLE CHANGE MADE IN FILING '45 TAX RETURN

Fewer Will Pay '46 Income Levies

The federal income tax collector will take fewer dollars from a smaller total of taxpayers next year, but taxes on 1945 income and the method of payment or filing are substantially the same as for last year.

Beginning Jan. 1 a reduced rate or no taxes will be paid under provisions of the 1945 revenue act which cut levies by an estimated 5 billion 920 million dollars of which 2 billion 784 millions apply to individuals.

About 12 million persons will be exempted from taxes. These include wage earners whose pay is less than $22 a week with at least two exemptions; those whose pay is less than $32 with three or more exemptions, and those whose pay is less than $43 with four or more exemptions. This continues until all weekly pay below $105 is free of withholding if the exemptions total 10 or more.

Reports Become Due

Jan. 1 also marks the start of the period when payments or reports or both, are required on 1945 income.

The first deadline is Jan. 15 and applies largely to farmers and persons whose incomes are not covered or are only partly covered by withholding provisions. The latter group includes generally physicians, lawyers, investors, salaried persons in the higher brackets, and persons in business for themselves.

Farmers are required to file original declarations of estimated tax by this date, and the other group must pay the final instalment of the estimated tax for 1945. Farmers who underestimate the 1945 tax by more than 33 1-3 per cent and those in the other group who underestimated by more than 20 per cent may escape penalty by filing amended certificates and making full payment.

Must Provide Receipt

The next deadline on Jan. 31 affects those on pay-as-you-go thru pay roll deductions. By this date employers must supply all employes with a withholding tax receipt [form W-2] showing both total wages paid and tax withheld in 1945. By making certain entries most employes can use this form as their 1945 tax return.

By March 15 all groups listed must have settled with the government. Individuals with gross incomes of $500 or more must file tax returns, either on form W-2 or the regular 1040 form. The simple W-2 may be used as a return if the gross income was below $5,000 and consisted wholly of wages subject to withholding, or of these wages and not more than $100 of other wages, dividends, and interest.

If this form is filed the collector figures the tax and mails a bill or refund check. If form 1040 is filed, payment of any remaining tax due must accompany the return. On this form the taxpayer may make a claim for refund of overpayment of the 1945 tax made thru either excessive withholding or quarterly instalments of estimated tax.

Tax Estimates Are Required

March 15 also is the final date on which the quarterly instalment group of taxpayers may file tax estimates for 1946 and pay the instalment for the first three months of that year.

The estimates will take into account the new exemptions from the normal tax and the lower surtax rates. Declarations must be filed by every person who expects to receive: [1] Wages subject to withholding in excess of $5,000 plus $500 for each surtax exemption except his own or, [2] taxable income from all other sources in excess of $100 provided his total income is expected to amount to $500 or more.

Delay is permitted in the case of service men absent from the country and special exemptions make it unnecessary for most of those below the rank of commissioned officer to file tax returns or estimates.

How to Estimate Tax

With 1945 tax obligations out of the way, the taxpayer can project his 1946 liabilities. The quarterly instalment payer can estimate his new tax bill by applying to the 3 per cent normal tax the graduated surtax exemptions of $500 for himself and each dependent, subtracting three percentage points from each surtax bracket and deducting

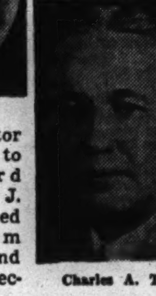
Tilt, President of Diamond T, Heads Board

Charles A. Tilt, who built the first Diamond T automobile 40 years ago in the rear of a one story garage in Chicago, yesterday announced his retirement as president of Diamond T Motor Car company to become board chairman. E. J. Bush was named to succeed him as president and treasurer effective Jan. 1.

E. J. Bush



Charles A. Tilt

A native of Chicago, Tilt decided to make cars in 1905 after working a few years for his father, a shoe manufacturer. The first Diamond T [for Tilt] vehicles were passenger cars turned out by hand. The first Diamond T truck was manufactured in 1911 for a Chicago executive who owned one of Tilt's cars. The truck was in service 20 years. Diamond T soon turned to making trucks exclusively.

In World War I. Tilt produced more than 1,400 heavy duty trucks for the government, a large total for the time, but small compared with the 50,223 heavy vehicles, including 31,000 six wheel prime movers and 6,500 12 ton tank transporters, designed and built by Diamond T in the last war.

Bush has been with the company since 1919. Since 1927 he has been vice president and a director.

Other changes include the promotion of C. A. Peirce to executive vice president; J. F. Danielson to secretary; T. C. Huxley Jr. to general sales manager, and H. C. Emberson, to vice president in charge of purchasing.

AMPLE NATURAL RUBBER BY END OF 1946 FORECAST

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—Paul Litchfield, Goodyear Tire and Rubber company chairman, today predicted there would be "an ample supply of natural rubber in the world supply pool by the end of 1946." Litchfield, who arrived from England, said the rubber supply "is improving all the time."

"We need about 25 per cent natural rubber for our requirements," he said. "For the remaining 75 per cent we can use either natural or synthetic rubber, depending upon the price. There is an ample supply of synthetic rubber now for the world's needs."

STOCKHOLDERS TAKE DRIVERS' SEATS, RUN BUSES DURING STRIKE

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—Stockholders of the Green Bus Lines, Inc., climbed behind the steering wheels today when the regular drivers walked out and by early morning had 84 of the 96 buses on the road, the company announced.

The drivers quit at midnight in what a union spokesman said was a dispute over contract provisions. The company immediately put a staff to work telephoning stockholders in the metropolitan area and the buses were rolling at 5 a. m., it said.

The company has scores of small stockholders, for when it was organized it took over numerous little bus lines and paid for them in stock. The line carries 160,000 persons daily.

BULL MARKET UNDER SEC

A general similarity of the present bull market to that of the 1920s is emphasized in financial comment, altho that era passed long before any one had heard of a securities and exchange commission.

The spirit of speculation—now termed in part a "flight from the dollar to avoid the consequences of inflation"—has been running high. Various individual issues recently have risen 5 to 10 or more points in a day. Low priced issues suddenly have become active at advancing quotations, but nothing has been said in market comment about the old time "pools," "manipulation," or "great bull leaders," as formerly.

The market never was more impersonal on the surface. In the 1920s there was business getting magic for brokers in reports that certain prominent speculators were buying Baldwin Locomotive, Radio, or what not. Now brokers are forbidden by law to induce purchases or sales by circulating statements that stocks are likely to rise or fall because of "market operations of any one or more persons for the purpose of raising or depressing the price."

Even the monthly reports of transactions by large stockholders as published by the SEC usually throw little light on who in buying stocks. More often such reports show sales.

When they buy, large interests often may avoid the necessity of making reports to Washington by purchasing stocks of other companies than their own. But brokers say stock exchange operations actually are less personal than formerly, partly because of the growth of "open end" investment companies which trade on the exchange but whose own shares are dealt in over the counter.

The SEC is not concerned with price trends as such, but is charged with the enforcement of the prohibitions against price manipulation or the creation of a false appearance of activity. The general absence of complaint from the commission regarding manipulative practices is noteworthy. It has considered a regulation to outlaw floor trading by members on the New York Stock and Curb exchanges because of alleged abuses, but this has been held in abeyance.

Brokers contend that the federal reserve board's 75 per cent initial margin requirement actually has fostered market inflation because holders of under-margined accounts, if they make a sale from such accounts, are not permitted to reinvest the proceeds, and thus are discouraged from selling.

Commentators assert that in the present market it is not "bull leadership" that has counted, but the effect of the unprecedented supply of money. In either case it is possible for stocks to sell too high in relation to past and prospective earnings. Thus, bull markets in their extreme stages create special problems for investors.

Early Filing of War Job Claims Urged by Army

War contractors who produced supplies for the army engineers corps were urged yesterday by Col. H. A. Montgomery, Great Lakes division engineer, to submit claims and inventories on canceled contracts promptly to expedite settlements. Negotiations cannot be started until this information is received.

British Loan Assailed by Trade Groups

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 15—British business groups, interested in maintaining the sterling area and expanding the system of imperial preferences, entered the Bretton Woods discussions this week from the side lines.

At least two associations whose titles employ the word "empire" at special meetings passed resolutions opposing British acceptance of American loan terms.

The Empire Industries association charged the loan arrangements meant an empire trade wherein "lies the most assured hope that our future recovery will now be jettisoned."

Sacrifices Worth More

The association, it said, "objects on principle to any agreement which would limit in any way the right of nations of the empire to coöperate with each other in peace as in war."

Britain "might well have been entitled, in view of its sacrifices to a free gift instead of a commercial loan, which may well prove beyond its capacity to repay," it said.

The Empire Economic union denounced the loan arrangements on the ground they would hamper if not destroy the economic freedom of the empire.

Another group, the Economic Reform club, urged rejection of the loan and of Bretton Woods as being "onerous, unjust, and unworkable."

Editorial Assails Loan

The London weekly Economist admitted burdens of the loan agreement would not overstrain the British economy, but said it was "aggravating to find our reward for losing a quarter of our total national wealth in the common cause is to pay tribute for half a century to those who have been enriched by war."

A protest against the "general attitude of querulousness and carping" even among those who support the loan project was written by Oscar Hobson, financial editor of the News Chronicle. He described the loan terms as "generous" and reminded critics who demanded billions as a free gift on the ground that Britain suffered more in the war than the United States that if equal sacrifice doctrine was effectively applied Britain would rank far behind China, Russia, Holland, Greece, Poland, and Yugoslavia.

TOOL, DIE GROUP ASKS PROBE OF TAX FAIRNESS

The National Tool and Die Manufacturers' association and the Chicago Tool and Die institute yesterday petitioned the joint congressional committee on internal revenue to investigate alleged discriminatory tax practices by the internal revenue department.

The two groups said the department had "all but written out of the revenue act" a provision giving the department discretionary powers to relieve disproportionate war emergency taxation of all business enterprises, particularly small corporations.

Working capital needed in reconversion largely has been wiped out because adverse interpretation of this relief clause and small businesses are in a distressing position, the organizations said.

CHRYSLER LINES EQUIPPED WITH NEW SAFETY RIM

New safety rim wheels that provide more protection against blowouts or puncture hazards will be standard equipment on the 1946 Plymouth, Dodge, De Soto, and Chrysler cars, Chrysler corporation said yesterday.

A specially designed "kink" or "hump" in the heavy edge of the rim grips the tire so that it is almost impossible for the tire to come off the rim or slip crosswise to the wheel in case of a puncture or blowout.

Dodge division of Chrysler said it will start production soon on a 1 ton general purpose truck equipped with a commercial adaptation of the military four wheel drive mechanism.

STOCK PRICES EDGE HIGHER IN LIGHTER TRADE

Rails, Specialties, Coppers Lead

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—Led by selected rails, coppers, and specialties the stock market today had its second slow recovery after the sharp reaction earlier in the week. Dividends, earnings, idle cash, and the recent downswing inspired more short covering and reinstatement of accounts. Labor controversies continued to restrain customers.

Prices firmed after an active opening but the pace slowed. Altho scattered losers persisted, gains of fractions to more than a point predominated. A few liquors and aircrafts rose more. Transfers of 620,000 shares were the smallest since Sept. 22, and compared with last Saturday's five year record of 1,260,000.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite was up 0.2 at 76.2 but lost 0.8 for the week. Of 751 issues registered, 394 advanced, 187 declined, and 170 were unchanged.

Rails were buoyed by dividend expectations and bright traffic prospects. Earnings outlook kept aviations on top and some coppers reflected hopes of a price ceiling boost.

RAIL LOANS ADVANCE

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—Rail carrier bonds continued in demand today and the Associated Press 20 rail average advanced 0.1 to a new high for the year of 103.7. More active issues included St. Louis, San Francisco 4½s, up 1⅛ to 50½; the 4s of the same line, up 1 to 63; Milwaukee adjustment 5s, up ⅛ to 37½; Katy 4½s, up 3 to 94, and its first 4s, up 1¼ to 95.

Declining were American & Foreign Power 5s, International Telephone 5s, Brooklyn Union Gas 4s, and Armour & Co. 4½s.

Total sales were $3,320,000, compared with $5,110,000 a week ago.

CHICAGO STOCKS RISE

Prices closed higher in turnover of 21,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Among active leaders were Central and South West Utilities, up ⅞ to a 1945 peak of 11⅞; Oak Manufacturing and Automatic Washer, each up ⅛, and Chicago corporation and Asbestos Manufacturing, both unchanged.

Great Northern to Spend 9.4 Millions on Equipment

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 15 (AP)—Great Northern railroad directors today approved expenditure of $9,426,500 for cars for five complete trains for the Empire Builder, two electric locomotives for Cascade mountain use, 10 1,000-horse power combination road and switching engines, and 550 frate cars.

REFINING FIRM FILES 25 MILLION LOAN WITH SEC

Atlantic Refining company yesterday registered 25 million dollars of new 20 year debentures and 102,000 shares of $100 cumulative preferred stock with the securities and exchange commission. Part of the proceeds will be used to redeem debentures and the remainder will be added to general funds. Smith, Barney & Co. will be principal underwriter.

Stockholders of Woodall Industries, Inc., approved issuance of 100,000 shares of $25 per 5 per cent cumulative preferred. Paul H. Davis & Co. heads the syndicate which is expected to make public offering of the stock this week. Proceeds will be used for expansion.

Surplus Nylon Cloth for Sale; Clothing Gains

Surplus clothing and footwear, overshadowed by the emphasis on heavy industrial items in the government's disposal program, will be available in increasing amounts after Jan. 1, F. A. McLauchlan, acting director of the Reconstruction Finance corporation's regional consumer goods office, said yesterday.

Tomorrow more than 4½ million yards of surplus nylon parachute fabric will be put on sale by the RFC to provide lining material for low cost clothing. The 10 day sale will be handled by the Chicago regional office and 10 others thruout the country.

McLauchlan suggested that the public urge merchants to purchase surplus goods for the normal retail trade. Part of the slowness in disposing of government surplus is because the average citizen is not "surplus property minded," he said.

Catalogs Sent To Dealers

The consumer goods office is distributing catalogs of clothing, footwear, and other items to retailers and wholesalers, McLauchlan said. On most items different prices are quoted for wholesalers, large retail buyers, and small retail buyers, the small retailer paying the highest price, but he is permitted to purchase in smaller quantities.

McLauchlan said offerings of surplus items would remain on a priority basis, affording federal, state, and local government agencies the first opportunities in that order. Nearly all types of consumer goods are in demand by the government for use in hospitals and other institutions.

An increasing demand from civilians for heavier items was expected because of the variety of conversions possible. Artillery sight cases have been made into window boxes and airplane engine factory trucks into roadside fruit stands. The regional office has even heard of plans to turn surplus B-29 fuselages into auto trailers.

Dates Will Be Announced

McLauchlan said specific sales dates will be announced as the items become available, are inventoried, and evaluated as to condition.

A total of 2,992,861 yards of white parachute fabric and 1,521,216 yards in camouflage design will be available. The price is 45 cents a yard at Rochester, N. Y. The minimum sale will be 1,500 yards, the maximum 75,000.

Sales will be limited to apparel manufacturers who have received ratings for lining material for low cost wool garments and to finished goods suppliers who will resell the fabric to these manufacturers. Preference will be given the manufacturers.

Altho the largest part of the fabric is expected to be used as linings for women's garments, the material will be an aid in the production of men's low and medium cost suits because it will release for men's clothing the rayon linings that otherwise would be used for women's clothing.

U. S. TRANSFERS 287 FACTORIES TO PRIVATE USE

Cost Near 1 Billion to Construct

The Reconstruction Finance corporation disclosed yesterday that 287 surplus government war plants which cost about 979 million dollars had been transferred to civilian operation by Nov. 30 thru sale or lease. In several instances the new operator has not had time to put the property into production.

Included were 15 plants in the Chicago area of which the largest was the former Buick aviation engine plant at Melrose Park bought by International Harvester company for $13,750,000. The original cost of land and buildings was $20,823,048.

The RFC said that as of Nov. 30 the sale of 84 of the plants located in all parts of the country and costing approximately 152 million dollars had been authorized to their war time or new operators, and 203 plants costing approximately 827 millions have been leased for various periods.

Interest in Plants Grows

"In addition, definite interest had been expressed or negotiations in varying stages were under way with respect to the sale or lease of 327 other government owned plants representing a total government investment of nearly 3 billion dollars," said the RFC. "During the last 60 days, there has been a marked accelerated interest on the part of industry in these plants."

The RFC said that 600 odd plants sold, leased, or in various stages of negotiations up to Nov. 30 represented slightly less than a half the total of government owned plants to be sold or leased.

Other Chicago area plants in the group sold included Aetna Ball Bearing Manufacturing company, which cost $177,890, and was bought by 20th Century Glove company for $225,000; Chicago Chemical company, cost $945,396, bought by the company for $400,000; Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company plant at Cicero av. and Division st., cost $968,281, under negotiation for sale to Leaf Gum company for $1,101,500.

3 WAYS
to Increase Working Capital

Are you familiar with the One that best fits most situations?

1 BANK LOANS	2 STOCK OR DEBENTURE ISSUES	3 G.F.C. TERM LOANS
Usually subject to 90 day renewal—and thus to quick call.	Except in the case of large issues, this method of financing involves costs that frequently run as high as 20% of the principal amount.	Economical, non-callable, available in amounts up to One Million Dollars or more, amortized over an extended period.

When increased working capital is sought to build up inventories, to rehabilitate existing plant facilities, to acquire new plants or products, to rebuild sales organizations etc., it is important that such increased capital be made available to you at reasonable cost—for an ample period of time—with definite arrangements for convenient repayment.

Only thus can you have positive assurance that long range plans can materialize, and that profits from use of the additional capital will contribute to the orderly retirement of your loan. And to future profits!

A G.F.C. Term Loan brings that assurance.

G.F.C. invites you to discuss your needs—in complete confidence.

Tool and Manufacturing company, Detroit, $162,000, and Bell & Howell company, Lincolnwood, Ill., $2,280,141.

"While plants will continue to be sold as advantageously as possible the factors of expanding employment and the impact on community welfare are regarded as the chief consideration in their sale or lease," said the RFC.

ADVANCE IN RYE LEADS PRICES OF GRAINS HIGHER

Belief that England would reënter the market for rye this week, presumably for shipment to Norway, led to aggressive buying of old crop futures yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. December rye rose 3 cents a bushel at one time, but profit taking caused a reaction from the top. Near-by futures closed 2 to 2⅜ cents higher with new crop deliveries unchanged to ¼ cent higher.

Announcement by the office of price administration that a recent ruling that old and new crop rye would not sell above the ceiling price of $1.42 Chicago basis after June 1, 1946, was within its powers came too late to be a market influence.

Other grains were firm with active deliveries of wheat gaining ⅛ to ¼ cent. Oats were ¼ to ½ cent higher and barley was unchanged to ⅝ cent higher. Corn was unchanged at ceiling prices.

NHA ARRANGES CONFERENCE ON HOME BUILDING

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15 (AP)—The government will turn next week to the business of trying to get more homes built at reasonable prices under the program outlined by President Truman. At a two day conference opening in Washington Monday government officials hope to thresh out construction problems with building labor and management.

Called by the national housing agency at the direction of Reconversion Chief Snyder, the conference has two broad purposes: [1] To speed home building; [2] To find ways of combating inflation.

Later, at two more conferences, the government will seek suggestions from leaders in the home financing field and from consumer organizations and other public interest groups.

OPA Planning Blamed in Hog Price Upsets

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON

Enforcement of ceiling prices on live hogs without regard for normal winter fluctuations of the market was assailed yesterday by Charles Barquist, chairman of the Chicago Live Stock exchange hog ceiling committee. He said unseasonal price movements in recent weeks had cost farmers several million dollars. The abnormal price collapse of two weeks ago, congestion in the country's markets, and recurring periods of acute shortage were charged directly to the office of price administration.

Farmers have a large crop of hogs on feed, but packers could handle the supply easily at profit to both themselves and farmers, except for OPA, Barquist said.

Programs "Poorly Planned"

"Farmers this winter have received less for hogs than they should have been paid, simply because poorly planned programs of OPA have caused periods of unusual ebb and flow of supplies," asserted Barquist. "Hog raisers have lost thru artificial price interference with the normal flow to market, formerly governed by fluctuating prices as determined by open competitive markets.

"In the last year inspected packers have been forced to hire hundreds of temporary buyers thruout the country in order to get their share of hogs which were kept out of the terminal markets by the government's unfair price action. This decentralization of the buying field was partly responsible for the demoralizing slump in prices two weeks ago. The industry was unable to advise farmers and regulate supplies thru its scattered buying force."

An even flow of supplies is almost impossible under the iron clad ceiling enforced by OPA, Barquist contended. The entire pork and hog industry is built on price elasticity.

Advice to Farmers Slow

When prices bump the ceiling farmers hold back too long, resulting in the pile-up of supplies. When the big movement starts, country buyers are slow to inform farmers of conditions, so far too many hogs sell below the lawful limit, he said.

Conditions last week were the reverse of those two weeks ago when markets were glutted with hogs and prices under pressure. Not enough hogs arrived last week to keep packers working at capacity, and prices returned to the ceiling.

LITTLE CHANGE MADE IN FILING '45 TAX RETURN

Fewer to Pay Income Levies Next Year

The law describes a dependent as a close relative with below $500 annual gross income and deriving more than half of his support from the taxpayer in question.

The taxpayers on pay roll deduction plans can appraise the effect of the new rates on their pay checks by consulting a printed tax table which employers will provide in many cases, or by figuring it out by the simple percentage method.

Exemptions Are Deducated

First subtract from the weekly pay the total weekly exemption. Prorated to one week each exemption is $11, and if a married man with one child the taxpayer has three exemptions, totaling $33.

Then take 17 per cent of the remainder, up to $44. The 17 per cent represents a combination of normal tax and first bracket surtax and the maximum tax at that rate is $7.48. If the remainder is more than $44 take 19 per cent of the excess and add it to the $7.48 to determine the total amount to be withheld.

The new provisions apply to all compensation paid in 1946. The general scope of the withholding tax is unchanged. Employes now exempt because of occupation, mainly agricultural workers and domestics, will remain exempt.

BUILDERS CLASH WITH OPA OVER HOUSING RULES

New Yotk, Dec. 15 [Special]—Leading members of the building industry today asserted that the critical housing shortage could not be eased under present government controls aid in turn were bluntly told by Ivan D. Carson, OPA deputy administrator, that the restrictions would not be removed now.

At a public conference sponsored by the citizens' housing council the industry spokesmen were unanimous in their criticism of the OPA and gloomy over prospects for materials—a shortage they laid to OPA controls.

Carson, who was hissed by some as he arose to speak, agreed with the industry representatives that government and business must find a way of easing the home shortage. He said OPA favored full expansions of construction as soon as the supply and demand of materials could be matched and inflation blocked.

Czech Trade Mission Will Seek Items in U. S.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 15 (AP)—Hubert Ripka, minister of foreign trade, today said Czechoslovakia would send a trade commission to the United States in January to attempt to buy machinery, rubber, leather, cotton goods, and other items.

Pledges from Industry to Hire Vets Total 3,021

Industry for Veterans said yesterday it has obtained pledges from 3,021 employers to give 25 per cent of their jobs to returning service men and women. Wieboldt Stores, Inc., employing 3,800 persons made the pledge recently.

UNEMPLOYMENT DIPS IN SEVERAL INDUSTRY AREAS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15 (AP)—A trend indicating unemployment is shifting away from some former war production areas to other states was reported today by the social security board.

In a report based on unemployment compensation claims the board said that on a national basis the ratio of claims to jobs covered by insurance remained virtually unchanged from last Sept. 29 to Nov. 24. The ratio on the latter date was 5.7 per cent.

The report shows that Michigan, New Jersey, Connecticutt, and Illinois, states with the highest ratio of claims to insurance covered jobs in September, reported decreases in claims in November. Most other states experienced a rise in claims.

Total employment in the country, exclusive of agriculture workers, increased 413,000 last month to a total of 35,620,000, said the labor department. All major industries, excluding the government, reported employment gains.

NAMES OF 16,994 YANKS SENT OUT FOR YULE GIFTS

More to Be Mailed When Lists Arrive

BY HARRY McCLAIN

Names of 16,994 wounded and sick soldiers, sailors, and marines have been mailed to readers of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE who will send Christmas gifts to them. Thousands more will be mailed as soon as received from the army and navy hospitals.

Many men who were in military hospitals two weeks ago have been able to get Christmas furloughs and will be home with their families, but those still unable to travel are assured the best possible Christmas. And Tribune readers will, in a large measure, be responsible for their pleasure.

Continue to Seek Names

On Dec. 4 THE TRIBUNE announced it could not accept any more requests for names because hospitals would not be able to supply enough to fill all requests then on hand. This, however, did not discourage generous Tribune readers, who have continued to seek names by thousands.

Besides the mail requests, The Friend of the Yanks' phones have been swamped with calls from persons who neglected to mail their request coupon before the deadline.

Requests Made by 16,850

Requests for names have been made by 16,850 persons, organizations, and business firms. They asked for 35,494 names.

On Dec. 1 the hospitals had 36,300 patients, but this number now has been reduced by furloughs to about 25,000. For this reason it has not been possible to supply readers with all the names they desired.

None of the cards received back from hospitals has remained in the Tribune office over night.

MUSEUM TOPIC OF TODAY'S W-G-N CHICAGO STORY

W-G-N tonight will present a program dedicated to the Museum of Science and Industry and will sketch briefly some of the instructive and absorbing features which make this institution one of the most rewarding in the city.

The broadcast that will permit stay-at-homes to visit the great museum in imagination will be heard between 9 and 9:30 p. m. as an episode in the W-G-N feature called Chicago Story.

The narrator will conduct his guests down the institution's Avenue of Flags to the exhibit of the 92 elements which constitutes the core of the museum. Uranium, the element of the atomic bomb, is among the several to be described briefly.

Visits to Other Exhibits

Visits will follow to the marine room, which has a model of an Essex class carrier, and the power court, where a primitive steam engine is on display. The telephone exhibit, which demonstrates graphically what happens when a dial call is put thru, is among the several other displays to be sketched.

Some time will be given to the diverting reproduction of a Chicago street of 35 years ago—complete with old time autos, clothing store showing the modes of the period, and old fashioned nickel show.

Incidental music is to be provided by a 17 piece orchestra under Robert Trendler's direction. The production will be directed by Jack LaFrandre. Francis Coughlin's script is to be presented by Announcer Lee Bennett and Narrators John Mallow and Carlyle Stevens.

Chicago story is a W-G-N contribution to a better understanding of Chicago's human make-up and of its educational, recreational, industrial and artistic institutions.

Old and New World Music

American Christmas melodies will mingle with carols of the old world in programs to be presented during pre-Christmas week by Chicago's schools, universities and civic centers.

At the Museum of Science and Industry, the final program of the annual Christmas festival will be held at 2 p. m. today with an organ recital and a choir of 70 voices from the Wendell Phillips High school participating.

At 4 p. m., the Buda Mixed Chorus and the Burlington Railroad Booster Choral club will be heard and at 8 p. m. the Chicago Northwestern Railway chorus, the Northwest Council of Parent-Teachers' association chorus, and the Southtown Singers will present a program.

Adm. E. C. Ewen Assumes Glenview Air Command

Rear Adm. Edward C. Ewen took command of the naval air reserve training command yesterday in a ceremony at the Glenview naval air station. He replaced Rear Adm. Frank D. Wagner, who has been at Glenview since Nov. 1 and who will become chief of naval air training, with headquarters at Pensacola, Fla. Adm. Ewen was awarded the navy cross and the Legion of Merit with gold star for his work in developing night operating carrier tactics in World War II.

SANTA DELIGHTS CHILDREN WHO HAVE SO LITTLE

BY RITA FITZPATRICK

They wouldn't let the reindeer in the wards yesterday but that's all that was missing. Christmas trees glistened. Sleigh bells jingled in the halls. Carols rang sweetly in the air. That fat jolly gentleman with the red nose in the red suit roared and chuckled and scattered gifts and smiles everywhere.

It was Santa Claus' seventh annual visit to the crippled children of the University of Illinois Research and Educational hospitals under the sponsorship of the Chicago Illinae club. His gigantic red sleigh . . . without the reindeer . . . was piled high with toys of every description and stockings filled with fruit and candy. Better yet was the wonder he brought into the eyes of the 125 little patients who have so little to which they may look forward.

Santa Opens His Eyes

In the isolation ward, Johnny, 2 years old, who is suffering from tuberculosis of the spine and ulcers of the cornea in both eyes, lay with his lids tightly shut. He had not opened his eyes in days. Suddenly he heard Santa's sleigh bells and the big man at his bedside. His little eyes fluttered and opened. Santa put a toy dog in his arms and as Johnny's lids closed again a happy little smile curved on his lips.

As he entered the little children's ward, bedlam broke loose. The youngsters forgot their twisted, tiny bodies and screamed with glee as lustily as any normal children. Dwight, 4, who is suffering from a severe burn, grabbed Santa's sleeve and wouldn't let go. Shelia, 2, who has had her right leg amputated, reached out her arms for a baby doll. Lloyd, 3, who has no fingers, hugged the stocking of goodies in his arms. A tiny girl with deformed legs jumped up and down in her crib. The meaning of Christmas suddenly was very clear.

Each Receives Two Gifts

Every child received two gifts, a plump stocking, and ice cream and cookies. In each ward a special musical program was put on by the University of Chicago High school orchestra and the Mount Olive Lutheran church junior choir. Mrs. Thomas Morrow, chairman of the hospital committee for the Chicago Illinae club, and Mrs. Frederick W. Kraft, president, had overlooked nothing.

About 500 dependent Protestant children will receive gifts next week from the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society. With the coöperation of the welfare workers, who asked each child what he or she wanted for Christmas, Miss Marguerite Noyes, chairman of the Christmas committee, will endeavor to see that each one gets the exact gift.

Construct Skating Rinks, Neighborhoods Are Urged

Peter J. Peel, chairman of the committee on extension of play spaces of the Chicago recreation commission, yesterday urged all neighborhoods in the city to establish ice skating rinks. Such rinks are easily constructed, Peel said. A booklet may be obtained from the commission at 139 N. Clark st. if a 3 cent stamp is inclosed.

America's Campaigns in World War II. (No. 2 of a series)

THE BATTLE FOR ITALY

By SEYMOUR KORMAN

THE WARS in Sicily and Italy—which for historical purposes may be regarded as one over-all campaign—involved 22 months of the bitterest fighting in which American and other allied troops ever engaged. Except for the brief periods of a dash thru western Sicily, a sprint north of Rome, and the final break-thru into the Po valley and to the Brenner pass in the Alps, it was all grim struggling and slow progress against crack German troops who took every advantage of some of the most favorable defensive terrain in the world and some of the worst weather, particularly in the winters of 1943-'44 and 1944-'45.

Out of the 22 months of battle, from July, 1943, to early May, 1945, have come the names of four localities to stand forever in the annals of warfare and to connote the heartbreak and the hazard and the heroism of conflict. Those are Troina, which was the anchor of the Germans' Mount Etna line in Sicily; Cassino, which blocked the way to Rome for so long; the Anzio beachhead, which "Sally of the Axis" once called the biggest concentration camp in the world, and Bologna, which was the barrier to the Po valley.

The American air forces and the British Royal air force had been battering Sicily and Italy thru 1942 and 1943, but the story of the infantry and the armor and the artillery begins on the morning of July 10, 1943. At that time the American 7th army and the British 8th army (Continued on page nine.)

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

By ELEANOR NANGLE

Oakland, Cal.

THIS year Mills, the west's oldest college for women, is filled even a bit beyond its capacity. It stretched itself literally and figuratively this fall to help accommodate at least a few of the many women students abruptly denied admission to nearby Stanford when that university decided after V-J day to reserve a larger part of its housing space for returning veterans.

There are well over 700 girls from all sections of this country and, as always, from Hawaii, here now. They couldn't have chosen a more beautiful spot in which to work and live. This 150 acre campus, the almost entirely surrounded by the city of Oakland and only a short drive from the sophisticated hurly-burly of San Francisco, is a tranquil, secluded world in itself. Nestling between two hills, it has an untouched natural beauty into which its buildings, even the largest of them, seem to snuggle delightfully. Its art gallery is as splendid as it is now famous on the west coast as an art center; its music building is imposing; and its link with the past, old Mills hall, of 1870 vintage, is very tall, very white and rambling, but the campus retains somehow a "cottagey" feeling that is enchanting.

This college, which had its beginnings as a young ladies' seminary for the daughters of the men who first sought gold in the Sierras, is undoubtedly the most distinguished of the women's colleges in the west, noted especially for its work in the humanities, the fine arts, and the natural sciences. It seems especially appealing to the girls interested in the arts, not only because of its prestige in those fields but perhaps also because of its proximity to the cultural excitements of opera, ballet, drama, lectures, art exhibits, and symphonies in nearby San Francisco.

And Mills is a residential college, where all 700 girls live together in an atmosphere that is contagiously gracious. There are five charming residence halls for the undergraduates and one house for graduates.

Chicago Women Delighted by Simple Way of Making Clothes Last Longer

American Family Flakes Preferred 3 to 1 Over All Other Package Soaps for Washing Clothes, Amazing New Survey Shows

"You bet my clothes come sparkling white without hard rubbing or bleaching because I always use American Family Flakes," says Mrs. M. McGeehan, 3149 West 61st Street. Like so many Chicago women, Mrs. McGeehan has discovered that the American Family Flakes way actually helps clothes last longer—yet no soap anywhere gets clothes whiter.

"My pretty colored things stay bright and new looking so much longer since I switched from strong granulated soaps to American Family Flakes," writes Mrs. R. H. Krako, 537 Addison St. Mrs. Krako has discovered that with all their washing power, American Family Flakes are amazingly mild and gentle.

Don't Waste Soap! It's made of vital materials. Make your American Family Flakes go as far as you can.

PREMIUMS

American Family Flakes and American Family Bar Soap both give you valuable coupons—which you can exchange for practical, useful articles for yourself, or your home without a penny's extra cost . . . at the American Family Premium Store, 57 W. Wacker Drive.

SHOOTING STARS IS THE STILL MAN'S GLORY

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood

STARS COME and stars go, and some hang on for years. Somebody asks, "Did you know that the average life of a movie star is five years?" It isn't so. Maybe it never was, tho of course there was a time when a "big director" could make Sadie Glutz a star overnight, provided the camera liked her. The Sadie Glutzes didn't last. They couldn't, because they didn't have anything. When sound came in the carnage among the Sadie Glutzes and the Handsome Harrys was something awful. Hollywood all of a sudden discovered that there was an art of acting—and the movies grew up so fast it was like June bustin' out all over.

One thing about Hollywood hasn't changed a bit; it's only grown more so. That is the determination of stars to last as long as the good Lord and a good masseuse will let 'em.

We have an army of experts behind the scenes earning a good living keeping our gradually ageing stars young, or looking that way. Masseuses and masseurs, complexion experts, make-up artists, hairdressers, dealers in lipstick and rouge and all sorts of powders, manicurists, keepers of baths, mud packers, barbers, face lifters. The impediments of an age wallowing in luxury and phoniness.

But I'll tell you who really does the job. It's a tight little group of eager young men generally known to Hollywood and a horde of newspaper and magazine editors as "the boys." The still photographers.

Most of the boys know the stars far better than the stars realize. There is a relationship of mutual trust between them. The boys are everywhere, including our best boudoirs, which are the richest repositories of unrevealed secrets in town. They never tell—they're all daisies.

The boys are as interested as the stars themselves in seeing that no glamorpuss actress is photographed except when she's looking her best. If some lens hound snaps a candid shot of Lana Turner at the Mocambo when she's pouting instead of smiling, the negative is destroyed. Have you ever seen a pouting Lana Turner? Well, you never will, brother.

Here we go for a few secrets:

Lauren Bacall is a difficult subject. Why? Because she has definite instructions never to exhibit her legs before the all-seeing camera eye. That puts a definite restriction on the still man.

Bob Landry, that great camera man who was all over the world thruout the war, photographed Ibn Saud and all the little Sauds right in their Arabian lair, says some one caught a pose of Bacall, known as "the Look," and it came out sultry. Lauren has been sultry ever since.

This is one for the book: Humphrey Bogart, "the Leer," had to break Bacall down for the boys. Bogart knows what they can do for an up and coming star.

Most times the stars don't know what's good for them when they're having their pictures taken. When Norma Shearer was tops, only one side of her face could be shot. Norma's eyes aren't quite mates.

Marlene Dietrich has been the toughest subject of all. She insisted on a mirror arrangement so she could see what the lens saw. Ralph Crane, another great lenser (he even photographed me in a bubble bath), made a famous picture of Marlene and daughter, Maria Manton, some years ago in Switzerland. Marlene is still frothing about it. Some say she didn't like it because Maria was too fat, others that she loathed having the public know how old her daughter was. Well, everybody knows now.

Crane was official photographer for the league of nations, stationed in Geneva, for years. Now he's in Hollywood and likes it better. He once photographed Charles Laughton doing a fall in the snow on skis in Switzerland. That was a setup. Laughton's an expert skier. He never falls except to please.

Buddy Longworth is one of the real old-timers among the boys. He's a nephew of the late Nick Longworth, speaker of the house of representatives, husband of Alice Roosevelt. But Buddy's got a better claim to fame than that. He made the original photograph of the great T. R. showing that toothy grin. It went like wildfire and became Theodore Roosevelt's trademark.

Buddy got his first job by hopping the fence at Universal and being taken on as a bus driver. Within a couple of years he was a still photog for Metro and made those famous pictures of Garbo in running pants posing with Paavo Nurmi, the Finnish runner. Garbo was disgusted about the whole thing and when she became famous tried to have the negative destroyed. (Passing note on the fleetness of fame: If Garbo offered to pose in running pants today, who would care?)

But Buddy Longworth is still going strong. Orson Welles grabbed him for "The Stranger," with Loretta Young. All stars who are smart yell with joy and relief when they learn that their camera man is a tried and true pal. So much depends on him. Loretta, for instance, despite babies, retains that school girl figure.

Bob Landry's favorite all-around subject is Ingrid Bergman. It's practically impossible to make a bad picture of her, with or without make-up.

Greer Garson's rather difficult, and forgets appointments. Landry had a time getting the trim Garson legs in front of his lens. Bob planted himself in a crowd of extras at Metro and made a candid shot of Greer and her shape while she was acting on the set.

Rita Hayworth's so coöperative it practically lifted her to stardom. As a result of being smartened up early, Rita got terrific photographic breaks. She did exactly as she was told and found herself one of our favorite magazine cover girls. It hasn't hurt.

A photograph made by Landry of Fred Astaire teaching his small son a dance step was published all over the world.

World-traveling Photographer Bob Landry discusses a still shot with Fred Astaire on "Blue Skies" set.

Joan Leslie gets set amid a clutter of equipment for a picture by the famous Scotty Welbourne.

Angle shot of an angle shot. Frank Powolny, on ladder, prepares to make glamor shot of Jeanne Crain. Clint Urtibees assists.

Camera men love Bette Davis and Ginger Rogers, and look what they've done for those two! Those gals are still up there. They're fine actresses, of course; work hard, have plenty on the ball—but the boys sure did help!

Bob Landry says the most attractive girl he's photographed in recent years is Peggy Cummins, the British importation, when she tested for "Forever Amber." And why not, since she's his girl friend?

Another girl who will always oblige is Jane Russell. She's good from any angle—sometimes with devastating results. You've never seen her in a picture—her "Young Widow" is still unreleased—but you think you have. That's because her face and curves have been plastered all over creation.

Buddy Longworth did those early ravishing shots of Dietrich. He invented a disk lighting effect for her, and Director Joe von Sternberg went crazy over it; used it in her movie shots, too. She became mysterious, provocative, and sexier than all of Solomon's wives. Let's give credit at long last where it's due—to the skilled craft of a still man.

Another Buddy Longworth first—he photographed Ann Sheridan's famous "oomph girl" campaign at Warners', tho Don Keyes made Ann's first "oomph" picture.

Back in 1932 Buddy went to make some home shots of Frank Fay. He got the Fay stuff, then spied Barbara Stanwyck—Mrs. Fay at the time. "Hmm," he hmmed, and proceeded to make a batch of pictures of her in this and that. Barbara's fetching face and form splashed into the mags like a ton of come-hither—and she was in!

Remember the picture of Betty Grable in a swim suit peering over her shoulder? At the studio they called that one a whole campaign. Frank Powolny made it, assisted by Clint Urtibees.

Scotty Welbourne, who took the pictures of the Casablanca conference and who served in the army three and a half years during the war as a photographer, is now back as Warner Brothers' top gallery man.

Bob Coburn of Columbia has scores of prize winning pictures. Jackie Albin was graduated to ownership of his own laboratory, but you still see him at all the swank social gatherings shooting stars. There are others—sorry I can't name them all. Gene Kornman, for years Harold Lloyd's personal bulb shooter, now at 20th; Donald Biddle Keyes, Earl Theisen, Ray Jones, Hal McAlpin, Frankie Tanner, James Doolittle, Johnny Engsted, Ned Scott—all prize winners.

Bing Crosby doesn't care whether he's photographed or not, so wins the nod as the least coöperative star. Demand for Hollywood mugs is phenomenal and on the uptake. Newspaper and magazine syndicates use incredible amounts.

The boys are as important as any one in town. There was a time when they took a pushing around. Not any more. Bob Hope got needlessly uppity with the camera men at a big award broadcast. He hasn't been forgiven yet, despite many overtures on his part.

Truly, these boys never have a dull moment.

Buddy Longworth, who made the Teddy Roosevelt grin famous, poses Loretta Young for a portrait.

GLAMOR IS A GIFT

By ELEANOR NANGLE

THE GIFT that glamorizes seems an especially desirable one this year, not only because it's a sure-fire choice that will make the recipient's heart sing but because, from the buyer's point of view, it IS a buy. In toiletries you'll find there has been, all thru the dark years when manufacturers wrestled with shortages, practically no increase in price to the consumer. You'll find all the lovely beauty aids that make a woman's life more gracious and agreeable as good as they ever were and, except for the tax, no more costly than they ever were.

And, generally speaking, they're not costly. There are glamor gifts in every price range — each item, whether it be a tiny packet of sachets at a small sum or a fabulous fitted case for a king's ransom, of a character that enchants the woman from 8 to 80.

(For information about these gifts telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0100, or send her a stamped, addressed envelope care of The Chicago Sunday Tribune for a written reply.)

Above: A week-end kit (at left) crammed with treatment creams, lotions, face powder, lipstick, soap, comb, and mirror. $7.50. Also bath glorifiers (at right) in the lovely scent of mimosa: four fat cakes of soap, dusting powder, and cologne. $3.

At right: Fine face powder in the de luxe presentation of a handsome box of sparkling lucite tied with satin ribbon. Powder is in four shades. $7.50.

At left: This is heavenly stuff: dusting powder, eau de cologne, perfume in a sweet-smelling scent, the packages all pink and blue and adorned with angels. $9.

Above: Gift set of talcum face powder, lipstick, toilet water, rouge, and the famous perfume that gives all the items their fragrance. The bottles and the box are blue, the decor silver. $7.

Above: This case is of grained leatherette in wine, brown, or navy. Contents: lipstick, nail lacquer to match, base coat lotion, top lotion, remover, hand lotion, hand cream, file, tweezers, orange-wood sticks, and emery boards. $7.50.

At right: These are exquisite bath oils in a range of scents. 21 2-dram vials. $1[illegible]

"Just married" and awfully out of date ...But you're just as out of date if you wash dishes with old-fashioned soap instead of modern Vel!

"WE MODERNS USE VEL"

Vel isn't a soap. It's a new scientific discovery, miles ahead of soap in the march of progress. Vel activates every drop of water...gives amazing washing power even after the suds have dissolved. Vel cleans more thoroughly than any soap.

NO SOAP EVER MADE

Peace on earth

NOW MORE THAN EVER CHILDREN NEED TO LEARN THE MEANING OF Christmas

THERE is a deeper meaning to Christmas this year . . . a greater awareness that peace on earth must be everlasting! The future of our world lies with our children. You, as a mother, are the greatest single influence in your child's life . . . and you alone can give the early training that will help your child face this tremendous challenge with confidence.

Wise parents realize the importance of MY BOOK HOUSE TRAINING now more than ever before. This wonderfully practical PLAN can help shape your child's attitude toward life . . . make him tolerant and unprejudiced . . . develop his personality and character so that he is capable of leadership thru all the years ahead.

How to adapt this Plan to suit your own child is shown in a valuable guide book for parents, In Your Hands. It includes a key to what to expect of your child at each age in his development so you are prepared ahead of time for the many changes a growing child goes thru.

Surely, you can give your child no greater gift than that of success. Let us send you everything you need to know about MY BOOK HOUSE in time for you to make it your child's Christmas surprise. The attached coupon or your name and address on a penny postcard will bring you complete information.

"Goodwill Toward Men" IS ONE OF THE RESULTS OF My Book House TRAINING

Thousands of parents have praised MY BOOK HOUSE PLAN OF CHILD TRAINING for its help in raising children to enjoy freedom, success and happiness. MY BOOK HOUSE children are well adjusted to their world . . . able to cope with new situations both in school and later life . . . show an understanding and love of people.

Your child, too, will respond to this Plan . . . learn to absorb daily happenings as experience lessons that enrich his life . . . grow up to carry on the democratic way of life that is the foundation of peace on earth forever.

LAUGHING BOY ON THE TRUMAN COATTAIL

Washington, D. C.

By WALTER TROHAN

WHEN AND IF the vast and far-flung army of coattail riders should decide to organize and form the Amalgamated Association of Coattail Riders of America they could do worse, and probably would, than elect George Edward Allen of Washington, New York, and Booneville, Miss., as lifetime president.

For the benefit of those who came in late it may be noted that Allen is now President Truman's one-man brain trust and as such a most powerful, altho virtually unknown, figure in the nation. There is no question but that this jolly and plump aspirant to the White House role played by Harry Hopkins in the Roosevelt regime will be heard of more and more as time goes on.

Inasmuch as men in White House vantage points exercise profound influence on the course of the administration, and by that fact on the course of the nation, it is well that the citizenry should know such men. When such men do not occupy official posts it is difficult to know them and it takes time to bring before the people the men who advise the President and by so doing make or break his administration.

Allen pauses en route to an appointment with the President.

In the case of Allen it may be said without boasting on either part that few men know him as well as I do. If this knowledge were restricted somewhat to newspaper men it could be said that no one else knows him as I do. And should be added, sotto voce, "God have mercy on us both!"

I knew Allen when he made his first major coattail ride on the senatorial toga of shrewd and kindly Pat Harrison, late senator from Mississippi. After that it was pretty hard to follow Allen's broken field operations but for the fact that he concentrated largely on postmasters general and Democratic national chairmen, stealing rides behind James A. Farley, Edward J. Flynn, Frank C. Walker, and Robert Hannegan. He found the coattail of Franklin D. Roosevelt somewhat crowded but held on to a corner. He was one of the first to hit the Truman coattail and has hung on to the No. 1 seat for seven months—no mean trick for palace guard favorites, who are poor insurance risks.

Along the line he collected various federal posts, a $25,000 a year insurance vice presidency, and directorships of various corporations. Now he has the chairmanship of the American Red Cross ($12,000 and $6,000 expenses a year) within his grasp.

The good natured Allen, who will laugh more loudly than any one else over this whether or not others find any humor in it, was born in Booneville, Miss., leap year's day, 1896. This makes him, by Gilbert and Sullivan calculation, 11 years old. (For some reason, perhaps best known to the astronomer royal, the year 1900 was not a leap year.)

There are those who say Allen acts his 11 birthdays rather than his 49 years. That is because Allen has no hesitancy in laughing at himself particularly, and he acknowledges this, because he has found it pays. There are also those who characterized Allen as the court jester of the New Deal. Others would award the cap and bells to the late Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, secretary and military aide to President Roosevelt. Both found laughs helped them up the ladder. Watson rose from lieutenant colonel to major general in seven years, more spectacular but less profitable than Allen's rise.

Altho he left home at an early age, Allen is as careful to preserve his southern accent as debutantes of a decade ago were to cultivate a British accent on presentation to the Court of St. James's. He was graduated from Cumberland university, Lebanon, Tenn., with a law degree in 1917. His alma mater was kind enough to give him an honorary doctor of laws degree in 1938, when he was a commissioner of the District of Columbia. He practiced law in Okolona, Miss., from 1917 to 1919 and had everything but clients, as he puts it. He served as a lieutenant in France in the first World war during most of this period, however.

Allen returns home occasionally like many another small town boy to show the home folks how well he is doing. I made one of the most spectacular of these returns with him in the spring of 1937. Franklin Delano Roosevelt was along, which in some measure increased the attention we got on the trip. Senator Harrison didn't injure us, either.

As the Presidential special made its way leisurely thru Mississippi, with stops at the home of Jefferson Davis and at various stations where potential voters could catch a glimpse of the President, it struck me that the tedium of the trip might be relieved by nominating Allen for congress from the special train.

The mock nomination was such a success up and down the car that at the next stop Allen was stepped up to more exalted office and a ringing nomination speech closed with "I give you the man Allen as the man to beat the man Bilbo."

This sally roused the interest of the chief occupant of the train. Bulletins were asked on the next speech, which was nominating Allen to the Supreme court, and the fourth speech, which nominated him to the chief justiceship.

On each occasion Allen would laugh more loudly than the rest and wave to the somewhat startled assemblages who came to see the President and were met with bombast.

As the train came into Gulfport I had run out of offices. With one magnificent speech, however, I wound up with "I give you the Democratic candidate for President in 1940, the Hon. George E. Allen, mayor of Washington, D. C."

Allen waited for no bows on that one. He slid discreetly into the car. The special car lost all interest in Allen's campaign, but this might have been because we had left the soil of Mississippi and come into Louisiana.

The train was disbanded at New Orleans when Mr. Roosevelt boarded a naval vessel for a Gulf of Mexico fishing cruise. Allen and I spent two nights in New Orleans, which can perhaps best be summarized by his farewell as I went on to the temporary White House at Galveston, Tex.:

"Not for $40,000 would I go to Galveston with you."

I didn't have the $40,000, and Allen had some hotel interests in Chicago, anyway.

George E. Allen in his White House office.

After his law shingle attracted no clients Allen turned to the hotel business. This brought him to Washington in the Hoover administration and to the Wardman Park hotel as an assistant manager. The ambitious Allen forgot Jeff Davis and Mississippi so far as to contribute to the Hoover campaign fund, later explaining his business made the contribution necessary. At the time the Wardman Park was paying some of its assistants room, board, and $75 a month. Allen was on the highest level of assistants.

When the New Deal came into power Allen closed his pocket to the Republicans and began practicing up on rebel yells. Early in the then new administration he sought out Senator Harrison and asked him as a special favor to a fellow Mississippian to mention the name of Allen among possible candidates to the board of three district commissioners who govern the capital under congressional control. Allen said it would help him in the hotel business.

The kindly Harrison did this slight favor. A few days later Allen approached him again, saying that he appreciated what Harrison had done, but added that he was afraid Harrison would lose prestige if he didn't go thru with the appointment, because he (Allen) was a fellow Mississippian. Harrison, who also could take a joke, asked for Allen's nomination and got it. This story was told by the late senator at a convivial evening at the swanky Burning Tree Golf club. Allen, between gasps of laughter, punctuated the senator's account with explosions of "That's right!"

As district commissioner from 1933 to 1938 Allen is best remembered for a remark he made to a group of irate Washington merchants who were demanding removal of an unusual snow which clung to capital streets for days in 1935. The District is without snow removal facilities, because snow is rare here.

"God put it there, didn't he?" Allen shouted. "Well, let God take it away."

As district commissioner Allen spent much time cultivating genial Jim Farley, the man who put Roosevelt in the White House. As Allen explained it, he "just wanted to be around in case Jim started passing any more miracles." He also found some excuse to board the various Presidential specials—and in those days both Farley and Roosevelt were busy traveling.

In 1938, on a transcontinental trip to the northwest, the Allen nomination gag was revived. This time, however, it was restricted to the dining car of the special. Allen was nominated for the Supreme court vacancy which went eventually to Justice Black and given the check for a testimonial dinner in his behalf. The check was liberally moistened with toasts, but Allen paid it.

Allen's tenure of the commissionership was not consecutive. He resigned and returned. At a dinner on his return he showed a news reel which he explained would portray his reorganization plan. The movie was of the Louis-Galento fight.

At the conclusion of the dinner he was given a volume of testimonial letters which bore the inscription: "To George Allen from a group of fellows who knew him best and therefore had this binding done in brass."

It remained for Roosevelt to

NO WICK! NO WAITING!

A SPLIT SECOND IN ETERNITY

The Ancients Called It
COSMIC CONSCIOUSNESS

Must man die to release his inner consciousness? Can we experience momentary flights of the soul—that is, become one with the universe and receive an influx of great understanding?

The shackles of the body—its earthly limitations—can be thrown off and man's mind can be attuned to the Infinite Wisdom for a flash of a second. During this brief interval intuitive knowledge, great inspiration, and a new vision of our life's mission are had. Some call this great experience a psychic phenomenon. But the ancients knew it and taught it as Cosmic Consciousness—the merging of man's mind with the Universal Intelligence.

Let This Free Book Explain

This is not a religious doctrine, but the application of simple, natural laws, which give man an insight into the great Cosmic plan. They make possible a source of great joy, strength, and a regeneration of man's personal powers. Write to the Rosicrucians, an age-old brotherhood of understanding, for a free copy of the book "The Mastery of Life." It will tell you how, in the privacy of your own home, you may indulge in these mysteries of life known to the ancients. Address: Scribe H. T. O.

Bright wintergreen suit, shaped and fitted to a fare-thee-well by Ceil Chapman.

Even suits this season have the close-hugging waist, the new fuller sleeves you've been hearing about. It's all very much part of the new fashion picture. It's a silhouette designed for a trim, youthful figure.

If you need slimming, write us for the "Kellogg's Weight Control Plan," a handy little purse-size 20-page guide, giving specific details you need. These include 3 special sets of scientifically balanced menus for every meal, every day of the week; also insurance weight tables for every type of body frame and how to tell which one to use.

You will find Kellogg's All-Bran included in these weight-control menus, because All-Bran, being made from the vital outer layers of the wheat grain, contains a concentration of "protective" whole-grain food elements . . . vitamins, minerals and proteins . . . you need every day, whether you diet or not.

For example, a one-ounce dish of All-Bran provides you with more than one-third your daily minimum need of iron . . . gives twice the riboflavin and 3 times as much niacin, with less calories than the same amount of whole wheat!

No wonder more families in America eat this delicious cereal than any other of its type. Your grocer has All-Bran in 2 convenient sizes. Order a package today.

GUARANTEED TO HELP YOU KEEP REGULAR ON A DOUBLE-YOUR-MONEY-BACK BASIS!

All-Bran is the modern, pleasant way to "join the regulars." Helps correct constipation caused by lack of dietary bulk. Eat an ounce of All-Bran every day and drink plenty of water. If, after using ten days, you do not agree that it has helped keep you regular, return the empty flat carton to Kellogg's, Battle Creek, Mich., with a note stating the price you paid. JOAN CRAWFORD in
"MILDRED PIERCE"

1 On a lonely pier a policeman stops Mildred Pierce (Joan Crawford) as she is about to jump into the water.

2 As she wanders, dazed, Mildred meets her former business partner, Wally (Jack Carson). He readily accepts Mildred's invitation to drive her to her beach home.

3 At the beach house Mildred disappears. Wally discovers he has been locked in and stumbles upon the body of Monte Beragon (Zachary Scott), Mildred's second husband.

4 Mildred is arrested. At headquarters she finds that Wally and her first husband, Bert Pierce (Bruce Bennett), also are under suspicion.

5 At left: The inspector draws from Mildred the story of her life. Bert and Mildred Pierce separated in 1939, and she became a waitress.

6 At left: After hours Mildred baked cakes and pies to augment her income. Her daughter, Veda (Ann Blyth), denounced her mother's occupation. Kay (Jo Ann Marlow), 11, remained unaffected.

7 At left: Mildred rented a desirable property from Monte Beragon, prominent playboy, for her own restaurant. Soon they were strongly attracted to each other.

8 The cafe was a success, and Mildred soon opened other branches and became a woman of substantial wealth. She lavished more and more gifts on Veda, who became interested in Monte. Mildred had been "lending" money to Monte.

9 About this time Veda lured Ted Forrester, son of wealthy parents, into marriage, "to get away from you and your smelly restaurants." Then Veda won an annulment with a large cash settlement. Mildred drove her daughter from her home.

10 In the hope of winning Veda back, Mildred bought the Beragon home and bribed Monte into marrying her by giving him a one-third interest in her restaurants. Bert brought Veda to the new home as a wedding present for Mildred. Mildred arranged an elaborate party for the girl.

11 On the night of the party Mildred learned her extravagance for Veda had ruined her. Seeking Monte at the beach house, Mildred found him and Veda in each other's arms. Only a few minutes later Monte was killed. (THE END)

2 cups sifted cake flour
¾ cup sugar
2½ teaspoons baking powder (with a tartrate powder, use 4 teaspoons)
1 teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup Spry
½ cup milk
¾ cup light corn sirup
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 eggs, unbeaten

SIFT flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and spices into mixing bowl... DROP in Spry. No creaming needed with Easy-Mix Spry! ADD ½ of milk and all of corn sirup, then vanilla, and beat 150 strokes. SCRAPE bowl and spoon often throughout entire mixing. ADD eggs and beat 250 strokes. ADD remaining milk and beat 50 strokes.

BAKE in two deep 8-inch Spry-coated layer pans in moderately hot oven (375°F.) 25-35 minutes.

DATE FILLING

1½ tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup corn sirup
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup dates, chopped
2 teaspoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ cup water
1 tablespoon Spry
¼ cup candied or maraschino cherries, cut

MIX cornstarch, corn sirup, salt, dates and lemon juice and rind... Add water and Spry and cook gently 3 to 5 minutes, or until thick and clear. Add cherries. Spread between layers.

GABLE'S BACK! Color portrait in Picture-Section

● The story of Clark Gable's life has been told and retold, and if he ever permitted it could be made into a movie as packed with adventure and drama as any he himself has acted in. From his home town of Cadiz, O., he went off on a trail that led thru oil fields, rubber factories, touring stock companies, and finally to Hollywood.

● In 1930 his portrayal of the killer in "The Last Mile" won him a film contract, and he has been a top draw most of the time since. After the tragic death of his third wife, Carole Lombard, in 1942 he enlisted in the air corps and served overseas with distinction. He came back a captain and just before his release was promoted to major. Now Gable is back in front of the camera, and his first civilian role is in "Adventure," with Greer Garson.

LOUIS WOLF

In the corner of her playroom Ann plays the concertina she bought in England. The playroom formerly was a front porch, has a fireplace and bar.

Real oil-burning lamps light her dining room table. Ann is a good cook, and spaghetti and green salads are her specialties.

By FREIDA ZYLSTRA

ANN DVORAK started out to be a newspaper woman and majored in journalism at Occidental college in California. The theater blood she inherited from her parents, however, led her to singing roles in west coast shows and eventually to the screen, where she first made a hit with Rudy Vallee in "Sweet Music."

In 1932 Ann married Leslie Fenton, actor and director. When war came he returned to naval service in his native England, and Ann followed him to London, where she served in the land army and as a lieutenant in the British ambulance corps. Upon their return to America in 1944 the Fentons separated and Ann now is living in "bachelor" quarters in a colonial house in the Westwood hills. Her first starring role after the war was in Republic's "Flame of Barbary Coast," with John Wayne. In England Ann made two pictures for a British company.

Her experience in war time England made Ann extremely conscious of food value. Her land army work taught her a great deal about gardening, and she carries on that interest now. Her garden provides most of the vegetables that she and her neighbors need, and Ann is industrious in tending it.

A true daughter of California, Ann loves to absorb as much of the sun as possible. She will wear a sun suit most of the day.

Ann loves bric-a-brac, well tailored suits, the piano, a day at the amusement park with her maid, sun bathing, and cooking. She is now a blonde, weighs 110 pounds, is 5 feet 4½ inches tall, has blue eyes.

Chicken for Christmas

By MARY MEADE

IF FEWER than six will be seated around your Christmas day table, a roast chicken is a good choice. In choosing a bird allow ½ to ¾ pound to a person.

It may be more convenient to buy the chicken well ahead of time, but it's not practical in most cases. Market or New York dressed poultry (head and feet on, picked, but not drawn) may be kept up to one and a half days if wrapped loosely in waxed paper and stored in the coldest part of the refrigerator. It's better, however, to draw the bird immediately and hold no longer than one day. Hard-frozen poultry may be kept satisfactorily up to three days in the ordinary refrigerator. By the third day the bird will be completely defrosted and should be cooked immediately.

To prepare chicken for roasting, rub the cavity with salt (allowing ⅛ teaspoon per pound), stuff with any desired dressing, and truss. Brush with melted fat, place on a rack in a shallow pan, and roast in a 325 to 350 degree oven. Baste with drippings or melted butter two or three times while roasting.

Allow 40 to 45 minutes per pound for a 3½ to 4 pound bird, 35 to 40 minutes for a 4 to 5 pound bird, and 30 to 35 minutes for a 5 to 6 pound bird. When done the drumstick-thigh joint breaks or moves easily.

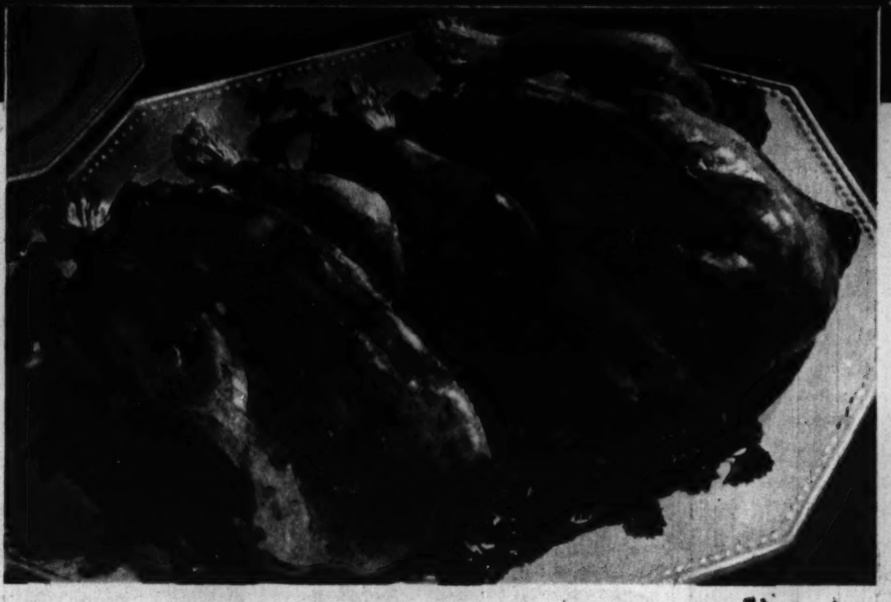
Alternate slices of light and dark fruit cakes on a large tray for between-meal refreshments. Our booklet, "Holiday Cookies and Fruit Cakes," contains recipes for light and dark cakes and directions for decorating them. To obtain a copy send 5 cents in stamps to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune. The following recipe yields about 4½ pounds of dark, rich-flavored cake:

DARK FRUIT CAKE (TWO LOAF CAKES)

- 4 cups sifted flour
- 2 cups brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon soda
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ground cloves
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- ½ teaspoon ground allspice
- ¾ cup plus 1 tablespoon shortening
- 4 eggs, well beaten
- 1 cup molasses
- 1 cup strong coffee
- 1 pound seeded raisins
- ½ pound mixed candied fruit

Mix ¼ cup flour with raisins and candied fruit. Sift remaining flour, sugar, salt, soda, baking powder, and spices together three times. Cut shortening into dry ingredients. Add molasses and coffee to eggs, mixing thoroly. Stir liquid into dry ingredients just enough to combine, then fold in raisins and fruit. Pour batter into two well greased loaf pans 8½x4½x3 inches and bake at 325 degrees for 1¾ hours, or until done.



These two meaty roasted chickens will easily serve 10 to 12 Christmas guests.

TODAY'S $5 PRIZE RECIPE

NUT PUDDING

(Serves six)

- ¾ cup walnuts, ground
- ¾ cup sugar
- ¾ cup grated chocolate
- 4 egg yolks, slightly beaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped candied orange peel
- 4 egg whites, stiffly beaten
- ¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs

Mix nuts, sugar, chocolate, egg yolks, vanilla, and peel together. Fold in egg whites and pour into a greased eight inch square pan covered with bread crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 30 minutes. Serve plain or topped with whipped cream.—RICHARD L. ODREN, Veterans' Administration Br., Los Angeles, Cal.

THE BATTLE for ITALY

made the first landing on Fortress Europa.

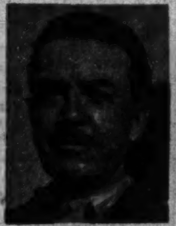
Five American divisions—the 1st, 3d, and 45th infantry, the 82d air borne, and the 2d armored—fought their way ashore in the neighborhood of Gela and Licata on the southern coast of Sicily, and the British, with Canadian units, landed farther east. The Americans were under Gen. (then Lt. Gen.) George S. Patton and the British under Field Marshal (then Gen.) Bernard L. Montgomery. The whole operation was directed by Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and his first deputy, the British Field Marshal (then Gen.) Harold Alexander.

Parachute and glider troops preceded the ground forces, which landed from American and British naval vessels. The British quickly took Syracuse and headed toward Catania, but they didn't get into the latter town for weeks.

The Germans counter-attacked ferociously against the Americans, and in the first few days there were occasions when it was touch and go on the Gela-Licata beachhead. Our naval guns helped to throw back the German assault. Then the Americans broke out, seized Agrigento on July 16, and cut rapidly across to capture Palermo on the 22d.

The Americans at first believed that Randazzo was the anchor of the enemy's Mount Etna line in northeastern Sicily, and lofty Troina was regarded as only an outpost. The 9th infantry division now had arrived in Sicily, and its 39th regiment was sent against Troina.

That force wasn't enough. Troina, it then was realized, was the key to all Sicily. The 1st division and other infantry units, plus 70 air missions and masses of artillery, were thrown into the fight. For seven days the Americans fought against the hill stronghold, and on Aug. 6 it fell.



Alexander

The 7th army swept on thru Randazzo, others of its forces—from the 3d division—made daring amphibious landings behind the German lines on the north coast, and we entered Messina on the morning of Aug. 17. The British came up from the south and took Taormina, then made junction with the Americans in Messina. The Sicilian campaign was over after 39 days.

There was no wasting of time. Eisenhower and Alexander had their armies all set for the invasion of Italy. It was the 8th army again for the British, but for the Americans it was the 5th army, led by Gen. (then Lt. Gen.) Mark W. Clark.

The air forces continued their pounding of the peninsula, and on Sept. 3 the British and Canadians went across the Straits of Messina and landed at Reggio Calabria.

The British moved up the west coast and also dispatched units to the Adriatic coast. The Germans didn't resist too strongly, but laid many mine fields. This delayed the progress of the British and enabled the Germans to switch several divisions from the 8th army front to face the Americans when their anticipated landing came on Sept. 9 at Salerno, below Naples.

On the night of Sept. 8 the Italian government had announced its surrender to the allies. But that meant little, for the Germans immediately took over and there was no doubt of their plan to fight every mile of the way in Italy.

The 36th infantry division, landing on Salerno beach, ran into tough opposition in this, its first combat. Within a week the 3d, 34th, and 45th infantry divisions and the 82d air borne were in Italy and in the fight. The Germans hurled a powerful counter-attack on Sept. 14 and 15 in the Calore and Sele river area, and for hours there was fear that the Americans would be hurled back into the sea. Our artillery helped turn the tide of battle our way and in a few days the beachhead was secure and Americans and British had joined.

The Germans pulled their main force back to defend the line of the Sorrento ridge. All the way there they fought rear guard actions.

On Sept. 28 the vast Foggia air field was captured, and the same day the Americans and British burst thru the Sorrento hills and came into the Neapolitan plain. Again the Germans deployed rear guards to delay us, and there was brisk fighting in the shadow of Mount Vesuvius. We shoved ahead and entered Naples on Oct. 1.

The Germans next defended on the Volturno river about 40 miles above Naples. The Americans fought their way across that water barrier on the night of Oct. 13 and the British came shortly afterward. And now we came to the approaches to Cassino.

Cassino sits astride highway 6, the Via Casilina, which leads to Rome. On a hill above Cassino was the famous monastery where the Benedictine order was founded. From vantage points in Cassino and the girdling mountains the Germans had superb observation of all American and British movement in the valleys, and the enemy's artillery and mortars commanded every road and field. Cassino was the hinge of the Germans' winter line.

One of the severest winters in Italy's history clamped down on the allies. Daily progress was measured in yards; there were days without any gain at all. Daring American infantry men fought to get into Cassino; our air forces and guns smashed at the fortress.

At heavy cost the Americans tooksSan Pietro on Dec. 19, 1943, and San Vittore on Jan. 7, 1944, but even the possession of these didn't break the riddle of Cassino.

On Jan. 22 the 3d and 45th divisions, the Rangers, and a British division landed at Anzio, on the Tyrrhenian sea 19 miles below Rome. The purpose of this amphibious operation was to hit the German flank and compel the enemy to pull back from Cassino. At the same time the 36th division tried to get across the Rapido river near Cassino, but the alert Germans threw the Americans back and our losses were heavy.

The Anzio landing had the advantage of surprise, but we had brought in too few troops to do a major job and the Germans quickly built up their forces. And instead of withdrawing from Cassino they strengthened it even more.

The last week in January and twice in February the Germans counter-attacked powerfully in efforts to drive us from the Anzio beachhead. We gave some ground and at least once were in peril of being thrown into the sea. The 3d and 45th divisions and the special service force performed mighty feats to blunt the blows and the Germans finally went off the attack. There followed months of building up our beachhead supplies, while all the time the German, from the hills, was shelling the Anzio plain.

Meanwhile, on Feb. 15, the American air forces bombed Cassino abbey and on March 15 gave Cassino itself an all-out bombing. But the enemy held fast; his men came back into the city and took up even stronger positions in the rubble.

Eisenhower

The big offensive toward Rome began the night of May 11 when 2,000 guns laid down a barrage between Cassino and the Tyrrhenian sea. The 85th and 88th infantry divisions supplemented the American strength, and French and Poles also were in the line.

Castelforte, a bastion of the Germans' Gustav line, was taken, and Cassino fell to the Poles and British on May 18. On May 23 we struck out from the Anzio beachhead and shortly took Cisterna and Valmontone, encircled Velletri, and joined with 5th army units coming from the south thru Gaeta and Terracina. Late on June 4 the Americans entered Rome.

The Germans fled north after the loss of the Eternal city. In July Siena, Ancona, and Livorno were freed and Pisa was entered. The Arno river was crossed the next month, Florence was taken, and the Germans were back on their winter defense position—the Gothic or Apennine line, the western terminus of which was above Pisa and the eastern above Rimini.

It was another miserable winter. The Gothic line outposts were taken after severe fighting, but the German held stanchly in and around Bologna, the gate to the Po valley. The enemy even counter-attacked, and the whole winter's fighting was indecisive.

Several of the 5th army's divisions had been taken by the newly constituted 7th army for the invasion of southern France.

Our divisions in the line in Italy during late 1944 and up to the finish in May of this year were the 85th, 88th, 91st, and 92d infantry, the 10th mountain, and the 1st armored. Also in the 5th army were the Brazilians and Poles. The 8th army had colonial and Dominion troops, Greeks, Italians, and others in addition to British.

The long lull ended April 9 when the 8th army attacked. Carrara was taken April 12, and the 5th army jumped off three days later and on April 21 fought its way into Bologna. The Germans were in collapse in Italy now as well as on the western front.

Italian patriots rose the last week in April and seized 200 communities, including Venice, Milan, Genoa, and Turin. The Yugoslavs grabbed Trieste. The 5th and 8th armies hurried over the northern plains to enter these cities. And on April 30 General Clark, now commanding the 15th army group, which included the two armies, could announce that the battle of Italy was over. The day before Mussolini had been executed by patriots near Milan. It was estimated that nearly a million Germans surrendered at the finish.

The 7th army, sweeping down thru Bavaria and Austria, met the 5th army in the Brenner pass a few days before V-E day.

The battle of Italy was overshadowed most of the last 11 months by the campaign in the west, which brought the allies deep into Germany and to a junction with the Russians. But many of the lessons learned in Italy were invaluable to us in the fighting in France and Belgium and Germany.

And the 5th and 8th armies, by virtue of their break-thru into the Po valley, performed the great function of smashing the back door of the Nazis' proposed redoubt in southern Germany and Austria.

A Guide to Your Yule Shopping

By SHEILA JOHN DALY

(Copyright: 1945: The Chicago Tribune)

YOU'VE bought the navy blue robe that you planned on for weeks for your father, you've already wrapped the new lamp you bought for your mother, and your various sisters and brothers have been equipped with tinker toys or new tubes of lipstick, according to their age and your financial condition. You've even bought warm, fuzzy slippers for your Aunt Min and a Christmas tie for Uncle George, and that about winds up the shopping for the family. But there's still a little jingling money in your pocket and you'd like to give a fellow or gal friend more than a verbal Merry Christmas. So pull your chair up to the Christmas fire and let's look the situation over.

First there's the returned vet, who is sporting a new tweed suit with a gold button in the lapel. And both fellows and gals alike can help make his Christmas merrier by augmenting his war-diminished wardrobe of civvies. No gal will be considered an eager beaver if she gives a fellow a tie, a pair of bright wool socks, a set of handkerchiefs, or a matching scarf and glove set.

Or perhaps there was a whole gang of fellows and gals who coked together, bowled together, and dated together. If one of the fellows of the crowd has recently doffed his uniform, why not get the gang together, pool your pennies, and buy him a larger gift? A sport coat (have a fellow find out the boy's size—he can do it discreetly), a sweater, a gabardine raincoat, or a two-tone leisure jacket will make a place under any ex-GI's Christmas tree.

Another gift from gals to more casual fellow friends might be one of the new rugged men's toiletries. Packaged in masculine looking bottles and boxes and with sharp, tangy smells that all fellows will love, these colognes, after-shave lotions and talcs will give your joe boy a large charge of enjoyment. They're no sissy gift, either—even General Ike likes to smell good! For those fellows who are always located by the smoke signals they send up, a cigaret lighter, a pipe (you can obtain miniature pipes at smoke shops which the fellow can exchange for the pipe he likes best), a cigaret case, or a tobacco pouch will hit the right pitch.

And then comes the case of boy-gives-girl. Many a fellow who has dated a girl often, but not steadily, would like to have her know he's thinking of her when St. Nick slides down her chimney. This is the year for bright and glittery gifts, no matter how small, so that's the cue to take. The accessory bar and jewelry departments of stores are the happy hunting grounds for these bright eyefuls. You'll find a wide and exciting selection of festive hair ornaments, felt and velvet hair bands embroidered with sequins and brilliants, and velveteen dog collars with bright, jeweled clips. For a particularly gay gift, count out your folding lettuce for cozy, knit slippers with felt soles, bright with sequin decorations or with a bright rose bobbing off each

TOPS AMONG TEENS

WHEN THE "ICE REVUES OF 1946" comes on in all its elaborate costuming and the beautiful grace of its precious routines, four members of the company will be fellows and girls who have traded their Harry James recordings, their drug store coking, and other high school pursuits for a pair of silver skates. And they love it.

Nineteen-year-old Helen Smith, a lovely red-headed '43 graduate of Santa Monica High school in California, has been skating since she first got the yen for the flashing blades after seeing Sonja Henie in "One in a Million" several years ago. Tho this is Helen's first tour, she also has worked in a skating movie and won third place in a skating contest on the Pacific coast last February.

Beautiful Helen Hoover, 19-year-old graduate of University High school in Los Angeles, began to skate when she was 17. It took her only a year to turn pro, and from then on she was kept busy on ice. She toured first with the "Ice Melodies" of '45 and '46, doing a solo number in each show, and worked in two movies, "Murder in the Music Hall" and "Lake Placid Serenade." Known as the fastest spinner on ice, this energetic young gal also did a solo number in a technicolor movie short, "Fairy Tales on Ice," and skated with the shows at Lake Arrowhead.

Rugged young Frank Turrella, a 19-year-old fellow who was graduated from San Pedro Naval academy of California, taught himself all he knows about skating when his family moved across the street from a polar palace. He first toured with the "Ice Revues of 1944" and later did two solo and two pair numbers in an ice show in Dallas. It was during rehearsals for this show, when the choreographer became ill, that Frank helped to plan the intricate maneuvers and also assisted in direction of the show. This young fellow, who was a four-year letter man in high school and a Golden Gloves contender, a ship rigger on small craft, and now is adding to his talent with ballet lessons from famed Dancer Johnny Coy, looks forward to a career as choreographer and director of his own ice shows. Failing this, however, he always can turn to singing, for Frank has worked in that field, too. His singing voice has been dubbed in for a noted star in at least one movie. In all it's been a full 19 years.

If Dick Simonton of Pasadena Junior college in California, who has just turned 17, hadn't begun his skating career with an accident, he might not be so enthusiastic about it now. Two and a half years ago he broke his ankle while skating and determined then to learn to skate so well it never would happen again. That's exactly what he did, and it wasn't long before he began professional skating. This talented fellow has worked in two Shrine carnivals on the west coast, doing a pair number in each, and then performed in an Everett carnival before going on tour with this season's "Ice Revues." Young Dick, the baby of the company, also works in ballet.

Remember the names—Helen Smith, Helen Hoover, Frank Turrella, and Dick Simonton. Watch for these talented, hard-working young teen-agers, who cut a very fancy figure and are bound to carve an important place for themselves on ice.

We Paid Thousands of Dollars Extra This Year for Genuine Seedless Hops

—So we can continue to brew as we did 54 years ago

by RICHARD SEIBOLD, Brewmaster

Delicate Hop Flavors all thru the brew

Some folks maybe think I'm a crank for being so set on using only seedless hops in our brewery. To these people, hops are just hops, but I know different.

I know that to make Meister Brau just as it's always been made, we must not only brew the old-time painstaking way but must use seedless hops to give it the Meister Brau full-bodied delicacy that most beer lovers like.

So I'm mighty glad to pay an extra premium for the real seedless hops that put into the brew a delicate essence you just can't get from hops grown with seeds.

In making Meister Brau, we process these fine hops right thru the brew. Only the delicate flavors are admitted. There is no harshness.

We age this brew live and sparkling with wholesome carbonation. I'll never let it go flat in the ageing tanks.

Please try the treat our old-time methods bring. Ask for Meister Brau at your retailer's. You'll be glad we planned ahead for your pleasure.

COLD GOT YOU ALL STUFFED-UP?

Do This Quick for Relief! If you are sneezing and snuffling from a cold . . . all stuffed-up, with your nose and throat raw and sore—combat this distress, as thousands do, by gargling with new Pepsodent Antiseptic.

The reason it's recommended is this: Standard laboratory tests prove new Pepsodent Antiseptic kills millions of germs that go with colds. The very type of germs that many medical authorities say often heighten the misery and prolong the effects of a cold.

Isn't it only common sense then, to gargle with new Pepsodent Antiseptic at first sign of a cold! What better way to combat millions of germs that swarm on mouth and throat surfaces as far back as you can reach . . . back where illness often strikes first!

So treat a cold this sensible way: Get plenty of rest, avoid exposure, dress warmly, drink plenty of liquids . . . and gargle frequently with new Pepsodent Antiseptic. See if you don't relieve discomfort almost at once!

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS BY BOB BECKER

These little cocker spaniels, typical of the pups that will be given this year as Christmas presents, are owned by Mrs. E. Wendorff, Lombard, Ill.

THIS IS the last call to families which expect to go shopping for a Christmas puppy. Because pups are none too plentiful this year, one should visit kennels as early as possible to buy a Christmas pup. And it's getting near the time for owners to buy a Christmas present for the family pet. We have found it a lot of fun to include our dogs in the Yule observance in the home. In fact, we can hardly see how we could keep them out of our Christmas celebration, because they come into the living room in the morning full of energy and eager for attention and naturally join the family group around the decorated Christmas tree.

For years our dogs always have received gifts on Christmas morning. Last Christmas one of them that was presented with a box of canine candy seemed to get the idea right away. One sniff of the tissue paper wrapped package, a little encouragement from us, and he immediately began to tear the paper from the paper box. From there it was a quick and easy step for him to get at the contents.

If dog owners will drop into a pet shop at this time of the year they will see all kinds of things to make life gayer for the family pet at Christmas time. Then there are dozens of very practical and useful gadgets for dogs which make suitable Christmas gifts. These items may not give the family pooch as much pleasure as a toy, but they do have their place in the general care of the pet.

Here are some of the Christmas presents for dogs that we saw in a pet shop a few days ago: First, an indoor exerciser for a small dog. It has a stuffed canvas part into which the dog can sink his teeth and hang on while the owner holds the exerciser with a looped handle. Terriers or most any playful dog will have a circus with this outfit.

For the small dog there is a medium sized dumbbell made of rubber. (If you examine this plaything carefully you'll see that it is made from reclaimed war material.) If you own a large dog and want to teach him to pick up and retrieve objects, you can get him a large sized dumbbell made of wood. We have one of these at home for our Labrador retriever. Besides the dumbbells made of rubber, we saw a number of other toys made of the same material, including a long object that looked like a big licorice stick.

A warm sweater or blanket for a short-haired dog such as the Boston terrier makes a snappy Christmas present which is good for the family pet and at the same time pleases the eye of the dog owner. Better leashes, collars, and harnesses are on the market this Christmas. If you own a long or dense coated dog he'll need a good comb and brush. The pet may not get any fun out of a comb and brush, but whether he knows it or not, his skin and coat need the treatment that these toilet articles give him.

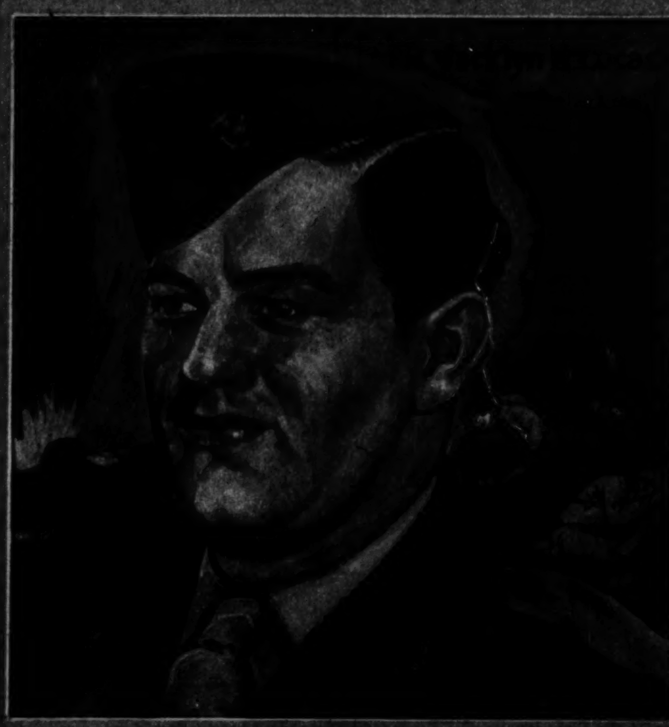
By far the most useful Christmas presents that the dog owner can buy himself and for his pet are those which make dog care easier. In this class of gifts are liquid and powder dog cleaners made especially to remove dirt from a dog's coat and eliminate objectionable odors. If you want to make your dog look better and stay free of dog odor, try them this Christmas. We use these special cleaners on our dogs 12 months of the year.

Another practical Christmas present for the family pet is a bath spray and some good soap to make washing the animal an easier job during the winter months. In our estimation the cleaning preparations made especially for dogs are far more important and useful in keeping a dog well groomed than are frequent baths. But if you are going to bathe your dog many times this winter, be sure you use a bland soap on him.

One of the best looking Christmas gifts for the dog that can hang on the tree is a stocking stuffed with biscuits and toys. Such a gay colored stocking is a fixture on our Christmas tree at home, and how the dogs go for them! Instead of waiting for their usual evening meal they are permitted to sample the food in these Christmas stockings right away.

AMERICAN HEROES OF WORLD WAR II.



This is another of the series on outstanding American heroes of World War II. Subjects are heroes who have been decorated for valor. Illustrations are by Clara Fargo Thomas and Alexander Vecnak.

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

ONE OF THE TOUGHEST ASSIGNMENTS ever given the marines was the taking of Iwo Jima, a strongly fortified little island on the route to Tokyo. There for almost a month three marine divisions, the 3d, 4th, and 5th, and other units, battled Japanese troops who were protected by an elaborate system of caves and other underground defenses, virtually annihilating them in the end.

At Iwo Jima thousands of Americans were killed or wounded, including not only marines but naval men and others as well, and in that desperate campaign every hour brought forth a flock of heroes. Among the marine heroes was 17-year-old Pvt. 1st Class Jacklyn H. Lucas of Belhaven, N. C.

During one of the many counter-attacks delivered on the island by the Japanese two enemy hand grenades rolled into the trench in which Lucas and some of his companions were concealed. The youthful marine dived upon the grenades to protect his comrades, and when they exploded he was seriously wounded.

Fortunately, however, he recovered from his wounds. Returned to America for discharge from the service, he was presented with the medal of honor (congressional medal) by President Truman at a ceremony on the White House lawn last Oct. 5 at which 12 others, 10 marines and three navy men, were similarly decorated.

Lucas, the youngest hero ever to receive the medal of honor, joined the marines at age 14. He went A. W. O. L. from his unit in Hawaii, stowing away on a ship bound for the far Pacific, where as a member of the marine 5th division he saw plenty of action on Iwo Jima.

Discovery by Noted Veterinarian

STOPS DOG-ITCH

For years, veterinarians were baffled by a common skin disease that caused untold agony to dogs and cats. Starting as a burning itch, it soon develops dandruff-like scales and brownish edged sores with a mouldy odor in ears, on paws, under-body, back or around tail. Treatments for mange, fleas, allergy or faulty diet result only in costly care or actual loss. Now, noted veterinarian, Dr. A. C. Merrick, has positively identified this disease as a fungus infection comparable to "Athlete's Foot." He has named it "Fungitch" and has also developed SULFADENE, a treatment proved amazingly effective in thousands of clinical cases. Applied externally, Dr. Merrick's SULFADENE stops the itch in a few minutes—scales and sores vanish in a few days. Buy today where you get pet foods or remedies—or send $1.00 for generous treatment; money back if it fails to give complete satisfaction. Address Brookfield Laboratories, Dept. PLAN TO GO MODERN WITH AN Electric RANGE

Why Electric Living is Better Living

General Electric's L-shaped kitchen has beauty—yes! but its greatest feature is its "stem-to-stern" convenience. Work surfaces are arranged beside the electric range and refrigerator to save you miles of walking, and hundreds of working hours each year. An electric dishwasher and disposal does away with the time-robbing job of "doing dishes." Roomy cabinets provide ample storage space for canned goods, staples, utensils and everyday household needs. It's a kitchen of striking beauty planned for utmost efficiency—designed to give you more leisure time with your family!

In Nationwide surveys housewives say "First Thing— I'm changing to Electric Cooking"

Kitchen Planning Made Easy for You!

The color-bright beautiful kitchens you've been admiring so much in the magazines—can soon be yours! Whether you're planning a new home or remodeling your old one you'll get many helpful ideas from General Electric's new folder on electric kitchens. Stop in at your neighborhood or downtown Edison Store. Get your FREE copy . . . and start planning today.

The votes are in—the results of independent surveys are tabulated. And from Maine to California, thousands and thousands of women say "you bet I'm going to change to electric cooking." The reason is simple—electric cooking is easier, it's cleaner. It means better results with every recipe.

Yes, electric cooking is easy for everyone. Nothing new to learn—nothing hard about it. Women everywhere, once they try cooking on an electric range say it's better than any other kind of cooking heat. Automatic temperature controls cook foods while you're away. Dishes turn out better than grandmother's best with lots less effort on your part. Foods are more healthful, too. Meats remain tender and moist. Vitamins and minerals are sealed in and saved for your family. Flameless electric cooking is cleaner, too—keeps your kitchen spic 'n' span far longer than you ever dreamed possible.

So plan today for an all-electric kitchen. Start with an electric range—and around this time-saving beauty you can add such units as an electric dishwasher and garbage eliminator. You'll be amazed how this will speed up household chores—lighten your cooking job. So join the thousands and thousands of other American housewives who say without question "First thing, I'm changing to electric cooking."

WILL DAVIDSON

IT IS obvious, of course, that no modern group of musicians can reproduce in entirely true value the real jazz of the '20s. Even Kid Ory on the west coast and Bunk Johnson on the east are playing differently than they did when they were among the great men of the New Orleans period. That is to say, they are reproducing in very close counterfeit the jazz they helped to create, but their technique has changed—often it has improved—even if their creative spirit and soaring imagination long ago reached a peak that could not be surpassed.

Sid Catlett

Naturally, then, when you get together a modern group to re-create the growth of jazz you are going to run into problems of authenticity. Dave Dexter knew that well when he started his monumental four volume History of Jazz album series for CAPITOL. He decided to attempt what any smart teacher attempts—to give contemporary listeners as nearly as possible the feeling they would have had had they listened to jazz played at any particular time in the past. In that he has succeeded admirably. Some of his records have been disappointing; and of course you can't substitute a modern imitation for a reissued original. You can't, for instance, beat DECCA's album series of reissues under the BRUNSWICK label for a collection of jazz classics. But the CAPITOL series isn't a collection. It is an expressive review.

The third in the CAPITOL group is "Then Came Swing." It starts with a honey, "Riffamarole," by Dexter's great International Jazzmen: Benny Carter, John Kirby, Coleman Hawkins, Buster Bailey, Bill Coleman, King Cole, Oscar Moore, and Max Roach. With Kay Star singing well, they also play "If I Could Be with You." There are other good swing samples such as "I Never Knew" and "Love for Scale" (really, it says Scale) by Big Sid Catlett's group; wonderful "Mean Old World" and "I Got a Break, Baby" by T-Bone Walker with Freddie Slack; Al Casey's sextet playing the best record in the book, "Sometimes I'm Happy" and "How High the Moon," and Rex Stewart's Big Eight in "Dutch Treat" and "Rexercise." Altogether, a good album.

IT'S A GIFT!

toe. Any gal will love the pampered feeling they give her.

This year is particularly good for evening things, now that gals will be stepping out in formals more than during the war. Evening bags are available in great quantities and many designs, from black fabric bags with bright clips to tiny sequin-covered pouches. And you might even ask the gal out for a formal evening so she'll get a chance to wear her new finery, as an added Christmas surprise.

And here's a gift that figures will limit—the figure of the gal in question and the amount of heigh-ho silver you're toting in your wallet. But if your lady friend is a slim jim she'll love you for getting her one of the new broad leather belts, jewel-studded or plain. The salesgirl will be glad to help you pick one.

Of course, the old standbys of candy, cologne and perfume, and flowers still rate highly with the gal on the receiving end. But skip smoking accessories as gifts to a gal even tho you know she smokes, unless you know her family approves. Nothing will lower your rating with the family more quickly than letting them think you're contributing to the delinquency of a minor, especially if that minor happens to be their darling daughter.

Both from fellows and from girls books are always welcome gifts. In the many times you've talked together you must have found out your friend's favorite author, so take your cue from that. Or if you've ever laughed at the cartoons of Thurber, Richter, Steig, or Price, hie yourself to the book store, for a collection of their best cartoons.

Any of these gifts, all wrapped up in red ribbon but with no strings attached, are ideal gifts for the fellows and gals whom you know you like and whom you'd like to know it.

But perhaps the gal you have in mind is the one girl in your life and everybody knows it. You've been going steady officially for months or you just haven't been dating any other girls. And then the gifts can be more personal and, if you like, more expensive. Jewelry, clips with matching earrings, or slim gold chokers (not as violent as it sounds!) will keep you top man on her list. A bracelet with her name on one side and yours on the other will mean a lot, and a compact will remind her of you every time she powders her nose. (And how many times a day do you want to be remembered!) You may give her a wallet, too—one of the large sized wallets for women, with plenty of room, and put a snapshot of yourself behind one of the transparent windows. What more could a gal ask?

Or for the steady beau boy. An identification bracelet still ranks near the top, especially if you have his full name engraved on the front and your name or initials and the date in smaller print on the back. A money clip will get an A-1 rating, too, if he has any folding lettuce left after his Christmas splurging. You can also get matching cuff links and tie pins fashioned from the fellow's initials. A more expensive cigaret lighter or a pipe and pouch will do very nicely too, thank you.

Of course, one gift a fellow is always happy to get is a picture of his gal, so that he doesn't have to depend on his dreams to remember her face while she's away. But do make sure you aren't going to want it back, and skip the sweet sentimentality on the front. Can't you tell him in private?

Whatever you choose will be appreciated, of course, if you put thought into its selection. Wrap your present brightly after removing the price tag (or have your mother turn her artistic hand to it if you aren't particularly talented) and your duties are done. With the care you've put into shopping you're an ideal Santa, even without the usual props of bright red suit, pillow-stuffed tummy, and the long white beard.

Truman's Laughing Boy

write the final epitaph of Allen's career as commissioner when the President was seeking to induce John Russell Young, White House correspondent of the Washington Star, to take the post. The venerable reporter said that he had been planning to retire and didn't think he could tackle the work.

"Don't let that worry you a minute," Roosevelt said, throwing his head back in a hearty laugh. "It hasn't bothered Allen, has it?"

During this period Allen was seen more often at the race track and Burning Tree than he was in his spacious office in the District building. He was a boon companion of White House Secretary Stephen T. Early, an excellent golfer, and an enthusiastic but not so successful handicapper. Allen bet sizable amounts on the horses and at golf.

Allen left his office the second time in 1938 to become vice president of the Home Insurance Company of New York, an organization which, he confided, felt it was top-heavy with Republicans and had come to the decision that a New Dealer in the setup would not hurt business. It did not.

Early in 1940 Allen stopped keeping company with Farley. That summer Farley broke with Roosevelt over the third term. Allen was thumping the drums for Roosevelt's reëlection.

Frank Walker, friend of Roosevelt, succeeded Farley as postmaster general and later as party chairman. Allen became a constant companion of Walker. On June 5, 1943, Allen became secretary of the Democratic national committee. He resigned this post after Hannegan took over the fourth term drive, succeeding Walker as party chairman.

After the convention, which was featured by rumors about Roosevelt's health, Allen went to the party chairman and said he wanted to be employed in an inconspicuous position in the Democratic cause. He said because of his former position as secretary he didn't want to be too far up in the picture, as such a move might create friction. He suggested he be assigned to the Vice President.

Thruout the 1944 campaign Allen was at Mr. Truman's side. Ever ready to laugh, especially at himself, he became a warm friend of the Missouri senator, who likes his fellow men. When Roosevelt died Allen rushed to the new President's side as a valued friend.

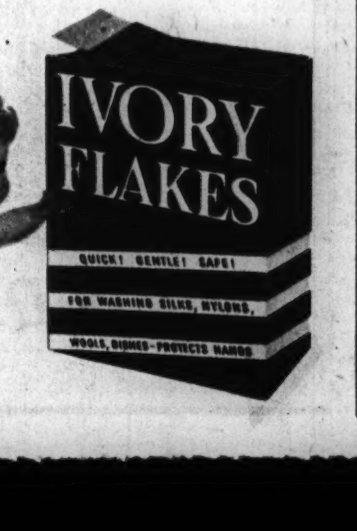
On the Presidential special returning from the Roosevelt burial at Hyde Park Allen blossomed out as a literary agent. It was reported aboard the train that Allen was helping Mr. Truman write his first speech to the nation. This caused a cynical lifting of eyebrows among several who had written Allen's speeches for him.

At the President's side Allen is credited with blocking that would be a credit to the football field. He is credited with stopping Hugh Fulton, counsel for the Truman committee, from taking the reins in the early days of the new President and from becoming attorney general. He shunted out scores of lesser characters.

Shortly after Allen moved into the White House—he could scarcely get beyond Early's office in the Roosevelt administration—his financial acumen was recognized by Victor Emanuel, publicity-shunning capitalist, who made Allen a director of Emanuel-dominated corporations.

Last August Allen was named by Mr. Truman as his personal representative to study the problems involved in the liquidation of many war agencies. He also was the President's personal representative in the making of arrangements at the united nations conference at San Francisco for Mr. Truman's personal appearance. He also has reached out to handle political problems for his boss. He has confided to intimates that he intends to run the government of Washington, which he regards as his home town.

Each morning at 8:15 that Mr. Truman is in Washington, Allen is in the White House conferring with the President on the latter's plans for the day. All Washington knows that the man who has the President's ear is a potent figure indeed. As an inevitable consequence in a city where Presidential favor spells success, Allen is being regarded seriously for the first time in his life. And without fear of contradiction it may be stated that he likes it.



"I've never had a dull time in this dress yet!"

SAYS MADELEINE PATTERSON, OF BRUNSWICK, GEORGIA

"Knock wood? Not me! I know another kind of magic that makes me plenty sure this little washable job won't lose its glamour. Though I've worn it (and washed it) dozens of times, it's still as eye-catching as the day I bought it! What's the secret? Three little words that spell glamour for all your precious sudsables—Ivory Flakes Care.

"IF YOU'RE HEP—
you probably wouldn't use anything but Ivory Flakes for undies and stockings. This dress just goes to show it pays to baby other nice washables, too. In case you're from Missouri, bend an ear to the story that convinced me!

"THESE ARE THE FACTS—proved by wash tests! Seems they washed rayon dresses, sweaters, slipcovers and such two ways. With ordinary washday soaps and methods, they soon faded and looked sad. But gentle care and Ivory Flakes kept identical washables bright and new-looking—up to twice as long.

"BABY-MILD IVORY FLAKES are the fast flake form of baby's pure Ivory Soap! You couldn't get a purer, safer soap. So, if you've been kind of careless with your dainty duds, just switch to gentle Ivory Flakes Care and see the difference for yourself."

"I'm lucky I've got a Studebaker Champion"

LIKE millions of other Americans, you're undoubtedly thrilled to see new cars again rolling off the production lines.

But if you own a Studebaker Champion, you probably don't have to be too concerned about getting a new Champion right away.

More likely than not, you can wait for a while and avoid the early rush, because there's plenty of fine low-cost transportation still left in the Champion you're driving.

Your good fortune in having a dependable Champion to stand by you won't stop you, of course, from dropping in at your Studebaker dealer's and getting an eyeful of the stunning new air-curve beauty that makes the new Champion such an exciting car. There's nothing like its original and exclusive skyway styling, its distinctive color finishes and luxurious appointments in the lowest price field.

What's more, this new Champion has the advanced Studebaker engineering and painstaking father-and-son craftsmanship which assure consistent operating economy and long lasting quality—and make it the outstanding low-priced investment in a new car right now.

The Gift of Gracious Living ....Cresta Blanca Burgundy

This Christmas–as always–there are friends on your gift list whose discriminating taste you respect, friends for whom you want a finer, more distinctive gift. Like all things in which good taste predominates, it is the air of graciousness about your gifts that counts. Surely there is no better complement to gracious living than fine Cresta Blanca California Burgundy. This rich, full bodied wine has the matchless character, delicious taste, and exquisite bouquet that comes from only the finest vines. This year give Cresta Blanca Burgundy .. . a gift of gracious living.

TO GIVE LOVELY HAIR TO YOUR CHILD...

Lovely hair is a priceless advantage to a child. And it begins in early years with regular shampooing . . . with a fine soap like Packers.

For seventy-five years mothers have found that no soap is safer for children . . . or gentler . . . than Packers. And mothers and children alike have delighted in Packers' rich pine-cone color . . . its refreshing pine-woods smell . . . its heaping, sudsy lather that forms so quickly, cleanses so surely and rinses so easily! Why not buy it for your family?

Shampoos with Packers average less than a penny—about one-fourth the cost of bottled shampoos! Get a large 25¢ or 10¢ cake —today!

SO GENTLE FOR CHILDREN
SO THOROUGH FOR GROWN-UPS

Look at 'em go! This laxative antacid is certainly right for both!

This is the month for parties! That means all of us are likely to overindulge in eating or drinking. When you do, remember that Phillips' Milk of Magnesia works a double wonder overnight. Take Phillips' at bedtime with water—by the time your head hits the pillow, Phillips' eases away discomforts of acid indigestion...helps you sleep soundly and wake up bright. Phillips' works these 2 ways while you sleep to bring you relief:

1. As an acid stomach alkalizer, Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is one of the fastest, most effective known to science.

2. As a laxative, gentle-acting Phillips' can be taken any time without thought of embarrassing urgency. Caution: Use only as directed.

Get Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in the big economical 50¢ size; contains three times as much as the 25¢ bottle. Genuine Phillips' is also available in easy-to-carry tablet form; costs only 25¢ a box, less than a penny a tablet.

You'll feel like Mrs. Columbus when you discover the Ekco Pressure Cooker that opens a new world of tastier cooking, smarter serving. Yes . . . the Ekco Pressure Cooker is a serving dish, too! Simply whisk off the pressure top and the Ekco is ready for the table . . . smart and sparkling, with graceful serving handles instead of the kitchen kind . . . even a special serving cover if you wish.

With an Ekco you not only save hours of time and all the flavor (precious vitamins, too!) in cooking, but serve foods piping hot, extra delicious . . . save steps, save dishes. And Ekco cooking is easier: A twirl of the Fingertip Knob seals the cooker. A flick of the Pressure Control keeps pressure from exceeding the proper level. Be sure YOUR pressure cooker is the Ekco that stays to dinner! At better stores.

DICK TRACY
Chester Gould
I TELL YOU, ITCHY, I'M SCARED.
THIS STARVATION PROGRAM IS TOO SLOW. WE'RE TAKING TOO MANY CHANCES.
WHAT DO YOU MEAN, KITTY?
IT WAS YOUR TURN TO WATCH LAST NIGHT, AND YOU FELL ASLEEP.
YEAH. THAT WAS A MISTAKE.
BUT AFTER ALL, HE'S TIED UP! HE CAN'T GO ANYWHERE. BESIDES HE'S GETTING WEAK. DON'T WORRY SO MUCH, KITTY. NOW GO TO BED.
WHILE THIS CONVERSATION TAKES PLACE, A PAIR OF EYES PEER INTO THE ROOM FROM BENEATH THE DOOR LEADING TO THE BASEMENT.
ITCHY TURNS ON THE RADIO AND SETTLES BACK WITH A MAGAZINE.
SLOWLY, NOISELESSLY, A FORM MAKES ITS WAY ON HANDS AND KNEES TO THE DETECTIVE'S SIDE.
SH-SH-TRACY. I FOUND THE NOTE YOU LEFT IN THE TRUNK. IT'S ME — JUNIOR.
AFTER I LOCATED THE HOUSE I WENT TO YOUR APARTMENT AND GOT ONE OF YOUR GUNS — HERE IT IS. AND I GOT MY POCKET KNIFE, TOO.
GOOD BOY! GOOD BOY!
SH! PUT THE GUN IN MY POCKET. THEN CUT THE ROPES AND GO OUT THE SAME WAY YOU CAME IN. I DON'T WANT YOU AROUND WHEN THE SHOOTING STARTS.
I'VE GOT TO WAIT TILL THE OLD LADY'S IN THE ROOM — GOT TO TAKE 'EM BOTH.
LUCKY FOR ME THAT CAR BUMPER BROKE THIS BASEMENT WINDOW! BOY, TRACY LOOKS BAD.
NOW TO GET TO A CALL BOX.
ITCHY! TURN DOWN THAT RADIO. I THOUGHT I HEARD A NOISE.
HUH? AW, GO BACK TO SLEEP, KITTY. EVERYTHING'S OKAY.

NO USE TRYING TO KEEP IT FROM YOU — SINCE FIGHTING HAS BROKEN OUT...
YOU MEAN — NOW THAT MY THROAT'S CUT, YOU'LL TELL ME ABOUT THAT MAN STANDING BEHIND ME WITH A KNIFE!...
WHEN OUR AIRPLANE WAS WEATHERED INTO THIS REMOTE YANK OUTPOST, THE ARMY COMMANDER DECIDED NOT TO TELL YOU CIVILIAN PASSENGERS OF SOME LAST-DITCH JAPS IN THE NEARBY HILLS!.. HE DIDN'T WISH TO ALARM YOU...
ALARM US, HE SAYS — AND MY SCALP ALL BUT HANGING ON SOME BUSHIDO COMANCHE'S BELT...
YOU DON'T HAPPEN TO HAVE A NEWSREEL HANDY SHOWING SURRENDERED JAPS EATING THEIR WAY THROUGH A PILE OF FREE RICE AND FISH DO YOU?
IF WE DID WE COULD PROJECT ON THE OVERCAST THAT IS KEEPING ALL AIRCRAFT FROM COMING TO HELP US...
DON'T THOSE RELUCTANT DRAGOONS KNOW THAT MARS DODGE IS DATED? DO THEY PLAN TO HOLD OUT UNTIL UNCLE SAM GOES BACK TO SLEEP?
THEY MAY BE SMARTER THAN WE THINK! SOME OF OUR LITTLE FRIENDS FAVOR BUYING THEM OFF WITH FOOD FROM THE ARMY STORES...
LADY GOOSE-NECK AND BROTHER INVOICE, I PRESUME... DON'T THEY KNOW THAT ONE BITE WOULD BRING THE HOLDOUTS BACK FOR THE ENTIRE PIE?
I APPEAL TO YOU AGAIN, CAPTAIN... THE JAP OFFICER HAS STATED HE WILL WITHDRAW IN EXCHANGE FOR FOOD...
MR. BRUTHER, YOU'RE A BUSINESS MAN — IF YOUR COMPETITOR RAN SHORT OF GOODS, WOULD YOU HELP HIS SALES BY DIVIDING YOUR STOCK WITH HIM?
I CONSIDER THAT IMPERTINENT, YOUNG MAN — YOUR SUPERIORS SHALL HEAR OF THIS!
WHERE DO YOU THINK MY ORDERS CAME FROM, MR. BRUTHER? AS LONG AS I AM IN COMMAND HERE, THOSE JAPS GET FED ONLY IF THEY SURRENDER!
WELL, LIEUTENANT LEE... IT LOOKS AS IF YOU'RE IN COMMAND NOW!

OUT OF A BOX

UNCLE Jimmy is a kindly old man who lives in a little house near the Teenie Weenie village. Uncle Jimmy is usually away during the day and often the Teenie Weenies slip into his house, for there is a wide crack under the door.

One afternoon the Dunce, the Sailor, the Chinaman and Gogo passed Uncle Jimmy's house and they decided to go in and warm themselves, for it was very cold outdoors. They slipped thru the door and ran under the stove, which was still warm. After they had warmed their tiny fingers the Teenie Weenies began looking around the place.

"Look at that," cried the Dunce pointing to a box that sat on a small table. "That's new, Uncle Jimmy didn't have that the last time we were here."

The curious little men decided to investigate, and they scrambled up a broom handle that leaned against the table. "I wonder what those handles are for?" said the Dunce pointing up to two knobs high above his head.

"Let's all time clawl up and see," suggested the Chinaman.

Gogo and the Dunce lifted a pen holder that lay on the table and leaning it against the box they climbed up to the place where the knobs were. The Dunce caught one of the knobs in his strong little hands and gave it a turn. There was a loud crackling sound and then a man's voice roared out of the box. The frightened Dunce leaped right off the box and landed in an ash tray on the table below. Gogo, who had just climbed up onto the box, leaped for the pen holder and slid down, knocking the Chinaman off. The Sailor made for the broom handle and slid to the floor, followed by the rest of the Teenie Weenies.

The frightened little men ran for the shoe house as fast as they could travel, where they reported their adventure. "There w-was a m-m-man in the b-b-box," the chattering Dunce told the General.

"De voice was too big fo' a man what could jupe inside dat box," put in Gogo, whose eyes were as big as raspberry seeds.

"That was a radio," laughed the General and he explained to the four scared Teenie Weenies just what a radio was.

"Did you turn it off?" asked the General.

"Lawsy no," answered Gogo. "We didn't have time fo' to do nothin' but get out of there."

"Well, it will have to be turned off," said the General and he sent the Policeman to turn it off.

ALAS THAT DINGY SMILE!
SPARKLE!

THE FABLE OF THE GORGEOUS GIRL AND THE PLAIN JANE.

The Gorgeous Creature had more curves than a Roller Coaster. Her legs were so beautiful that gray cotton looked just as seductive as Nylons. Only in the Dental Department was she a little weak. Her smile was definitely on the gray side. But the Georgeous Creature didn't care. When a chassis is classy who would stop to be Dental?

Now, her roommate, Plain Jane, was quite the opposite. She had just enough figure to hold a dress up but NOTHING like the Georgeous Creature's. She could get around on her legs, but they, too, were NOTHING like the Gorgeous Creature's. But in the Dental Department—oh! In the Dental Department!—She hit the Jackpot! When she smiled it was a radiant, heart-warming, come-hither sort of a smile that showed a perfect 32 . . . don't get any ideas, folks . . . a perfect 32 TEETH.

Now, Plain Jane was no goon with a head like an empty Gourd. She knew her smile was her Best Asset, and she took care of it—BUT GOOD! She used the best dentifrice she knew . . . Listerine Tooth Paste.

So, when the handsome Prince Charming rode up on his Snow-white Charger, with a handful of Big Money and a genuine postwar 2 speed Permanent Wave Machine, who did he go for? . . . The Beautiful Creature, all shape and no smile? Or . . . Plain Jane with some shape and SOME smile?

Well, folks, brace yourself! He didn't go for either one!

He went for Listerine Tooth Paste! . . . saying to himself, "If it can help bring my smile up to scratch I can get a Darling better than EITHER of these!" So, giving the Rowel to his beautiful white Charger, he rode off to his home where he put his money back in his pocket for a more Romantic Day, brushed his teeth with Listerine Tooth Paste, and went to bed. Good Night, Sweet Prince!

A Betty Crocker New Speed Method Recipe

CHRISTMAS CANDLE CAKES

SIFT together into bowl
2¼ cups sifted SOFTASILK Cake Flour
*1⅓ cups sugar
½ tsp. salt
3 tsp. double-action baking powder

"Important, use Softasilk" —Betty Crocker

ADD....
½ cup high grade vegetable shortening
¼ cup maraschino cherry juice (from 5-oz. bottle)
16 maraschino cherries (cut in eighths)
½ cup milk

BEAT vigorously with spoon for 2 min. by clock (about 150 strokes per min.). You may rest a moment when beating by hand; just count actual beating time or strokes. OR MIX with elec. mixer on slow to med. speed for 2 min.

ADD.... ½ to ⅔ cup unbeaten egg whites (4 large)

BEAT 2 more min.

FOLD in ½ cup chopped nuts

POUR batter into prepared cup cake pans, fill each ½ to ⅔ full, and bake. Pan Size: 24 medium-sized muffin cups, each cup 2" in diam. across bottom (1¼" deep). Temp. 400° (mod. hot oven). Bake: 15 to 20 min.

Ice when cool with White Icing. Decorate with small petal-like pieces maraschino cherries and tiny leaf-like pieces green gumdrops. Place red candle in center of each.

For Best Results in Any Cake. Have all ingredients room temp. (70° to 75°). (Shortening soft—not melted.) • Pre-heat oven. • Grease, flour pans. • Sift flour before measuring. • Measure all ingredients before starting to mix. (Use level measurements, standard cups, spoons.) • Measure eggs in cup—they vary in size. • Scrape batter from sides, bottom of bowl while mixing.

*To Save Sugar In Cake: Use ⅓ cup sugar and ⅔ cup white corn syrup. Reduce milk to ¼ cup plus 1 tbsp. Add syrup with milk to dry ingredients in first mixing period.

SONGS OF YULE TO RING TODAY ON N.U. CAMPUS

Concert Will Be Heard Twice

The combined choral organizations of Northwestern university will present their sixth Christmas concert at 3 and 5 p. m. today in Cahn auditorium of Scott hall on the Evanston campus.

The program is under the direction of George Howerton, coördinator of choral groups at the university. Participating will be the a cappella choir of 60 voices, the women's glee club of 210 voices, and the university male chorus of 80 voices.

The Christmas concert has become a traditional item on the holiday calendar of the university and the community at large. It has been given each year since the opening of Cahn auditorium, and has attracted better than capacity crowds. The programs will be the same.

Include Vaughan Williams

Opening number will be "Prepare Thyself Zion" from Bach's Christmas oratorio, sung by the women's glee club, which also will offer "Flocks in the Pastures Green Abiding" from Bach's Birthday cantata and Vaughan Williams' arrangement of the "Magnificat" with Ruth Heizer, mezzo-soprano as soloist.

Miss Heizer is a member of the voice faculty. She has sung with the Apollo club, the Chicago Civic Opera company, and in recital. Other soloists in today's performance will be students Bonnie Jean Kimball and Patricia Paulick, sopranos, who will appear during the second group of offerings by the women's glee club; Keith Landis, tenor; Robert Anderson, baritone, and David Glismann, basso of the cappella choir, which will offer "Scenes from the Holy Infancy" by Virgil Thomson.

Will Sing More Bach

Elizabeth Koelling, contralto of the music school, will be soloist when the combined groups offer "The Christmas Song" by Cornelius. This is an interesting and unusual setting of the old chorale "How Brightly Shines the Morning Star" used by Bach and his contemporaries.

Reminder that some of the loveliest music of all time is that which has been produced by the people themselves, will come with the rendition of the ancient folk song "Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones," an arrangement by Harvey Davison, to be presented by the male chorus. The group also will be heard in the old favorite "Lo, How a Rose O'er Blooming" by Praetorius; "Before the Paling of the Stars" by Kramer, and "Salvation Belongeth to Our God" by Tchesnokov.

Honor Evanston Composers

Evanston composers whose works will be given are Don Malin, 834 Reba pl., and Marion Walker, 1819 Wesley av. The women's glee club will sing Malin's "As Joseph Was a'Walking" and the "Ox and Donkey Carol" by Miss Walker.

Adhering to tradition, the concert will conclude with the old English folk song, "Merry Christmas," which always is performed during the Christmas program by the university groups in the arrangement by Arthur Warrell.

The admission is free, a ticket is required. This may be obtained thru the office of the school of music, students activities officer, Scott hall.

MARMION CADET GETS RANK OF 2D LIEUTENANT

Among recently appointed cadet officers at Marmion Military academy, Aurora, is T. E Devine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Devine, 4130 Greenview av., 2d lieutenant. His certificate of commission was signed by the Rev. Gilbert Hess, president, and Maj. Arthur R. Pfannenschmidt, professor of military science and tactics.

Plan Tableaux for Mundelein Songs of Yule

Glee club, orchestra, and drama and art departments of Mundelein college will present a Christmas program, "Under the Stars," at 8 p. m. today in the college theater, 6363 Sheridan rd.

The orchestra, under direction of Joseph J. Grill, will open the program with Rapee's "Christmas Bells" and an orchestral arrangement by Baron of Yon's "Jesu Bambino." Adalbert Huguelet will direct the glee club in a group of traditional carols.

A cantata, "The Coming of the Prince of Peace," by June Murphy, 1945 graduate, will be presented. Songs, each illustrated with a tableau, will include "Prophecies," "Annunciation," "Magnificat," "Angels and the Shepherds," "The Virgin's Lullaby," and the "Coming of the Magi." Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus" will conclude the program.

North siders participating will include Mary Assimos, 5855 Magnolia av., and Cynthia Knight, 5547 Kenmore av., both soloists. Harriet Stewart, 806 Reba pl., Evanston, will be a prophet in a tableau, and Marjorie Ann Kroske, 7724 N. Paulina st., and Diana Coffey, 6707 Greenview av., will portray shepherds.

Mary Louise Kelly, Waukegan, and Patricia Nealin, 6145 Glenwood av., are assistants with stage, lighting, and wardrobe crews.

Scientific Santa Will Ignore Deer Tradition When He Visits School by Television

Palm trees and sands of a Pacific island take shape quickly as students in Goudy School, 5120 Winthrop av., paint a mural background for their 30 minute Christmas program which will be telecast at 1 p. m. Tuesday over station WBKB. The radio council of the board of education said it is the first television program written, acted, and received by elementary school students in the United States. From left are Jimmy Koehler, 5336 Winthrop av.; Ira Leon, 5104 Kenmore av.; Sherwin Laff, 935 Winona st., and Etsuko Yamaguchi, 5223 Kenmore av.

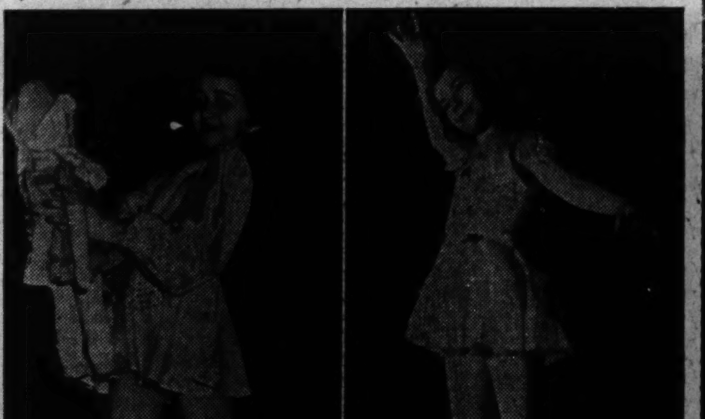
"Writing the script was fun, but hard work," declared Authors Jerome Johnston, 4829 Winthrop av., and Janine Ruben, 5200 Sheridan rd. The 13 year old 8th grade students were selected for their task by faculty members.



Representing two homesick soldiers' dreams of Christmas in an American city are (left) Lila Olson, 5047 Kenmore av., tap dancer, and Ballerina Roberta Kadison, 5240 Sheridan rd.

Goudy School Writes, to Act for Television

Students of Goudy Elementary school, 5120 Winthrop av., will present a 30 minute television program, "Christmas Eve in the Pacific," at 1 p. m. Tuesday over station WBKB, board of education station. Miss Agnes Marnell, principal, termed the musical playlet the "first telecast to be written, acted, and received by elementary school students in the United States."

Approximately 20 students, including a boys chorus, will participate. The program will be seen thru receiving sets at Goudy school, one of two television experimental centers set up last fall by the radio council of the board of education. The other center is in Lake View High school, 4015 N. Ashland av.

A "First" for Chicago

Chicago public school system is the first in the United States to use television even experimentally, Mrs. Elizabeth Marshall, council television director, said.

Work on Goudy's production began about three weeks ago. The script was written by Janine Ruben, 5200 Sheridan rd., and Jerome Johnston, 4829 Winthrop av. A background of palm trees on a Pacific island shore was designed and painted by Jimmy Koehler, 5336 Winthrop av.; Ira Leon, 5104 Kenmore av.; Sherwin Laff, 935 Winona st., and Etsuko Yamaguchi, 5223 Kenmore av. Typists were Marilyn Ginsburg, 918 Winona st., and Joan Kollman, 5048 Marine dr.

The writers, both 13 year old 8th graders, were chosen by Miss Marnell and Miss Margaret Ridge, an 8th grade teacher, on the basis of demonstrated script writing ability. "We worked about two days, both in school and outside," said Janine. "Our brains were jelly after one session," declared Jerome.

Tells of Yanks' Yule

Tho actual writing was done by students, Miss Marnell helped work out the plot, in which two Yanks in the Pacific recall memories of Christmas at home.

Joseph Zekelman, 1109 Balmoral av., plays a corporal who was a journalism student in Chicago before enlisting, and to whom the holidays mean decorated store windows in State st., children in toy departments, and a performance of the ballet. Jerome McCarthy, 5047 Kenmore av., portrays a sergeant, a former prize fighter from Brooklyn, who dreams of a white Christmas, Brooklyn bridge, a doll he once gave his kid sister, and gay dance tunes.

In addition to the boys' chorus the following soloists will appear: Mary Grachis, 5112 Broadway; Lorraine Moscovitch, 5047 Sheridan rd.; Marilyn Evans, 924 Margate terr.; Bianca Scaffi, 5241 Winthrop av., and Rosemary Reiter, 4920 Winthrop av.

Great Future Seen

Dancers will be Lila Olson, 5047 Kenmore av., tap; Roberta Kadison, 5240 Sheridan rd., toe, and Judith Broder, 926 Margate terr., ballet. Music is in charge of Mrs. Virginia Paris, Goudy teacher, and Miss Helen Rezek, elementary music supervisor for district 1. Mrs. Laurette Dahme is in charge of art.

"Television is in the horse and buggy stage now, but it will be a chief educational medium in future," predicted Miss Marnell. Each of Goudy's 80 pupils sees a telecast twice a year and afterwards evaluates the program by completing a form which is sent to the radio council. Receiving sets have been installed in a darkened third floor classroom with a seating capacity of 60. Each Tuesday a different group of 60 students is required to attend a telecast. Attendance at a program Wednesday is optional since it usually is geared to high school level.

Choirs, Orchestra in 2 Performances

New Trier Township High school music department will present its 29th Christmas concert at 4:30 p. m. today in Gates gymnasium with nearly 1,000 members of choral groups and orchestra participating. A second performance at 8 o'clock tonight will be sponsored by the North Shore Sunday Evening club.

"Let Us All Together Praise Our God," dedicated by Don Mahlin, Chicago composer, to New Trier's chorus and orchestra, will be presented by these groups as their opening number.

Will Give Holst Numbers

The chorus and orchestra also will appear in two selections by Gustav Holst, "Turn Back O Man" and "Christmas Day." The orchestra will play the last movement of Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 in C minor.

The a cappella choir and girls' and boys' ensembles will sing groups of carols, including several traditional French, English, and Welsh airs. James Ramsey will be soloist in Gaul's "The March of the Wise Men" and "Carol of the Flowers," a Basque melody arranged by Weaver.

Audience to Join Chorus

The audience will join chorus and orchestra in singing Handel's Hallelujah chorus, "Silent Night," and "O Come All Ye Faithful." Directors will be Marian Cotton, music department head; Frances Anderson, Adelaide Bradburn, Margaret Phillips, and Anah Lavery. Arlene Ream will be organist and Alice Wanner will be student accompanist.

Sunday Evening club members will have reserved seats at the night performance. No admission will be charged for either concert.

Sheridan PTA

Sheridan PTA will meet at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday in the school. A Christmas program will be given by the children.

HONOR SOLDIER OF LAKE FOREST HIGH WITH BOOKS

A library dedicated to the memory of James Whitney Northrop Jr., killed in action on Nov. 18, 1944, in France, has been presented to the Lake Forest High school by the young soldier's parents who live in Lake Bluff. The first 60 books already have arrived and the remainder of the library will be built up thru the years.

James Northrop

While a student at Lake Forest Northrop was an honor student. He was selected in 1943 to represent the school on the Citizens of Tomorrow program of THE TRIBUNE over W-G-N. He was editor of the school newspaper and a member of Quill and Scroll, international honorary society of high school journalists.

The library was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Northrop to Dr. Raymond Moore, principal, who accepted it on behalf of the board of education.

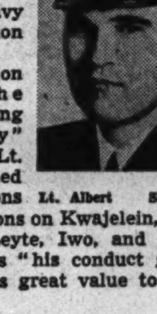
LT. ALBERT L. SEIDEL COMMENDED BY NAVY RECORD IN INVASIONS

Lt. Albert L. Seidel, 5909 Kenmore av., who participated in six Pacific island invasions as communications officer for a division of transports, has been awarded the navy commendation ribbon.



Lt. Albert Seidel

The citation recognizes the "outstanding skill and ability" with which Lt. Seidel maintained communications during operations on Kwajelein, Saipan, Guam, Leyte, Iwo, and Okinawa and says "his conduct gave evidence of his great value to the naval service."

The officer's overseas duty concluded with participation in the occupation of Aomori, Japan. Now on terminal leave, he is with his wife at the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Seidel, of the Kenmore av. address.

'A JOYOUS NOEL' TO RESUME ITS FAVORED ROLE

Reunited Families Will Worship

Traditional candlelight and carol services and sermons on seasonal topics today, next Sunday, and Dec. 25 will characterize holiday worship in Protestant and Catholic churches this Christmas. Prayers of gratitude for the end of war will be offered as veterans attend—many of them spending Christmas at home for the first time in more than four years.

Music will form an important part of activities in Edgewater Presbyterian church, Bryn Mawr and Kenmore avs. The Rev. Adolph Bohn, pastor, will talk on "Gifts to the King" for a white gifts program at 7:30 p. m. today. Church members will bring white wrapped presents for needy families to the altar. Two choirs and a girls' sextet, led by Organist Alden Clark, will sing carols and folk songs.

Choir Will Sing

At 11 a. m. next Sunday the sanctuary choir will sing music from Handel's "Messiah" and selections by Bach. Margaret Starrett, soprano, and John Melvin, tenor, will appear with the choir at 11 a. m. Christmas day. Dr. Bohn will speak.

The Rev. John Magill, pastor of Lake View Presbyterian church, Broadway and Addison st., will preach on "These Things Remain" at 11 a. m. today. Arthur Wilkinson will direct the choir in holiday music. The drama club, assisted by a youth choir, will present a play, "The Shepherds Came," at 7:30 p. m. Friday with Miss Alice Greene in charge.

"The Message of the Manger" will be the Rev. Mr. Magill's topic at 11 a. m. next Sunday, with music by senior and youth choirs. Special music is prepared for a candlelight service at 11 p. m. Dec. 24 when the pastor will read a story by Elizabeth Goudge, "The Well of the Star."

Wilmette Services

The Rev. Alexander B. Allison of First Presbyterian church, Wilmette, will talk on "Unto You Is Born" at 11 a. m. next Sunday. At 4:30 p. m. the choir, directed by George Howerton, will present a candlelight program of carols and special music.

Three adult choirs of Berry Memorial Methodist church and the choir of Franklin Park Methodist church will present "The Messiah" at 4:30 p. m. next Sunday in Berry church, Leavitt and Giddings st. Mary Eldridge and Esther Gehlhoff of Berry and Florence Hurmence of Franklin Park will have charge. Soloists will be Harry Swanson and Roberta Holmer, both former Chicago Music Festival winners, and Nancy Carr and Ray Anderson.

The Rev. William H. Evans, pastor of Berry church, will preach on "The Christmas Highway" at 10:45 a. m. next Sunday. Five church choirs, numbering more than 100 voices, will appear.

Dr. Tittle to Talk

First Methodist church, Evanston, will present its traditional pageant, "The Nativity," at 4:30 p. m. today, with Emory Leland Gallup, minister of music, and Helen Hawk Carlisle, church school music supervisor, in charge. Catherine Baker and Anne Louise Hershey will be soprano soloists. Chancel choir and congregation will sing Handel's Hallelujah chorus.

At 8 p. m. choirs of Post Kollege Klub and Student Foundation will present a program with Thomas Yeakle and Margaret Ellington as soloists. Helen Poller will play a violin obligato. Phyllis Johnson and Mrs. Lloyd White will have charge. "The Chief Seats" will be the topic of Dr. Ernest Fremont Tittle at 11 a. m. today.

A quartet and a choir of 50 voices, accompanied by a string quartet from the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will present "The Messiah" at 7:15 p. m. today in North Shore Baptist church, 5244 Lakewood av. Mrs. Evelyn M. Tannehill will direct the choir. The vocal quartet includes Ora Mae Blackburn, Adelle Norman, John Toms, and Richard Schrieber. Dr. Weldon M. Wilson, pastor, will speak at a family program at 8 p. m. Wednesday. White wrapped gifts will be offered at a carol service at 5 p. m. next Sunday.

Bishop to Be in Charge

Episcopal Bishop Conkling will conduct services at 8 and 11 a. m. next Sunday in Church of Our Saviour, 530 Fullerton pkwy. The choir will sing as the introit Markham's "Manger Song of Mary," with music by the Rev. Donald Boyd Kline, pastor, at an 11 p. m. mass Dec. 24. Services will be held at 10 a. m. Christmas day.

St. James church, Wabash av. and Huron st., will hold a candlelight carol service at 5 p. m. Dec. 24. The Rev. Duncan H. Browne, rector, will conduct worship at 8 and 11 a. m. Dec. 25. A carillon recital at 10:40 p. m. and cloister carols at 11:15 p. m. will precede holy communion Dec. 24 in St. Chrysostom's church, 1424 N. Dearborn pkwy. The Rev. Dudley Stark is rector.

A children's candlelight carol service at 4 p. m. Dec. 24 will begin festivities in Church of the Holy Spirit, Lake Forest. Worship at 11 p. m. Dec. 24 and at 10 a. m. STAGE DINNER TOMORROW AS V-DRIVE CLOSES

Laud Volunteers for Aid to Community

The two and a half months Community and War Fund drive to raise $13,040,700 in the Chicago area will close with a dinner at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Palmer House when Walter P. Paepcke, general chairman, will announce the total subscription. More than 2,000 volunteer workers are expected to attend.

Receipts last week had passed 82 per cent of the goal, with $10,650,000 contributed in an area comprising Cook, Lake, and Du Page counties. Persons wishing to subscribe after tomorrow may do so by mailing their contributions to Commmunity and War Fund, 100 W. Monroe st., Chicago.

Work Since August

Altho the campaign officially opened Oct. 1, many of the 95,000 Chicago area volunteers have been working since August to perfect organization for the task. Paepcke said many solicitors have received the Order of the Red Feather, indicating they have met or oversubscribed their individual quotas.

A few additional awards will be made later to volunteers who performd such feats as doubling or tripling their quotas or receive contributions from every prospect on their lists.

North side subscriptions received by 20,523 solicitors last week amounted to $142,780, and four additional suburbs had filled their quotas. Community Chairman Philip T. Atwood reported Kenilworth reached its goal of $12,000.

Glencoe, Winnetka In

Glencoe subscribed its quota of $40,000 under chairmanship of B. M. Kohler, and Winnetka's chairman Carl S. Lloyd, reported a goal of $123,250 reached. Mrs. Max Miller, chairman, said Vernon township, near Antioch, filled its $2,000 quota.

A canvass of North Central and West Lake View business districts yielded $1,027 for members of the Altar and Rosary society of St. Andrew's church, 3546 N. Paulina st. Workers included Mrs. Nick Colling, 3705 N. Paulina st.; Mrs. Nora Hartnett, 3610 Wayne av.; Mrs. Lenore Phillips, 3752 Magnolia av., and Mrs. Theresa Hughlett, 3612 Magnolia av.

Mothers Guild Active

Contributions worth $1,104 came from a residential area canvassed by the Mothers guild of St. Gertrude's church, 1420 Granville av. Mrs. A. J. Hayes, 6314 Lakewood av., captain, was assisted by Mrs. W. P. Schoen Jr., 1437 Glenlake av.; Mrs. G. H. Gorey, 1214 Glenlake av.; Mrs. L. H. Shurr, 1423 Rosemont av., and Mrs. Edna Harvey, 1509 Glenlake av.

Of the money raised in Chicago, 36 per cent will go into the community fund to help support 187 health and welfare agencies, the veteran's information center, and the community referral service.

Hopes for Better Future for Asia

EXHIBIT DEPICTS COLORFUL ERA IN CITY'S THEATERS

Reminders of a romantic and colorful period in Chicago's theatrical history is being recalled this month with the exhibition of playbills and posters at the Chicago Historical society, Clark st. at North av.

Several programs, dated 1857, commemorate the year McVicker's theater was built. The structure, costing $85,000, attested to the great progress of dramatic art in the middle west.

Maurice Barrymore came to the playhouse in "The Black Crook" in 1867, and other performances and performers contributing to the McVicker's fame were the Polish actress, Modjeska, in "As You Like It" in 1883, and Lily Langtry in the melodramatic "A Wife's Peril" in 1884.

Playbills from the Auditorium and the Grand Opera house announce the appearances of such famous Thespians of the latter half of the 18th century as Edwin Booth, Adelina Patti, Nat C. Goodwin, and Theodore Thomas.

Brightly colored billboards in the exhibit advertise "On to the Bowery," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and "The Fast Freight." Items are from the society's collection, gathered over half a century.

Concert-Forum

Jakob Gimpel, Polish pianist, will be guest artist at Temple Sholom concert-forum at 8:15 p. m. Wednesday at 3480 Lake Shore dr. He will play selections from well known masters.

OPA COMBINING 50 CITY RATION BOARDS INTO 7

North Side Will Be Served by Two

Announcement of the consolidation of the city's 50 war price and ration boards into 7 district boards was made recently by James F. Riley, director of the Chicago area OPA. Organization of the new boards, to be known as price control boards, will be completed by Jan. 1, Riley said.

"The reorganization should mean no inconvenience to the public," Riley said, "since any rationing that may continue after Jan. 1 will be handled thru the district office by mail." Complaints of price violations can be mailed to any of the seven price control boards, he said.

There will be two new north side boards that will include the following old boards, designated by their ward numbers: 77 E. 9th st.—42, and at a location yet to be determined—43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, and 50.

Riley urged all present board members to continue with the price control program by serving on the new boards.

Five New Girls Clubs Formed in Evanston

Evanston bureau of recreation girls clubs have been organized in St. Athanasisus and St. Nicholas schools and Boltwood, Foster, and Chandler-Leahy park centers. Trained leaders have been provided to conduct programs of athletics, dramatics, crafts, nature work, and social activities. Clubs meet weekly, in the afternoon in the schools and at night in the centers.

Church Society to Hold Yule Bazar, Bake Sale

Altar and Rosary society of St. Margaret Mary church, 7325 N. Claremont av., will sponsor a Christmas bazar and baked goods sale at 1 p. m. Thursday in the rectory hall.

GOUDY TO GIVE OWN YULE PLAY ON TELEVISION

Script to Show GIs on Pacific Isle

radio council, under direction of George Jennings, participates. Tuesday's program, "View to Education," covering a wide range of subjects for different grade levels, is presented at 1 p. m. At 1 p. m. Wednesday the war finance committee's victory bond drive program, Treasury Hour, is telecast, with the council furnishing a speaker and sometimes a group of student entertainers. At 8 p. m. each Thursday a high school talent show, Young Chicago, is presented.

Mrs. Marshall said Tuesday's series, which covers such fields as science, art literature, and social studies, is unique not only in scope but in the fact that students receive the programs as a supplement to classroom work and participate in producing them at the studios.

Do All the Planning

Both Goudy and Lake View students have planned programs from audio and video angles—audio referring to what is spoken and video to what may be shown on the telescreen. Planning includes script writing, costume and background planning and execution, casting of characters, rehersals, and final performance.

Students integrate subject matter of each program into class work by means of some follow up activity, usually group discussion. Before seeing his first telecast, each pupil sees a motion picture explaining the meaning of television.

Mrs. Marshall said Goudy and Lake View were chosen as experimental centers largely thru the efforts of Miss Marnell and Harry C. McKinsie, district 1 high schools superintendent, who has headquarters at Lake View. "Both have exhibited great enthusiasm for television as an educational medium," Mrs. Marshall said. "Miss Marnell has used radio in education for a long time."

AUNT MIN GETS BIG BANG FROM CARILLON MUSIC

Request Melodies Fill Air with Dulcet Tone

BY RUTH LOGAN

Without a song the day would never end—along Berteau av. That's the street where, without warning, strollers may be enveloped in melody—round, dulcet tones floating on the air so sweetly that even the trees seem to move in rhythm. The tune may be a hymn, wedding music, a college song, or "Dark Town Strutter's Ball."

But imaginative souls who expect Orpheus, Pan, or at least a pied piper to pop out of the bushes are disappointed. How could they know such melodies emanate from a carillon of a manufacturer of bells, chimes, and carillons at 1770 Berteau av.

Only Woman Arranger

At the console, unless automatic controls are in effect, is blonde and petite June Albright, 1100 Lawrence av., believed by her employers to be the only arranger and instructor of carillon music.

Hymns and wedding and birthday airs are played at request of neighbors, who may drop a note in the mail: "Will you please play 'Happy Birthday" at 11 a. m. for Aunt Minnie, who's 73 today?" or "My daughter is getting married. Please play 'O, Promise Me' at 4 p. m. tomorrow. It'll catch her as she's leaving church."

"Occasionally we play something like 'Abide with Me' for Uncle Amos, who—now he's dead—is remembered as a kind old man," commented Jack Deagan, vice president and general manager.

Considerate of Neighbors

"As a rule, we don't play the bells before 11 a. m., between 1 and 3 p. m., or after 9 p. m., Deagan continued. Also out of consideration for the neighbors, there's no practicing on the bells. An arrangement must be complete before it is played.

The company was established in 1880, has been on Berteau av. since 1910. It has benefited from Miss Albright's services since 1941. The company also manufactures marimbas, xylophones, vibraharps, and tuning forks, and has installed carillons thruout the United States and in Canada, South Africa, and Puerto Rico.

Miss Albright, former member of a marimba orchestra which played for the Chicago Music Festival several years ago, spends most of her time arranging music. She works in a studio from whose window a carillon is visible. "We once kept the carillon in the tower," observed Deagan, "but during the depression prospective buyers developed a desire to see what their money bought as well as to hear it."

Machine Makes Rolls

Miss Albright also makes perporated rolls, each carrying six selections, for use in automatic playing. A machine cuts slots in a roll as the carillon is played manually. "You can't tell the difference between manual and automatic playing," Deagan continued, "unless there's a mistake, and then you know it's manual."

Ten rolls and two weeks' instruction from Miss Albright accompany the installation of each carillon. "Organists always are reluctant to try their first arrangement," she commented. "They think they must pound the console, when only a very light touch is necessary. Sometimes people are surprised to learn a carillon is operated by a keyboard rather than by pulling ropes."

Altho carillons may have different numbers of bells for each note, their size ranges from 10 to 32 notes. Therefore Miss Albright must transpose selections to fit different sizes of carillons. "The Star Spangled Banner can be played on an 18 note size, but it takes a 32 note carillon for the Blue Danube waltz," she said. While maintaining that any type of music can be played on the instrument, she admitted it is better suited to other selections than "Holiday for Strings" or "Flight of the Bumble Bee."

Learned to Play Early

Miss Albright, who began playing a piano when she was 8 years old, just "drifted into a musical career." She couldn't play a carillon when she came to the company, but quickly picked it up, what with a music degree from Phillips university, Enid, Okla., and experience in playing piano, organ, and marimba.

Shortly before Pearl Harbor, the company initiated a new type of installation employing harmonic tuning, in which the prominent overtone of each bell is in tune with the fundamental note. Chicago churches with the new type of carillon are St. Jerome church, 1709 Lunt av., First Presbyterian church, 64th st. and Kimbark av., and St. Paul's church, Ohio st. and Lawler av.

MR. AND MRS. G. A. RICKER

Gwendolyn Jardine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Jardine, 1013 Harvard st., Evanston, became the bride of George A. Ricker Jr., whose parents live at 814 Dobson st., Evanston, in a ceremony in the suburb's Second Presbyterian church. The couple will live in Evanston after a trip to California and Mexico.

SEEK TO LEARN HOW FLUORINE AFFECTS TEETH

Evanston city council has authorized the suburb's participation in a 15 year study to determine whether the addition of fluorine to drinking water prevents teeth decay.

The experiment will be conducted by the Zoller Memorial Dental clinic at the University of Chicago, headed by J. Roy Blayney; the Illinois department of health, and Evanston health department.

In announcing the city's participation Dr. William H. Tucker, public health officer, stated the study will open about Jan. 1, when an X-ray dental study will be made of all city children 6 to 8 and 12 to 14. This step will consume approximately six months. When completed, fluorine will be added to the water.

Two Other Tests Conducted

This age group breakdown will allow study of children at the beginning and end of the period when they acquire all of their teeth except their wisdom molars.

Evanston is the third city in the country to study the effects of fluorine on teeth. The others are Grand Rapids, Mich., and Newburgh, N. Y. Tucker said interest in fluorine experiments dates from a decade of studies among people of Deaf Smith county, Tex., whose teeth were mottled with black or brown spots.

When investigation proved fluorine was responsible for the mottling, it also was discovered that few cases of teeth decay were existent in the county.

Tell of 1939 Findings

In 1939, a study of Illinois children showed that those residing in Waukegan, Evanston, and Oak Park, who obtained drinking water from the lake, showed two and a half times as much dental decay as those of the Fox river towns of Aurora, Joliet, and Elgin, where water is obtained from deep artesian wells in which one part per million is fluorine.

The difference between the Evanston study and that of Grand Rapids and Newburgh is that complete mouth X-rays of all children in the groups tested will be made.

FINDS CHILDREN OF NIPS DENIED ANY AFFECTION

After viewing the home life of children in Japan and other Pacific islands for the last 20 months, Staff Sgt. Lee Marshall, 3831 Fremont av., believes the success of the American way of life is due to the way in which American children are raised. Writing to friends in Chicago from Mitsuhama, Japan, he said Japanese children were starved for affection and until the arrival of the occupation forces they had received little. Now the soldiers treat them humanely, giving them gifts of candy and gum.

Sgt. Marshall has been in the army for 30 months. He has five battle stars for Guam, the Philippines, and Ie. On the latter island he was within 200 yards of Ernest Pyle when the correspondent was killed.

The sergeant was employed by an advertising agency before he entered the army.

Casia Club

The Casia club, 4740 N. Western av., will meet tomorrow for a Christmas party. Mrs. Howard Snyder will be guest soloist.

DR. J. G. BELLOWS RETURNS FROM ARMY SERVICE

Dr. John G. Bellows, 5240 Sheridan rd., has been discharged from the army and has resumed his practice at 30 N. Michigan av.

Dr. Bellows formerly was associated with Dr. Sanford Gifford, late head of the eye department at Northwestern university. Dr. Bellows entered the army more than two years ago.

While in the army, Dr. Bellows was a lieutenant colonel in charge of the eye surgical center at Wakeman General hospital, Camp Atterbury, Ind. This center specialized in the treatment of eye injuries received in battle.

RETIRED LAWYER LIKES QUIXOTIC READING HABITS

His Business at Library Is Something Else

Are you pound wise in buying books and penny foolish in paying library fines? Do you read one book at a time—or six? Do you read from front to back—or vice versa? Do you have fun with books—or are they doleful tomes?

George F. Anderson, 650 Wellington av., a bibliophile with originality, throws custom to the winds with a net result of fun. To begin with, he never has paid a fine in 50 years of borrowing a book each week from the public library. But he buys a book a week with no inkling of its title until a postman appears with the purchase!

Keeps Six Within Reach

It's quite in character for this retired lawyer to keep six volumes, Catholic as to subject matter, going simultaneously and to read by whim — occasionally beginning with the first chapter, often with the last. Philosophy, psychology, classics, modern best sellers, light fiction, and —naturally—law, all claim his attention.

Anderson spends a good part of each day in reading. Believing that technical volumes should be read when the mind is fresh, he saves lighter things for evening, and 10 p. m. may find him resuming perusal of such fiction as "Bleak House," "Cass Timberlane," or "Far Away Music."

He likes to browse thru open shelves in the public library. As he hears of books he'd like to own, Anderson writes orders on stamped, addressed postal cards. Each Saturday he shuffles this collection of cards, chooses one blind, drops it in the mail, and settles back to await the postman's arrival. Despite this habit, his home library contains only about 500 volumes, for Anderson frequently gives books to friends.

Follows Golden Rule

The lawyer's punctuality in returning books is due to his consideration for the library and other patrons. "Carrying nominal sums on the books is a nuisance, I should think," he commented, "and have you ever noticed the line of persons who must wait while a librarian checks to determine the correct fine?"

But Anderson's interest extends far beyond reading. For years he has contributed articles to two real estate magazines and the Chicago Economist. Since his retirement in May, 1944, he has written two books.

"When I retired, acquaintances thought I should write a book because I'd been practicing 38 years in Chicago," Anderson said. "I answered, 'Nonsense, why should I jump from the frying pan into the fire?' But, you know, the first day I stayed home I wrote a page, just to see what it would be like, and the next day I wrote another page, and soon I had a book!"

Will Sell It at Cost

The volume, "Real Estate Law in Action," includes material from Anderson's weekly lectures for the Chicago Bar association, 29 S. Wabash av. The Economist will publish the book in about a year, Anderson said, after the lectures are finished. "It's going to be sold at cost," he said. "I didn't write it for money—more as a farewell message to my brother lawyers." His other book, "Broker's Commission," also will be published soon.

Anderson is chairman of the association's lending library of fiction and nonfiction with a legal background, which was established at his suggestion several years ago.

A native Chicagoan and 1906 Northwestern university law school graduate, Anderson has taught in evening schools since he began practice—first in the Chicago Law school and later in John Marshall Law school. He was born on 23d pl. near Archer av., attended Harrison grammar school with Mayor Kelly, and was graduated from South Division High school.

DE PAUL SCHOOL TO GIVE CHARITY BALL SATURDAY

Amid a winter wonderland where dances have such picturesque names as "Reindeer Prance," "Snowflake Swirl," and "Mistletoe Mood," students in De Paul university's secretarial school, 64 E. Lake st., will hold their 18th Christmas charity ball Saturday night in the Congress hotel.

Jeanne Cronin

A patriotic motif will enter activities at midnight when Jeanne Moriarity is crowned Victory queen against a background of lighted Christmas trees and a draped American flag. To the strains of "The Stars and Stripes Forever," Beverly Kennedy, general chairman, will lead the queen, her eight attendants, and their escorts to a platform at the south end of the ballroom.

Bureau Arranges Dates

Each attendant will present a gift to the queen. Garlands of red roses also will be given. After the coronation Marion Flyke will sing the national anthem. North side attendants include: Jeanne Cronin, 6343 Wayne av.; Elizabeth Condit, 1719 Ridge av., Evanston, and Joan Kennedy, 62 W. Washington blvd.

A date bureau which opened Nov. 28 has arranged escorts for teachers as well as a large number of coeds. Applications of persons wishing escorts were matched as to physical appearance and residential community, after which co-eds wrote invitations with recipients answering by mail or phone.

Serve on Committee

North siders on an arrangements committee include Marian Wilhelm, 5257 Clark st.; Lois Praiter, 5014 N. Hermitage av.; Betty Ann Penny, 1459 Gregory st.; Evelyn Bussone, 833 George st., and Miss Cronin.

Proceeds will go into a charity fund, administered by the Very Rev. Comerford J. O'Malley, university president, for benefit of De Paul's day nursery, St. Vincent's orphanage, and similar philanthropies. The fund is replenished semi-annually by benefits sponsored by secretarial school co-eds.

MEMORIAL FUND WILL AID BLOOD DISEASE FIGHT

The Helen Schuman Finnerman fund founded in memory of a leukemia victim by the Hematology Research foundation will be used for the hospitalization of patients for treatment of rare blood diseases, it has been announced. A second fund, the Ruth Reader Fellowship in hematology, will aid graduate students working on doctor of philosophy degrees. Mrs. Victor Ruben is the presiding officer of the organization in the absence of the president, Mrs. Phillip Marcus.

Temple Israel

Ann Birk Kuper will interpret John Marquand's play, "The Late George Apley" at a luncheon of North Shore Temple Israel sisterhood tomorrow in the temple, Glencoe. The luncheon will close a ways and means campaign under Mrs. Gabe Joseph.

GIRLS AT FRONT, TOO, REMEMBER HELMET BATHS

Worker in Red Cross Is Back in Evanston

Dorothy Myrick

An encounter with a Belgian hairdresser, use of French perfumes to eke out too many helmet baths, bivouacs in apple orchards and swamps, feeding flyers returning from combat whose hands shook so they couldn't hold a coffee cup—such experiences as these were stored up by Dorothy Myrick, 2255 Ridge av., Evanston, during two years with a Red Cross clubmobile in Europe.

After serving doughnuts, coffee, recorded music, and bright smiles to front line troops from Omaha beach in Normandy thru Belgium, Holland, Germany, and Czechoslovakia, Miss Myrick has returned to her former work as a Northwestern university theater staff member.

Serves with Spaatz's Daughter

In London Miss Myrick was assigned to a clubmobile with Katharine Spaatz, daughter of Gen. Spaatz, and two other girls. For a time they were billeted in a wing of Quidenham hall, Norwich, estate of the earl of Albermarle. After D-day their clubmobile was one of the first to enter Normandy.

After three months of helmet baths, the girls were glad to find bathtubs in Paris and to stock up on French perfumes. They weren't the only ones to buy cologne, Miss Myrick said, for a Belgian hairdresser used his supply so lavishly in waving their hair that even the doughnuts seemed flower scented for days afterward. They had gone to his shop, hoping to recover from the affects of a permanent given by a Dutch hairdresser who looked like the villain in a horror movie, the Evanston girl recalled.

In Pilsen on V-E Day

Early in 1945 the group crossed the Rhine on a pontoon bridge at Remagen and followed the 9th army deep into Germany. "The German women we encountered were the healthiest, best looking, and best clothed of any we had seen in Europe. We especially were envious of the silk stockings all of them seemed to have," Miss Myrick declared.

They were in Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, on V-E day. "The day was greeted with relief and not with wild celebration," Miss Myrick said. "We just listened to radio broadcasts and the next day continued our schedule, which became a golden period in clubmobile life for there were no front lines and all units of our infantry division were reached easily."

YOUNG PEOPLE OF ANSHE EMET TO HEAR PANEL

Maj. Gerald G. Bolotin, 87 E. Elm st., has been awarded the bronze star by Gen. Hodges for meritorious service in military operations. Maj. Bolotin established a transportation pool for the movement of supplies into Paris using only captured German vehicles. He is stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Comdr. Sidney Sideman, 809 Stratford pl., a Chicago surgeon, has been released from the navy in Los Angeles, Cal., and is returning to Chicago to resume his practice. A graduate of the University of Illinois, he entered the navy in August, 1942, and served in the Solomon Islands as a naval orthopedic surgery specialist.

BUILD A HOME THAT YOU CAN ADD TO LATER

BY LOUISE BARGELT

With the time close at hand when many homes will be built and plans for many more seriously considered, we will mention a few trends to consider before you actually embark on building or remodeling.

If you are a young married couple with a limited amount to invest and yet wish to own your home, consider a flexible house, or one which you can enlarge later. Build the basic part first, the equivalent perhaps of a four or five room apartment. But build the type of house which can grow gracefully, take on added rooms as family needs increase.

Future additions must be planned if they are to be carried out later with economy and contribute to the good looks of the house. This type planning has long been recognized as a good idea, but it looks as if more and more plans of the house which can grow will take tangible form from now on.

Plan Storage Carefully

Figure carefully just how much storage space you will need and have this space expertly engineered for the household possessions it must accommodate. Architects and builders and manufacturers are spending more time and thought than ever before on developing highly efficient storage areas in a home.

This need will be felt more in the future than in the past, since there will be few of the old type, vast, rambling attics overhead. In many instances the basement also will be omitted. So not only must the utility room be wisely planned, but every room in the house must offer, in small or large measure, built-in units, cases, cabinets, and drawers.

Then, too, discuss with your architect and builder the new accoustical treatments, especially for bathroom, playroom, laundry, gameroom, and kitchen; in brief, for all those "noisy" rooms.

Separate Noise Areas

In addition to accoustical ceiling tiles, to sound absorbent plasters and insulating boards and other developments, much greater quiet can be given to a house by a deft separation of its work, play, and rest areas. The work areas include the service rooms, kitchen, and perhaps garage, while the play or recreation areas include the living room, dining room, the game room, porch, and terrace.

There are many variations possible in floor plans, so that they may meet individual family requirements. Thoughtful planning before building can result in added comforts and happier family relationships.

NILES TWP. HIGH WILL SING YULE VESPERS TODAY

Choral students of Niles Township High school, Skokie, will present their second Christmas vespers concert at 4 p. m. today in the gymnasium, with Clara A. Klaus, choral music director, conducting a mixed choir and girls glee club of 115 vested singers.

This Week in the Garden

Many thousand plants will be received as gifts at Christmas time and many recipients will not know how to care for them. Some plants are hardly worth keeping after their period of greatest attractiveness has passed; others will be well worth keeping and growing further. If you are giving plants as Christmas gifts, select the more substantial kinds, for they can be kept for a long time, and in the end will be more appreciated.

Among the most useful plants that can be kept are the unusual Norfolk Island pine, an evergreen tree of large size which is grown by florists to the juvenile state as pot plants. It has fine foliage that appears on branches arranged in tiers or whorls giving a most pleasing effect.

The gift of a Christmas cactus brings forth one of the most beautiful flowering plants to be found anywhere, but unless it is understood, few flowers are produced. Care must be exercised that too much water is not applied just after the plant is brought indoors. During November a little more water can be given, but too much will cause the buds to drop.

African Violet Plants

Many saintpaulia or African violet plants will be given. It is a fine subject for any room. Save it, but give it planty of light. During winter it will do well in light, sunny, south window, but during summer a very light, north window is the best place. Water from below, but never permit the pot to stand in water for a long time. A lack of light is the cause for indifferent flowering.

The poinsettia and cyclamen should be discarded after flowering for they are difficult to grow and flower a second time in the home.

The appealing Lorraine or Melior begonias, with their great clusters of pink flowers of exquisite beauty, are among the high class Christmas plants. They last a long time in attractive bloom, but the soil should be kept moist, and sudden changes in tempertures avoided. Gas will affect them. After flowering throw the plants away, for they never do well in the home.

Lists Other Begonias

Some of the other begonias are ideal as gifts, but few are seen on the stands. Among those which do well are the shrubby kinds, such as President Carnot, with fine clusters of red flowers; the old time B. metallica, argentea guttata, lucerna, and others. These should be saved, for they grow into fine specimens. They may sand in a south window during the winter, but should have plenty of fresh air and a temperature of 60 to 70 degrees.

Primroses should be discarded, for they are annuals and difficult to carry over. Give blooming plants the flimsy shade of a thin curtain. Water daily.

The luxuriant calla flowers from October to June, grow in moist soil in a south window where there is the maximum sun. Fertilize once a month.

Bulbous plants are fine pot plants and chief among them are the hyacinth, tulip, and narcissus. Frequently the grape hyacinth, a pretty small blue-flowered plant, is grown as are the crocus and others. With the exception of the Chinese sacred lily, paperwhite, and yellow soil d'or narcissus which are thrown away, all should be saved, kept watered to enable the foliage to develop, cured or stored when the leaves turn yellow, and planted in the garden in autumn. The narcissus gets better each year until it grows into large clumps unless it is tender and unable to stand freezing weather.

All ferns should be retained and grown into beautiful specimens, the Boston ferns and holly fern being the common kinds grown. They are seasonable thruout the year. They like a moist soil and abundant, subdued light. They should be replanted in spring and if desired can be planted out on the north side of the house and repotted in fall in a soil that contains considerable organic matter. The brown dots that are found on the underside of the fronds [leaves] are the sori [sacs] in which the spores are produced.

RURAL TASTE IN RADIO DIFFERS FROM CITY LIKES

Prefer Serious Program, Survey Shows

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Country people's tastes in radio is somewhat different from that of city folk. That is one conclusion to be drawn from an examination of a 120 page study of "Attitudes of Rural People Toward Radio Service" made by the bureau of agricultural economics and released by the federal communications commission. The report is based on interviews conducted with 2,535 farm and nonfarm families from 116 counties selected to provide a cross-section of the nation's rural areas.

While radio surveys reflecting mainly the preferences of city people show comedy variety shows are the overwhelming favorites, rural people generally seem to prefer the more serious type of programs, such as news and market reports, religious music, and sermons. They also like old time [hillbilly?] music.

Would Miss News Most

Men prefer news and information, but rural women rate entertainment somewhat more highly. An "overwhelming majority" say they would miss news most if they had to do without a radio. Serials are second only to news among women. At the same time, the serial drama created "strong feelings of rejection." Dance music was next on the list of programs disliked, and then came classical music and opera.

The reason for disliking classical music, however, is generally different from the prejudice against the other disliked items. They admit they don't go for the old masters because they don't understand them.

The amount of time spent listening in the country varies greatly, but three out of four said they turn off their sets at times because of lack of interest in the programs available, and one-third reported that they do so often.

Noon Peak Listening Hour

The hours of listening are in striking contrast with those of city folk. In the city the peak hours are between 7 and 10 p. m. In the country the peak comes at noon, with 44 per cent of the families tuning in then, the survey found. Two-thirds of the farm folk who have radios turn them on before 8 a. m. and one-eighth of them before 6 a. m. Twenty-six per cent of the listening is done in the morning, 10 per cent in late morning, then the peak at noon, 6 per cent in the afternoon, and 11 per cent in the evening.

Most rural people value radio highly and the loss of their sets would "make a great difference" to three-fourths. Typical comments on the attitude toward radio: "I am just lost when the radio is broken," "Going without radio would be just like going back to old fashioned lights," "I simply couldn't stay at home," "I look upon radio as my companion."

Now and then, the surveyors come up with a contrary response: "If it weren't for my family I'd throw the radio out," "All you hear is junk and commercials and murder mysteries."

Will Figure at Hearing

Rural listeners appear not to be highly conscious of any need for improved programming. The FCC contends that this is because "very few of these people have any point of reference, either actual or ideal, with which to compare present radio programming; as a consequence, they tend to accept the radio they know as the natural order of things."

The survey is expected to figure in the clear channel station hearings which the FCC has called for Jan. 14. Clear channel stations provide most of the coverage for many rural areas.

Aids TB Fight

DAVID LEE BROWN

David Lee Brown, 4 years old, who is heard on W-G-N's Funny Paper Party on which CHICAGO TRIBUNE comics are read at 11 a. m. Sundays, gives a living note to the 1945 Christmas Seal design. The seals are sold to aid in the fight against tuberculosis. Park Phipps, who designed the seal, called the picture a "splendid portrayal of the idea embodied in the 1945 Christmas seal."

JUDY CANOVA, PERRY COMO ON HALL OF FAME

Judy Canova and Perry Como will visit the Radio Hall of Fame on WENR-ABC at 5 p. m. today. Paul Whiteman, his orchestra, and Martha Tilton, songstress, are regulars on the show.

Miss Canova is a Whiteman discovery, so her appearance with him today will be something of a reunion. She will offer "Darling Nellie Gray," the tune she was singing for a vaudeville audience the day Whiteman first heard her and hired her to work with his band. Perry Como will sing a group of popular selections.

Cathedral Shelter on W-G-N's Youth Looks Up

Youth Looks Up to be aired on W-G-N at 8 a. m. today will honor the Cathedral Shelter and Church of the Epiphany. The program, which is conducted by Philip Maxwell, will be welcomed by the Rev. Joseph F. Higgins, associate pastor.

Durante and Kyser on Request Performance

Jimmy Durante, Kay Kyser, Andy Russell, and Georgia Carroll will be heard on Request Performance over WBBM-CBS at 8 o'clock tonight. They will tailor the show's entertainment to listeners' requests.

HUBERMAN IS PHILHARMONIC SOLOIST TODAY

Bronislaw Huberman, violinist, will be soloist on the New York Philharmonic program over WBBM-CBS at 2 p. m. today. He will play Mozart's D major Violin Concerto. Bruno Walter will direct the orchestra in Corelli's Concerto Grosso No. 8 in G minor and Schumann's First Symphony. During intermission, Dr. James Franck will discuss "Medical Benefits from Atomic Energy."

"Babes in Toyland" Next for Theater of the Air

Victor Herbert's "Babes in Toyland" will be broadcast as the Christmas program of the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N and Mutual at 9 p. m. next Saturday. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker. Penny Perry, soprano, and Angelo Raffaelli, will be the leading singers. Robert Trendler will conduct the orchestra. This program and the one of the following week will be broadcast from W-G-N's main audience studio.

Holiday Music Highspots W-G-N Symphonic Hour

The Chicago Philharmonic orchestra, under the baton of Henry Weber, will salute the holiday season with a program of light music over W-G-N at 8:30 Tuesday evening. A performance of Prokofieff's "Peter and the Wolf," with John Barclay as narrator, will form the major portion of the broadcast. The orchestra also will offer Toch's "Pinocchio" and Corelli's "Christmas Concerto."

Rose Bampton Sings on Sunday Evening Hour

When the Sunday Evening hour presents its 400th radio performance on WLS-ABC at 7 o'clock tonight, Rose Bampton, soprano, will be soloist. She will sing "Mi Chiamano, Mimi," from Puccini's "La Boheme"; Obradors' "Del Cabellos Mas Sutil," La Forge's "Song of the Open," Warren's "Christmas Candle," and, accompanied by a chorus, the "Inflammatus," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater." A brief history of the musical program will be heard.

Theater Guild Drama Stars Fredric March

Fredric March and his wife, Florence Eldridge, will star in "The Royal Family" to be aired over the Theater Guild on the Air via WENR-ABC at 9 o'clock tonight. On tonight's broadcast March will be recreating a role which won him a film contract when he was touring with he George S. Kaufman-Edna Ferber play in 1928.

Fred Allen's Visitor

Lauritz Melchior will visit Fred Allen on WMAQ-NBC at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Regulars on the Allen show include Minerva Pious, Portland Hoffa, Parker Fennelly, Irving Kaufman, and Ken Delmar.

CAROL SING ON FUTURE CITIZENS HOUR SATURDAY

Twelve hundred students from suburban high schools will contribute to a special pre-Christmas program of Citizens of Tomorrow to be aired over W-G-N at 9:30 a. m. Saturday. The group were guests at last night's Theater of the Air performance of "Hansel and Gretel" The Christmas program was recorded afterwards. The Rev. John B. Hubbard of St. Mary's Episcopal church, Park Ridge, is the speaker. William C. Wingo, Argo Community High senior, will read school news. Walter Armbruster, Thornton Township High school, will conduct the group in carol singing. Philip Maxwell conducts the program.

Labor Arbitration Is Topic of WBBM Forum

"Should We Adopt the President's Plan for Compulsory Labor Arbitration?" will be the topic on People's Platform over WBBM at 10:15 a. m. today. Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.], Rep. Hook [R., Mich.], Rep. Morrison [D., La.], and Rep. Fischer [D., Tex.] will participate.

START RUSSELL SQUARE'S FUND DRIVE FOR BOYS

Seek $5,000 to Aid St. Michael's Club

Russell Square Community committee has opened its annual drive to raise funds for St. Michael's Boys club. This year's goal is $5,000, which sum will be used to purchase new equipment and help enlarge Camp Lange, near Michigan City, Ind.

More than 40 workers have volunteered to take part in a house to house solicitation. They have been divided into eight teams and will cover the territory from 79th to 87th sts. and from the lake to Yates av.

In addition to this, the following special divisions and their chairmen have been appointed: Business division — Ward Committeeman Ryan [D., 7th], State Sen. Butler [R., 13th], Ald. Bohling [7th], and A. S. Brzezinski; professional division—State Rep. Mioduski [D., 13th] and Dr. Theodore Guzik; special donations division—Juvenile Judge Bicek and John Peter Lulinski, assistant United States district attorney; women's division—Mrs. Lillian Zilkowski and the community division headed by Stephen Stofko.

More Than 600 Members

Both the club and camp are nonprofit and nonsectarian. The former is housed in the old St. Michael's school building at 3160 E. 83d st., and has a membership exceeding 500 boys and 100 girls. It carries on such activities as naturalization classes and a Red Cross unit for adults.

The club was organized in 1924 by St. Michael's church and was taken over by the committee in 1933. From its humble beginning of two small rooms it has expanded until now the first floor of the building is clubrooms, the second floor classrooms and a kindergarten, and the third floor a large gymnasium. Sylvester Lulinski is personnel chairman and club supervisor. There are various group workers. The Rev. Francis J. Lisniak of St. Michaels is the club's spiritual adviser.

Active in the juvenile deliquency department is Theophil Osinski. Since the committee has taken over, figures in juvenile delinquency cases in that district have shown a sharp decline. In 1932-'33 reports showed 78 boys out of every 1,000 had to be taken into court; in 1945 the figure had fallen to 17 per 1,000.

Get Camp Site in 1935

More than 750 residents in the area contributed $5,000 in 1934-'35 to purchase 28 acres of land for the camp near Michigan City. Thirty men—carpenters, plumbers, bricklayers, and others — volunteered time ranging from two days to nine weeks to build bunkhouses, a dining hall, kitchen, a chemical sanitation plant, and wellhouse. Formal dedication was in 1939 when the site was christened Camp Lange after the Rev. John M. Lange, pastor of St. Michael's parish.

Among those active in the current drive are Jack Przyblinski, 3107 E. 83d st.; Roman Sadowski, 8828 Commercial av., and Dr. Ted Urbanek, 9205 Commercial av. Officers of the community committee include John G. Sujewicz, 8228 South Shore dr., president; Louis Gruszczyk, 8245 Brandon av., vice president; Nick Abramowicz, 8255 Brandon av., secretary; William Romanowski, 8222 Houston av., treasurer; Casimir Gwizdalski, 8261 Brandon av., controler, and Atty. Lulinski, counsel.

Board members include John Anaszewicz, Barney Dalewski, Brzezinski, Theodore Fredericks, and Alexander Imbrowicz.

U. OF C. GRADUATE AIDS CLUBMOBILE OF RED CROSS IN GERMANY

Elizabeth Essington

Elizabeth Essington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thurlow G. Essington, 5811 Dorchester av., has been serving the last year and a half with an American Red Cross clubmobile unit in England, France, Austria, and now in the American occupied section of Germany.

She was in England during the robot bomb raids and very near the front in Germany when the end of the war came. She had made the trip to what was then the rapidly moving army front by plane, jeep, and army convoy over hastily constructed pontoon bridges.

The Red Cross worker attended the University of California in Los Angeles, and was graduated from the University of Chicago. She was a member of the Red Cross motor corps here, and is a licensed air pilot and a member of the civil air patrol.

Children Are as Busy as Adult Christmas Shoppers with Their Own, Private Projects

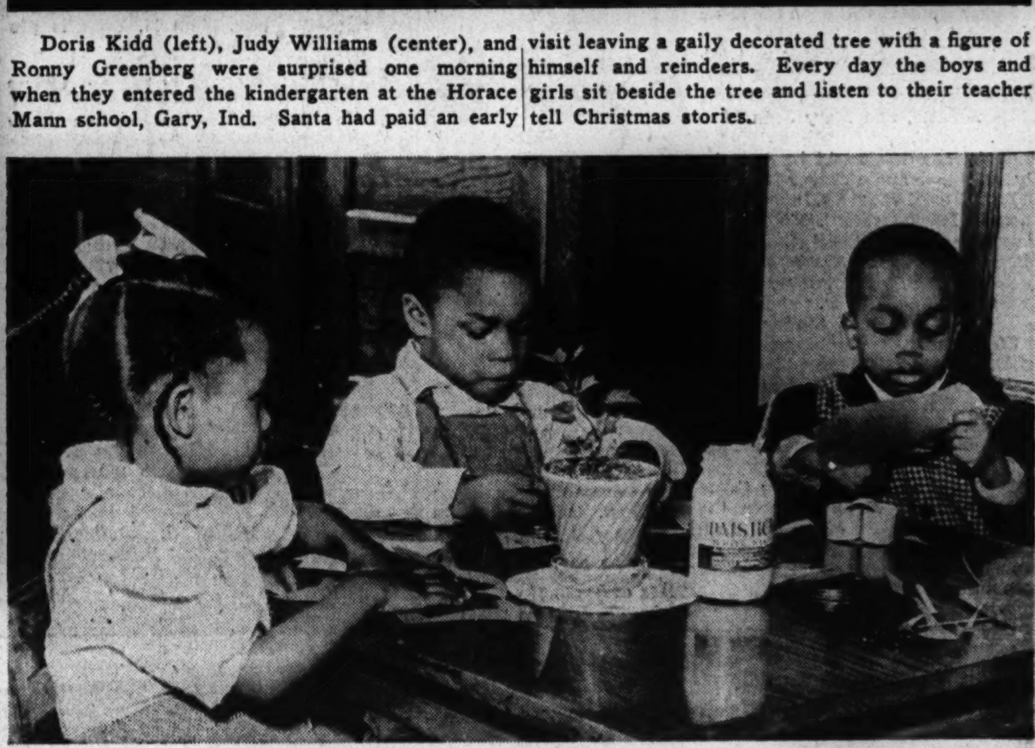
All in a glow of eager anticipation are children of kindergarten age thruout the south shore area. Some older folks may scoff at the thought, but the children know that Santa Claus and his reindeer soon will be visiting each and every home. Judith Cherco, 4903 Lake Park av., was so sure that Santa would be here before long that she helped decorate the Christmas tree at Kenwood school, 4949 Blackstone av., with paper chains and angels which she helped make. She plans on helping daddy trim the family tree even tho she has to stand on a chair to reach some of the higher boughs.

Since early in the month boys and girls have been preparing for the big day. At Fiske school, 6145 Ingleside av., one of the major projects is the making of paper stockings to hang on individual Christmas trees. Grouped about the table are Marcia Borst (left), 6027 Kimbark av.; Dennis Winder, 1025 E. 61st st., and Irene Haass, 6240 University av.

Proof of the universality of Santa's appeal can be seen in the facial expression of Jacqueline Miyahara, 824 E. 61st pl., as she hangs a paper cut-out on the bulletin board tree in Fiske kindergarten.

A Christmas crib was erected in the kindergarten of St. Patrick's school, 9525 Commercial av., when the sister in charge told the tots about the origin of the day. Examining the manger and Babe (from left) are Conrad Kruswicki, 9333 Muskegan av.; Geraldine Lombardi, 3046 E. 93d st.; Eunice Naminski, 9607 Exchange av., and Edward Kirtz, 9329 Muskegon av.

Doris Kidd (left), Judy Williams (center), and Ronny Greenberg were surprised one morning when they entered the kindergarten at the Horace Mann school, Gary, Ind. Santa had paid an early visit leaving a gaily decorated tree with a figure of himself and reindeers. Every day the boys and girls sit beside the tree and listen to their teacher tell Christmas stories.



Every one knows that preparing for the holiday is half of the fun. Joan Burnett, 4132 Calumet av.; George Young (center), 4029 Calumet av., and Charles Raickett, 474 E. 41st., st., are cutting and pasting at Felsenthal kindergarten, 4101 Calumet av. If you try to find out what they're making, you'll learn that kiddies can be as secretive as grownups.

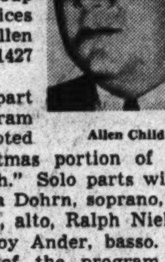
SHERWIN WILLIAMS CHOIR TO SING YULE SONGS WEDNESDAY



Allen Child

The Sherwin Williams Choral club will present its Christmas program at 8:15 p. m. Wednesday in the auditorium of Fenger High school, 112th and Wallace sts. The chorus is a group of 70 mixed voices directed by Allen V. Child, 11427 Campbell av.

The first part of the program will be devoted to the Christmas portion of Handel's "Messiah." Solo parts will be sung by Paula Dohrn, soprano, Gertrude Hanson, alto, Ralph Niehaus, tenor, and Roy Ander, basso. The second half of the program will consist of Christmas carols and novelty numbers by the chorus with Miss Marion Jonkman and Niehaus as soloists. During the intermission William Spitzer, pianist, will play. Dan Berg is piano accompanist and Earl Mitchell will be at the organ.

Proceeds from the program will benefit the Will-Sher-Win Charity club. This is a social organization of women employes.

GIRLS WRAP UP FALL PROJECT IN GAY PAPERS

Scouts' Gifts Will Go Many Places

South side Girl Scout troops made plans early last fall to distribute Christmas gifts to hospitalized service men and the needy. Now they are putting final touches to fancy wrappings.

A city wide project for the Scouts will be sending a present to each of the 3,000 patients at McIntyre hospital at Great Lake Naval Training center.

One hundred and thirty south side troops have pledged to send 500 $2 gifts. The packages will contain one of the following articles: cigaret lighter, wallet, automatic pencil, picture album, gloves, and pocket knife.

Troop 57, under the direction of Mrs. F. J. Hollinan, 1518 S. Michigan av., is making 20 "friendship bags" for Girl Guides in foreign countries. Each cloth drawstring bag will contain personal items that sister scouts in liberated countries are unable to buy, these include bobbie pins, combs, thread, buttons, soap, hard candy, and hair ribbons.

The Scouts of troop 222, under the leadership of Mrs. C. H. Buckles, 7801 Euclid av., have made cloth toys, games, and scrap books which will be distributed to children in city hospitals.

Twenty girls from troops 254 and 124 will present a program of holiday songs in the Colored Home for the Aged, 4430 Vincennes av., on Dec. 27.

SANTA TO MAKE THE ROUNDS AT PARK PARTIES

Won't Travel Light, Rumor Has It

It certainly is amazing the way Santa Claus gets around. It's enough to make a body suspicious or something. In just this coming week for example he is scheduled to visit at least six south side parks, not to mention all the other parks thruout the city.

Occasion for his visits are the parties to be held by the park district for neighborhood youngsters. One of the biggest will be held at Madden park, 3800 Rhodes av. K. A. Bristol, supervisor, has reported that the Christmas celebration there will be a three day affair beginning at 8 p. m. Wednesday with an amateur hour program. Music will be supplied by the newly formed park orchestra, directed by S. Walford Young. A short playlet will be given.

Tree Will Greet Him

Santa Claus has announced he will appear at the party to be held at 4:30 p. m. Thursday, and says he will hand out gifts. In anticipation, the youngsters have been busy making decorations for their Christmas tree which will greet the bearded old man's arrival. Carols will be sung, game will be played, and last but not least, refreshments will be served.

At 8 p. m. Thursday, the drama league at the park will stage "Thirty Minutes with Santa Claus." Miss Louise Overall is director and leading parts will be played by Vera Wyatt, Jeanette Rauls, Harold Bell, Edna Jones, George Barber, Raymond Jones, James Wyatt, and Marshall Lindsey.

Santa Will Return

Because there are so many youngsters to be taken care of Santa promises to stop by again at 4:30 p. m. Friday with more gifts and another party. Closing the festivities will be a theater party at 2 p. m. Dec. 24, which is being given by the park in coöperation with a local theater. Members of the drama league will have their own private party the day after Christmas.

Santa Claus will meet the youngsters of Armour Square park, 33d st. and Shields av., at 4 p. m. Friday. As usual he will come bearing gifts and the youngsters will be ready for him with a tree set up by themselves and covered with decorations of their own making. Ralph Bordin, supervisor, has announced games, stunts, and carol singing. There will be light refreshments and candy will be given as prizes.

Expect 200 at Tuley

John Morris, supervisor at Tuley park, 90th st. and St. Lawrence av., expects about 200 youngsters for a party at 4 p. m. Friday. Admission will be 50 pounds of scrap paper for the park's drive. Santa Claus will be on hand and there will be gifts, games, movies, carol singing, and refreshments.

Where usually the youngsters put on a playlet, the tables are to be turned Friday at 3:30 p. m. at Hardin Square park, 26th st. and Wentworth av. It will be the adult instructors who will appear in this year's play. George Bicanick, supervisor, says he expects about 300 youngsters to be on hand to see the program and catch a glimpse of Santa. Gifts will be handed out, carols sung, and refreshments served.

Avalon Story Planned

Youngsters at Avalon park, 83d st. and Kimbark av., will hear the Christmas story as told by their supervisor, Slater Brochman. A tree will be decorated by the children with decorations of their own making, and altho it is not certain whether Santa can make it or not, there will be a grab bag, as well as games and carols. The party will be held at 4:30 p. m. Monday, Dec. 24.

The Christmas program at Calumet park, 98th st. and the lake, will be held at 7:30 p. m. Thursday. The Drama club, directed by Mrs. Adymae Hathaway, will present "Christmas in Toyland." Santa Claus will be there and the park's rhythm band and dancing classes will entertain.

Sheridan PTA

Sheridan PTA will meet at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday in the school. A Christmas program will be given by the children. Mrs. Willard Schulty will be hostess.

WELL, WORMY! YOU HAVE ONLY EIGHT LIVES NOW

So Take Heed and Go Easy on the Catnip

BY JANET PECK

To begin with Wormy always was an unusual cat. Altho but half grown, no matter how big or noisy the dog that came into Brunner's drug store at 1238 E. 53d st., he merely stared with friendly interest and continued to sleep, wash himself, or rub affectionately against the counters. Dogs just didn't cut any ice with him.

Ever since he was given to Brunner as a little white kitten he had been a favorite with the store personnel, and eventually with several of the customers, too. Often they would stop to inquire after his welfare, for he was an adventurous cat who was always up to something, such as running away from home for a couple of days, or getting into Brunner's packages of catnip. Once, to every one's consternation, he got stuck between two buildings and it took Brunner and half the youngsters in the neighborhood to free him.

Catastrophe Strikes Store

Deep sorrow struck the store and customers on a recent rainy night when a child ran in to announce that Wormy had been hit by an automobile. Brunner ran to the curb and there lay a little white cat in the gutter, badly hurt. Brunner picked him up tenderly and brought him into the store, then spent the next half hour trying to locate a veterinarian.

After half a dozen tries he discovered that a veterinarians' meeting was being held in the Loop. None was available to care for injured cats. Mrs. Brunner was in tears. The help was standing by, altho it was past quitting time, to see how it turned out. Brunner was mopping his brow, and robbing the cash register to pay the telephone. Then he went to work on the Anti-Cruelty and the Humane societies. Both places declared, however, that they always put an animal to sleep when it had been hit by a car.

But that wouldn't do. Wormy must have every chance. Finally as a last resort Brunner took a hypodermic needle and gave the pussy a shot of morphine to ease his pain. The cat reacted by dying.

Funeral Procession Begins

By this time it was in the wee hours of the morning, but every one was so wrought up there were no thoughts of home or bed. They decided to get a nice box and bury the cat immediately. Mrs. Brunner's eyes were swollen from crying. It was a sorrowful occasion. Gently they laid him away, and had just taken the box outside when who should come strolling leisurely across the street but Wormy!

"It was like a feline Tom Sawyer returning at his own funeral service," said Brunner. "We certainly were glad to have him back, but the cat that was hit did resemble him."

The store was so happy to have Wormy back that he hasn't been scolded since. Not even when he plays in the coal bin or knocks over the packages of catnip. And the customers are even more solicitious about Wormy's welfare than ever, as they lean on the counter or stoop and pet him—with a "Well, what has Wormy been into today?"

Mothers Round Table to Hold Yule Program

The Woodlawn Mothers' Round Table will have its Christmas program Wednesday afternoon in the club rooms of the First Presbyterian church, 6400 Kimbark av. Mrs. F. L. PRANCING DEER TO BE THE JOY OF YOUNGSTERS

For the last several weeks, like every one else, Lillian Galbreath of 9573 Dobson av. has been extra busy getting ready for Christmas. However, unlike others, she is not working on her own gifts; rather, on those for shoppers who will stop in to buy at Santa's Attic, the shop in the quarters of the Illinois Association for the Crippled, 116 S. Michigan av.

Among the hundreds of handicraft items there on sale will be several of her little stuffed deer of gayly striped and printed cotton, as well as some of her handmade Christmas cards. Artistic by nature, Miss Gallbreath finds the making of these articles comes easy. Tho able to get around some, Lillian has been ill the last five years with heart trouble.

Materials Plus Ingenuity

When making the little animals she stuffs them with soft cotton matting. Then, using her own ingenuity, she sews in the ears, eyes, nose, and mouth. She confesses she never knows just how the face is going to look when it's finished. "Some look slightly surprised at the world," she said, "some look puzzled, and some kind of forlorn." After sewing on a saucy bit of tail and tieing a jaunty ribbon round its neck, presto! she has a toy deer any small master would be pleased to find under his Christmas tree.

Her Christmas cards are carefully drawn and colored with tempera paints. They include some with the traditionally jolly Santas, as well as those with wise men and the star that led them.

Studies by Correspondence

Miss Galbreath, who is 21, lives with her mother. She had to stop her high school education, but is taking a correspondence course in hope of finishing it. Her hobby is drawing and she spends most of her time on that.

Volunteers making Christmas articles for sale at Santa's Attic are furnished the materials by the association and are paid monthly for their products. Proceeds of the sale are used by the association to assist handicapped persons.

PTA AT HARVARD TO SEE PROGRAM GIVEN BY PUPILS

The Harvard school for Boys PTA will meet Wednesday afternoon in the school. A program, "Christmas in Many Lands," directed by Mrs. Ruth B. Fiscella, will be presented by students in the lower school. Holland will be portrayed by fourth graders Lawrence Straus, Dennis Mahn, John Chandler, Morton Miller, and Henry Kahn. Fifth graders portraying England include Joseph Cannon, James Compere, Charles Walgreen, and Douglas Earle. Poland will be depicted by James Reid and Robert Rosenberg, sixth graders. Seventh graders David Maher, Andrew Karzas, and Mervin Phillips will portray Mexico. John Berman and John Peckham of the eighth grade will depict France. The grade school band also will be on the program. Mrs. John N. Gage is program chairman.

CONVERT WILSON JUNIOR COLLEGE Y INTO TOYLAND

The Y. W. C. A. of Wilson Junior college, 6800 Stewart av., will become a toyland at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday when members and their mothers attend the Christmas party dressed in fairyland costumes.

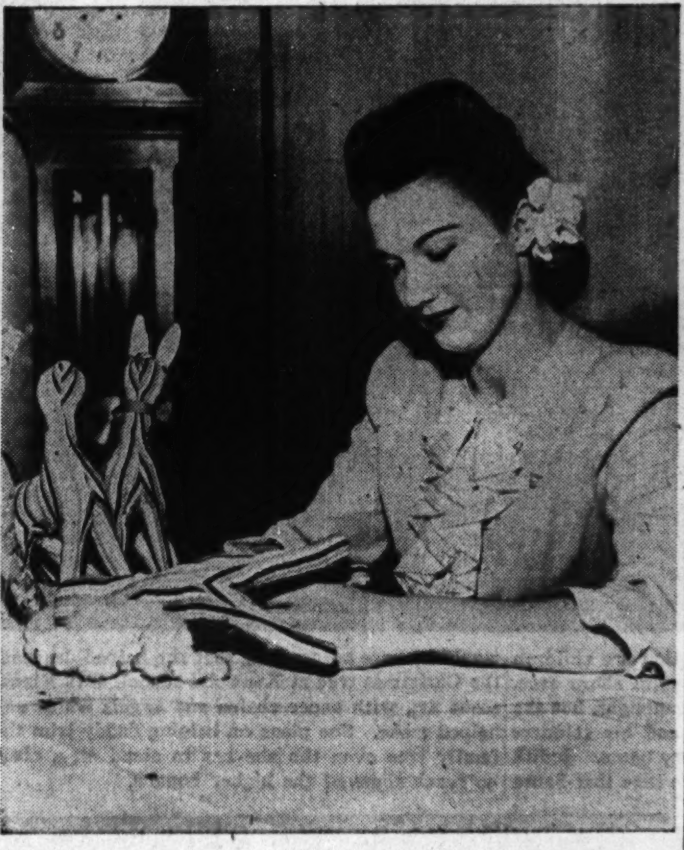
A contest will be held to select Santa's favorite toy. Toys collected by the Y will be donated to orphanages at Christmas.

Chairman of the Christmas party is Helen Voutiritsas, 6242 Ingleside av., vice president of the Y. Committee members are Marion Lindstrand, 11339 Wallace av.; Shirley Korasek, 4633 Drexel blvd.; Edna Esseltine, 5742 S. Richmond av.; Irene Barton, 1504 E. Marquette rd.; Audrey Sullivan, 6450 Dante av.; Marjorie Benson, 6427 Langley av., and Dorothy Mills, 534 E. 46th pl.

Gary Chorus Will Appear on W-G-N

Lew Wallace High school in Gary, Ind., will be one of the 14 suburban high schools whose students will sing Christmas carols on the Citizens of Tomorrow broadcast over W-G-N at 9:30 a. m. Saturday. Students who will sing (left to right) include Nancy Olson, Richard Davis, Gloria Kiliminic, Mildred Krafft, Hosford Hyndman, Mary Ann Nad, and Glen Taruin. Miss Helen Eggers, director, is seated at the piano. The program of holiday music will supplant the usual salute to a selected high school. [TRIBUNE Photo]

Quizzical Deer Surprise Maker



Every one has heard of the gingham dog and the calico cat, but how many have seen the striped cotton deer? Maker of whimsical animals is Lillian Galbreath, 9573 Dobson av., who keep's Santa's Attic, the shop in the quarters of the Illinois Association for the Crippled, 116 S. Michigan av., well supplied with them. Miss Galbreath, who has been ill with a heart ailment for several years, often is suprised by the quizzical expression on the faces of her handiwork.

FISH OR WOMEN, YOU MUST PUT OUT A GOOD LINE

These Casters Practice Winter and Summer

It is the contention of those determined disciples of Izaak Walton in the Jackson Park Casting club that catching fish is similar to catching a girl in that so much depends upon the line you hand out.

In fact, so important is that line [the fisherman's, that is] that club members aren't satisfied merely to practice all summer. Come cold weather, they take their trappings to Grand Crossing park fieldhouse, 76th st. and Ingleside av., where each Sunday they spend a happy day in a profusion of rods, reels, metal tackle boxes, and other fishermen just rabid on the subject as themselves.

As any one will tell you, most fishermen are slightly hepped on their hobby, and if they aren't out casting with club members they're home fussing with their lines; if they aren't practicing, they're usually out fishing. "And the fish don't come any larger than the tales brought back by members of our club," said Mrs. Clara De Launty, 6310 Blackstone av., a charter member of the group.

Women Champs, Too

In this club, which boasts many champion casters, there are almost as many women champs as men. Mrs. Adela MacDonald, for example. She held the national ⅜ ounce championship for three years running, and was also state and Great Lakes champion. However, where the women excel in bait casting, the men are supreme in fly casting where it takes a stronger arm. Bait casting, said Mrs. De Launty, who is an old hand at it, is more wrist movement and has a definite rhythm.

The club was organized 35 years ago by a small group of men and women who began to cast in the lagoon at 57th st. and Jackson park. They were routed by the park district to a spot at 62d st. and Outer dr., and finally a special casting pier was built for them just north of 62d st. at the lagoon. On warm summer days it becomes almost impossible to see the pier for the casters, and wonder often has been expressed that fishermen don't get their lines mixed.

Will Hold Turkey Shoot

Today there are more than 35 members in the club. The experienced casters help the beginners and before they know it they are taking part in the yearly casting tournaments. Today the group is holding its annual turkey shoot in Grand Crossing fieldhouse. Tho it's actually no shoot, competing members cast for a prize gobbler.

Officers include Cecil Feeney, 7738 Ridgeland av., president; Mrs. De Launty, vice president, and Frank Waltman, 6615 Bishop st., secretary-treasurer.

South Side Art Group to Hold Musical Today

The South Side Art association will hold a Christmas twilight tea and musical at 3 p. m. today in the Windermere West hotel. Soloist will be Arthur Silhan of the Chicago Opera accompanied by Phyllis Bealin. The Christmas story will be read by Mrs. Charles S. Clark. Christmas carols will be sung.

Wedding Told

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Malecki

The marriage of the former Miss Henrietta Pycion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Pycion, 4922 S. Tripp av., to Bernard Malecki, technician 5th grade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Malecki, 2809 E. 83d st., was solemnized recently at St. Bruno church, 4749 S. Harding av. Mr. Malecki is a graduate of Bowen High school. He now is stationed at Camp Cook, Cal.

These 13 Promise Bad Luck to Fish Next Summer

The Jackson Park Casting club participates in a reasonable facsimile of fishing, despite winter weather. Members practice each Sunday morning in an indoor range in Grand Crossing park fieldhouse, 76th st. and Ingleside av., in anticipation of next summer's trek to northern fishing waters. In the caster's lineup (left to right) are Frank Waltman, 6615 Bishop av.; Mrs. Harry MacDonald, 601 W. 47th st.; Earl Garnsey, 2616 W. 60th st.; MacDonald; Stephen Jures, East Chicago, Ind.; Henry Lesko, 6951 Oglesby av.; Howard Chatt, 7308 Crandon av.; Rocco Melillo, 10336 Calumet av.; Mrs. Waltman; Mrs. Clara De Launty, 6310 Blackstone av.; Mrs. Mabel Galezio, 7046 Chappel av.; Galezio, and Nicholas Schroder, 845 W. 70th st.

SCHOOLS LOSE YOUNG 'MARM' TO 'ANNA LUCASTA'

Actress Gets Chance as Understudy

From school teacher to the stage—that's the step Janice Kingslow took last October. Until Columbus day she was practice teacher at Ross school, 61st st. and Wabash av., to complete requirements for a degree at Chicago Teachers college. Taking advantage of the school holiday and the advice of friends, she half-heartedly went backstage at the Civic theater to tryout for an understudy role in "Anna Lucasta."

"I may have made an impression when I read the part," Miss Kingslow said, "but I don't think it was the right impression. I was dressed rather school teacherish and after reading one of the roles, I was told that I would be called if I were selected."

Asked to Read Again

A few days later she accidentally ran into one of the men who had heard her read. "I was wearing a sweater, skirt, and moccasins," the 21 year old south sider said. "I guess I must have looked different. I was asked to come back again and read for the director. After a conference I was hired for a trial."

During the week that followed she learned her lines, rehearsed five days, and, on Oct. 28, officially became the understudy of Hilda Simms who plays the title role. Since that time she has rehearsed often enough to take over the part if necessary. She also has learned the role of Katie, another character in the all-Negro drama.

Each night she reports for work with other members of the cast, not knowing whether "this" might be her night. The management said that they expect Miss Kingslow will appear at least once during the play's run because there are eight performances a week; it would be unusual if the star should play every performance over a period of months.

First Appeared at Three

Altho Miss Kingslow has yet to make her professional debut, her first stage appearance was at the age of 3 as a principal in a Tom Thumb wedding staged in an Evanston church. Two years later her first "dramatic performance" came when she recited James Whitcomb Riley's poem, "The Moo Cow Moo" before a critical audience of relatives and friends.

During both grade and high school days she demonstrated a flair for dramatics. In 1940 she organized a puppet theater group with seven friends and produced modern versions of fairy tales before church groups, schools, and clubs. Their production of "Aladdin" in 1941 won a cup offered by Delta Sigma Theta, national Negro women's sorority.

The advice of a close friend—that he would rather see her be a good actress than a mediocre school teacher—that brought Miss Kingslow to a decision. Until the acting opportunity presented itself, she had always thought of a teaching career.

Miss Kingslow attributes any ability she possesses to her home training. "Mom was a natural psychologist," she stated, "and when my father was alive we used to entertain each other by singing or reciting pieces." Mrs. Kingslow is assistant librarian at Hall library, 4800 Michigan av. and in addition to her daughter has two sons, Harry and Truxton.

40 and 8 Dance

The Windy City 40 and 8 voiture will hold a dance at 9:30 p. m. Saturday in clubrooms at 6308 Woodlawn av.

Chicagoan Understudies Play's Star

JANICE KINGSLOW

From south side school teacher to the stage is the record of Janice Kingslow, selected to understudy Hilda Simms in "Anna Lucasta." Each evening Miss Kingslow is backstage just in case the star becomes ill suddenly. The management expects that during the play's run, the understudy will be given opportunity to appear before a home audience.

WOODLAWN CLUB YULE SHOWER WILL AID HOME

Woodlawn Study club's Christmas shower for Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial home will be given tomorrow at 11 a. m. in the Plaisance hotel.

The program will include the singing of carols and the reading of Christmas stories by Mrs. John L. Hogue, 7002 Harper av.; Mrs. J. E. Gorsuch, 6528 Greenwood av.; Miss Elisabeth Lord, 6324 Kimbark av., and Miss Minnie Miller, 5316 Drexel av. During the noon recess Mrs. W. W. Seymour will be luncheon hostess.

Following lunch, the program chairman, Mrs. J. N. Elliott, 7317 Chappel av., will present Sylvia C. Carstens in "The Supreme Gift."

Hirsch High School Picks Four New Cadet Officers

Recent additions to the roster of R. O. T. C. cadet officers at Hirsch High school include Anthony M. Frale, captain; Glen W. Wagner and Donald Hornbeck, 1st lieutenants; Sherman B. Frooman, George T. Baldwin, and Marvin W. Jensen, 2d lieutenants.

Homecoming Dance

A veterans' homecoming dance and Christmas party will be held at 8:30 p. m. Thursday in the small gym of the South Chicago Y. M. C. A., 91st st. and Houston av.

HOLD HOSPITAL AUXILIARY YULE PROGRAM TODAY

The Christmas tea and musical program of the Woman's auxiliary of Woodlawn hospital will be held Wednesday from 2 to 5 p. m. in the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Gouwens, 6027 University av.

Continuous entertainment has been arranged by Mrs. R. R. MacKenzie, 6742 Chappel av. This will include Miss Carol Merrill, vocalist, and her accompanist, Mrs. Margaret Merrill; a string trio consisting of Miss June O'Brien, Miss Edna Wolfson, and Gene Simon, and Mrs. John K. Piety who will tell the background of many favorite American Christmas carols.

Miss Grace L. Devilbiss, superintendant of Woodlawn hospital, will be tea hostess. She will be assisted by Mrs. Fred W. Moeller, Mrs. Clinton A. Elliott, Mrs. Thomas F. Doyle, Mrs. C. M. Phelps, and Mrs. J. O. Hitz.

Henry George D. A. R. to Have Party Tuesday

The Gen. Henry Dearborn D. A. R. chapter will hold a Christmas program at 2 p. m. Tuesday in Cordon hall, 410 Michigan av. Original sketches of "Famous Women of the Bible" will be presented and a program of music by Paul LaRose, flutist, accompanied by his wife at the piano, will be heard.

HARVARD SCHOOL LEADER RETIRES; HELD JOB OF DAD

When Miss Elsie Schobinger surprised the alumni association of the Harvard School for Boys with the announcement of her resignation at their recent dinner, it meant the end of 70 years' leadership by the Schobingers, father and daughter, of the institution.

Miss Schobinger

Miss Schobinger's father, John J. Schobinger, became principal of the school in 1875, 10 years after it was founded. There were then 16 students. Schobinger, born in Switzerland, lived on the top floor of the narrow, three story building then located at 16th st. east of Michigan av.

Weds Swiss Bride

In 1881 Schobinger returned to Switzerland and after a three weeks' courtship won his bride. He returned to Chicago and under his leadership the school expanded until after a series of moves to larger quarters, it acquired its present building at 4731 Ellis av.

Miss Schobinger was the only girl in a family of four and the only one of the children inclined to the teaching profession. She believes she became a teacher to please her father.

After graduation from the University of Chicago, Miss Schobinger taught two years at Centre college, Danville, Ky. After her trip around the world, Schobinger hinted that she should teach at Harvard school. She began her career there in 1911 as a teacher of French and German.

Takes Father's Place

On the death of her father in 1927, she became co-principal with Charles E. Pence. In 1941, on Pence's death, she assumed the responsibility for the administration of the school, then numbering about 265 boys.

Succeeding Miss Schobinger at the head of the 80 year old school are Harry D. Pyle and Leslie M. Dohr, faculty members for several years. Present plans of her retirement call for a busy schedule, not so strict as she observed as principal of the school, but an interesting one. Secretary of the Vanderpoel Art association, she plans to paint in water color, study Spanish, and cook.

SET CONFERENCE TOMORROW AT PARKWAY HOUSE

A conference meeting on problems involved in intergroup relations in the public schools has been called by the South Parkway Center Y. W. C. A., at 4:30 p. m. tomorrow in the center, 4559 South Park way.

At the afternoon session Miss Mary Herrick, legislative chairman of the Chicago Teachers union, will speak on "How Intergroup Relations Are Affected by Problems Discussed in the N. E. A. Report." Mrs. Irene McCoy Gaines, president of the Council of Negro Organizations, will speak on the problems affecting interracial relations in the schools.

In the evening, Miss Flora Dolton, director of education for the Round Table of Christians and Jews, will discuss the possibilities of intercultural education. Mrs. Robert Lewis is chairman of the conference. She will be assisted by Mrs. Ulysses S. Keys.

Girl Orchestra Will Give Yule Concert Today

The St. Casimir academy all-girl orchestra will join with two choral groups, numbering more than 125 voices, to present a Christmas concert of classical music at 8 p. m. today in the St. Casimir auditorium, 2601 Marquette rd.

The orchestra, directed by Guy Callow, has been playing 15 years and has provided many musicians for Chicago orchestras. The orchestra will play the "Hungarian Fantasy" and will interpret musically the story of the "Three Bears." Instrumental soloists will be Genevieve Aleksunas, pianist; Mary Balanda, violinist; Ruth Hamill, trombonist; Therese Vranak, French horn; Carly Eby, clarinetist, and Dolores Vranak, trumpeter.

The Lithuanian choristers will sing several songs and a group of 12 dancers in Lithuanian costume will present folk dances. In addition the St. Casimir academy Choral club will sing the "Madonna's Prayer," "The Nightingale," and a group of Christmas carols.

Both groups will join the orchestra in a finale, "A Christmas Fantasy," in which Emily Taranda, Joan Bransfield, La Verne Nies, Ann Jurgovski, and Loretta Brazaitis will render solos. The two choral groups are under the direction of Sister M. Bernarda.

SOUTH SIDE Y. W. TO HANG GREENS TUESDAY NIGHT

Traditional hanging of the greens will take place in South Side Center Y. W. C. A., 6753 Stony Island av., Tuesday night.

The center will be decorated with boughs of fir and holly, the Christmas tree will be trimmed, and an old fashioned yuletide holiday party will be held.

Ruth Murphy, 6506 Greenwood av., is party chairman, assisted by Florence Nelson, Jayne Grauer, Charlotte Matthews, and Kathleen Murphy.

This Week in the Garden

Many thousand plants will be received as gifts at Christmas time and many recipients will not know how to care for them. Some plants are hardly worth keeping after their period of greatest attractiveness has passed; others will be well worth keeping and growing further. If you are giving plants as Christmas gifts, select the more substantial kinds, for they can be kept for a long time, and in the end will be more appreciated.

Among the most useful plants that can be kept are the unusual Norfolk Island pine, an evergreen tree of large size which is grown by florists to the juvenile state as pot plants. It has fine foliage that appears on branches arranged in tiers or whorls giving a most pleasing effect. It endures in a sunny location and in a temperature of 60 to 70 degrees. Moist soil should be maintained at all times.

The gift of a Christmas cactus brings forth one of the most beautiful flowering plants to be found anywhere, but unless it is understood, few flowers are produced. Care must be exercised that too much water is not applied just after the plant is brought indoors. During November a little more water can be given, but too much will cause the buds to drop. Decrease the amount of water after flowering and in late May plunge the pot in a semi-shady place in the yard. Keep from cold drafts.

African Violet Plants

Many saintpaulia or African violet plants will be given. It is a fine subject for any room. Save it, but give it planty of light. During winter it will do well in light, sunny, south window, but during summer a very light, north window is the best place. Water from below, but never permit the pot to stand in water for a long time. A lack of light is the cause for indifferent flowering.

The poinsettia and cyclamen should be discarded after flowering for they are difficult to grow and flower a second time in the home.

The appealing Lorraine or Melior begonias, with their great clusters of pink flowers of exquisite beauty, are among the high class Christmas plants. They last a long time in attractive bloom, but the soil should be kept moist and sudden changes in tempertures avoided. Gas will affect them. After flowering throw the plants away, for they never do well in the home.

Lists Other Begonias

Some of the other begonias are ideal as gifts, but few are seen on the stands. Among those which do well are the shrubby kinds, such as President Carnot, with fine clusters of red flowers; the old time B. metallica, argentea guttata, lucerna, and others. These should be saved, for they grow into fine specimens. They may sand in a south window during the winter, but should have plenty of fresh air and a temperature of 60 to 70 degrees.

Primroses should be discarded, for they are annuals and difficult to carry over. Give blooming plants the flimsy shade of a thin curtain. Water daily.

The luxuriant calla flowers from October to June, grow in moist soil in a south window where there is the maximum sun. Fertilize once a month.

Bulbous plants are fine pot plants and chief among them are the hyacinth, tulip, and narcissus. Frequently the grape hyacinth, a pretty small blue-flowered plant, is grown as are the crocus and others. With the exception of the Chinese sacred lily, paperwhite, and yellow soil d'or narcissus which are thrown away, all should be saved, kept watered to enable the foliage to develop, cured or stored when the leaves turn yellow, and planted in the garden in autumn. The narcissus gets better each year until it grows into large clumps unless it is tender and unable to stand freezing weather.

Suggests Keeping Ferns

All ferns should be retained and grown into beautiful specimens, the Boston ferns and holly fern being the common kinds grown. They are seasonable thruout the year. They like a moist soil and abundant, subdued light. They should be replanted in spring and if desired can be planted out on the north side of the house and repotted in fall in a soil that contains considerable organic matter. The brown dots that are found on the underside of the fronds [leaves] are the sori [sacs] in which the spores are produced.

The Illinois section of the Men's Garden Clubs of America held its annual meeting Dec. 1. The section has a membership of around 600 with clubs located in all parts of the state.

BUILD A HOME THAT YOU CAN ADD TO LATER

BY LOUISE BARGELT

With the time close at hand when many homes will be built and plans for many more seriously considered, we will mention a few trends to consider before you actually embark on building or remodeling.

If you are a young married couple with a limited amount to invest and yet wish to own your home, consider a flexible house, or one which you can enlarge later. Build the basic part first, the equivalent perhaps of a four or five room apartment. But build the type of house which can grow gracefully, take on added rooms as family needs increase.

Future additions must be planned if they are to be carried out later with economy and contribute to the good looks of the house. This type planning has long been recognized as a good idea, but it looks as if more and more plans of the house which can grow will take tangible form from now on.

Plan Storage Carefully

Figure carefully just how much storage space you will need and have this space expertly engineered for the household possessions it must accommodate. Architects and builders and manufacturers are spending more time and thought than ever before on developing highly efficient storage areas in a home.

This need will be felt more in the future than in the past, since there will be few of the old type, vast, rambling attics overhead. In many instances the basement also will be omitted. So not only must the utility room be wisely planned, but every room in the house must offer, in small or large measure, built-in units, cases, cabinets, and drawers.

Then, too, discuss with your architect and builder the new accoustical treatments, especially for bathroom, playroom, laundry, gameroom, and kitchen; in brief, for all those "noisy" rooms.

Separate Noise Areas

In addition to accoustical ceiling tiles, to sound absorbent plasters and insulating boards and other developments, much greater quiet can be given to a house by a deft separation of its work, play, and rest areas. The work areas include the service rooms, kitchen, and perhaps garage, while the play or recreation areas include the living room, dining room, the game room, porch, and terrace.

There are many variations possible in floor plans, so that they may meet individual family requirements. Thoughtful planning before building can result in added comforts and happier family relationships.

ROSELAND CHOIR GROUPS TO SING 'MESSIAH' TODAY

Handel's "Messiah" will be presented by the combined choirs of Presbyterian Church of Roseland, 112th and State sts., tonight.

Soloists will be Barbara L. Birchet, Jeannette Cockburn, Helen Cockburn, Henrietta Rodger, Wilhelmina Wiersma, Henry Kuyper, Aram Malkas, Edward Nelson, Dorothy Grear, Marion B. Vetterick, Jayne Jenkinson, and James Barclay.

Director of the oratorio is Lucille W. Showalter. Musical accompaniment will be played by Mona Wilson, Glenn Bushee, Martha Armstrong, and Maja M. Hess. This will be the choir's third annual performance.

RURAL TASTE IN RADIO DIFFERS FROM CITY LIKES

Prefer Serious Program, Survey Shows

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Country people's tastes in radio is somewhat different from that of city folk. That is one conclusion to be drawn from an examination of a 120 page study of "Attitudes of Rural People Toward Radio Service" made by the bureau of agricultural economics and released by the federal communications commission. The report is based on interviews conducted with 2,535 farm and nonfarm families from 116 counties selected to provide a cross-section of the nation's rural areas.

While radio surveys reflecting mainly the preferences of city people show comedy variety shows are the overwhelming favorites, rural people generally seem to prefer the more serious type of programs, such as news and market reports, religious music, and sermons. They also like old time [hillbilly?] music.

Would Miss News Most

Men prefer news and information, but rural women rate entertainment somewhat more highly. An "overwhelming majority" say they would miss news most if they had to do without a radio. Serials are second only to news among women. At the same time, the serial drama created "strong feelings of rejection." Dance music was next on the list of programs disliked, and then came classical music and opera.

The reason for disliking classical music, however, is generally different from the prejudice against the other disliked items. They admit they don't go for the old masters because they don't understand them.

The amount of time spent listening in the country varies greatly, but three out of four said they turn off their sets at times because of lack of interest in the programs available, and one-third reported that they do so often.

Noon Peak Listening Hour

The hours of listening are in striking contrast with those of city folk. In the city the peak hours are between 7 and 10 p. m. In the country the peak comes at noon, with 44 per cent of the families tuning in then, the survey found. Two-thirds of the farm folk who have radios turn them on before 8 a. m. and one-eighth of them before 6 a. m. Twenty-six per cent of the listening is done in the morning, 10 per cent in late morning, then the peak at noon, 6 per cent in the afternoon, and 11 per cent in the evening.

Most rural people value radio highly and the loss of their sets would "make a great difference" to three-fourths. Typical comments on the attitude toward radio: "I am just lost when the radio is broken," "Going without radio would be just like going back to old fashioned lights," "I simply couldn't stay at home," "I look upon radio as my companion."

Now and then, the surveyors come up with a contrary response: "If it weren't for my family I'd throw the radio out," "All you hear is junk and commercials and murder mysteries."

Will Figure at Hearing

Rural listeners appear not to be highly conscious of any need for improved programming. The FCC contends that this is because "very few of these people have any point of reference, either actual or ideal, with which to compare present radio programming; as a consequence, they tend to accept the radio they know as the natural order of things."

The survey is expected to figure in the clear channel station hearings which the FCC has called for Jan. 14. Clear channel stations provide most of the coverage for many rural areas.

Holiday Music Highspots W-G-N Symphonic Hour

The Chicago Philharmonic orchestra, under the baton of Henry Weber, will salute the holiday season with a program of light music over W-G-N at 8:30 Tuesday evening. A performance of Prokofieff's "Peter and the Wolf," with John Barclay as narrator, will form the major portion of the broadcast. The orchestra also will offer Toch's "Pinocchio" and Corelli's "Christmas Concerto."

Aids TB Fight

DAVID LEE BROWN

David Lee Brown, 4 years old, who is heard on W-G-N's Funny Paper Party on which CHICAGO TRIBUNE comics are read at 11 a. m. Sundays, gives a living note to the 1945 Christmas Seal design. The seals are sold to aid in the fight against tuberculosis. Park Phipps, who designed the seal, called the picture a "splendid portrayal of the idea embodied in the 1945 Christmas seal."

HUBERMAN IS PHILHARMONIC SOLOIST TODAY

Bronislaw Huberman, violinist, will be soloist on the New York Philharmonic program over WBBM-CBS at 2 p. m. today. He will play Mozart's D major Violin Concerto. Bruno Walter will direct the orchestra in Corelli's Concerto Grosse No. 8 in G minor and Schumann's First Symphony. During intermission, Dr. James Franck will discuss "Medical Benefits from Atomic Energy."

"Babes in Toyland" Next for Theater of the Air

Victor Herbert's "Babes in Toyland" will be broadcast as the Christmas program of the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N and Mutual at 9 p. m. next Saturday. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker. Penny Perry, soprano, and Angelo Raffaelli, will be the leading singers. Robert Trendler will conduct the orchestra. This program and the one of the following week will be broadcast from W-G-N's main audience studio.

Rose Bampton Sings on Sunday Evening Hour

When the Sunday Evening hour presents its 400th radio performance on WLS-ABC at 7 o'clock tonight, Rose Bampton, soprano, will be soloist. She will sing "Mi Chiamano, Mimi," from Puccini's "La Boheme"; Obradors' "Del Cabellos Mas Sutil," La Forge's "Song of the Open," Warren's "Christmas Candle," and, accompanied by a chorus, the "Inflammatus," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater." A brief history of the musical program will be heard.

Mitropoulos Serves as Conductor and Soloist

Dmitri Mitroupoulos will serve as conductor and also as soloist on the Symphony of the Air hour over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. He will direct the NBC Symphony orchestra in Bach's Concerto No. 5 in D major, the "Brandenburg" Concerto, and will assume the role of director and soloist in Prokofieff's Piano Concerto No. 3 in C major.

Immortal Melodies on Hour of Charm Tonight

The Hour of Charm, with Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra, will present a program titled "Melodies That Never Die" on WMAQ-NBC at 9 o'clock tonight. The orchestra and choir will open with Weber's "Invitation to the Waltz." Donaldson's "Romance," Ketelbery's "In a Monastery Garden," and Weber's "Softly Now the Light of Day" also will be heard.

Durante and Kyser on Request Performance

Jimmy Durante, Kay Kyser, Andy Russell, and Georgia Carroll will be heard on Request Performance over WBBM-CBS at 8 o'clock tonight. They will tailor the show's entertainment to listeners' requests.

CAROL SING ON FUTURE CITIZENS HOUR SATURDAY

Twelve hundred students from suburban high schools will contribute to a special pre-Christmas program of Citizens of Tomorrow to be aired over W-G-N at 9:30 a. m. Saturday. The group were guests at last night's Theater of the Air performance of "Hansel and Gretel" The Christmas program was recorded afterwards. The Rev. John B. Hubbard of St. Mary's Episcopal church, Park Ridge, is the speaker. William C. Wingo, Argo Community High senior, will read school news. Walter Armbruster, Thornton Township High school, will conduct the group in carol singing. Philip Maxwell conducts the program.

Barclay to Read Poetry by Chicagoans on WGNB

John Barclay will read poetry by Chicagoans and other Middle Westerners on his Twilight Meditations program over WGNB at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Among poems selected for this broadcast are: "To Rain" and "They Do Not Know" by Madeline Salmon of Chicago; "Lake Michigan Speaks" by Amelia Bluett Ryan, also of Chicago; "I Wait" by Malcolm Bosse of Moline, Ill., and "I Wander Alone, My Dear," "A Day," "A Poem—A Song," and "A Symphonic Poem" by Genevieve Whitlock Schreiner of Chicago.

Cathedral Shelter on W-G-N's Youth Looks Up

Youth Looks Up to be aired on W-G-N at 8 a. m. today will honor the Cathedral Shelter and Church of the Epiphany. The program, which is conducted by Philip Maxwell, will be welcomed by the Rev. Joseph F. Higgins, associate pastor. Jerry Walker, narrator, will tell the story of Jesus' birth according to St. Matthew.

Theater Guild Drama Stars Fredric March

Fredric March and his wife, Florence Eldridge, will star in "The Royal Family" to be aired over the Theater Guild on the Air via WENR-ABC at 9 o'clock tonight. On tonight's broadcast March will be recreating a role which won him a film contract when he was touring with he George S. Kaufman-Edna Ferber play in 1928.

Labor Arbitration Is Topic of WBBM Forum

"Should We Adopt the President's Plan for Compulsory Labor Arbitration?" will be the topic on People's Platform over WBBM at 10:15 a. m. today. Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.], Rep. Hook [R., Mich.], Rep. Morrison [D., La.], and Rep. Fischer [D., Tex.] will participate.

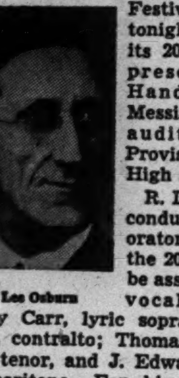
HEAR MAYWOOD CHOIR TODAY IN 'THE MESSIAH'

Group Will Sing in Proviso High



R. Lee Osburn

In a setting of lighted Christmas trees and poinsettias, the Maywood Festival chorus tonight will give its 20th annual presentation of Handel's "The Messiah" in the auditorium of Proviso Township High school.

R. Lee Osburn, conductor of the oratorio during the 20 years, will be assisted in the vocal arias by Nancy Carr, lyric soprano; Helen Dean, contralto; Thomas Williams, lyric tenor, and J. Edward Martin, bass-baritone. For his 16th year, Burton Lawrence will be at the organ. Marjorie Strub will be at the piano.

The Maywood Festival chorus of 250 voices will be augmented by 80 members of the Proviso High school choir. This year's presentation will be an occasion for thankfulness that many members of the chorus have returned from the service, Osburn said.

Doors to Open at 7:15

Edmund F. Cameron will be in charge of ushers who will assist when the doors are opened at 7:15 o'clock. They will receive a silver offering.

Officers of the chorus are Ralph C. Daniels, president; Mrs. L. E. Newton, vice president; Miss Marjorie Andrews, secretary; Mrs. Paul T. Karr, treasurer, and H. J. Ploum, Mrs. E. F. Cameron, and George F. Wilson, directors.

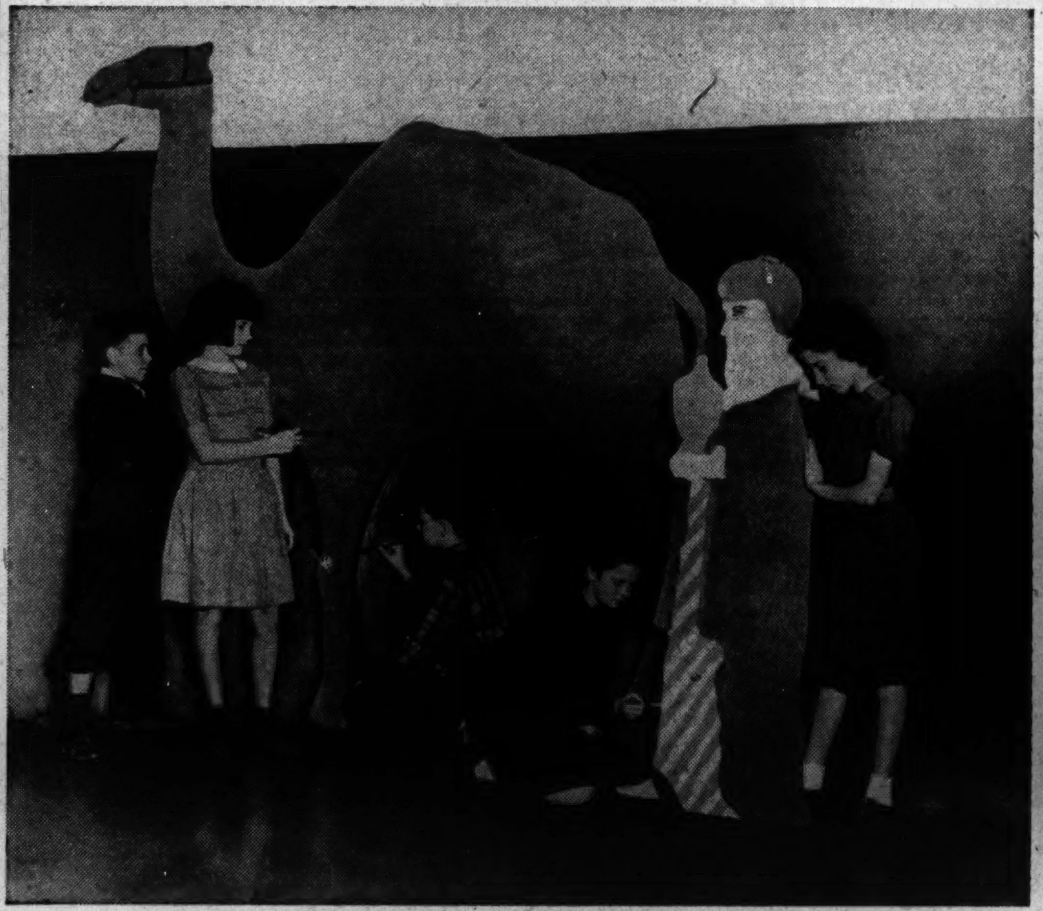
Morton High PTO to See 'The Queen's Christmas'

"The Queen's Christmas," a play portraying life during the reign of Queen Elizabeth, will be presented tomorrow by the dramatic clubs of Morton High school at the monthly PTO meeting. Miss Ruth Coggeshall will direct the performance.

Scene fom 'The Nativity' to Be Portrayed on Church Grounds in Western Springs



The three camels and the three kings as part of the portrayal of "The Nativity" should be ready this week for presentation under floodlights on the grounds of the First Congregational church in Western Springs. Members of the junior department of the church school working on the project (from left) include David Rosol, Mary Stowers, Roger Shaw, Janet Gunn, and Mary O'Brien.

Great Tree Is Ready for Santa's Visit

Carolyn Coen

Don Ekberg

Christmas trees and pine garlands have been used for decorations in the halls, library, and gymnasium of Lyons Township High school, La Grange, by the student council in readiness for their fourth Christmas party Wednesday night.

A great tree stands in the clock tower foyer where 16 carolers, led by James Stum and Sarah Fleming from the balcony, will greet arriving guests. Carolyn Coen and Don Ekberg are senior chairmen for the party.

James Hill's committee on decorations is using the Santa Claus motif which was initiated by Roland Butler on the invitations sent 1,600 students.

Posters Advertise Night

Posters, time schedules, and directions to acquaint guests with the night's activities have been made by Janet Krug and her publicity committee.

In the girls' gymnasium, floodlighted trees sparkling with stars and bells will provde a background for square dancing to the accompaniment of banjo and harmonica. Hosts for the room are Mrs. Charles Lund and Mr. and Mrs. James Burnett. Susan Sovereign is student chairman.

The large gymnasium will be used for dancing.

Girls Group to Sing

Santa Claus will appear during the intermission before the floor show arranged by Marjorie Klier and Dave Carr. Tom Burke will introduce the master of ceremonies, Robert Voss.

The girls chorus, directed by Virginia Link, will include Nancy Moulton and Pat Henry, freshmen; Midge Rieger and Gwen Lewis, sophomores; Sally Simpson and Joan Seegers, juniors; and Barbara Elliott and Mary Frances Johnson, seniors. The program will include a piano duet by Jessie Gilbert and Ray Covington, solos by Mary Ann Both, and a comedy act.

The gameroom will be in charge of Warren Druetzler. A sports feature and a comedy movie will be shown.

Held Each Year

The party, held each year, is given under the sponsorship of the Lyons township home-school council, of which Mrs. P. J. Hartsuch is president. Student and adult committees coöperate in the planning. Mrs. David Swain is general chairman and Mrs. Stanley Kleinschmidt co-chairman.

Members of the adult committee include Mrs. Eldon Link, Mrs. Arvid Carlson, Mrs. Edward Ptachek, Mrs. Herman Allen, Mrs. John McKee, Mrs. Floyd Nutt, Mrs. Robert Greiser, Mrs. Arnold Anderson, Mrs. Norman Welford, Mrs. Charles Burton, Mrs. Forest Sanders, Mrs. Paul Hawk, Mrs. Albert Nelson, Mrs. Ralph Turner, Mrs. Homer Richardson, Mrs. Bertram Little, Mrs. Leo Nicolaus, Mrs. George Podd, Mrs. Charles Lund, Mrs. James Burnett, and Mrs. Orville Brouer.

Garfield Park Community Hospital Women to Meet

The Woman's auxiliary of Garfield Park Community hospital will meet Tuesday in the solarium of the hospital, 3821 Washington blvd. New officers are Mrs. Frank Jenkins, president; Mrs. W. A. James and Mrs. J. W. Fleischner, vice presidents; Mrs. Kyle Hawkins, secretary, and Mrs. Claude Weldy, treasurer.

Charles Kindera and Doris McClelland lend their talents in painting garments of the three kings of reds, purples, and gold. The figures were cut with a band saw from wall board.

'O Little Town of Bethlehem' to Ring at Hinsdale Pageant

The 10th annual presentation of Hinsdale High school's Christmas pageant will be given Wednesday in the school auditorium. There will be a performance at 9:30 a. m. for students and faculty, and one at 8 p. m. for the public.

Under the direction of Austin Kuhns, instructor of instrumental music, and Miss Ina Mae Sanders, vocal music instructor, the school orchestra and a cappella choir will open the program with a prelude of Christmas music. The orchestra will play "Christmas Carols Fantasy" by Sopkin, and "The Messiah Selection" of Handel arranged by De-Lameter.

An impressive highlight will be the processional of 125 sixth grade and junior and high school students vested in choir robes. "O Little Town of Bethlehem" will be played by the strings and chimes.

Pageant in Five Parts

The pageant is divided into five parts—The Prophecy of Zacharias, the Annunciation, the Prophecy Fulfilled, the Shepherd's Vision, and the Adoration of the Kings. Richard Merrill will be the narrator.

Members of the pageant cast are Nadyne Johnson, angel; Mary Gerty, Mary; Adrian Greek, Joseph; Mayme Saxer, Elizabeth; Douglas Mann, Zacharias; Paul Seeden, Charles Dugan, Glen Karnatz, James Howry, and Robert Vail, shepherds; Albert Holland, Earl Schwartz, and George Ferber, kings, and Peggy Keller, Marian Schmidt, Margaret Porter, Joyce Pucks, and Nancy Knight, neighbors. Grade school children will be heard as the Angel Host.

Art Department Aids

Transformation of the gymnasium-auditorium into a churchlike setting has been accomplished by the school art department.

The high school chorus will sing much of the background music. Selections will include "Nightingale Awake," Dickinson; "Silent Night," Gruber-Wetzel; "All My Heart This Night Rejoices," Eveling; "Norwegian Cradle Song," Lewaas, and Christiansen's "A Cradle Hymn," "Lullaby on Christmas Eve," "Beautiful Savior," and "Today There Is Ringing."

Faculty Lends Hand

Faculty members of the pageant organization are Principal O. C. West, general chairman; Miss Nellie Cline, business manager; Miss Louise Rich, publicity; Miss Naidine Goy, programs; James Fowler, tickets.

Miss Catherine Nicholson, stage and properties; Miss Ina Mae Sanders and Austin Kuhns, music; Russell Poppenhager, processional and recessional; Miss Thora Cole, pageant; Mrs. Florence Gillette, decorations; Miss Ruth Trevithick, robes; Miss Marjorie Barclay, costumes; William Maxwell, evening performance; Clifford Durman, ushers; Miss Vivian Griffith, junior high chorus; Miss Mabel Lindahl, sixth grade chorus, and Gwendolyn Roberts, organist.

FETE ORPHANAGE CHILDREN TODAY IN ELMHURST

A Christmas party for the 300 children of the Elmhurst, Addison, and Bensenville orphanages will be given at 1:30 p. m. today in the Elmhurst Elks club, 136 N. York st., Elmhurst. George Larson, exalted ruler of the Elmhurst lodge, will be master of ceremonies.

Five buses and several private automobiles will transport the children. Each child will receive a present. A vaudeville program will be presented and refreshments will be served.

All arrangements for the party have been made under the direction of Arthur Brun, William Bochholt, and Ole Olson, who have been working out the details for three months. Santa Claus will be on hand to distribute the gifts from a big Christmas tree.

BERWYN SCHOOL GETS BOOKLET FROM ARGENTINA

When the American Junior Red Cross organized its program of correspondence thru booklets between schools of this country and those of other countries, Lincoln school in Berwyn began preparing albums for exchange. During the past three years, the school has sent booklets to England, Venezuela, Brazil, Chile, Argentina, and other countries. The booklets, or albums, contain samples of work from various departments of the school.

Lincoln school recently was surprised to receive a reply booklet from the Bernadino Rivadavia school, Buenos Aires, Argentina. The booklet was delivered to the school by Miss Nancy MacDuff of Junior Red Cross headquarters in Chicago.

The prized booklet is now on display in the school.

Richard Kinney (left) and Richard Herberts have gathered twigs to give a rustic effect to their creche models. Each will take his model home to be completed with a tiny crib and figurines. Next Christmas the children plan to produce the entire scene of "The Nativity" on the church grounds.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Arnold Fidler

Chief Warrant Officer Arnold J. Fidler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas M. Fidler, Aurora, has been released from service after almost five years in the army. During the closing stages of the war, he was assigned to the army port and service command in the Pacific. As commanding officer of an instruction and inspection unit, he had the task of analyzing and correcting thousands of service men's records before their discharge from the army. He plans to return to his former business as sales manager of a land agency in Aurora.

James Sweeney

The air medal with gold star has been awarded James T. Sweeney, 4356 Jackson blvd., aviation ordnanceman 2d class. As turret gunner on a patrol bomber, he participated in 14 combat missions.

Promotion to first lieutenant has been announced for Elmer T. Olson, 5455 Iowa st., at Rochester, N. Y., where he has been stationed since August, 1944. Lt. Olson negotiates final settlements in the terminations branch of the Rochester ordnance district.

Pvt. Lloyd Polan, 2319 S. Ridgeway av., has received an honorable discharge from the army. A patient at DeWitt General hospital, Auburn, Cal., since January, 1944, he has been recovering from injuries received while serving overseas. He has been awarded the Purple Heart, the European theater ribbon with one star, the combat infantryman's badge, and the pre-Pearl Harbor ribbon.

Jack Mangan

Pvt. Jack D. Mangan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Mangan, 3858 Madison st., recently returned to the United States after 28 months overseas during which he served in England, France, Belgium, and Germany. He has been awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received during combat in France. Pvt. Mangan also wears the combat infantryman's badge and four battle stars.

A veteran of 16 months amphibious operations between England and the French coast, Nickola A. Iacovett, coxswain, 811 S. Kedvale av., has been honorably discharged from the navy. He served on ships that brought troops and supplies to Cherbourg and LeHavre shortly after the invasion of Europe. Before his release from service, he was a patient in the naval hospital in San Diego, Cal.

At Chanute field, Corp. Albert Bogatitus, 3444 Adams st., recently was released from the army air forces. His last station was Charleston [S. C.] air field.

LEGION IN ELGIN TO DOUBLE ITS HOME CAPACITY

Elgin American Legion post has announced plans for a $110,000 building program which will more than double capacity of the Legion home at 316 Douglas av.

The post has purchased the Mrs. Caroline Stewart property at 306 Douglas av., adjoining the present home on the south, and contemplates extensive additions to the home building. The new site and also a vacant area to the north of the home will be utilized. An auditorium with a seating capacity of 650 is one of the improvements planned, together with a modern canteen.

Officers of the Home association initiated purchase of the Stewart site and announced the building plan which it is hoped will be launched in 1946. William Lorang, chairman, Atty. Perry D. Wells, Edward Adermann, Elmo Allsbrow, and Mrs. Laura Plath comprised the site committee for the association.

He was a member of the army's first motion picture unit and also was a gunner. He went overseas for the second time in August, 1944.

There is a daughter, Lorene, 9.

BIRTH OF CHRIST WILL BE TOLD IN CRANE OPERETTA

Member of Faculty Writes Drama

Wise men bringing gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh; shepherds following a star to the cave of Bethlehem, and other aspects of the first Christmas will be reënacted by boys of Crane High school in a Christmas operetta, "The Quest," Monday and Tuesday nights in the school auditorium, 2245 Jackson blvd.

All characters will be costumed in authentic garb of the early Christian era. Many robes are of authentic Persian and Arabic origin, having come from the collections of faculty members who purchased them while on world tours.

Written by Faculty Member

The script of "The Quest" was written by J. P. Cocayne of the Crane faculty. Cocayne is also in charge of the production.

Lewis Thomas of the music faculty is musical director. He also has arranged the 17 musical numbers which thread the plot of the operetta.

The cast includes 127 boys. Leading roles will be portrayed by Bernard Swartz, Robert Bright, Raymond Bieth, Jerome Siegel, James Constantine, Victor Farracane, Richard Nuzzo, and James Reif.

"The Quest" represents one episode in man's struggle for light. The first act depicts the shepherds on the plains before Jerusalem and their reactions to the appearance of the star.

Oppressed Fight Tyrant

The second act, portraying Herod's court, shows the conflict between the tyrant and the oppressed. The second scene pictures the wise men visiting Herod and the prediction of his downfall. The Nativity is depicted in the third act, while the fourth shows the ultimate triumph of the Christian ideology.

Properties and lighting are being handled by the stage staff under direction of Dallas Puffer of the Crane faculty. Students assisting him are Robert Nornholm, Curtis Norling, and Edward Kramer.

Walter Werre is director of ticket sales and is finance officer. Miss Anne Mulligan is wardrobe mistress. Francis P. Kehoe and Miss Margaret Mills are in charge of publicity. All are members of the faculty.

Proceeds will be used to purchase an electric organ, which will be dedicated as a memorial to Crane students who fought and died in World War II.

Naperville Pageant

"Children of the Light," a Christmas pageant written especially for the Naperville Methodist church by Rena Hawley Smith, will be presented at 7 o'clock tonight in the sanctuary of the church.

SHOW NATIVITY SCENES TODAY AT HULL HOUSE

47th Yule Concert Set for 4 P. M.

Theodore Harrison

Seven Christmas tableaux resembling life sized paintings will be presented by Hull House music school in conjunction with its 47th Christmas concert at 4 p. m. today in Bowen hall, 800 S. Halsted st. Viewed from the audience, the tableaux will seem like the work of renaissance masters. The actors will pose within a wooden framework across which blue gauze has been stretched to heighten the effect of oil paintings.

The production will be given under the supervision of Nesta Smith, head of the music school. Theodore Harrison, baritone and choral director, will lead the singers thru a varied program. Included in the repertoire are original compositions of Eleanor Smith, founder of Hull House music school.

Also Designed Costumes

The tableaux, which continue a tradition almost half a century old, were designed by the late Edith De Nancrede. Since her death in 1936 the annual presentation of living Christmas pictures has been under the direction of one of her pupils, Nicollette Malone.

The reverence of the players toward the tableaux is said to be like that of the Oberammergau players to the Passion Play. Year after year they return to Hull House to reënact their roles. Herman Saravalli, one of the wise men, has been a member of the cast for 29 years. Most of the members have taken part for not less than 10 years.

This year, two of the actors are veterans who have returned from the European war scene. They are Daniel Stoifa who portrays one of the Magi and Angelo Parrilli, one of the shepherds.

Will Take Old Roles

Paul Blake will portray the role of Joseph, while Esther Novelli will take the part of Mary. The musical roles of these two characters will be sung by Theodore Harrison and Maryum Horn.

Costumes for the original production, also designed by Miss De Nancrede, have been preserved carefully from year to year and most of them are still in use.

Following the opening tableau showing the angels in heaven, is the annunciation scene with Mary and the angel Gabriel. In the third picture an angel announces the birth of Christ to the shepherds, while in the fourth the wise men view the star which leads to the cave of Bethlehem.

The fifth scene depicts the Magi presenting their gifts to the Christ child, while the sixth shows Mary and Joseph with the Infant in the manger. The finale represents the Madonna and Child enthroned, with all the members of the cast around them.

Speech Choir to Tell Story

The speech choir, under the direction of Louise Trenton, will present the story of the Nativity according to the Gospel of St. Luke.

The string ensemble, with Nesta Smith, Florence Dangremond, Donna Esselstyn, Elizabeth Williams, and Ramon Gabriel, will play accompaniments and incidental music.

Others who are assisting in the production include Mary Morris, director of the children's chorus, and Donna Esselstyn, assistant director of the adult chorus. Russell W. Ballard is director of Hull House.

Trumpet Notes to Herald Birth of Christ Child

Trumpeters will herald the traditional Christmas candlelight carol service of the Euclid Avenue Methodist church, Euclid av. and Washington blvd., Oak Park, at 4:30 p. m. next Sunday. Carols will be sung by the choir and quartet under direction of Amy Leslie Toskey, minister of music.

The trumpeters, whose music will be the prelude to the service, will be stationed in the church tower. They are Richard Foster and John Naperstek.

Singers and musicians, garbed in costumes reminiscent of well known Dickens characters, will welcome the audience as it enters.

Robert Dalton, who portrays the role of town crier, is bass soloist. He was winner of the Chicago Music Festival of 1945.

To the strains of "Angels from the Realms of Glory" 26 women gowned in white and bearing lighted candles will form two rows between which the choir will walk to the loft to begin "Christmas Carols of Many Nations." Dr. Ralph M. Pierce will be narrator, and Miss Mary Mattoon will be organist.

A stringed trio, whose members are Gladys Welge, violinist; Blanche Q. Weber, cellist, and Ruth Wilkins, pianist, will play the Adagio from Beethoven's "Sonata Pathetique" and "Romance" by Rubinstein.

Members of the quartet, which will present Christmas numbers, are Charlotte Bond Aldrich, soprano; Edalyne Bledsoe, contralto; Robert Dalton, bass, and Lewis Hartfield, tenor.

YORK THESPIANS TO GIVE ONE ACT PLAYS TUESDAY

'Nativity' Included in Yule Drama Program

With a variety of one act plays ranging from "The Devil and Daniel Webster" to "The Nativity," the Thespians of York High school at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday will present their annual Pre-Christmas Drama night in the school auditorium.

Members of the cast of "New School for Wives," the first presentation, are Barbara Brahm, Mary Collins, Ellen Dunlap, Jon Thorwaldson, Virginia Hartman, June McDonald, Rogerta Dickinson, and James Sykora.

Will Present Dancers

In the cast of "The Devil and Daniel Webster" are Alan Cornelius, Elizabeth Ault, George R. Kierspe, Ward Ohrman, Arthur Sorenson, Charles Tilly, Richard Shull, Dorothy Stoltz, Zillah Janes, Mary Ann Ruelman, Joyce Roberts, Oliver Burrows, Arthur Dewsberry, Donald Brabec, and Jon Thorwaldson.

Dancers will be Barbara Ford, Janet Teschner, Barbara Tozier, Betty Rink, Philip Thorneycroft, Kenneth Helms, Bruce Andrews, and Russell Vass.

In "Nativity" Cast

Taking part in "The Nativity" are Reagan Bowman, narrator; Russell Vass, Gabriel; Phyllis Raymond, Mary; Mead Rogers, Joseph; Charles Tilly, Kenneth Dunnivent, and Wayne Staley, shepherds; Don Strong, Larry Fowler, and Ted Hartman, the three kings; Donald Brabec, Herod; John Britz, Herod's son; Ralph Anderson, Herod's adviser; Kenneth Helms and Bruce Andrews, soldiers, and Phillip Thorneycroft, messenger.

Miss Doris White, sponsor of the Thespians, is directing the productions.

SANTA GETTING AID FROM GIRL SCOUT TROOPS

Their Gifts to Travel Many Places

Doubling as Santa Claus' helpers, west side Girl Scouts will help to spread Christmas cheer among sailors and WAVES in McIntyre hospital, Great Lakes. Seventy-five local troops are contributing 500 gifts in a city-wide project designed to provide presents for each of the 3,000 patients in the hospital.

The gifts will include such articles as cigaret lighters, automatic pencils, gloves, picture albums, and billfolds. The project is sponsored by the camp and hospital committee of the Red Cross, as well as by the Girl Scouts.

Send Gifts Overseas

Troop 118, under the direction of Mrs. George E. Siemen, 3129 Warren blvd., has been making friendship bags for Girl Guides in foreign countries. The cloth drawstring bags contain personal items that girls in liberated countries cannot buy, such as thread, bobbie pins, buttons, notebooks, combs, soap, and hard candy.

A Mexican Christmas will be observed by Girl Scouts of Troop 250 under the leadership of Miss Gerda Seeman, 1829 S. Sawyer av.

Preparing Mexican Meal

The girls are planning a typical Mexican dinner, and will have a pinata ceremony—the breaking of a papier maché figure by a blindfolded girl to release its contents of fruit, nuts, and candy.

MAYWOOD GROUP TO FETE PASTOR GOING TO AFRICA

Rev. Basil Holt to Return to Native Country

The Rev. Basil Holt, pastor of First Christian church, Maywood, will be given a farewell dinner Tuesday night in the First Congregational church by the Greater Maywood association. The Rev. Mr. Holt plans to leave Maywood after the first of the year to accept a post in his native country, the Union of South Africa.

During the five and one-half years that the Rev. Mr. Holt has been in Maywood, he has been interested in all of the Greater Maywood association activities.

Born in Cape Colony

"The board of directors feel that a dinner in his honor would be in order," said Louis E. Nelson, president of the G. M. R. "This is an opportunity for the business men to work closer with the church people of the community."

The Rev. Mr. Holt was born in Umtata, Cape Colony. He will return to the African country as general superintendent of the Disciples of Christ work.

Son of a missionary and a trained nurse from the British isles he received his high school education in Umtata and East London near Johannesburg. He entered training for the ministry in Capetown. For two years he served as pastor of the First Christian church in Johannesburg.

In United States 15 Years

Coming to the United States 15 years ago, the Rev. Mr. Holt was pastor of the First Christian church in Angola, Ind. Later, he joined the faculty of Johnson Bible college in Knoxville, Tenn. In 1940 he became pastor of the First Christian church of Maywood.

Mrs. Altha Bendell at the First National bank in Maywood is in charge of the reservations for the farewell banquet.

Proviso Twp. Pastors Elect Panel of Officers

Dr. Thomas K. Griffith recently was elected president of the Proviso Township Ministerial association. Dr. Griffith is pastor of the Neighborhood Methodist church, Maywood. Other officers elected by the association are the Rev. L. O. Cooperrider, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church, Maywood, vice president, and the Rev. J. Dwight Russel, pastor of Broadview Presbyterian church, secretary-treasurer.

Business Men Renew Geneva Yule Lighting

For the first time in four years Geneva's shopping district is decorated in keeping with the Christmas season. Small Christmas trees with colored lights have been placed on light poles and a large lighted star hangs suspended above the main street.

Business men of the community will be awarded prizes for the best decorated windows. Wilbur J. Peak and his committee will be the judges. Christmas carols are being broadcast over a public address system.

New officers recently elected by the Geneva Chamber of Commerce, which is active in restoring the Christmas cheer, are Roy M. Henry, president; Eric Thorson, vice president; William C. Wood, treasurer, and V. O. Anderson, L. J. Lencioni, William Rosenfelder, R. G. Watson, and John Wheeler, directors.

Dale E. Kinley recently was employed as managing secretary by the chamber.

Bring Gifts for Newborn Child

The roles of wise men bringing treasures from the orient for the Christ child are depicted by Crane High school students in their Christmas operetta, "The Quest." Left to right are Jerome Siegel, 1516 S. Hamlin av.; Robert Bright, 1405 Washburne av., and Victor Ferracane, 3058 Harrison st. The operetta will be presented Monday and Tuesday nights in the school, 2245 Jackson blvd.

Mary Kelly Wed

MRS. RAYMOND WELSH

Mrs. Raymond J. Welsh Jr. is the former Mary Jane Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Kelly, 4141 Congress st. Her marriage to Lt. Welsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Welsh, 3424 S. Lowe av., took place in St. Mel's church. Both the bride and bridesgroom are graduates of De Paul university. Lt. Welsh recently returned to the United States after 18 months overseas service with the army.

LYONS SCHOOLS TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE SUNDAY

All graduates of Lyons Township High school and Junior college and all those who have ever attended the school are being invited to attend the annual alumni open house reception from 3 to 6 o'clock next Sunday afterhoon.

Guests will gather in the community room and foyer of the high school. Refreshments will be served in the community room.

The class of '45 is sponsoring the reunion. Members of committees are Sylvia Zinther, Leona Basinski, Robert Dvorak, and William McDonald, publicity; Nancy Grainger, Greta Elevelt, Ann Carpenter, and Margaret Gore, food; Marian Edberg, Mary Lweellyn, Jo Clegg, and Bobbie Mandl, reception, and Joanne Messner, Carole Leavitt, Richard Cossitt, and William Bradford, decorations.

Hinsdale Pastor to Advise 'Cradle Song' Production

The Rev. James T. Farrell of St. Isaac Jogues church, Hinsdale, will serve on the advisory committee for the Hinsdale Village Players' production of "The Cradle Song," to be presented Dec. 21, 22, and 23 in the Hinsdale Community house. T. A. Blank is director.

35 PROMOTED IN R. O. T. C. UNIT AT ST. MEL HIGH

Promotion of 35 R. O. T. C. officers at St. Mel High school has been announced. They are: Michael J. Grob, Jacob V. Nachowicz, Charles A. Olickas, and William C. Traxler, majors; James R. Devereaux, Kevin B. Gallagher, William J. Kain, Joseph A. Messineo, Edward P. Moser, James M. O'Niell, Charles F. Purcell, and Raymond E. Reilly, captains; Todd S. 18,526 SUM UP DRIVE RESULTS IN WEST AREAS

Volunteers Lauded as Work Nears End

More than 18,526 volunteer solicitors of residences and business firms on the west side in the Community and War Fund's victory campaign are totaling the results of their efforts as the drive draws to a close.

Walter P. Paepcke, general chairman, officially will close the drive tomorrow at a final dinner meeting in the Grand ballrom of the Palmer House.

"Altho the campaign will end officially tomorrow," Paepcke said, "we are asking any one who has not contributed to the fund to mail his donation to the Community and War Fund, 100 W. Monroe st."

Pass 82 Per Cent Mark

At a recent audit workers reported subscriptions totaling $127,705 from residents of the west side. To date, the Cook-Lake-Du Page drive has raised $10,646,547, or 82 per cent of its goal of $13,040,700.

Paepcke pointed out that many workers on the west side already have passed their goal. These have been awarded the order of the red feather.

Mrs. Frances Synek, 4018 21st st., reported $887, or 127 per cent, of her $700 goal. Mrs. John Welcl, 4242 21st pl., raised $392, or 112 per cent, of a $350 quota. Both women, who solicited donations among homes and business firms in the south Lawndale district, received the order of the red feather.

Also Get Red Feathers

Order awards also were presented Mrs. Robert E. Chambers, 1021 N. Le Claire av., who secured $261, or 130 per cent, of her $200 quota, and Mrs. Max Sider, 5568 Gladys av., who riased $358, or 204 per cent, or a $175 goal.

Solicitation of funds in the suburbs also is proceeding satisfactorily, Stuart W. Cochran, chairman of the suburban division, announced.

"Altho reports from the 184 suburbs thruout Cook, Lake, and Du Page counties are coming in slowly," Cochran said, "I am confident that the division will come thru 100 per cent in this last drive for war related relief."

FOUR WIN RED FEATHERS

For outstanding work in the Community and War Fund's victory campaign, the Order of the Red Feather has been presented to four west side residents, Walter P. Paepcke, general chairman of the drive, has announced.

A certificate of membership was presented recently to Mrs. Philip Kay, 3934 Cermak rd., captain of a soliciting team in the north Lawndale district. Volunteer fund workers on Mrs. Kay's team raised $574, or 128 per cent of their $450 quota.

Tell of Others

Mrs. Hymen Lanski, 3523 13th pl., captain of another team in north Lawndale, received the award for raising $408, or more than 100 per cent of her $400 quota.

For successful solicitation of donations among business firms in the north Austin district, Mrs. Theodore R. Zumbrook, 1144 N. Waller av., also received membership in the order. With a goal of $250, members of Mrs. Zumbrook's team raised $274, or 109 per cent of their quota.

The Order of the Red Feather also was conferred on Calvin W. Zimmerman, Elmhurst, whose team raised $1,044, or 174 per cent of its $600 quota.

Among Early Winners

In presenting the awards, James R. Sterling, chairman of the city division, stated that these orders were among the first to be presented to solicitors on the west side. "Before the victory campaign comes to a close, we hope to make many more of these awards to our volunteer workers," he said.

At the same time, Stuart W. Cochran, chairman of the suburban division, announced that solicitation in the suburbs is progressing at a faster rate than in previous campaigns. "In the last week, more suburbs have oversubscribed their quotas for war related relief and home front charities than in a similar time in any other campaign," he said.

Suburban Bride

MRS. EDWARD ARMSTRONG

Mr. and Mrs. Lee M. Keller, 1127 Washington blvd., Oak Park, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Jane, to Edward Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Armstrong, River Forest. The ceremony took place in St. Edward's church, Palm Beach, Fla. The bride attended De Paul university. The bridegroom is a graduate of Armour institute.

LINK HANDCRAFT, CHURCH SCHOOL IN WEST SUBURB

Correlation of handicraft with classwork in the Sunday morning program is an innovation at First Congregational church, Western Springs. Teacher of junior department activity is Louis R. Klindera, a resident of Western Springs and a teacher in the Chicago Latin School for Boys.

Fourth grade classes taught by Mrs. A. L. Magnuson, Mrs. J. E. McKee, and Mrs. E. F. Manthei, are making rose windows.

Sixth grade classes of Mrs. E. M. Locke and R. J. Herberts studying the Old Testament have made models of ancient lamps from clay, and ancient musical instruments from wood and violin strings.

Work on Creches

A Thanksgiving project of fifth grade classes taught by R. E. Acheson, Mrs. A. J. Hospers, and Mrs. C. A. Williams was the building of a Jewish sukkoth booth and decorating it with fruits, vegetables, and pine boughs.

For the Christmas season, all members of the junior department are working on creches and a display of the figures of the three kings and their camels for the church grounds.

Aside from beautifying the church and their homes, the children have packed Christmas boxes for needy children overseas. Mrs. McKee's fourth grade boys have sold papers after school and collected $14 to be sent to war victims.

Outfit Overseas Girl

Fifth grade girls in Mrs. Williams' class, with the help of their mothers, are sending one completely new outfit to an overseas child.

Mrs. Dayton Hulburt, director of religious education, is in charge of junior department activities. Mrs. Roger O'Conner, president of the Home and Church School council, assigns parents each week to help carry out the program.

Junior Women

The Millard Av. Junior Woman's club is sponsoring a Christmas party at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Dolores Creek, 2404 S. Hamlin av.

BUILD A HOME THAT YOU CAN ADD TO LATER

BY LOUISE BARGELT

With the time close at hand when many homes will be built and plans for many more seriously considered, we will mention a few trends to consider before you actually embark on building or remodeling.

If you are a young married couple with a limited amount to invest and yet wish to own your home, consider a flexible house, or one which you can enlarge later. Build the basic part first, the equivalent perhaps of a four or five room apartment. But build the type of house which can grow gracefully, take on added rooms as family needs increase.

Future additions must be planned if they are to be carried out later with economy and contribute to the good looks of the house. This type planning has long been recognized as a good idea, but it looks as if more and more plans of the house which can grow will take tangible form from now on.

Plan Storage Carefully

Figure carefully just how much storage space you will need and have this space expertly engineered for the household possessions it must accommodate. Architects and builders and manufacturers are spending more time and thought than ever before on developing highly efficient storage areas in a home.

This need will be felt more in the future than in the past, since there will be few of the old type, vast, rambling attics overhead. In many instances the basement also will be omitted. So not only must the utility room be wisely planned, but every room in the house must offer, in small or large measure, built-in units, cases, cabinets, and drawers.

Then, too, discuss with your architect and builder the new accoustical treatments, especially for bathroom, playroom, laundry, gameroom, and kitchen; in brief, for all those "noisy" rooms.

Separate Noise Areas

In addition to accoustical ceiling tiles, to sound absorbent plasters and insulating boards and other developments, much greater quiet can be given to a house by a deft separation of its work, play, and rest areas. The work areas include the service rooms, kitchen, and perhaps garage, while the play or recreation areas include the living room, dining room, the game room, porch, and terrace.

There are many variations possible in floor plans, so that they may meet individual family requirements. Thoughtful planning before building can result in added comforts and happier family relationships.

LEGION WOMEN TO GIVE HOLIDAY SHOW AT TIVOLI

The auxiliary of Downers Grove American Legion post will hold its Christmas show at 1 p. m. Friday in the Tivoli theater.

At each Christmas time residents of the village go to the theater laden with gifts of canned food, clothing, and toys as admission. Later the gifts are collected by the child welfare chairman of the Legion auxiliary for distribution among needy families.

Mrs. Louis Edwards, who is in charge of the project, will be assisted by Mrs. Fred Lester, president of the auxiliary, and her committee.

RURAL TASTE IN RADIO DIFFERS FROM CITY LIKES

Prefer Serious Program, Survey Shows

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Country people's tastes in radio is somewhat different from that of city folk. That is one conclusion to be drawn from an examination of a 120 page study of "Attitudes of Rural People Toward Radio Service" made by the bureau of agricultural economics and released by the federal communications commission. The report is based on interviews conducted with 2,535 farm and nonfarm families from 116 counties selected to provide a cross-section of the nation's rural areas.

While radio surveys reflecting mainly the preferences of city people show comedy variety shows are the overwhelming favorites, rural people generally seem to prefer the more serious type of programs, such as news and market reports, religious music, and sermons. They also like old time [hillbilly?] music.

Would Miss News Most

Men prefer news and information, but rural women rate entertainment somewhat more highly. An "overwhelming majority" say they would miss news most if they had to do without a radio. Serials are second only to news among women. At the same time, the serial drama created "strong feelings of rejection." Dance music was next on the list of programs disliked, and then came classical music and opera.

The reason for disliking classical music, however, is generally different from the prejudice against the other disliked items. They admit they don't go for the old masters because they don't understand them.

The amount of time spent listening in the country varies greatly, but three out of four said they turn off their sets at times because of lack of interest in the programs available, and one-third reported that they do so often.

Noon Peak Listening Hour

The hours of listening are in striking contrast with those of city folk. In the city the peak hours are between 7 and 10 p. m. In the country the peak comes at noon, with 44 per cent of the families tuning in then, the survey found. Two-thirds of the farm folk who have radios turn them on before 8 a. m. and one-eighth of them before 6 a. m. Twenty-six per cent of the listening is done in the morning, 10 per cent in late morning, then the peak at noon, 6 per cent in the afternoon, and 11 per cent in the evening.

Most rural people value radio highly and the loss of their sets would "make a great difference" to three-fourths. Typical comments on the attitude toward radio: "I am just lost when the radio is broken," "Going without radio would be just like going back to old fashioned lights," "I simply couldn't stay at home," "I look upon radio as my companion."

Now and then, the surveyors come up with a contrary response: "If it weren't for my family I'd throw the radio out," "All you hear is junk and commercials and murder mysteries."

Will Figure at Hearing

Rural listeners appear not to be highly conscious of any need for improved programming. The FCC contends that this is because "very few of these people have any point of reference, either actual or ideal, with which to compare present radio programming; as a consequence, they tend to accept the radio they know as the natural order of things."

The survey is expected to figure in the clear channel station hearings which the FCC has called for Jan. 14. Clear channel stations provide most of the coverage for many rural areas.

"Babes in Toyland" Next for Theater of the Air

Victor Herbert's "Babes in Toyland" will be broadcast as the Christmas program of the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N and Mutual at 9 p. m. next Saturday. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker. Penny Perry, soprano, and Angelo Raffaelli, will be the leading singers. Robert Trendler will conduct the orchestra. This program and the one of the following week will be broadcast from W-G-N's main audience studio.

Fred Allen's Visitor

Lauritz Melchior will visit Fred Allen on WMAQ-NBC at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Regulars on the Allen show include Minerva Pious, Portland Hoffa, Parker Fennelly, Irving Kaufman, and Ken Delmar.

Wheaton High School to Sing Carols

[TRIBUNE Photo]

The Wheaton High school chorus will sing on the Citizens of Tomorrow broadcast over W-G-N at 9:30 a. m. Saturday. Students who will sing (left to right) include Betsy Holmes, Louise Henderson, Audrey Christiansen, Mary Jane Lacey, Virginia Player, Carol Lee Sollenberger, and Lonnie Duner. Other west side suburban schools that will be represented are East Aurora, Lyons Township, Hinsdale, Glenbard, Oak Park-River Forest, and Proviso Township. The program of holiday music will supplant the usual salute to a selected high school.

Winners in Bible Quiz

Five of six students who participated in a Bible quiz, which will be heard at 8 a. m. today on W-G-N's Youth Looks Up program, answered their questions correctly and were awarded Bibles by Philip Maxwell of The Chicago Tribune, which sponsors the program. The students are members of the Cathedral Shelter and Church of the Epiphany Sunday school, 201 S. Ashland av. A recording of the program was made last Sunday in the Epiphany chapel. In the front row (left to right) are Laverne Christenson, 13; Ruth Langley, 11, and Ann Novak, 15. In the second row are Raymond Paez, 14 (left), and James Novak, 17.

MET—NORTH

JUDY CANOVA, PERRY COMO ON HALL OF FAME

Judy Canova and Perry Como will visit the Radio Hall of Fame on WENR-ABC at 5 p. m. today. Paul Whiteman, his orchestra, and Martha Tilton, songstress, are regulars on the show.

Miss Canova is a Whiteman discovery, so her appearance with him today will be something of a reunion. She will offer "Darling Nellie Gray," the tune she was singing for a vaudeville audience the day Whiteman first heard her and hired her to work with his band. Perry Como will sing a group of popular selections.

Holiday Music Highspots W-G-N Symphonic Hour

The Chicago Philharmonic orchestra, under the baton of Henry Weber, will salute the holiday season with a program of light music over W-G-N at 8:30 Tuesday evening. A performance of Prokofieff's "Peter and the Wolf," with John Barclay as narrator, will form the major portion of the broadcast. The orchestra also will offer Toch's "Pinocchio" and Corelli's "Christmas Concerto."

Theater Guild Drama Stars Fredric March

Fredric March and his wife, Florence Eldridge, will star in "The Royal Family" to be aired over the Theater Guild on the Air via WENR-ABC at 9 o'clock tonight. On tonight's broadcast March will be recreating a role which won him a film contract when he was touring with he George S. Kaufman-Edna Ferber play in 1928.

Sigma Phi Gamma

Epsilon Tau chapter of Sigma Phi Gamma sorority will be hostess at a New Year's eve party in the Baker hotel, St. Charles. Proceeds will go to the Community hospital in Geneva.

MEDICAL HERO OF CORREGIDOR GETS A MEDAL

Lt. Comdr. Ferdinand V. Berley, 4153 Congress st., veteran navy doctor of the Philippines and several Jap prison camps, has received the bronze star.

The citation told how he disregarded the inferno of falling bombs and explosions in the Jap bombing attack on Cavite naval base on Dec. 10, 1941, to render medical aid and help move more than 100 casualties. It told how he persisted in his services next at Canacao hospital, then at Fort Sternberg hospital, and finally on Corregidor where he was taken prisoner.

Then a lieutenant, he was shifted from prison to prison by the Japs. At one war prison camp he was forced, despite his medical rank, to hew wood for three months. After being held at Bilibad, Cabanatuan, and other camps for some time, he was transported to Japan.

Put in Charge

He wound up at a war prisoners' hospital near Kobe. Here he was appointed senior American physician and surgeon until liberated by the war's end.

He revealed that Yank air raids on military targets near the prison hospital at Kobe caused a number of casualties among allied war prisoners. The worst raid, he said, was on June 6, 1945, when 15 men were killed.

Comdr. Berley credited Dr. Ahashi, Jap civilian commandant in charge of the Kobe hospital, with great kindness. Dr. Ahashi, he said, did all in his power to provide the allied medical staff and prisoners with adequate food and medical supplies. When the war ended Dr. Ahashi presented his Samurai sword to Berley as a gift.

Buy Tickets to Tokyo

When told by Ahashi that the war was over, Berley, Dr. Ben Smith, dentist of Sandwich, Ill., and Dr. Murray Glusman, physician of New York City, calmly shouldered their way out of the Kobe prison camp, bought railroad tickets, and went to Tokyo in an effort to get more medical supplies for their charges.

Berley, 33, lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy J. Berley, at the congress st. address.

A graduate of Northwestern university medical school, he plans to take a year's post-graduate course in medicine and surgery. Then he wants to continue his navy career.

Immortal Melodies on Hour of Charm Tonight

The Hour of Charm, with Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra, will present a program titled "Melodies That Never Die" on WMAQ-NBC at 9 o'clock tonight. The orchestra and choir will open with Weber's "Invitation to the Waltz." Donaldson's "Romance," Ketelbery's "In a Monastery Garden," and Weber's "Softly Now the Light of Day" also will be heard.

Cathedral Shelter on W-G-N's Youth Looks Up

Youth Looks Up to be aired on W-G-N at 8 a. m. today will honor the Cathedral Shelter and Church of the Epiphany. The program, which is conducted by Philip Maxwell, will be welcomed by the Rev. Joseph F. Higgins, associate pastor.

HUBERMAN IS PHILHARMONIC SOLOIST TODAY

Bronislaw Huberman, violinist, will be soloist on the New York Philharmonic program over WBBM-CBS at 2 p. m. today. He will play Mozart's D major Violin Concerto. Bruno Walter will direct the orchestra in Corelli's Concerto Grosso No. 8 in G minor and Schumann's First Symphony. During intermission, Dr. James Franck will discuss "Medical Benefits from Atomic Energy."

Rose Bampton Sings on Sunday Evening Hour

When the Sunday Evening hour presents its 400th radio performance on WLS-ABC at 7 o'clock tonight, Rose Bampton, soprano, will be soloist. She will sing "Mi Chiamano, Mimi," from Puccini's "La Boheme"; Obradors' "Del Cabellos Mas Sutil," La Forge's "Song of the Open," Warren's "Christmas Candle," and, accompanied by a chorus, the "Inflammatus," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater." A brief history of the musical program will be heard.

Labor Arbitration Is Topic of WBBM Forum

"Should We Adopt the President's Plan for Compulsory Labor Arbitration?" will be the topic on People's Platform over WBBM at 10:15 a. m. today. Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.], Rep. Hook [R., Mich.], Rep. Morrison [D., La.], and Rep. Fischer [D., Tex.] will participate.

WAR MEMORIAL STADIUM TO BE BUILT BY MAINE

School Will Open Its Drive Tomorrow

An army of 1,800 Maine Township High school students will launch a door to door subscription campaign tomorrow night to raise $50,000 to construct a memorial stadium. The concrete structure with a seating capacity of 6,000 will be built as a "permanent, living memorial to the 1,500 Maine men and women who served in World War II.," E. O. Goll, president of the board of education, said. It will be located 200 yards east of the school building.

To aid the campaign the city councils of Park Ridge and Des Plaines have designated tomorrow as Maine Memorial Fund day. Each of the 8,000 families in the township will be asked to contribute, Goll said.

Will Contact Each Family

Student captains chosen from the National Honor society, student council, and "M" athletic club will direct the campaign, assisted by a committee of civic leaders from Park Ridge and Des Plaines. Each student will be asked to contact at least four families.

The Memorial stadium is planned as a $150,000 project, $50,000 of which is to be raised by students and the fund committee thru public subscriptions. Thirty thousand dollars already is available from the student activities treasury. Goll said the $80,000 would be sufficient to assure completion of structure in time for the football season next fall. Landscaping and other features of the memorial will be financed as additional funds become available.

Will Have Lights

The stadium will have lighting for night games and be available for civic events, community religious observances, patriotic celebrations, and guest sports events. The inclosed area beneath the stands will include dressing rooms, showers, athletic offices, trophy rooms, ticket booths, and refreshment counters.

The name of each veteran will be engraved on a plaque to be affixed to one of the seats in the stadium. One section of seats, dedicated to the 68 Maine men who were killed in World War II., will be located on the 50 yard line.

List Committee Members

Members of the fund committee are Goll, E. W. Bergman, P. M. Carrick, M. E. Houser, and Dr. W. T. Poyer, all of the board of education; Harold A. Markworth, fund treasurer; Hall Teeman, and William C. Ziehn, alumni co-chairmen; Edward Lawson and Dr. J. D. Pett, co-chairmen of special gifts, and Will H. Connelly, and Einar J. Anderson, publicity.

PARK PLAYERS WILL GIVE YULE DRAMA FRIDAY

The Almira Simons park dramatic group will present the play, "The World's Christmas Tree," at 8:15 p. m. Friday in the fieldhouse, Wabansia and Hancock avs. The play is directed by Miss Dorothy L. Driskell, artcraft instructor of the park district staff, assisted by George Sonnenleiter, supervisor. The cast includes Jacqueline Conrad, Dolores Kobylanski, Carol Petersen, Erna Hansen, Patricia Tvaroh, Georgene Totino, Sally Knudtson, Barbara Nilsen, Nancy Koch, Jeanne Koch, Jolanda Tito, Bernice Holmes, Ruby Raugstad, Nina Olsen, Donna Smart, Dorothy Olsen, Barbara Ann Wilke, Mary Carpenter, and Joan Hall.

LEGION GROUPS PLAN PARTIES FOR CHILDREN

Kelvyn American Legion post and auxiliary will sponsor two children's parties this year. The first, at 2 p. m. today, will be given in the clubrooms, 2431 N. Cicero av., and will include a program and distribution of gifts. The second, given jointly with Kosciuszko post, will be at 1:30 p. m. Thursday in the Ephpheta school, Belmont and Crawford avs.

2 NIGHT CHRISTMAS PROGRAM TO CLOSE NORTH PARK SERIES

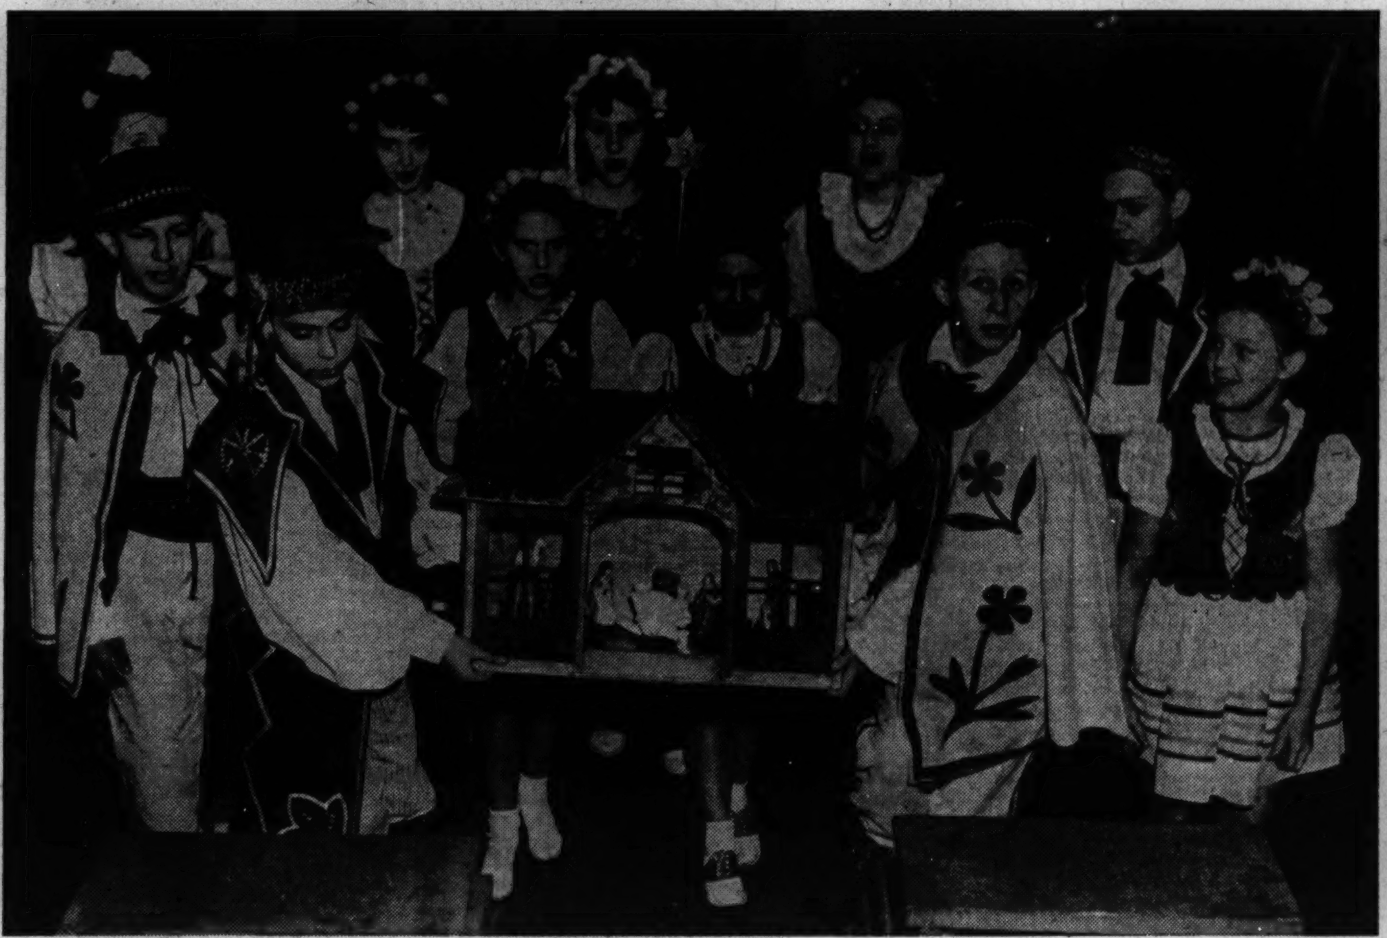
A two part Christmas program at North Park college, Foster and Kedzie avs., at 8 p. m. Monday and Tuesday will close the Tuesday evening program series of the college.

Donald Ohlsen

The festival chorus, directed by Donald Ohlsen, will present Handel's "Messiah" with Soloists E. Clifford Toren, bass; Herman Goodman, tenor; Eva Coleman, alto, and Elizabeth Barton, soprano.

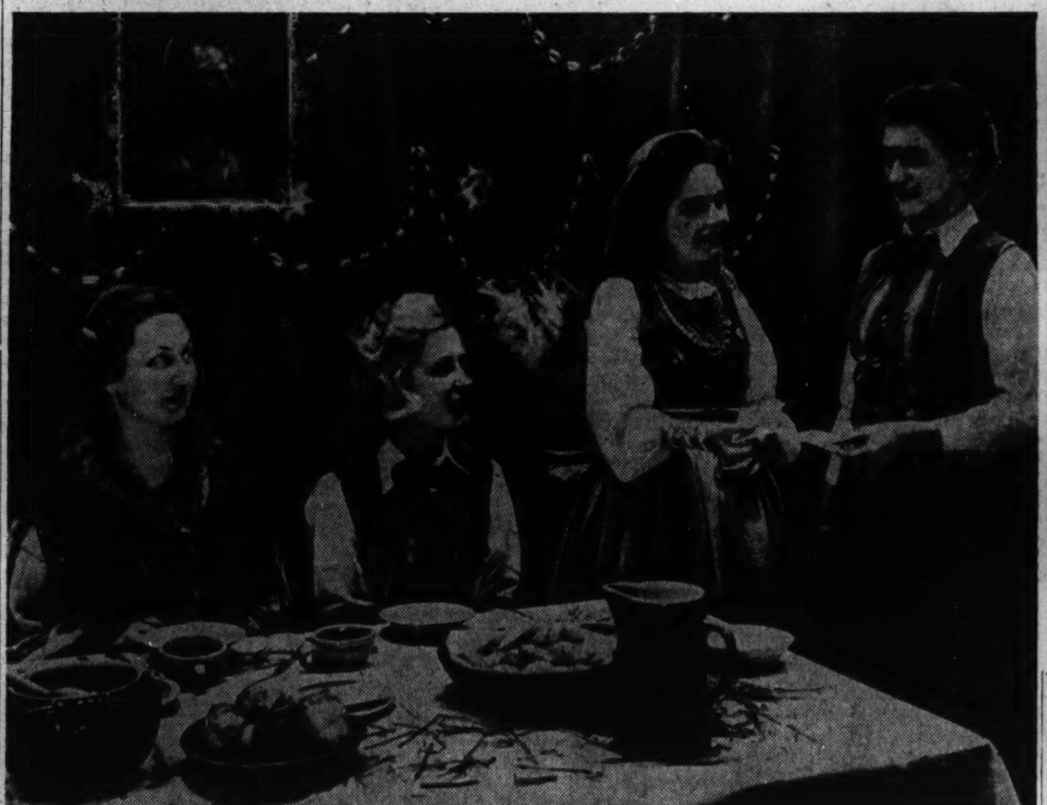
The last half of the program will include Christmas songs by the a cappella choir, and tableaux by dramatic students. The college orchestra, directed by Ebba Sundstrom-Nylander, will assist.

Scenes Enacted in Museum Are Reminiscent of Christmas as Celebrated in Poland



A crib depicting the Nativity needs no explanation to Polish children; it's as much a part of Christmas caroling as the songs they sing. Yuletide customs of Poland are enacted in the Museum of Science and Industry. The crib is carried to the door of a home by Eugene Foszcz, 1728 Superior st., who wears a costume frequently seen in Cracow, Poland, and Raymond Klybor, 5201 N. Hermitage av., whose clothing is from the Carpathian mountain region. In the second row (left to right) are Victor Lukasik, 5014 S. Ada st.; Rita Baker, 1409 Superior st.; Diane Galet, 927 N. Winchester av.; Vincent Sekulski, 1148 W. 51st st., and Filomena Galet, 927 N. Winchester av. In the back row (from left) are Emily Marcha, 2731 N. Mason av.; Florence Zurek, 2613 Iowa st.; Alice Bohdziewicz, 3340 Rice st., and Mary Galet, 927 N. Winchester av.

Colorful houses, churches, Santa faces, and dolls decorate the Polish Christmas tree in the rotunda of the Museum of Science and Industry, where the Polish program is one of a series in "Around the World at Christmas" now being presented. Evelyn Galat and Joan Naska, both of 923 Mozart st., add a finishing touch.



Not until the first star has appeared in the evening sky does the Polish family sit down to Christmas eve supper. The table is strewn with hay, symbolic of the manger scene. Food is not taken until mother and father break small wafers stamped with Biblical figures. Roles of the parents are portrayed by Emily Wisniewski (right), 2653 Walton st., and Genevieve Kotowski (second from right), 3656 George st. The children are Janet Szlak (left), 6634 S. Bishop st., and Lillian Stachura, 2919 N. Melvina av.

With a smile that means Christmas is just around the corner, Mary Gill, 2328 Superior st., decorates the tree with a cardboard church. The red velvet vest with silver trim came from Poland.

Add Buses to Addison St. for Rush Hour

Improved service on the Addison st. bus line will be effected tomorrow with the addition of two new bus runs during evening rush hours, the replacement of three single deck buses with double deck buses, and the addition of another bus to run from the loop.

The announcement of the improvements was made by officials of the Chicago Motor Coach company at a recent meeting called by Frank M. Kalteux, transportation analyst for the Illinois commerce commission.

Officials Tell Plans

Improvements as outlined by Kay Lorentzen and B. J. Pepperman, company officials, will include one new bus line to leave the Parkview station of the North Western railroad for the Pueblo av. city limits; an extra bus to begin its run at the Palmolive building, 919 N. Michigan av.; an extra bus to begin its run at the loop, and replacement of three single deck buses with double deck buses on already existing runs. All of the new runs will take place during the evening rush hours, Pepperman said.

These improvements are forerunners of more improvements on the line, said officials.

Strikes Slow Delivery

Restricted service due to war time conditions can only be improved gradually, they pointed out, since strikes are holding up delivery of new equipment, and physical requirements for new employes are necessarily high.

The meeting to discuss transportation problems of the northwest side was attended by George Trinkaus, chairman of the transportation committee of the Northwest Federation of Improvement. As his group's representative he stressed the urgent need of increased service. Kalteux, who is Republican committeeman for the 38th ward, agreed with the federation's findings.

Y TO ENTERTAIN RESIDENTS FROM CHILDREN'S HOME

For the 19th year, residents of the Irving Park Y. M. C. A., 4251 Irving Park rd., will remember their neighbors across the street by giving them a Christmas party. Santa Claus will land on the roof and make his way down to the lobby to present gifts.

Friday night the Y will entertain between 40 and 50 children from the Lydia Children's home, 4300 Irving Park rd. The guests will be escorted across the street to the building where a large Christmas tree has been anchored solidly to the floor by hundreds of presents prepared by the Y's past and present tenants.

Many of the gifts have come from former Y tenants now in service overseas.

TABOR LUTHERAN SCHOOL WILL BE RECORDED TODAY

Hear Program Next Sunday Morning

Christmas carols and messages of the Sunday school of Tabor Lutheran church, 3542 Sunnyside av., will be recorded today for presentation next Sunday at 8 a. m. on W-G-N. This regular Sunday program—Youth Looks Up—is sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and is dedicated to the Sunday schools of America.

This morning's program, which was recorded last Sunday, will bring to listeners the program of the Catholic Shelter and Church of the Epiphany, 201 S. Ashland blvd.

Principal Will Speak

Director of the Tabor Lutheran program will be Philip Maxwell of THE TRIBUNE who will introduce E. L. Marquardt, principal of the church's school for 28 years. The Scripture passage, taken from Isaiah 9, verses 2 thru 7, will be read by the Rev. Carl Richard Matthiew, pastor of the church for five years.

A quiz on the Bible will be conducted with three boys and three girls taking part. They are Louis Soest, Warren Miller, Fred Blumenthal, Marilyn Freese, Eileen Heldt, and Marilyn Rieck. The Bible lesson will be dramatized by Jerry Walker.

Will Intersperse Hymns

Interspersed thru the program will be musical numbers including the hymn, "I Would Be True," as the opening and closing selection. Soloist will be Corinne Scher, contralto, a member of the children's chorus for four years. She will sing "Cantique de Noel."

Christmas carols to be sung by the entire school will include "Come Hither, Ye Children," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," and "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing."

Get Together Club

Friendly Get Together club will hold its Christmas party and grab bag Thursday night in the home of Mrs. Louis J. Stangren, 3236 N. Natoma av.

LOGAN SQUARE LEGION TO GIVE PARTY FRIDAY

A Christmas party sponsored by the American Legion's Logan Square post will be given Friday night at 8 p. m. in Logan Square Masonic temple, 2451 N. Kedzie blvd. Almost 300 children and auxiliary members will attend.

Santa Claus will be Frank H. Fleming, past commander, who will distribute stockings stuffed with gifts and candy. Entertainment will include the community singing of Christmas carols, minstrel singers, and vaudeville acts provided by Sam Krimstein, theater manager.

Edward C. Le Brecht and John Opager, both veterans of World War II., are chairmen of the arrangements committee. Pianist will be Eddie Reimer, also a veteran of the second World war.

Kiwanis club of Park Ridge has elected John W. Carroll as president for 1946. Other officers are George Berquist, vice president; Stanley Huntington, secretary, and William H. Colman, treasurer. Directors are Ben R. Williams, John Bachmann, Otto H. Framke, John Gillick, Dan C. Mueller, the Rev. George T. Carl, and John C. Leach.

200 War Vets to Get Homes in Early 1946

At least 200 war veterans with families who have been unable to find suitable living quarters will have homes on the northwest side shortly after Jan. 1.

The site will be the 19 acres of forest preserve property bounded by Foster av., the branch of the North Shore channel, Kostner av., and the Chicago and North Western tracks. Utility lines and water main installations already are available.

The dwellings are of the demountable type with pitched roofs. Each has a kitchen, bath, and from one to three bedrooms. Equipment will include electric refrigerators, gas ranges, and individual heating systems.

Must Provide Own Fuel

Tenants will have to provide their own fuel and gas, but water and electricity probably will be furnished, Miss Elizabeth Wood, executive secretary of the Chicago housing authority, said. The houses are constructed well enough, she stated, that they may be used permanently by adding masonry chimneys and foundations.

Rentals have not been determined yet, but are expected to be the same or lower than those at Kingsford Heights, Ind., where the cottages are being dismantled and brought to Chicago, Miss Wood said. Units there rented to war worker families for about $42 a month.

Applications from veterans and their families who did not live in Chicago before the war, said Miss Wood, will not be accepted. Tenants will be selected on the basis of those found most in need. Families who have had to double up and live with relatives will be the first to be considered, she said.

Units Leased by CHA

Prospective tenants may apply at the CHA office, 39 S. La Salle st. The units will be leased by CHA from the federal public housing authority. They will be operated for married veterans' families for a two year period.

Miss Wood said the units are the first of the 2,000 temporary type dwellings and 2,500 trailer type units which it is planned to bring to Chicago to help relieve the shortage of housing. It is estimated 32,500 married veterans will need homes by February.

Lecture in Yiddish

Dr. Berl Frymer, executive director of the Jewish National Workers' alliance, will speak in Yiddish on "Is This the Last Stand for Jews?" at 3 p. m. today in the Max Straus center of the Jewish People's Institute, 3715 Wilson av.

LAWRENCE SPULLER RENAMED AS KIWANIS DISTRICT SECRETARY

Lawrence W. Spuller, 4512 N. Richmond st., has been reëlected secretary of the Illinois - Eastern Iowa district of Kiwanis International. He will begin his new term in January and will have under his jurisdiction 27 clubs in Chicago and suburbs and 109 in downstate Illinois and Eastern Iowa. These clubs will stress aid to returning service men, freedom of opportunity, and conservation of natural resources, he said.

SCHOOLS' YULE PROGRAMS TO BE THIS WEEK

Some Will Repeat Performances

High schools of the northwest side will present musical programs, tableaux, and dramatic works this week as their contributions to Christmas festivities. Most programs will include carol singing by trained groups with the audiences invited to participate. In some schools of larger enrollment programs will be given more than once to accommodate the demand that has grown thru the years.

A pageant, "The Glory of Christmas," will be presented by students of Foreman High school Friday night. Audience participation in the singing of seven traditional Christmas carols will be a part of the cantata portion of the program that is under the direction of Miss Helen Meek, music director. Dialogs, readings, and tableaux will be presented.

On Choral Program.

Chorus numbers to be performed include "Go Tell It on the Mountain," "Watchman, Tell Us of the Night," "O Holy Night," "Away in a Manger," and "Lullaby on Christmas Eve." Soloist will be Dorothy Abrahamson. Accompanists will be Winifred Larsen and Robert Stangeland.

The dialogs, under the direction of Miss Muriel Mackay, will have as masters of ceremonies Roger Schroll, Elaine Thompson, and Carol Schoenborn. Readers will be Everett Malmgren, Warren Durham, and Corinne Schumaker.

Bethlehem and Prophecy readers will be Joyce Gyving, Lorraine Swanson, Arthur Bell, and Robert Bove. Those taking part in a group of angels scene will be Lorraine Swanson, Dorothy Skoney, Shirley Schmidt, Lois Schwertfeger, and Marie Schull.

Artists Design Scenes

Advanced art students from the classes of Miss Hildegarde Effting have created backgrounds for the Nativity tableaux. Artists are Rose Mary Oberheide, Esther Busse, and Lois Anderson. Merritt Fossler will direct the tableaux in which students from the Master of Ceremony club will appear. Miss Catherine A. Ryan, principal, wil give a Christmas message.

A musical program "'Twas the Night Before Christmas," will be presented by students of Maine Township High school Wednesday and Thursday nights in the school gymnasium with 19 soloists and ensemble members. The a cappella choir, the studio choir, and the school symphony orchestra will be brought together in the program under the direction of A. M. Harley.

Numbers by the orchestra will include "Angelus" by Massenet and a "Merry Christmas Overture" by Franghiser. The cantata, "Child Jesus," will be presented by the a cappella choir, and boys and girls glee clubs. The audience will join in the singing of old and new Christmas carols.

Students in Program

Soloists and ensemble members include Dick Baker, Mary Jane Behlke, Virginia Birchfield, Jackie Bryant, Ralph Brunt, Barbara Dunsmore, Carney Kittinger, Clayton Lang, Barbara Leichsenring, Louis Maday, Harold Matheson, Joan Mraz, Shirley Oksnee, Pat Peltier, Beth Percival, Doris Rhodus, Betty Robb, Franes Walton, and Sam Wakefield. Narrator will be William North.

Notre Dame Catholic High school will present a tableaux, "His Own World," and a musical program by the junior choir of 30 members and the school orchestra. The performance will be given Friday afternoon as an assembly program before the closing of school for the holidays. Directing the musical numbers will be Miss Lois Gentile. Miss Flavia Trucco will direct the tableaux. Included in the dramatic cast are Lorraine Derwent, Elizabeth Gillen, Elaine Cherpeck, Phyllis Berezny, and Mary Ann Sandberg. Orchestra director will be George Rushford.

Three Lane Programs

Students of Lane Technical High school will give three performances of their Christmas program on Wednesday so that all students may attend. Preceding the performance of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" a musical program will include the playing of carols by the 100 piece school orchestra.

Soloists will be Donald Mee, baritone, singing "Silent Night," and a medley of piano numbers by Amo Cappelli. The musical portion of the program will be under the direction of Paul Schneider. Cast of the play, which will be directed by Dorothy Weber, includes Kenneth Berke, Herbert Freed, William Martin, Arnold Addison, Morton Herman, and Edward Dushek.

Steinmetz Plans Play

The Green Curtain Players of Steinmetz High school will give two productions of "Pop Reads the Christmas Carol." First performance will be before the PTA on Wednesday afternoon, and the second for the students at 10 a. m. Friday. Musical interludes will be supplied by the freshman-sophomore choir directed by Miss Josephine Farr.

Robert Gigante will play the role of Mr. Jones in both productions. Students taking other roles are Marilyn Bjork and Marilyn Behnke, Mrs. Jones; Annabell Witt and Marian Rusin, Mary; Keith Hefner and Charles Pritchard, Paul; James Endeikis, Junior; Elaine Johnson and Betty Houlberg, Jane, and Robert

MRS. WALTER POTTER

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence P. Waage, 6700 N. Sioux av., announce the marriage of their daughter, Virginia, to Walter Colburn Potter, son of the Rev. Ernest T. Potter and Mrs. Potter, Coldwater, Mich. The wedding ceremony, at which the bridegroom's father officiated, took place in the Waage home. The bride is a graduate of the University of Illinois. The bridegroom attended Michigan State college, East Lansing. Recently he was discharged from the army, where he served three years, including 12 months overseas.

MUSIC, PAGEANTS BY STUDENTS TO HAIL CHRISTMAS

Muczynski and Otto Heidemann, Jack.

Nearly 300 students will take part in the fifth Christmas pageant by students of Leyden Community High school in Franklin Park. The performance will begin 8 p. m. Thursday, and will include a candlelight processional, the story of the Nativity in tableaux, and music.

In the processional 88 high school students will be joined by 30 younger children to form a cross. They will sing "The Lord's Prayer," and traditional Christmas carols.

In the pageant H. L. Ylvisaker, principal, will be the reader, and Melvin Mueller, senior class president, the cantor. Nativity roles will be played by Lawrence Lasky, Walter Vollers, Shirley Hanna, Gloria Schmidt, Joseph Nordie, Claire Braje, Arthur Burmeister, Melvin Mueller, Carl Cotsakis, Earle Cliver, and Eileen Olsen.

Also, Ruth Horstman, Dorothy Walke, Joanne Molsberry, Margaret Belz, Dolores Grahan, Eileen Orzech, Ramona Hawley, Barbara Hawley, Kenneth Sorensen, Charles Puglia, Robert Kaehler, Calvin Sackhoff, Louis Waltz, George Haldeman, Arthur Meusling, and Joseph Spilotro.

Musical portion of the program will include carol singing by the chorus and a solo by Alfred Boberg. Adelaide Ewing is chorus director.

Alfred Moser is general director of the pageant, and Marjorie Gailey, assisted by Estrid Miller and Maylou Serven, is dramatics instructor. Art classes under the direction of Gretchen Wahl have produced the stage backgrounds.

GRANDMA AT 90 KEEPS JUST AS BUSY AS EVER

At 90, Mrs. Christine Forster, 5852 Dakin st., has no idea of sitting down and taking things easy. Instead, she's likely to give visitors the feeling that they spend too much time just sitting around.

"Would you like to see my potholders?" she inquired briskly, then feeling quite sure the visitor would she was up and away to return in a twinkling with a box of neatly embroidered handiwork. They were quilted with a sewing machine stitch, then embroidered gayly with red floss in neat and exact stitching that must have required good eyesight.

Remembers Her Rugs

"I burned my hand on hot soup once because I didn't bother to use a potholder. See that scar? I don't want my granddaughters to do that."

After getting seated comfortably again, she remembered the braided rugs. They are going to be Christmas presents. Again she was off to another room, while a roomful of younger, but not sprier, people sat about. Those rugs were well worth seeing.

Mrs. Cenia Faber, the daughter with whom Mrs. Forster lives, will verify the impression that her mother is always on the move. With a sigh, she agreed the family had not been successful in getting grandma to take things easy.

Greets 79 Guests

On that 90th birthday a few weeks ago the family gave her a party with a reception. Mrs. Faber, her sister, and her brother were exhausted from greeting and entertaining the 79 guests. But grandma wasn't a bit tired; just excited after meeting her friends and the families of her children.

The three children of Mrs. Forster are Mrs. Olga Anderson of 1343 N. Hamlin av., Joseph Forster of 4916 School st., and Mrs. Faber. With their families the party group included eight grandchildren and five great-grandchildren of Mrs. Forster, making three sets of four generations.

While Mrs. Faber told about the party Grandma Forster left the room again. She was getting a bit chilly by the window. She thought she'd better put a sweater on, she explained apologetically.

Frets at Staying In.

It bothers grandma that she can't get around quite as well as she used to. When cold weather arrives she feels pretty much cooped up in the house. She can't go to church unless she gets a ride, or take a walk in the neighborhood since the sidewalks are sometimes treacherous.

She has a friend, Mrs. Emma Sahlin, 85, that she'd like to see more often, but that too depends on getting a ride and Mrs. Forster doesn't like to bother people to chauffeur her. Mrs. Sahlin lives quite a distance away at 6538 Lakewood av.

Only recently the two friends learned their paths had crossed in 1887. Both women had come to the United States that year from Sweden. Years later they were discussing the early days. Both agreed the worst part of their lives since leaving Sweden was the terrible boat ride.

Two on Same Ship

In comparing details they learned they had traveled on the same ship together. Mrs. Forster was 32 then, and had with her two small children. The third child, Mrs. Faber, was born a few weeks after Mrs. Forster joined her husband, Peter, in Chicago.

"It's been a good life—a busy life," Mrs. Forster concluded. Her brisk good-by hinted that the visit had been nice, but now she must get back to work and make up for the lost time, that there's a lot to do in a household, and an able bodied woman must do her share.

An historical and religious tableaux, tracing man's longing for peace from the time of Christ's birth to the present, will be presented by senior drama students of Good Counsel Catholic High school on Wednesday afternoon.

Elaine Jaeger

Role of Mary, by Elaine Jaeger, will depict the Virgin's life from maidenhood to the birth of Christ in Bethlehem. In the scenes of adoration actors portraying the shepherds and the wise men will be followed by a symbolic succession of pilgrims, from the ages to the present generation of those whose home lands were ravaged in the war.

Frances Gacek, Janet Swiderski, Celine O'Day, Virginia Mysliwiec, Edwina Zelinska, Dolores Szalinski, Georgia Stiller, Theresa Molek, Eleanor Kranz, and Alice Toton.

Holiday Spirit Fills Halls of Steinmetz High

The final pre-holiday week of school will not deter Steinmetz high school students from having an early celebration of Christmas, for the singing of carols, the preparation of gifts and the atmosphere of a gaily decorated tree are all within the school corridors.

The tree, set up in the foyer and decorated by 1st semester seniors, will be joined this week by musicians who will play carols beneath its boughs during the lunch hours. On Thursday and Friday foreign language students will parade thru the building singing carols in Spanish, Latin, French, German, Italian, and Polish.

Twenty-five gift bags for veterans of Vaughan General hospital will be filled by the three German language clubs of which Bea Oberhuber, Fred Engel, and Ray Schwandt are presidents. Art classes are completing menu covers and tree decorations for hospitals.

Senior clothing classes, taught by Miss Evelyn Rasmussen, have completed 60 pairs of bedroom slippers to be presented by the Junior Red Cross to veterans going thru Chicago on hospital trains. Junior clothing students taught by Miss Betty Lysault have completed 300 aprons made from salvaged cuttings of aileron cloth. The aprons are going overseas.

1923 CHILD CAST TO REPEAT YULE TABLEAUX TODAY

A youthful group of dramatics workers in the Northwestern settlement house gave a tableaux of Nativity scenes 22 years ago as their contribution to Christmas. Today at 3 p. m. the same group, now adults, with their children and grandchildren added to the cast, will give their 22d Christmas performance in the Pulaski park fieldhouse, Blackhawk and Noble sts.

The part of Mary will be taken by Mrs. Marion Panczak, while the role of King Herod will be acted by her husband. Both have held these roles since the original performance when they were in their teens. The role of Joseph will be acted by George Prena who has missed only one year's performance.

More than 50 in Cast

Others taking important parts in today's performance who filled the same roles in the original cast include Louis Kozinski, the rug mender; Paul Hendrix, the prophet, and Casimir Ziolkowski, tableaux reader. Henry Gavereau who originally was one of the small children in the cast, has advanced this year to the role of chief shepherd.

Scenes depicted by the cast of more than 50 characters are the Annunciation, Scene of Bethlehem, King Herod's Palace, Shepherds on the Hills, the Manger, and the Adoration at the Manger.

Will Give Child Play

Of equal traditional importance during the settlement house's observation of the holidays will be the children's play, "The Forest of Christmas." Written a number of years ago by the dramatics instructor of the house, it is acted by a group of 75 children, 9 to 14.

This year the play will be given on four days, beginning Tuesday, and will be attended by more than 1,000 children who will be brought to the house by representatives of social agencies in the neighborhood.

DORIS LARSEN

The engagement of Doris Larsen to Ensign Paul Pedersen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Pedersen of 4451 N. Mango av., is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reidar Larsen of 6818 Hurlbut st. Miss Larsen is a student of Knox college, Galesburg, Ill. Mr. Pedersen was graduated from Northwestern university.

Schurz Night School

The spring semester of Schurz evening school, 3601 Milwaukee av., will begin Feb. 4, Robert C. Keenan, principal, has announced. All regular subjects will be continued.

HEROES OF WAR TO JOIN SCHURZ 'MESSIAH' CHOIR

The first peace time performance in five years of Handel's "Messiah" by Schurz High school will be presented Thursday night. The senior chorus of more than 300 voices and the concert orchestra will participate. Leroy Wetzel will conduct.

Guest artists will include Dr. Herbert Hyde, organist of St. Luke's Episcopal church in Evanston; Lois Wallner, radio singer; Raymond Koch, formerly of the American Opera company, and Joyce Ern, Schurz graduate.

Name Those Taking Part

War veterans who took part in the "Messiah" as Schurz students and sing again in the Thursday night performance are Chester Milka, Richard Borlick, Thomas Lawrence, Forrest Urich, Robert A. Marshall, Domonic Scortt, Walter R. Stile, Harry C. Stiles, Don Templeman, Dick Veith, and Dan Stonsphier.

Student soloists will include Patricia Carsello, Lois Berger, and Dorothy Richardson, sopranos.

Tree to Light Stage

As in past years, the concert will open with the chorus singing "Silent Night, Holy Night" on a darkened stage. The only light will be supplied by an illuminated Christmas tree.

The first performance given at Schurz was in 1912 under the direction of Charles Lagerquist. For many years the Schurz orchestra was the only organization besides the Chicago Symphony orchestra to own and play the original orchestrations of the "Messiah," which had been purchased in London by a faculty member, faculty members said.

RURAL TASTE IN RADIO DIFFERS FROM CITY LIKES

Prefer Serious Program, Survey Shows

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Country people's tastes in radio is somewhat different from that of city folk. That is one conclusion to be drawn from an examination of a 120 page study of "Attitudes of Rural People Toward Radio Service" made by the bureau of agricultural economics and released by the federal communications commission. The report is based on interviews conducted with 2,535 farm and nonfarm families from 116 counties selected to provide a cross-section of the nation's rural areas.

While radio surveys reflecting mainly the preferences of city people show comedy variety shows are the overwhelming favorites, rural people generally seem to prefer the more serious type of programs, such as news and market reports, religious music, and sermons. They also like old time [hillbilly?] music.

Would Miss News Most

Men prefer news and information, but rural women rate entertainment somewhat more highly. An "overwhelming majority" say they would miss news most if they had to do without a radio. Serials are second only to news among women. At the same time, the serial drama created "strong feelings of rejection." Dance music was next on the list of programs disliked, and then came classical music and opera.

The reason for disliking classical music, however, is generally different from the prejudice against the other disliked items. They admit they don't go for the old masters because they don't understand them.

The amount of time spent listening in the country varies greatly, but three out of four said they turn off their sets at times because of lack of interest in the programs available, and one-third reported that they do so often.

Noon Peak Listening Hour

The hours of listening are in striking contrast with those of city folk. In the city the peak hours are between 7 and 10 p. m. In the country the peak comes at noon, with 44 per cent of the families tuning in then, the survey found. Two-thirds of the farm folk who have radios turn them on before 8 a. m. and one-eighth of them before 6 a. m. Twenty-six per cent of the listening is done in the morning, 10 per cent in late morning, then the peak at noon, 6 per cent in the afternoon, and 11 per cent in the evening.

Most rural people value radio highly and the loss of their sets would "make a great difference" to three-fourths. Typical comments on the attitude toward radio: "I am just lost when the radio is broken," "Going without radio would be just like going back to old fashioned lights," "I simply couldn't stay at home," "I look upon radio as my companion."

Now and then, the surveyors come up with a contrary response: "If it weren't for my family I'd throw the radio out," "All you hear is junk and commercials and murder mysteries."

Will Figure at Hearing

Rural listeners appear not to be highly conscious of any need for improved programming. The FCC contends that this is because "very few of these people have any point of reference, either actual or ideal, with which to compare present radio programming; as a consequence, they tend to accept the radio they know as the natural order of things."

The survey is expected to figure in the clear channel station hearings which the FCC has called for Jan. 14. Clear channel stations provide most of the coverage for many rural areas.

JUDY CANOVA, PERRY COMO ON HALL OF FAME

Judy Canova and Perry Como will visit the Radio Hall of Fame on WENR-ABC at 5 p. m. today. Paul Whiteman, his orchestra, and Martha Tilton, songstress, are regulars on the show.

Miss Canova is a Whiteman discovery, so her appearance with him today will be something of a reunion. She will offer "Darling Nellie Gray," the tune she was singing for a vaudeville audience the day Whiteman first heard her and hired her to work with his band. Perry Como will sing a group of popular selections.

Durante and Kyser on Request Performance

Jimmy Durante, Kay Kyser, Andy Russell, and Georgia Carroll will be heard on Request Performance over WBBM-CBS at 8 o'clock tonight. They will tailor the show's entertainment to listeners' requests.

Aids TB Fight

DAVID LEE BROWN

David Lee Brown, 4 years old, who is heard on W-G-N's Funny Paper Party on which CHICAGO TRIBUNE comics are read at 11 a. m. Sundays, gives a living note to the 1945 Christmas Seal design. The seals are sold to aid in the fight against tuberculosis. Park Phipps, who designed the seal, called the picture a "splendid portrayal of the idea embodied in the 1945 Christmas seal."

HUBERMAN IS PHILHARMONIC SOLOIST TODAY

Bronislaw Huberman, violinist, will be soloist on the New York Philharmonic program over WBBM-CBS at 2 p. m. today. He will play Mozart's D major Violin Concerto. Bruno Walter will direct the orchestra in Corelli's Concerto Grosse No. 8 in G minor and Schumann's First Symphony. During intermission, Dr. James Franck will discuss "Medical Benefits from Atomic Energy."

"Babes in Toyland" Next for Theater of the Air

Victor Herbert's "Babes in Toyland" will be broadcast as the Christmas program of the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N and Mutual at 9 p. m. next Saturday. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker. Penny Perry, soprano, and Angelo Raffaelli, will be the leading singers. Robert Trendler will conduct the orchestra. This program and the one of the following week will be broadcast from W-G-N's main audience studio.

Rose Bampton Sings on Sunday Evening Hour

When the Sunday Evening hour presents its 400th radio performance on WLS-ABC at 7 o'clock tonight, Rose Bampton, soprano, will be soloist. She will sing "Mi Chiamano, Mimi," from Puccini's "La Boheme"; Obradors' "Del Cabellos Mas Sutil," La Forge's "Song of the Open," Warren's "Christmas Candle," and, accompanied by a chorus, the "Inflammatus," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater." A brief history of the musical program will be heard.

Holiday Music Highspots W-G-N Symphonic Hour

The Chicago Philharmonic orchestra, under the baton of Henry Weber, will salute the holiday season with a program of light music over W-G-N at 8:30 Tuesday evening. A performance of Prokofieff's "Peter and the Wolf," with John Barclay as narrator, will form the major portion of the broadcast. The orchestra also will offer Toch's "Pinocchio" and Corelli's "Christmas Concerto."

Mitropoulos Serves as Conductor and Soloist

Dmitri Mitroupoulos will serve as conductor and also as soloist on the Symphony of the Air hour over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. He will direct the NBC Symphony orchestra in Bach's Concerto No. 5 in D major, the "Brandenburg" Concerto, and will assume the role of director and soloist in Prokofieff's Piano Concerto No. 3 in C major.

Cathedral Shelter on W-G-N's Youth Looks Up

Youth Looks Up to be aired on W-G-N at 8 a. m. today will honor the Cathedral Shelter and Church of the Epiphany. The program, which is conducted by Philip Maxwell, will be welcomed by the Rev. Joseph F. Higgins, associate pastor. Jerry Walker, narrator, will tell the story of Jesus' birth according to St. Matthew.

Theater Guild Drama Stars Fredric March

Fredric March and his wife, Florence Eldridge, will star in "The Royal Family" to be aired over the Theater Guild on the Air via WENR-ABC at 9 o'clock tonight. On tonight's broadcast March will be recreating a role which won him a film contract when he was touring with he George S. Kaufman-Edna Ferber play in 1928.

NEW HOME GIVEN FACE LIFTING BY 600 GIRL SCOUTS

It was just an ordinary house that needed some fixing when the Des Plaines Girl Scouts saw it two years ago. Located in the forest preserve, the girls saw the house as an ideal place for their own—for overnight camping trips, parties, and meetings.

The Scouts did a lot of thinking on the matter. They knew they couldn't obtain the house by themselves so they dropped a suggestion to council members. The council went to work. Since July the house on East River rd. has had a complete face lifting.

Hang Yule Decorations

The public can judge for itself the result of the council's work this afternoon when the doors will be open for the first time. The formal presentation of the home will be made at 3 p. m.

The Mariner Scout troop has put the house in a holiday spirit with Christmas decorations and a decorated tree near the fireplace. For most of the 600 Scouts in Des Plaines, tho, it will be the first time they will see their new home.

The council with the Dad's patrol began renovating the house last July. Outside improvements included a new roof, foundation repairs, new gutters, and a coat of paint.

Renovate Interior Also

Wallpaper was applied and discolored woodwork given a coat of white enamel. Plumbing and heating facilities were overhauled. A reconditioned oil burner and an electric pump were installed. The recent purchase of early American furniture made the house possible as a Christmas gift.

The 120 acres along the banks of the Des Plaines river upon which the house is located will provide space for a variety of winter and summer sports, and Scout activities.

An apartment on the second floor will be occupied by Wendell Unfer and his wife, who is a teacher in nature with the national Scout organization.

List Committee Members

Committee members on the project were Miss Marion Hodgins, executive secretary; Mrs. E. H. Schulze, Mrs. Roswell Pearce, Mrs. Hattie Roden, Mrs. A. F. Longren, Mrs. C. W. M. Brown, Mrs. Harlowe Coxe, Mrs. A. H. James, Mrs. B. C. Foote, Mrs. Robert Melzer, Mrs. J. B. Gibbs, Mrs. Gilbert Peterson, Mrs. H. True Willson, Mrs. Clifford Caron, and Mrs. Edward Kehe.

E. H. Schulze was chairman of the Dad's patrol. Other members included H. True Willson, Gilbert Peterson, Emile Fanke, Harland Roden, Byron Foote, Edward Kehe, and Alfred Ahbe.

VETERANS GET HOLIDAY CASH FROM BLOCKS

Letters Say Thanks for Good Job

Nine discharged servicemen who went to war from Block 1, zone 6 of the former OCD organization recently were given $40 checks from the residents of the block at a party in the home of Tom Foley, 7540 Sangamon st. The block is bounded by 75th, 76th Morgan, and Sangamon sts.

The service men are Elton and Forest Kinley, 7501 Morgan st.; James Foley, 7540 Sangamon st.; Bernard Foley, 925 W. 76th st.; Charles Hedburg, 616 W. 74th st.; Thomas Quinn, 7542 Sangamon st.; Byron Battershell, 7540 Sangamon st.; Edmond Wheeler, now of 9451 Bishop st., and Robert Dwyer, 7508 Sangamon st.

About 20 men from the block still in service will receive checks for equal amounts on their discharge. The money was raised thru parties given by residents.

Officers of the sponsoring organization are Forest Weed, 7524 Sangamon st., president; Agnes McDonald, 948 W. 76th st.; secretary; William Main, 7606 Sangamon st., treasurer. Tom Foley, Virgil Mohr, 7543 Morgan st., and Mary McGann, 7545 Morgan st., were co-chairmen of the party.

WILL GET CHECKS

The 27 men who went into service from block 6, zone 54 of the defunct OCD soon will receive money orders and a "thanks for a job well done" greeting from the 34 families in the block bounded by 86th, 87th, Aberdeen, and May sts.

The Christmas gifts, Ben H. Anderson of 8620 Aberdeen st., captain, said, will bring to $800 the amount sent the service men in Easter and Christmas gifts since February, 1942.

13 Men Discharged

Only three of the men are still in service overseas. They are Sgt. Daniel E. Wise in France, and Flight Officer Timothy F. Gentile and Lt. Carl W. Nelson, both in the Southwest Pacific. Eleven are stationed in camps in this country and 13 have been discharged.

Besides the three overseas, those receiving the gift will be Edward Ahner, Robert K. Holm, Joseph J. Gentile, Philip D. Abt, Robert F. Daley, Thomas Abt, Walter Hogan, Richard Dunn, Charles Abt Jr., Oren Coler Jr., John Clark, Leo J. Dunn, John Tischer, Charles C. White, Eugene Wichterman, John Wise, John McGuire, F. E. Smith, Francis Brown, John E. McCarthy, Richard Dickson, Leo V. Hennessy, Thomas Ardizzone, and Joseph J. McHale.

Two Lost in War

Two service men from the block were killed in action. Edward W. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Brown, 8627 May st., was killed at Bougainville in August, 1944, and John Bernard Abt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Abt Sr., 8630 Aberdeen st., lost his life on Okinawa in May, 1945.

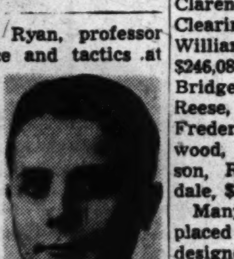
Money for the first gifts was raised thru parties held in Anderson's basement and at the homes of Elmer H. Werkmeister, 8618 Aberdeen st., and Frank Chedister, 8605 May st.

BREAK GROUND FOR TELEPHONE COMPANY WING

Ground was recently broken for the two story and basement wing to the north end of the Beverly Central office building of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, 1620 W. 99th st. The addition, measuring 30 by 40 feet, will have brick walls on reinforced concrete frame, and is expected to be completed in the spring. The building will house additional telephone equipment now in process of manufacture.

Pick West Point and Annapolis Cadet Nominees

Maj. Martin S. Ryan, professor of military science and tactics at Morgan Park Military academy, has announced the names of six candidates for appointment to the United States military and naval academies.



Gregor Gentleman

John Noonan

Gregor John Gentleman Jr., whose parents live at 9841 Hamilton av., has been named principal candidate for West Point. John MacNeal Noonan, Palos Park; Kenneth Charles Kling, 2159 W. 111th st., Fred Hesse Stitt, 2256 110th pl., are first, second, and third alternates, respectively.

Candidates for Annapolis are John MacNeal Noonan, Richard J. Biederman, 11406 Oakley av., and John William Hendricks, 9741 Seeley av.

The cadets were recommended by the school superintendent, Col. Sandford Sellers Jr., and their instructors.

Choirs of Hope Lutheran Church Tell Story of Christ's Birth in Pageant Form

The combined choirs of the Hope Lutheran church, 6400 Washtenaw av., recently presented the Christmas story in pageant form. Beginning with the scene in Mary's home at Nazareth in Galilee when the Angel Gabriel, played by Mrs. Muriel Fletcher, 6319 Knox av., announces to the kneeling Mary, portrayed by Miss Laura Johannes, 6437 S. Rockwell st., "The Lord is with thee," the pageant depicted the story of Christ's birth to the time Jesus was taken to the temple. When Mary went on a visit to the hill country of Judea, she joined hands with her kinswoman, Elizabeth, portrayed by Mrs. Gertrude Schlieske, 9300 Bell av., who greeted Mary with: "Blessed art thou amongst women." While Mary and Joseph, played by Robert Lindgren (extreme right), 6140 S. Richmond st., adore the new born Babe, a bright star in the east leads shepherds and wise men to the stable. Grouped outside the manger (seated, left to right) are William Schoenheider, Robert Pyritz, Garland Longhauser, Robert Martin, Alvin Reschke, Lawrence Lindgren, George Johnson, and Robert Berg. Standing (left to right) are Robert Dircks, Carl Hoppe, William Karge, and Vernon Witt.

Herod (seated), portrayed by Robert Rundle, 6811 S. Wolcott av., gathers his chief priests and scribes to question them on rumors of the birth of a new king. Grouped about Herod (left to right) are his retainers, Henry Kreft, Clifford Holmstrom, Albert Peldzus, Henry Cook, John Utecht, and Arthur W. Scheck. Meanwhile Mary and Joseph, in the quiet of a little stable in Bethlehem, adore their God. When, according to law, Christ was taken to the temple, He was placed in the arms of Simeon, a devout man, who had been promised he should not see death until he had seen Christ. Kneeling in the temple about Simeon (standing), played by Charles Christoffer are (left to right) Mrs. Fletcher, Robert Rundle, Miss Johannes, and Mrs. Schlieske.

The presentation took place on the altar of the church before a crowded audience. Mrs. Schlieske was dramatic director, and Louis E. Schilke, choir director. Arthur Muehl was organist. Among the solists were Jean Stech, Madlyn Krueger, and Louise Oswald. [TRIBUNE Photos by John Oswald]

HARVARD SCHOOL LEADER RETIRES; HELD JOB OF DAD

Ends 70 Year Role of Her Family

When Miss Elsie Schobinger surprised the alumni association of the Harvard School for Boys with the announcement of her resignation at their recent dinner, it meant the end of 70 years' leadership by the Schobingers, father and daughter, of the institution.

Miss Schobinger

Miss Schobinger's father, John J. Schobinger, became principal of the school in 1875, 10 years after it was founded. There were then 16 students. Schobinger, born in Switzerland, lived on the top floor of the narrow, three story building then located at 16th st. east of Michigan av.

Weds Swiss Bride

In 1881 Schobinger returned to Switzerland and after a three weeks' courtship won his bride. He returned to Chicago and under his leadership the school expanded until after a series of moves to larger quarters, it acquired its present building at 4731 Ellis av.

Miss Schobinger was the only girl in a family of four and the only one of the children inclined to the teaching profession. She believes she became a teacher to please her father.

After graduation from the University of Chicago, Miss Schobinger taught two years at Centre college, Danville, Ky. After her trip around the world, Schobinger hinted that she should teach at Harvard school. She began her career there in 1911 as a teacher of French and German.

Takes Father's Place

On the death of her father in 1927, she became co-principal with Charles E. Pence. In 1941, on Pence's death, she assumed the responsibility for the administration of the school, then numbering about 265 boys.

Succeeding Miss Schobinger at the head of the 80 year old school are Harry D. Pyle and Leslie M. Dohr, faculty members for several years. Present plans of her retirement call for a busy schedule, not so strict as she observed as principal of the school, but an interesting one. Secretary of the Vanderpoel Art association, she plans to paint in water color, study Spanish, and cook.

Longwood Mothers

A Christmas party will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday by the Longwood Mothers club in the Da Vinci parlor of the Academy of Our Lady, 95th and Throop sts.

SANTA TO MAKE THE ROUNDS AT PARK PARTIES

Won't Travel Light, Rumor Has It

The festive spirit will invade southwest side parks in the next two weeks when carols will be sung and Santa will caper with participants in the park Christmas parties. Festivities range from night clubs setup in the fieldhouses to plays put on by the youngsters.

At Brainerd park, 91st and Elizabeth st., three parties have been scheduled for this week. The night club party for the 2d, 3d, and 4th year high school students who are members of the social dance instruction class will be held at 8 p. m. tomorrow. There will be a floor show by 40 members of the class.

The artcraft class will have its party Tuesday afternoon when 80 children, 6 to 14, are expected to attend. The Thursday dance class, composed of 70 8th graders and 15 freshman students, will hold its dance at 8 p. m. Thursday.

Davis Square Plans

The Davis Square party for the children of the community will be held at 4 p. m. Friday in the fieldhouse, 45th and Marshfield av., when the girls of the park present a play, "Parade of the Christmas Toys." The audience will participate in community singing of carols. Santa will present each child with a gift. The program is sponsored by the business men of the district.

Ada park, 11250 Ada st., will be the scene of two Yuletide events, taking place around the large Christmas tree. Thursday the midget, junior, and intermediate boys and girls will give a Christmas play entitled "Santa's Workshop", and will sing carols around the tree. The Teen-age Canteen club will hold its Christmas party Friday.

Cornell Tells Plans

A progressive Christmas party at which guests are presented with the schedule of games they will play will be held at Cornell park, 5000 Wood st., Tuesday night. Among the games will be a sugar plum hunt, snowball, a greeting contest, and catching the reindeer. Movies also will be shown and trophy cups for city softball championship presented.

"Trouble in the Toy Shop" will be presented at the children's Christmas party Saturday. In the cast are Anthony Brinkman, 10128 Charles st.; Delphine Joskawski, 10215 Charles st.; Robert Bankowski, 10209 Charles st.; Michael Brinkman, 10128 Charles st.; Gran Bendkowski, 10209 Charles st.; Mary Jean Orsena, 10010 Malta st.; Carolyn Klein, 1409 W. 103d st.; Peter Brinkman, 10128 Charles st., and Barbara Bendkowski, 10209 Charles st.

Foster to Give Play

The children at Foster park, 83d st. and Loomis blvd., will present "Santa, the Third" at the fieldhouse on Dec. 26. The play is directed by Mrs. Pearl Kerr, 8552 Paulina st., assisted by Nancy Joy Kerry, 8552 Paulina st., Barbara Schultz, 8240 Hermitage av., and members of Girl Scout troop 326.

The cast includes Shirley O'Neil, 1537 W. 82d st.; Jean Van Haecke, 8631 Morgan st.; Mary Lou Price, 8333 Carpenter st.; Jane Ramey, 8519 Morgan st.; Mary Rose Ryan, 8741 Ada st.; Jacqueline Hagedorn, 8718 Throop st.; Phyllis Murphy, 8633 Morgan st.; Joan Hulmberg, 8249 Carpenter st., and Marilyn Murphy, 8633 Morgan st.

Three parties will be held at Fuller park, 45th st. and Princeton av., Friday. In the boys gym there will be carol singing, stunts, relays, and amateur contests at 3:30 p. m.

Will Hold Night Party

Jeanne Meister, girls' instructor, has planned a party for the girls at 3:30 p. m. in the assembly hall. There will be social games, stunts, carol singing, and amateur contests.

The best amateur talent from both afternoon parties will entertain in the assembly hall at 7:45 p. m. Movie cartoons will be shown and a grab bag is planned as Santa makes his rounds. Sponsors of the parties are the neighborhood churches, merchants, Scout troop 450, the Community Service organization, and women's groups.

The Square Dance club of Palmer park, 111th st. and Indiana av., will hold its Christmas party Tuesday. James Edstrom has selected a large Christmas tree from which Ray Miller, as Santa, will pick the gifts.

TAKES TIME OFF JUST TO MARK 81ST BIRTHDAY

Charles P. Lovell, an employe of the New York Air Brake company for nearly 60 years, recently celebrated his 81st birthday at a small gathering of friends in his home, 7135 Yale av.

Born in Boston, England, he came to this country shortly before Chicago's great fire in 1871. He worked as an apprentice machinist for several years in the Rock Island railroad shops where his father was employed.

In June, 1887, he was employed by the Eames Vacuum Brake company which later became the New York Air Brake company. He traveled for the company 25 years, but for the last 28 years he has worked in the office.

FISH OR WOMEN, YOU MUST PUT OUT A GOOD LINE

These Casters Practice Winter and Summer

It is the contention of those determined disciples of Izaak Walton in the Jackson Park Casting club that catching fish is similar to catching a girl in that so much depends upon the line you hand out.

In fact, so important is that line [the fisherman's, that is] that club members aren't satisfied merely to practice all summer. Come cold weather, they take their trappings to Grand Crossing park fieldhouse, 76th st. and Ingleside av., where each Sunday they spend a happy day in a profusion of rods, reels, metal tackle boxes, and other fishermen just rabid on the subject as themselves.

As any one will tell you, most fishermen are slightly hepped on their hobby, and if they aren't out casting with club members they're home fussing with their lines; if they aren't practicing, they're usually out fishing. "And the fish don't come any larger than the tales brought back by members of our club," said Mrs. Clara De Launty, 6310 Blackstone av., a charter member of the group.

Women Champs, Too

In this club, which boasts many champion casters, there are almost as many women champs as men. Mrs. Adela MacDonald, for example. She held the national ⅝ ounce championship for three years running, and was also state and Great Lakes champion. However, where the women excel in bait casting, the men are supreme in fly casting where it takes a stronger arm. Bait casting, said Mrs. De Launty, who is an old hand at it, is more wrist movement and has a definite rhythm.

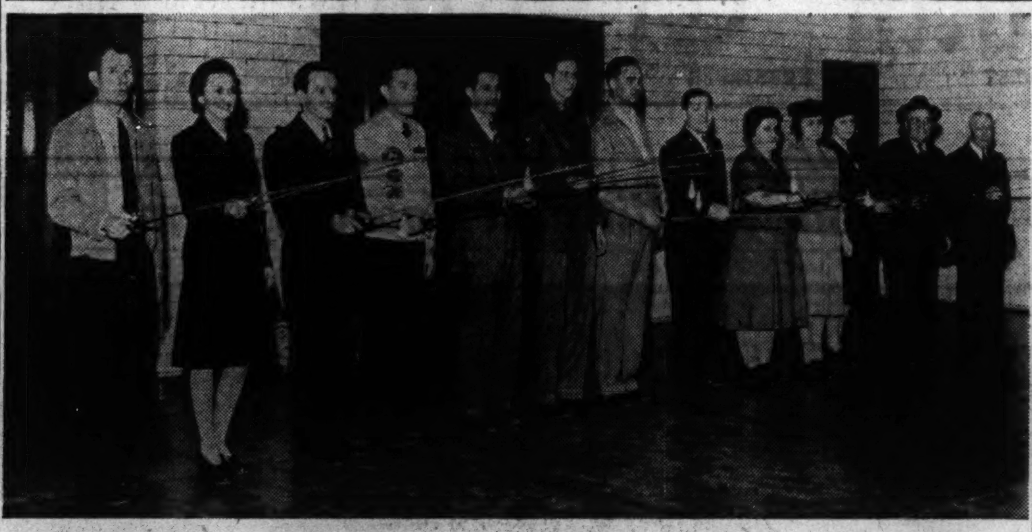
The club was organized 35 years ago by a small group of men and women who began to cast in the lagoon at 57th st. and Jackson park. They were routed by the park district to a spot at 62d st. and Outer dr., and finally a special casting pier was built for them just north of 62d st. at the lagoon. On warm summer days it becomes almost impossible to see the pier for the casters, and wonder often has been expressed that fishermen don't get their lines mixed.

Will Hold Turkey Shoot

Today there are more than 35 members in the club. The experienced casters help the beginners and before they know it they are taking part in the yearly casting tournaments. Today the group is holding its annual turkey shoot in Grand Crossing fieldhouse. Tho it's actually no shoot, competing members cast for a prize gobbler.

Officers include Cecil Feeney, 7738 Ridgeland av., president; Mrs. De Launty, vice president, and Frank Waltman, 6615 Bishop st., secretary-treasurer.

These 13 Promise Bad Luck to Fish Next Summer



The Jackson Park Casting club participates in a reasonable facsimile of fishing, despite winter weather. Members practice each Sunday morning in an indoor range in Grand Crossing park fieldhouse, 76th st. and Ingleside av., in anticipation of next summer's trek to northern fishing waters. In the caster's lineup (left to right) are Frank Waltman, 6615 Bishop av.; Mrs. Harry MacDonald, 601 W. 47th st.; Earl Garnsey, 2616 W. 60th st.; MacDonald; Stephen Jures, East Chicago, Ind.; Henry Lesko, 6951 Oglesby av.; Howard Chatt, 7308 Crandon av.; Rocco Melillo, 10336 Calumet av.; Mrs. Waltman; Mrs. Clara De Launty, 6310 Blackstone av.; Mrs. Mabel Galezio, 7046 Chappel av.; Galezio, and Nicholas Schroder, 845 W. 70th st.

SKILL, COURAGE OF YANKS EARN BRONZE STARS

Staff Sgt. William H. Cravens, 5549 S. California av., and his men held a ridge on Okinawa until Jap enemy machine gun fire drove them back. Cravens was bringing up the rear in this temporary withdrawal when he heard the cries of a wounded man up on the hill.

Without hesitation he returned to the high ground under mortar fire and observation by the enemy machine gunners and assisted in carrying the wounded man to cover, administered first aid, and carried him 100 yards downhill to safety. For his heroism, Cravens was awarded the bronze star. A cluster was added to the medal when he later held a line in the face of bitter Jap resistance on Okinawa.

Mortarman Is Honored

Sgt. Robert F. Shirek, 2758 St. Louis av., one of a large group of southwest siders to receive the bronze star medal recently, won his award for "courage under fire, skill in firing his weapon, and determination to destroy the enemy" in the Philippines. When the enemy threatened his gun position with reinforcements, Shirek "unhesitatingly moved his mortar 200 feet across the fire swept area to a vantage point and under heavy enemy fire put his mortar in action and silenced the enemy."

Courage in action in the Philippines also won Pvt. Frank Wice, son of Mrs. Margaret Wice, 6800 S. Hermitage av., the medal. Wice was one of several men who left a protected spot during enemy attack to remove a wounded man to safety and administer first aid.

Gets Award in Hospital

Marine Pvt. William Baikauskas, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Baikauskas, Chicago Heights, received the award at the naval hospital in Oakland, Cal. The presentation was made for his heroism in advancing before the lines on Iwo under fire to retrieve a machine gun from an abandoned tank. He later used the gun in the assault and organized a squad to man it.

WELL, WORMY! YOU HAVE ONLY EIGHT LIVES NOW

So Take It Easy with That Catnip

BY JANET PECK

To begin with Wormy always was an unusual cat. Altho but half grown, no matter how big or noisy the dog that came into Brunner's drug store at 1238 E. 53d st., he merely stared with friendly interest and continued to sleep, wash himself, or rub affectionately against the counters. Dogs just didn't cut any ice with him.

Ever since he was given to Brunner as a little white kitten he had been a favorite with the store personnel, and eventually with several of the customers, too. Often they would stop to inquire after his welfare, for he was an adventurous cat who was always up to something, such as running away from home for a couple of days, or getting into Brunner's packages of catnip. Once, to every one's consternation, he got stuck between two buildings and it took Brunner and half the youngsters in the neighborhood to free him.

Catastrophe Strikes Store

Deep sorrow struck the store and customers on a recent rainy night when a child ran in to announce that Wormy had been hit by an automobile. Brunner ran to the curb and there lay a little white cat in the gutter, badly hurt. Brunner picked him up tenderly and brought him into the store, then spent the next half hour trying to locate a veterinarian.

After half a dozen tries he discovered that a veterinarians' meeting was being held in the Loop. None was available to care for injured cats. Mrs. Brunner was in tears. The help was standing by, altho it was past quitting time, to see how it turned out. Brunner was mopping his brow, and robbing the cash register to pay the telephone. Then he went to work on the Anti-Cruelty and the Humane societies. Both places declared, however, that they always put an animal to sleep when it had been hit by a car.

But that wouldn't do. Wormy must have every chance. Finally as a last resort Brunner took a hypodermic needle and gave the pussy a shot of morphine to ease his pain. The cat reacted by dying.

Funeral Procession Begins

By this time it was in the wee hours of the morning, but every one was so wrought up there were no thoughts of home or bed. They decided to get a nice box and bury the cat immediately. Mrs. Brunner's eyes were swollen from crying. It was a sorrowful occasion. Gently they laid him away, and had just taken the box outside when who should come strolling leisurely across the street but Wormy!

"It was like a feline Tom Sawyer returning at his own funeral service," said Brunner. "We certainly were glad to have him back, but the cat that was hit did resemble him."

The store was so happy to have Wormy back that he hasn't been scolded since. Not even when he plays in the coal bin or knocks over the packages of catnip.

BIRTH OF CHRIST WILL BE TOLD IN CRANE OPERETTA

Wise men bringing gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh; shepherds following a star to the cave of Bethlehem, and other aspects of the first Christmas will be reenacted by boys of Crane High school in a Christmas operetta, "The Quest," Monday and Tuesday nights in the school auditorium, 2245 Jackson blvd.

All characters will be costumed in authentic garb of the early Christian era. Many robes are of authentic Persian and Arabic origin, having come from the collections of faculty members who purchased them while on world tours.

Written by Faculty Member

The script of "The Quest" was written by J. P. Cocayne of the Crane faculty. Cocayne is also in charge of the production.

Lewis Thomas of the music faculty is musical director. He also has arranged the 17 musical numbers which thread the plot of the operetta.

The cast includes 127 boys. Leading roles will be portrayed by Bernard Swartz, Robert Bright, Raymond Bleth, Jerome Siegel, James Constantine, Victor Farracane, Richard Nuzzo, and James Reif.

"The Quest" represents one episode in man's struggle for light. The first act depicts the shepherds on the plains before Jerusalem and their reactions to the appearance of the star.

Oppressed Fight Tyrant

The second act, portraying Herod's court, shows the conflict between the tyrant and the oppressed. The second scene pictures the wise men visiting Herod and the prediction of his downfall. The Nativity is depicted in the third act, while the fourth shows the ultimate triumph of the Christian ideology.

Properties and lighting are being handled by the stage staff under direction of Dallas Puffer of the Crane faculty. Students assisting him are Robert Nornholm, Curtis Norling, and Edward Kramer.

Walter Werre is director of ticket sales and is finance officer. Miss Anne Mulligan is wardrobe mistress. Francis P. Kehoe and Miss Margaret Mills are in charge of publicity. All are members of the faculty.

Proceeds will be used to purchase an electric organ, which will be dedicated as a memorial to Crane students who fought and died in World War II.

Zientek Legion

James J. Zientek post of the American Legion will hold its Christmas party at 2 p. m. today in the clubrooms, 4731 S. Ashland av. Gifts will be distributed to children of members.

SCHOOLS LOSE YOUNG MARM TO 'ANNA LUCASTA'

Actress Gets Chance in Understudy's Role

From school teacher to the stage—that's the step Janice Kingslow took last October. Until Columbus day she was practice teacher at Ross school, 61st st. and Wabash av., to complete requirements for a degree at Chicago Teachers college. Taking advantage of the school holiday and the advice of friends, she half-heartedly went backstage at the Civic theater to tryout for an understudy role in "Anna Lucasta."

"I may have made an impression when I read the part," Miss Kingslow said, "but I don't think it was the right impression. I was dressed rather school teacherish and after reading one of the roles, I was told that I would be called if I were selected."

Asked to Read Again

A few days later she accidentally ran into one of the men who had heard her read. "I was wearing a sweater, skirt, and moccasions," the 21 year old south sider said. "I guess I must have looked different. I was asked to come back again and read for the director. After a conference I was hired for a trial."

During the week that followed she learned her lines, rehearsed five days, and, on Oct. 28, officially became the understudy of Hilda Simms who plays the title role. Since that time she has rehearsed often enough to take over the part if necessary. She also has learned the role of Katie, another character in the all-Negro drama.

Each night she reports for work with other members of the cast, not knowing whether "this" might be her night. The management said that they expect Miss Kingslow will appear at least once during the play's run because there are eight performances a week; it would be unusual if the star should play every performance over a period of months.

First Appeared at Three

Altho Miss Kingslow has yet to make her professional debut, her first stage appearance was at the age of 3 as a principal in a Tom Thumb wedding staged in an Evanston church. Two years later her first "dramatic performance" came when she recited James Whitcomb Riley's poem, "The Moo Cow Moo" before a critical audience of relatives and friends.

During both grade and high school days she demonstrated a flair for dramatics. In 1940 she organized a puppet theater group with seven friends and produced modern versions of fairy tales before church groups, schools, and clubs. Their production of "Aladdin" in 1941 won a cup offered by Delta Sigma Theta, national Negro women's sorority.

The advice of a close friend—that he would rather see her be a good actress than a mediocre school teacher—that brought Miss Kingslow to a decision. Until the acting opportunity presented itself, she had always thought of a teaching career.

Miss Kingslow attributes any ability she possesses to her home training. "Mom was a natural psychologist," she stated, "and when my father was alive we used to entertain each other by singing or reciting pieces." Mrs. Kingslow is assistant librarian at Hall library, 4800 Michigan av.

Loring School Board Names New Trustees

At a recent meeting of the Loring school board the following Beverly Hills and Morgan Park men were elected trustees: E. J. Alderson, 2013 W. 101st st.; Merle B. Doty, 2000 W. 101st pl.; A. Paul Heinze, 11664 Longwood dr.; C. Blair Coursen, 10918 Bell av., and Frank M. Reed, 10711 Hoyne av.

Chicagoan Understudies Play's Star

[Bloom Photo]

From south side school teacher to the stage is the record of Janice Kingslow, selected to understudy Hilda Simms in "Anna Lucasta." Each evening Miss Kingslow is backstage just in case the star becomes ill suddenly. The management expects that during the play's run, the understudy will be given opportunity to appear before a home audience.

This Week in the Garden

Many thousand plants will be received as gifts at Christmas time and many recipients will not know how to care for them. Some plants are hardly worth keeping after their period of greatest attractiveness has passed; others will be well worth keeping and growing further. If you are giving plants as Christmas gifts, select the more substantial kinds, for they can be kept for a long time, and in the end will be more appreciated.

Among the most useful plants that can be kept are the unusual Norfolk Island pine, an evergreen tree of large size which is grown by florists to the juvenile state as pot plants. It has fine foliage that appears on branches arranged in tiers or whorls giving a most pleasing effect.

The gift of a Christmas cactus brings forth one of the most beautiful flowering plants to be found anywhere, but unless it is understood, few flowers are produced. Care must be exercised that too much water is not applied just after the plant is brought indoors. During November a little more water can be given, but too much will cause the buds to drop.

African Violet Plants

Many saintpaulia or African violet plants will be given. It is a fine subject for any room. Save it, but give it planty of light. During winter it will do well in light, sunny, south window, but during summer a very light, north window is the best place. Water from below, but never permit the pot to stand in water for a long time. A lack of light is the cause for indifferent flowering.

The poinsettia and cyclamen should be discarded after flowering for they are difficult to grow and flower a second time in the home.

The appealing Lorraine or Melior begonias, with their great clusters of pink flowers of exquisite beauty, are among the high class Christmas plants. They last a long time in attractive bloom, but the soil should be kept moist and sudden changes in tempertures avoided. Gas will affect them. After flowering throw the plants away, for they never do well in the home.

Lists Other Begonias

Some of the other begonias are ideal as gifts, but few are seen on the stands. Among those which do well are the shrubby kinds, such as President Carnot, with fine clusters of red flowers; the old time B. metallica, argentea guttata, lucerna, and others. These should be saved, for they grow into fine specimens. They may sand in a south window during the winter, but should have plenty of fresh air and a temperature of 60 to 70 degrees.

BUILD A HOME THAT YOU CAN ADD TO LATER

Thoughtful Planning Is Strongly Advised

BY LOUISE BARGELT

With the time close at hand when many homes will be built and plans for many more seriously considered, we will mention a few trends to consider before you actually embark on building or remodeling.

If you are a young married couple with a limited amount to invest and yet wish to own your home, consider a flexible house, or one which you can enlarge later. Build the basic part first, the equivalent perhaps of a four or five room apartment. But build the type of house which can grow gracefully, take on added rooms as family needs increase.

Future additions must be planned if they are to be carried out later with economy and contribute to the good looks of the house. This type planning has long been recognized as a good idea, but it looks as if more and more plans of the house which can grow will take tangible form from now on.

Plan Storage Carefully

Figure carefully just how much storage space you will need and have this space expertly engineered for the household possessions it must accommodate. Architects and builders and manufacturers are spending more time and thought than ever before on developing highly efficient storage areas in a home.

This need will be felt more in the future than in the past, since there will be few of the old type, vast, rambling attics overhead. In many instances the basement also will be omitted. So not only must the utility room be wisely planned, but every room in the house must offer, in small or large measure, built-in units, cases, cabinets, and drawers.

Then, too, discuss with your architect and builder the new accoustical treatments, especially for bathroom, playroom, laundry, gameroom, and kitchen; in brief, for all those "noisy" rooms.

Separate Noise Areas.

In addition to accoustical ceiling tiles, to sound absorbent plasters and insulating boards and other developments, much greater quiet can be given to a house by a deft separation of its work, play, and rest areas. The work areas include the service rooms, kitchen, and perhaps garage, while the play or recreation areas include the living room, dining room, the game room, porch, and terrace.

There are many variations possible in floor plans, so that they may meet individual family requirements. Thoughtful planning before building can result in added comforts and happier family relationships.

Church Wedding

MRS. ARTHUR S. DEPKE
[H. Du Bois Photo]

Harriet May Kluck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Kluck, 6400 S. Maplewood av., recently became the bride of Arthur S. Depke, son of Mrs. Libby Depke, 5118 Wood st., in ceremonies at St. Rita's church. The bride is a graduate of Lindblom High school and Morgan Park Junior college. Depke was graduated from Tilden Technical High school. He was recently discharged from the navy after serving three and a half years in the Pacific.

DRIVE WORKERS SURPASS GOAL IN S.W. SECTION

Dinner Tomorrow to End Campaign

Altho final results of the Community and War Fund drive will not be announced until the dinner meeting at the Palmer House tomorrow, Walter P. Paepcke, general chairman, stated the first section on the southwest side to exceed the quota was the area comprising the stock yards, Town of Lake, Garfield, Damen, and Sherman park districts.

Under the chairmanship of the Rev. Edward E. Plawinski, 1234 W. 52d st., the section raised $8,494, or 101 per cent of the $8,400 goal. The Order of the Red Feather has been awarded business men and residents who volunteered to solicit in the drive.

In the residential solicitation, volunteer workers directed by Mrs. J. A. Nyberg, 10506 Bell av., rank first with subscriptions totaling $4,009, or 147 per cent of a $2,800 goal.

To date, volunteer fund raisers on the southwest side have reported total contributions of $37,824.

Hold Birthday Celebration Jointly

SHOW NATIVITY SCENES TODAY AT HULL HOUSE

Present 47th Christmas Concert at 4 P. M.

Theodore Harrison

Seven Christmas tableaux resembling life sized paintings will be presented by Hull House music school in conjunction with its 47th Christmas concert at 4 p. m. today in Bowen hall, 800 S. Halsted st. Viewed from the audience, the tableaux will seem like the work of renaissance masters. The actors will pose within a wooden framework across which blue gauze has been stretched to heighten the effect of oil paintings.

The production will be given under the supervision of Nesta Smith, head of the music school. Theodore Harrison, baritone and choral director, will lead the singers thru a varied program. Included in the repertoire are original compositions of Eleanor Smith, founder of Hull House music school.

Also Designed Costumes

The tableaux, which continue a tradition almost half a century old, were designed by the late Edith De Nancrede. Since her death in 1936 the annual presentation of living Christmas pictures has been under the direction of one of her pupils, Nicollette Malone.

The reverence of the players toward the tableaux is said to be like that of the Oberammergau players to the Passion Play. Year after year they return to Hull House to reënact their roles. Herman Saravalli, one of the wise men, has been a member of the cast for 29 years. Most of the members have taken part for not less than 10 years.

This year, two of the actors are veterans who have returned from the European war scene. They are Daniel Stolfa who portrays one of the Magi and Angelo Parrilli, one of the shepherds.

Will Take Old Roles

Paul Blake will portray the role of Joseph, while Esther Novelli will take the part of Mary. The musical roles of these two characters will be sung by Theodore Harrison and Maryum Horn.

Costumes for the original production, also designed by Miss De Nancrede, have been preserved carefully from year to year and most of them are still in use.

Following the opening tableau showing the angels in heaven, is the annunciation scene with Mary and the angel Gabriel. In the third picture an angel announces the birth of Christ to the shepherds, while in the fourth the wise men view the star which leads to the cave of Bethlehem.

The fifth scene depicts the Magi presenting their gifts to the Christ child, while the sixth shows Mary and Joseph with the Infant in the manger. The finale represents the Madonna and Child enthroned, with all the members of the cast around them.

Speech Choir to Tell Story

The speech choir, under the direction of Louise Trenton, will present the story of the Nativity according to the Gospel of St. Luke.

The string ensemble, with Nesta Smith, Florence Dangremond, Donna Esselstyn, Elizabeth Williams, and Ramon Gabriel, will play accompaniments and incidental music.

Others who are assisting in the production include Mary Morris, director of the children's chorus, and Donna Esselstyn, assistant director of the adult chorus. Russell W. Ballard is director of Hull House.

CLOSE CATHOLIC CANNED FOODS CAMPAIGN TODAY

With the national Catholic church drive to raise 2,000,000 cans of food for war victims in foreign countries closing today, the Rev. Stephen Patrick Sullivan, rector of St. Joseph's church, Homewood, expects to collect more than 2,000 cans.

Leading collector of the parish is Mrs. Cal Condon of Flossmoor who has turned in more than 750 cans. Other church leaders promoting the drive are Albert Peloquin, president of the Holy Name society; Mrs. E. C. Paulson, president of the Mothers guild, and Mrs. Mary O'Brien, president of the Altar and Rosary society.

Father Sullivan pointed out that there are only 300 families in the parish and many of the donations have been received from non-Catholics.

Christmas Concert

The Zion Lutheran church choir of Tinley Park will present its sixth Christmas concert at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the church.

GIRL ORCHESTRA WILL GIVE YULE CONCERT TODAY

The St. Casimir academy all-girl orchestra will join with two choral groups, numbering more than 125 voices, to present a Christmas concert of classical music at 8 p. m. today in the St. Casimir auditorium, 2601 Marquette rd.

The orchestra, directed by Guy Callow, has been playing 15 years and has provided many musicians for Chicago orchestras. The orchestra will play the "Hungarian Fantasy" and will interpret musically the story of the "Three Bears." Instrumental soloists will be Genevieve Aleksunas, pianist; Mary Balanda, violinist; Ruth Hamill, trombonist; Therese Vranak, French horn; Carly Eby, clarinetist, and Dolores Vranak, trumpeter.

The Lithuanian choristers will sing several songs and a group of 12 dancers in Lithuanian costume will present folk dances. In addition the St. Casimir academy Choral club will sing the "Madonna's Prayer," "The Nightingale," and a group of Christmas carols.

Both groups will join the orchestra in a finale, "A Christmas Fantasy," in which Emily Taranda, Joan Bransfield, La Verne Nies, Ann Jurgovski, and Loretta Brazaitis will render solos. The two choral groups are under the direction of Sister M. Bernarda.

MARMION CADET GETS RANK OF 2D LIEUTENANT

Among the recently appointed cadet officers at Marmion Military academy, Aurora, is E. A. Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bell, 6206 S. Winchester st., 2d lieutenant. His certificate of commission was signed by the Very Rev. Gilbert Hess, president, and Maj. Arthur R. Pfannenschmidt, professor of military science and tactics.

Englewood Y Prepares for Party

Preparations for the Christmas party to be held at the Englewood Y. M. C. A., 6545 Union av., Wednesday night went forward recently when a large Christmas tree was decorated there. Master Sgt. Earl Krause of Detroit (right), hands Pvt. Bill Petrick, 7414 Wentworth av., the lights while Mrs. Vivian Knox, 10019 Morgan st., and Bob Saunders, carpenter's mate 3d class, on top rung of ladder, hang the ornaments. The party is sponsored by the residents council of the Y and the girls' service organization of the U. S. O.

MEDICAL HERO OF CORREGIDOR GETS A MEDAL

Lt. Comdr. Ferdinand V. Berley, 4153 Congress st., veteran navy doctor of the Philippines and several Jap prison camps, has received the bronze star.

The citation told how he disregarded the inferno of falling bombs and explosions in the Jap bombing attack on Cavite naval base on Dec. 10, 1941, to render medical aid and help move more than 100 casualties. It told how he persisted in his services next at Canacao hospital, then at Fort Sternberg hospital, and finally on Corregidor where he was taken prisoner.

Then a lieutenant, he was shifted from prison to prison by the Japs. At one war prison camp he was forced, despite his medical rank, to hew wood for three months. After being held at Bilibad, Cabanatuan, and other camps for some time, he was transported to Japan.

Put in Charge

He wound up at a war prisoners' hospital near Kobe. Here he was appointed senior American physician and surgeon until liberated by the war's end.

Comdr. Berley credited Dr. Ahashi, Jap civilian commandant in charge of the Kobe hospital, with great kindness. Dr. Ahashi, he said, did all in his power to provide the allied medical staff and prisoners with adequate food and medical supplies. When the war ended Dr. Ahashi presented his Samurai sword to Berley as a gift.

Buy Tickets to Tokyo

When told by Ahashi that the war was over, Berley, Dr. Ben Smith, dentist of Sandwich, Ill., and Dr. Murray Glusman, physician of New York City, calmly shouldered their way out of the Kobe prison camp, bought railroad tickets, and went to Tokyo in an effort to get more medical supplies for their charges.

A graduate of Northwestern university medical school, he plans to take a year's post-graduate course in medicine and surgery. Then he wants to continue his navy career.

RURAL TASTE IN RADIO DIFFERS FROM CITY LIKES

Prefer Serious Program, Survey Shows

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Country people's tastes in radio is somewhat different from that of city folk. That is one conclusion to be drawn from an examination of a 120 page study of "Attitudes of Rural People Toward Radio Service" made by the bureau of agricultural economics and released by the federal communications commission. The report is based on interviews conducted with 2,535 farm and nonfarm families from 116 counties selected to provide a cross-section of the nation's rural areas.

While radio surveys reflecting mainly the preferences of city people show comedy variety shows are the overwhelming favorites, rural people generally seem to prefer the more serious type of programs, such as news and market reports, religious music, and sermons. They also like old time [hillbilly?] music.

Would Miss News Most

Men prefer news and information, but rural women rate entertainment somewhat more highly. An "overwhelming majority" say they would miss news most if they had to do without a radio. Serials are second only to news among women. At the same time, the serial drama created "strong feelings of rejection." Dance music was next on the list of programs disliked, and then came classical music and opera.

The reason for disliking classical music, however, is generally different from the prejudice against the other disliked items. They admit they don't go for the old masters because they don't understand them.

The amount of time spent listening in the country varies greatly, but three out of four said they turn off their sets at times because of lack of interest in the programs available, and one-third reported that they do so often.

Noon Peak Listening Hour

The hours of listening are in striking contrast with those of city folk. In the city the peak hours are between 7 and 10 p. m. In the country the peak comes at noon, with 44 per cent of the families tuning in then, the survey found. Two-thirds of the farm folk who have radios turn them on before 8 a. m. and one-eighth of them before 6 a. m. Twenty-six per cent of the listening is done in the morning, 10 per cent in late morning, then the peak at noon, 6 per cent in the afternoon, and 11 per cent in the evening.

Most rural people value radio highly and the loss of their sets would "make a great difference" to three-fourths. Typical comments on the attitude toward radio: "I am just lost when the radio is broken," "Going without radio would be just like going back to old fashioned lights," "I simply couldn't stay at home," "I look upon radio as my companion."

Now and then, the surveyors come up with a contrary response: "If it weren't for my family I'd throw the radio out," "All you hear is junk and commercials and murder mysteries."

Will Figure at Hearing

Rural listeners appear not to be highly conscious of any need for improved programming. The FCC contends that this is because "very few of these people have any point of reference, either actual or ideal, with which to compare present radio programming; as a consequence, they tend to accept the radio they know as the natural order of things."

The survey is expected to figure in the clear channel station hearings which the FCC has called for Jan. 14. Clear channel stations provide most of the coverage for many rural areas.

Barclay to Read Poetry by Chicagoans on WGNB

John Barclay will read poetry by Chicagoans and other Middle Westerners on his Twilight Meditations program over WGNB at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Among poems selected for this broadcast are: "To Rain" and "They Do Not Know" by Madeline Salmon of Chicago; "Lake Michigan Speaks" by Amelia Bluett Ryan, also of Chicago; "I Wait" by Malcolm Bosse of Moline, Ill., and "I Wander Alone, My Dear," "A Day," "A Poem—A Song," and "A Symphonic Poem" by Genevieve Whitlock Schreiner of Chicago.

40 and 8 Dance

The Windy City 40 and 8 voiture will hold a dance at 9:30 p. m. Saturday in clubrooms at 6308 Woodlawn av.

Blue Island Chorus to Broadcast

Blue Island Community High school will be one of the 14 suburban high schools whose students will sing Christmas carols on the Citizens of Tomorrow broadcast over W-G-N at 9:30 a. m. Saturday. Students who will sing (left to right) include Marlysse Nelsen, Margaret Dorjahn, Bette Mattson, Dorothy Proper, and Ruth Hillger. The program of holiday music will supplant the usual salute to a selected high school.

Aids TB Fight

DAVID LEE BROWN

David Lee Brown, 4 years old, who is heard on W-G-N's Funny Paper Party on which CHICAGO TRIBUNE comics are read at 11 a. m. Sundays, gives a living note to the 1945 Christmas Seal design. The seals are sold to aid in the fight against tuberculosis. Park Phipps, who designed the seal, called the picture a "splendid portrayal of the idea embodied in the 1945 Christmas seal."

JUDY CANOVA, PERRY COMO ON HALL OF FAME

Judy Canova and Perry Como will visit the Radio Hall of Fame on WENR-ABC at 5 p. m. today. Paul Whiteman, his orchestra, and Martha Tilton, songstress, are regulars on the show.

Miss Canova is a Whiteman discovery, so her appearance with him today will be something of a reunion. She will offer "Darling Nellie Gray," the tune she was singing for a vaudeville audience the day Whiteman first heard her and hired her to work with his band. Perry Como will sing a group of popular selections.

Holiday Music Highspots W-G-N Symphonic Hour

The Chicago Philharmonic orchestra, under the baton of Henry Weber, will salute the holiday season with a program of light music over W-G-N at 8:30 Tuesday evening. A performance of Prokofieff's "Peter and the Wolf," with John Barclay as narrator, will form the major portion of the broadcast. The orchestra also will offer Toch's "Pinocchio" and Corelli's "Christmas Concerto."

Immortal Melodies on Hour of Charm Tonight

The Hour of Charm, with Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra, will present a program titled "Melodies That Never Die" on WMAQ-NBC at 9 o'clock tonight. The orchestra and choir will open with Weber's "Invitation to the Waltz." Donaldson's "Romance," Ketelbery's "In a Monastery Garden," and Weber's "Softly Now the Light of Day" also will be heard.

Theater Guild Drama Stars Fredric March

Fredric March and his wife, Florence Eldridge, will star in "The Royal Family" to be aired over the Theater Guild on the Air via WENR-ABC at 9 o'clock tonight. On tonight's broadcast March will be recreating a role which won him a film contract when he was touring with he George S. Kaufman-Edna Ferber play in 1928.

Rose Bampton Sings on Sunday Evening Hour

When the Sunday Evening hour presents its 400th radio performance on WLS-ABC at 7 o'clock tonight, Rose Bampton, soprano, will be soloist. She will sing "Mi Chiamano, Mimi," from Puccini's "La Boheme"; Obradors' "Del Cabellos Mas Sutil," La Forge's "Song of the Open," Warren's "Christmas Candle," and, accompanied by a chorus, the "Inflammatus," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater." A brief history of the musical program will be heard.

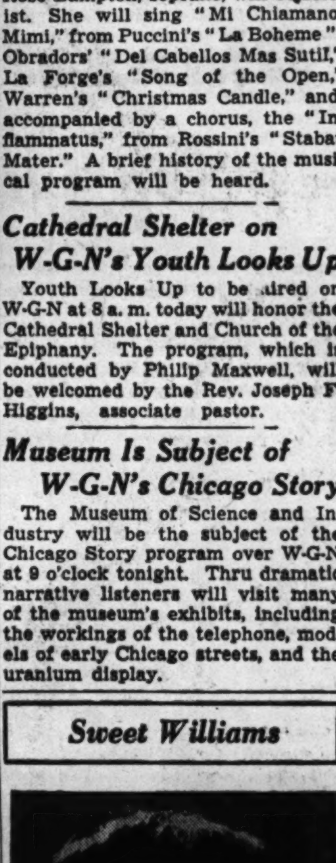
Cathedral Shelter on W-G-N's Youth Looks Up

Youth Looks Up to be aired on W-G-N at 8 a. m. today will honor the Cathedral Shelter and Church of the Epiphany. The program, which is conducted by Philip Maxwell, will be welcomed by the Rev. Joseph F. Higgins, associate pastor.

Museum Is Subject of W-G-N's Chicago Story

The Museum of Science and Industry will be the subject of the Chicago Story program over W-G-N at 9 o'clock tonight. Thru dramatic narrative listeners will visit many of the museum's exhibits, including the workings of the telephone, models of early Chicago streets, and the uranium display.

Sweet Williams



Elaine Williams is featured in the FBI in Peace and War over WBBM-CBS at 7:30 p. m. Thursdays.

HUBERMAN IS PHILHARMONIC SOLOIST TODAY

Bronislaw Huberman, violinist, will be soloist on the New York Philharmonic program over WBBM-CBS at 2 p. m. today. He will play Mozart's D major Violin Concerto. Bruno Walter will direct the orchestra in Corelli's Concerto Grosso No. 8 in G minor and Schumann's First Symphony. During intermission, Dr. James Franck will discuss "Medical Benefits from Atomic Energy."

"Babes in Toyland" Next for Theater of the Air

Victor Herbert's "Babes in Toyland" will be broadcast as the Christmas program of the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N and Mutual at 9 p. m. next Saturday. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker. Penny Perry, soprano, and Angelo Raffaelli, will be the leading singers. Robert Trendler will conduct the orchestra. This program and the one of the following week will be broadcast from W-G-N's main audience studio.

Mitropoulos Serves as Conductor and Soloist

Dmitri Mitropoulos will serve as conductor and also as soloist on the Symphony of the Air hour over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. He will direct the NBC Symphony orchestra in Bach's Concerto No. 5 in D major, the "Brandenburg" Concerto, and will assume the role of director and soloist in Prokofieff's Piano Concerto No. 3 in C major.

PRE-WAR WHISKIES IN QUARTS
THE store in Chicago having high quality pre-war whiskies in quarts. No brands on the market today to use as a comparison. When these whiskies were made in 1939 and 1940 plenty of corn was available. People have forgotten how smooth a really fine whiskey can be. We have them by the bottle or case. They defy comparison. As a gift your friends will be thrilled.

Miriam Hopkins, star of "St. Lazare's Pharmacy," the Eddie Dowling production opening at the Studebaker theater next Sunday night.

Holidays Promise Varied Fare for City's Theaters

Bill Includes New Plays and Ballet Theater

By Claudia Cassidy

Lining up for the holidays to join such favorites as "The Voice of the Turtle," "Carmen Jones," "Anna Lucasta," "Laffing Room Only," and "Dear Ruth" are, in order of arrival, Eddie Dowling's brand new production of "St. Lazare's Pharmacy," due at the Studebaker Dec. 23 with Miriam Hopkins and Gratien Gelinas; the popular comedy, "The Hasty Heart," bringing John Dall and Dort Clark to the Blackstone Dec. 24; Ballet Theater, with Markova, Dolin, Eglevsky, and a batch of novelties to the Civic Opera house Dec. 25; Milton Berle in "Spring in Brazil," to the Great Northern Dec. 28; Harlan Tarbell, the magician, to Orchestra hall Dec. 29, with a matinée for children and an evening show for everybody; and Rosario and Antonio, the vivid Spanish dancers who bring their troupe to Orchestra hall for New Year's eve.

It may delight your heart to know that Mr. Dowling, who normally is more Irish than Sean O'Casey, has discovered a French-Canadian grandfather for purposes of the new play. He declares he is part Goucher, of the Gouchers of Three Rivers, Que., and should be fly out for the opening—there is even money on the subject—don't be surprised if he addresses you in the patois. "St. Lazare's Pharmacy" got off to a good start in Montreal, and I am told Warren Munsell, formerly of the Theater Guild, had Mr. Dowling beaming from ear to ear with his pleased report. All I can tell you myself, until the morning of Dec. 24, is that Jo Mielziner has created another bewitching setting. Photographs of his French-Canadian pharmacy make you want to reach right in and steal a few apothecary jars.

I see by the advertising columns that Burns Mantle is quoted as calling "The Hasty Heart" the best original play of the 1944-'45 season. Maybe he did, but I can't find where. In his yearbook he said, "The second best war play of the season and the best original war play ['A Bell for Adano' being an adaptation from the Hersey novel] was Capt. John Patrick's 'The Hasty Heart.'" Just one actor remains of the original cast of nine, Victor Chapin, who plays the New Zealander. That isn't important if the new eight are good, and no complaints that I know about have been heard from replacing Richard Basehart and John Lund, so admired in the original production, with John Dall and Dort Clark, who are all right, too.

Altho Milton Berle sticks to "Spring in Brazil," numerous cast changes have been made since the show's original booking. The most important are the substitution of Mary Healy for Rose Marie and of Diosa Costello for Bernice Parks. Mr. Berle goes into the musical jungle as the timid son of a famous explorer and he is surrounded by a John Murray Anderson production, with music and lyrics by Robert Wright and George Forrest, who, according to the press bulletin, "won resounding praise for their score of 'Song of Norway.'". Of course, a man named Grieg was mixed up in that one, too.

Ballet Theater's engagement looks interesting, with plenty of classic ballets tucked in the newer repertory. Alicia Markova and Anton Dolin will dance "Giselle," "Aurora's Wedding" [with Alicia Alonso and André Eglevsky], the pas de deux from "Nutcracker" and the revival of "Firebird," in roles they share with Nora Kaye and Dimitri Romanoff. Markova also will dance "Swan Lake" with Eglevsky and "Les Sylphides" with both Eglevsky and John Kriza. The revival of "Apollo" is for Eglevsky, while Dolin is restored to the title role of "Bluebeard," never the same without him. Nora Kaye has a leading role in "Graziana," the Mozart ballet which also has major roles for Alonso and Eglevsky, this year's team for "Le Spectre de la Rose." Kaye also appears with Michael Kidd and Janet Reed in Kidd's new ballet, "On Stage," which will have Daniel Saidenberg as opening night's guest conductor. Current music director of the group is Jascha Horenstein, a Russian of wide European background.

Sono Osato

When Sono Osato was here in brief vacation between her departure from "On the Town" and the start of rehearsals for "Undine," she said she would like to know more about acting, but had been so busy performing, first in ballet and then in musicals, that she had seen but two helpful performances, Anne Burr's in "Native Son" and Barbara Bel Geddes' in "Deep Are the Roots." A beguiling mixture of the exotic and the outspoken, Miss Osato has what may be the neatest as well as one of the most attractive faces extant. Her sleek black hair is so crisply smooth about her face, her jet black brows and stubby lashes are the sharpest possible accents, and the mouth she paints with a 25 cent lipstick [her favorite] is small, full, neat as a Japanese painting. But when she talks the Irish in her comes out. She hopes she can act Giradoux's "Undine" because she loves the play, and she doesn't love everything, not by a long shot. She thinks "Carousel" hopelessly old fashioned, and can't stand "Giselle" because it reminds her how her feet hurt when she danced in the last row of the corps de ballet. Probably they did. They are tiny feet to match tiny hands and they belong to a girl who isn't very big except in talent, she hopes, and ambition, she knows.

If Rollin Bauer doesn't read the comics he must have wondered what was wrong with the Blackstone audience opening night when he walked out in "A Joy Forever" and stood there scratching. According to his author, Mr. Bauer was beset with spiders, but all over the theater people were whispering "Itchy!"

That same "A Joy Forever" closed last night after six performances for rewriting and general rehabilitation, and it may reopen in New York Christmas week. Meanwhile, "The Voice of the Turtle" will close at the Selwyn Jan. 12 to begin its long delayed tour to the west coast, by way of Columbus, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, St. Paul, and Minneapolis, with a two weeks' vacation for the actors [K. T. Stevens, Hugh Marlowe, and Vivian Vance] before the Los Angeles opening Feb. 18. The Selwyn reopens Jan. 14 with Ethel Barrymore in Philip Barry's "The Joyous Season," a play acted by Lillian Gish about 10 years ago.

Rachmaninoff Memorial Plans Ambitious Contest

on the Aisle

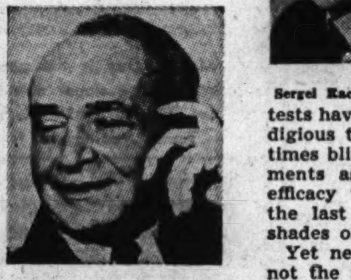
Koussevitzky's Subsidy Plan for Music in America

HAVE you heard about Serge Koussevitzky's plan to give a tremendous, nation-wide impetus to music in America? He simply proposes to tax every one 25 cents a year and use the money to give each state an orchestra, an opera company, and a string quartet which would tour that state in what you might call alternating currents of continuous melody. This is about as plain a statement of national subsidy as could be made, and as Mr. Koussevitzky suggests it, I need not explain that he is talking about music of quality, unhampered by political or social pressure. The distinguished Russian from Boston has the great gifts of enthusiasm and faith in the talented young, but he is primarily an idealist and a perfectionist. It would no more occur to him to sponsor makeshift music than to perform it.



Serge Koussevitzky

His plan goes deeper than the mere spread of music, vital as that may be. He wants to give music its freedom. For he believes, as so many musicians have come to believe, that the chief trouble with music in America today is that it belongs not to the people as a whole, but to the few now chiefly responsible for its support. Somehow, over the years, we have come to depend on what we call civic leaders to subsidize our music. Certain key figures in each city take charge of music, decide its destinies, and dig down in their pockets to pay off its deficits. This is doubly dangerous, since it places music at the mercy of private pocketbooks and individual, sometimes unreliable, tastes. If you have a Maecenas like the late Harold McCormick or Louis Eckstein, you get fabulous opera, and if you are lucky enough to get similar patrons of highly cultivated tastes, you may build up a great orchestra. The trouble is that many of those who get control of music, or perhaps have it thrust upon them, have no particular knowledge of it or liking for it, but accept the onus of its support as another civic duty, without realizing that a dutiful gesture in the wrong direction does more harm than good. The danger in any case is that instead of remaining trustees of the community's music, these people become its arbiters. If their judgment is indifferent or inferior we find ourselves with symphony orchestras on the toboggan of second rate direction, and opera companies hurtling in blissful ignorance to destruction.

When an orchestra or an opera company declines in prestige, far more is hurt than a disappointed audience accustomed to better things. If a new audience accepts that music, its taste is corrupted at the source, and the same is true of the developing performer who is denied the very opportunity every talent should take for granted. The musician already established in his community suffers even more. He has made the greatest possible investment in his organization, for he has invested his career. He may not have an opportunity to leave for another post, or he may not want to accept such opportunity because of home, friends, pension, or perhaps some lingering loyalty to better days. Yet a decline in prestige over which he has no control is bitter penalty for service that deserved richer reward.

The More Roots It Strikes, the Better

Mr. Koussevitzky's 25 cent plan, like Bruno Walter's dream of subsidized training centers of the arts, would not free music overnight, but it would knock a hole in the blank wall against which so much music is struggling and thru that hole would trickle light and air and the hope of freedom to come. Mr. Koussevitzky says Gov. Tobin of Massachusetts is interested. Perhaps Gov. Green will be. Perhaps all governors will be. Perhaps the President will be. The more roots it strikes, the better. It's another case of our old friend, "The roots must be more splendid than the foliage," which so many of us hope to see carved over the Auditorium doors if, when its war time service is done, that friendly old theater becomes a true center of the arts, a living memorial where the gifted young develop in the freedom others just as young and perhaps more gifted gave their lives to defend.

No doubt any but the Russians and the Irish would finish one project before starting another, but it is impossible to talk to Mr. Koussevitzky without talking about Tanglewood, and it is impossible to talk about Tanglewood without getting ideas about some place near Chicago, perhaps Ravinia, where something similar might be developed. Tanglewood, as you know, is both school and festival, furnishing what Mr. Koussevitzky calls "an opportunity for a summer of living and working in music." After two years of war time suspension it reopens next July 1 with Aaron Copland as Koussevitzky's assistant director. There will be six weeks of school, with principals of the Boston orchestra and other musicians as faculty, and the last three weeks coincide with the Berkshire festival. You attend that school as a qualified music student with an orchestra, an opera department, classes in conducting, composition, chamber music and so on, or as a student with less specific qualifications who wants to know more about music, in which case you form a festival chorus and a second orchestra.

Memorial Fun Aids Young Musicians

Nor is this yet all of the indefatigable Koussevitzky's scope in music. In memory of his wife he has created a fund to help finance promising young musicians. His first commission went to Benjamin Britten, who needed $1,000 to work on an opera. That opera is "Peter Grimes," the sensation of London, which Koussevitzky will do at Tanglewood this summer in advance of Eddie Dowling's Broadway production. His second commission went to Samuel Barber.

For Koussevitzky has the faith that not only moves mountains but musicians, which is sometimes more difficult. He says watch Leonard Bernstein, not only for the best of his "Jeremiah" symphony but for the remarkable performance of the Schumann Second he recently conducted in New York. He thinks "Oklahoma!" and "Carousel" delightful shows and hopes "Peter Grimes" will help them lift the level of the Broadway music stage. He has great patience with the gifted and outspoken scorn for the pretentious. And best of all, he gets things done in music. When you consider how much, in addition to his great work with the Boston orchestra, you may decide that what every state really needs, in addition to that orchestra, that opera company, and that string quartet, is a Koussevitzky to stimulate them to perfection. But if you got that for your 25 cents, you would have topped a blessing with a miracle.

But the Rules Make It Tough on an Amateur

By Albert Goldberg

Sergei Rachmaninoff

Contests appear to be an inevitable and integral part of musical life for they have existed since Handel and Scarlatti vied for supremacy in the palace of their patron, Cardinal Ottoboni, in Rome in 1709, and probably any respectable musicologist could add other examples both before and after that date. Contests have sometimes uncovered prodigious talent and they have sometimes blithely ignored genius. Arguments as to their legitimacy and efficacy will probably go on until the last musician passes into the shades of silence.

Yet never was the prevalence, if not the popularity, of musical contests greater than at the present moment; and if this department printed in detail the announcement of every competition that flutters across this desk there would be little space for any other news.

But when a contest takes on an international aspect and sets forth musically to unite two great nations, with the purpose of memorializing a departed great artist, then it becomes newsworthy beyond the average of these events. Such a musical competition is that planned by the Rachmaninoff Memorial Fund, Inc., an organization formed "to establish a living memorial to the life and art of Sergei Rachmaninoff, the great Russian composer, who died March 28, 1943, and whose career was one of unswerving devotion to the things of the spirit which draw men and nations together."

Vladimir Horowitz, Rachmaninoff's great friend and his successor as the greatest Russian pianist, has accepted the presidency of the new organization and Mrs. Rachmaninoff, the composer's widow, is the honorary president. An artists' advisory committee, which contains the names of nearly every musician of prominence now within these shores, is headed by Serge Koussevitzky.

The organization proposes "to honor and perpetuate the life work of Rachmaninoff" by holding biennial contests in the three fields of piano playing, composing, and conducting, in which the great Russian distinguished himself, for the purpose of effecting "cultural interchanges and understandings between the peoples of Russia and America."

The piano contests will be conducted on both regional and national plans. The first piano auditions are open to candidates who are native born or naturalized citizens of the United States and who by next Sept. 1 shall have reached their 17th birthday but have not yet passed their 26th anniversary. For candidates who may have served in the armed forces the age limit is extended to 29. A further restriction, designed to limit contestants to those who have not yet been launched upon a professional career, demands that the entrant shall not, before the aforementioned date, have undertaken an extensive managed tour as pianist in this or any other country.

The winner of the national award will receive benefits which should launch him or her upon a full fledged concert career. This will definitely consist, the prospectus assures us, of a nation-wide tour of the United States during the 1947-'48 season under the joint management of Arthur Judson, president of Columbia Concerts, Inc., and Marks Levine, president of the National Concert and Artists corporation.

In addition, and here is where the ifs and buts enter into this grandiose scheme, the winner will tour soviet Russia if such approval can be gained from the soviet government.

The demands upon the contestants will be rigorous and none but the most completely equipped musician can hope to compete in this pianistic battle. He must be prepared to play a concert repertory of 15 solo works and three concerti. This must consist of a major fugal composition by Bach, a Beethoven sonata, three Chopin and two Schumann selections, one of the great Brahms sets of variations and one of the smaller pieces, a Liszt original composition and one of his transcriptions, and two works selected from specified compositions by Debussy, Ravel, Rachmaninoff, Scriabine, and Balakireff. [It is ironical that Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C sharp minor, the piece which formed the cornerstone of his international career, should be barred to contestants.]

Besides all this the contestant must play one work by a living American and a living Russian composer, and three concertos from a list that contains not only the most difficult concerted pieces of the standard repertory but works for piano and orchestra by Prokofieff, Stravinsky, Khatchaturian, Gershwin, Carpenter, Loeffler, and Toch. In other words: amateurs beware!

Further information concerning the contests may be had from the local headquarters of the Rachmaninoff Fund, Inc., room 1928, 231 S. La Salle st., Chicago.

Palmer House Planning All-Star Revue for Jan. 17

Griff Williams and New Band Headline Show

By Will Davidson

Talia
[Seymour Photo]

Merriel Abbott has arranged what promises to be one of the most amazingly entertaining shows in Empire room history as a sort of welcome to the new owners. It is an all-star revue if ever there was one, and it opens Jan. 17.

Headlining will be Griff Williams, just out of the navy and now rehearsing his orchestra for a series of warmup dates in Springfield, Burlington, and Ottumwa, Ia., and points midwest. Then there's a comic star new to Chicago, but who has been winning the highest sort of praise in the east—Irwin Corey. Corey is a very individual type of entertainer, and his monologs are said to be strenuously funny.

NOTED SONGSTRESS

Martha Tanner, noted singer, now is the featured vocalist with Carleton Hayes and his orchestra, who are playing at the Trianon ballroom.
[Bruno of Hollywood Photo]

Another newcomer to the Palmer House will be Dorothy Shay, a singer who also has made a rousing reputation in the east. Then there is an act that proved extremely popular in the Empire room several years ago, those zany acrobats known as the Three Nonchalants. Rounding out the bill is Stan Kramer, popular puppeteer. Miss Abbott has some especially designed line numbers, and the finale will feature the dancing of Cornel and Groff, and the singing of Gene Newcomb.

The Palmer House will have a very strong Chez Paree show as competition. To follow Danny Thomas, Joe Jacobson has signed Frances Faye away from the Rio Cabana, and will bring in Henny Youngman and Tommy Dix, two Palmer House favorites. In addition to these three stars, there will be a dance team, the Hartnells, and the Olive Bernard line numbers.

This is the week Talia returns to the Bismarck, and she will be a welcome sight, indeed. Talia has just completed an especially successful engagement in the Club Troika, in Washington, and promises some new versions of her ever entertaining dance routines. The other act in the Walnut room show will be Paul Rosini, a very amusing magician who last appeared here, to my knowledge, at the Colony club. Benny Strong's orchestra, one of the most popular ever to play the Bismarck, will be back on the stand.

SINGS AT 5100

Marilyn Day is the surprising and entertaining singer now featured in the 51 Hundred club revue. Sid Tomack, comedian, is the star.

Undoubtedly it will offer its usual novelties and its singing specialties.

On Wednesday Chuck Foster returns to the Blackhawk restaurant, and there will be a new show to greet him. Hank Sieman, who played a successful engagement in the La Salle not too long ago, will bring in his ventriloquist act, and Emil and Evelyn, teeter board team, will provide the flash. Foster's vocalists are Marilyn Paul and Dick Roberts. Wednesday also is the night the Tune Toppers come into the Glass Hat of the Congress hotel.

Altho the Chez and the Palmer House gleefully announce their January plans, they are immensely happy over their current shows. Danny Thomas, of course, is packing them in, and giving them ample compensation for crowded tables. Cabot and Dresden continue to charm with their dance routines; Gail Meredith has proved herself a lovely singing find; and acrobatic Lynn Shirley is a bright spot at the opening of the show. So well built is this revue that the Chez is holding it intact over the holidays.

George Olsen continues to make friends in the Empire room of the Palmer House, and the show he plays for is one of the most entertaining to date. The Borrah Minnevitch Harmonica Rascals; the Three Swifts; Estelle Sloan, and Bill Baird, make up a good holiday entertainment menu.

Down at the Blackstone hotel the Mayfair room is the mecca these nights for a very happy series of crowds. The reason is Burl Ives, who calls himself "the wayfaring stranger" and who sings like a big, good natured angel. Burl is without much question at all the best ballad singer of the day. His voice is rich, but its richness is strangely delicate for so big a man. It has humor, it has warmth. It is as strong and as gentle as the western wind, as earthy as the western plains. It soars as high as the skyscrapers that have their firm foundations in the western prairies, and it whispers the humor of the river levees and the back roads and the camps on the plains.

Burl Ives is a genius, but no genius ever looked or acted less like one. He is completely natural, completely humble and appreciative of applause. He stands there like an amiable wanderer, talking to you in song about the "Blue Tail Fly" or the "Big Rock Candy Mountains," or the "Foggy Foggy Dew." Everything he does is genuine. You owe it to yourself to hear him.

Ernie Hecksher and his band have little to do during Mr. Ives' program, for Burl accompanies himself on the "gittar." But the band does a very popular job of providing dance music.

The Hot Jazz club of Chicago, just organized under the co-chairmanship of John Lucas and Catherine Jacobson, will offer its first concert this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Moose lodge, 1006 N. Dearborn. Earl Hines and an all star group will be featured.

On Monday evening at Orchestra Hall, Paul Eduard Miller, the prolific writer on jazz, will offer an ambitious concert starring a new jazz find, Max Miller and his quintet. Miller's modern piano harmonies and his vibraphone work have been creating considerable stir here. He is a talented young man. If Sponsor Miller's presentation of Artist Miller works out as planned, it should prove to be a distinctive musical evening—one that will give the serious music student a glimpse of what jazz can do and can become.

The personnel of the Miller concert includes Max Miller and his quintet. Bill Funkey, tenor and alto sax man, is considered one of the top jazz virtuosos, even tho he is not widely known. Ken Smith, drummer, is another unknown with a fervent if small group of fans. Jimmy Raney, guitarist, is making his first important appearance. The program will feature Miller's unusual compositions.

Boswelling the Bistros!

Palmer House patrons who remember the beautiful dancing of Rosario and Antonio in the Empire room several seasons ago will be interested in the announcement elsewhere in this section of their New Year's eve concert at Orchestra Hall. It will be good to see the fiery "Kids from Seville" again. . . . Glenn Miller's famous Air Forces orchestra will be kept intact as a civilian unit, according to reports from the east. . . . The College Inn models are now featuring a "Hollywood Hairdo" skit with the Jess Stacy show. . . . Another ex-navy man, Orrin Tucker, is rumored as the next band at the Edgewater Beach hotel. . . . Which reminds me that when Bonnie Baker was first offered to him as a vocalist, Orrin Tucker.

Act Early on Applications, Colleges Told

By The Rev. John Evans

If colleges would act on students' applications earlier in the year than they have in the past it would alleviate the uncertainty and insecurity at present haunting high school students. This was the consensus of a meeting recently called by Eugene Youngert, superintendent of Oak Park High school, to discuss "Where Shall Mary Go to College?"—a question that has much concerned girls and their parents this year.

The question has arisen, Mr. Youngert pointed out, because the five year ban on construction has prevented colleges from expanding facilities to meet increased enrollment, especially that of girls' enrollment.

"Frequently, even now, girls are told that this or that college will not take any more for next year except very high ranking students. These, however, always will be taken care of, but where are the others to go? Moreover, in my opinion, this problem is neither individual, nor local, nor temporary," Mr. Youngert said.

Other conclusions resulting from discussions at this meeting, held in the Oak Park High school, were: [1] The housing shortage in colleges is not simply the result of increased numbers of students. [For example, the University of Illinois has several thousand fewer students than before the war, yet rooms are exceedingly difficult to get.]

[2] Many of the smaller colleges do not as yet show any symptoms of prospective overcrowding for next year. [The fact that some colleges have had more applications than they can accept has been the case for years.]

[3] The present problem is, however, unusual in the sense that in the absence of boys campuses have tended to fill up with girls; now that the boys are coming back the colleges must plan to take more students than usual. [In most colleges these arrangements need only be temporary, since nobody can tell but that the increase in numbers may not also be temporary.]

[4] Since the mechanical routine of army life does not stimulate intellectual ambition, but more often rather kills it, no college dares plan on the future until the question of peace time conscription is settled, as that measure would greatly decrease the number of boys ever attending college.

Present at the meeting were the principals or deans or college counsellors of the chief suburban high schools and representatives of the University of Chicago, Northwestern university, Carleton, Beloit, Augustana, Milwaukee-Downer [representing women's colleges], and North Park [to speak for junior colleges].

Drama Notes

"Antigone the Tyrant" is now the name of Jean Anoulih's play in which Katharine Cornell will star under the direction of Guthrie McClintic and which she will present in association with Gilbert Miller. Also in the cast are Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Ralph Forbes, George Mathews, James Monks, and Oliver Cliff. New York expects it the week of Jan. 21.

For its holiday attraction the children's theater at the Goodman will present "Paul Bunyan's First Christmas" Saturdays at 2:30 from now thru Jan. 19, with extra performances Dec. 28 at 2:30, Dec. 29 at 10:30, and Sunday afternoons, Jan. 13 and 20, at 3 o'clock.

When "St. Louis Woman" gets into production it will have Ruby Hill in the leading role long mentioned for Lena Horne. Others are the Nicholas Brothers, Rex Ingram, Pearl Bailey, June Hawkins, and Bertha Powell. The show says it is looking for a Negro version of Burl Ives. Maybe it couldn't get Josh White, who does all right as himself.

Maxwell Anderson, whose "Girl from Lorraine" is postponed until Ingrid Bergman is free next fall, has a newer play, "Truckline Cafe," to be produced by Elia Kazan and Harold Clurman. . . . Russel Crouse will be here for the opening of "The Hasty Heart," of which he is co-producer. He is on his way to the coast to work on the movie version of "Life with Father" and also will look around for the Chicago company of "State of the Union."

The Lunts begin their tryout tour in "O Mistress Mine" at the Music Hall, Toledo, Thursday evening, Dec. 20, and play a week in Milwaukee another week in Madison, Wis., and two weeks in Washington before opening in New York. In their cast are Dickie Patten, Margery Maude, Anna Lee, Marie Paxton, and Esther Mitchell. Mr. Lunt directs.

"Laffing Room Only" played its 100th performance at the Shubert yesterday afternoon and decided not to charge $9 New Year's eve, after all. You can get in to see Olsen and Johnson that night for a mere $7.20, ranging down to $1.80.

Hollywood Not Fair to Stage, Says Chapman

By John Chapman

NEW YORK [Special] — If nobody from Hollywood ever again comes to New York to "do" a play, I shall not be distressed. There are many fine people in Hollywood—intelligent, decent, and competent. Most of these are from the stage, and the stage, of which I consider myself a part, always has given them a warm welcome when they come back.

But I have come almost to the point where I no longer care. In a recent notice about a terrible little play by and with Hollywoodians, I said, under the stress of the evening's distress, that I wished Hollywood would go back to where it came from—and stay there.

It can go back. The sooner Spencer Tracy goes back, the better, and he should stay there, with the meaning made plain that he will no longer be welcome if he seeks once again to "do" a legitimate play. I am not, as I should be, too profoundly delighted to learn that Charles Laughton is contemplating a return in a biographical drama about Galileo. The play sounds fine, and Laughton is a superb actor, but, under the current circumstances of the movies' participation in the theater, it might be better in the long run if he stayed away.

Film people will not play for keeps. From the time the talking picture first appeared to the immediate moment, the movies have got their best stuff—their actors, their writers, some of their producers and some of their directors—from the stage. They owe the stage an honorable deal, but, except for individual instances, they do not give it. The stage is merely a place to give a good buildup to a play on a pre-production deal, or a place from which to steal actors and writers, or a place to which an actor who is slipping may return and perhaps, by a good performance, renew the interest and loosen the pocketbooks of the employers in Culver City, Burbank, and Beverly Hills.

From the Boston tryout on, Spencer Tracy has made the internal affairs of Robert Sherwood's "The Rugged Path" as complicated and unhappy as those of the Spanish government. In Boston he wanted out. For a while he was out. Then he was in.

In New York he wanted out, and has been almost out, and then has changed his mind. Last week he wanted out again, and indications were that he would file his notice of resignation in time to close the play on Jan. 5. If he changes his mind, or already has changed it, it will be because of the pleading of many people, people important in the legitimate theater, and one will have the feeling that it was a grudging change of mind. I shall not join in the pleading. But shall ask Tracy to get out and stay out.

This attitude is astonishing to myself. Tracy was, in the two years I covered the movies, a most highly prized acquaintance. He is a man of great skill and personal decency.

His personal triumph in the play has been great. The drama itself was not an immediate personal triumph for Sherwood, for the reviews it got were largely unfavorable, with myself among the few who liked it; but "The Rugged Path" was an instant triumph at the box office. It has played to capacity plus standees at every performance but one, and its weekly gross, upward of $26,000, is the highest of any straight play on Broadway. It obviously has found friends among the cash customers.

Before Hollywood began messing around with its stars and its preproduction money, when an actor hired out for the show he hired out for the duration, or at least two seasons. His run-of-the-play contract held him obligated to the following June 1, and he was willing to sign a rider in the contract holding him for the next year.

When Tracy decided to "do" a play, he, and probably his owners, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, stipulated that Tracy could quit at any time, even in Boston, by filing two weeks' notice. Two weeks! Shades of Joseph Jefferson and Frank Bacon, of Jim Barton and Laurette Taylor, of Denman Thompson and William Gillette!

The movies, it seems to me, need the stage more than the stage needs the movies. We who like our round actors should be able to find and develop our own—and have, in fact, in the face of all of Hollywood's raids. We should not need any of this two-week cancellation stuff, or any lines in the program saying that somebody is being presented by arrangement with David O. Selznick.

Last week there arrived at this desk a telegram from one Victor Shapiro in Hollywood announcing that, after an absence of 12 years from Broadway, Charles Laughton will "temporarily desert film capital favor New York footlights.". The telegram gave the interesting details of the drama about Galileo, then informed that Laughton "will leave for New York shortly complete negotiations for play's production, choosing between two producers."

In better days, actors did not choose producers. Producers hired actors—and hired them for the duration, and the actors were glad to get the jobs.

I think it is time that the stage told the movies to go climb a tree. And Spencer Tracy can shinny up a eucalyptus in his San Fernando valley back yard any time. He does not even have to wait until Jan. 5.

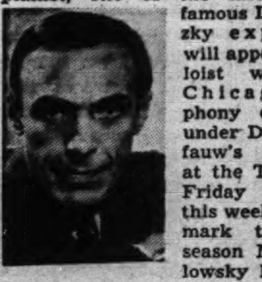
Notes of Music and Musicians



Alexander Brailowsky

Alexander Brailowsky, Russian pianist, one of the last of the famous Leschetizzky exponents, will appear as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra under Désiré Defauw's direction at the Thursday-Friday concerts this week. It will mark the 10th season Mr. Brailowsky has been listed as the orchestra's soloist. He will play the Rachmaninoff Concerto No. 2 in C minor, the ninth concerto he has played in 13 appearances with the orchestra.

Mr. Defauw will offer a novelty in the first Chicago performance of Samuel Barber's "Music for a Scene from Shelley," an early work of this American composer, written in 1933 when he was 23 and dedicated to his patroness, Mary Louise Curtis Bok. The music is intended as incidental music for a scene from Shelley's "Prometheus Unbound." For the second successive week Mr. Defauw will program one of Richard Strauss' major works, this time "Thus Spake Zarathustra," and the concert will begin with Rossini's overture to "La Scala di Seta" in its first Orchestra Hall performance.

Rudolph Ganz will conduct the Young People's concert on Tuesday afternoon at 3:30, with June Kovach as piano soloist. The program lists the prelude to Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel," excerpts from Ravel's "Mother Goose" suite, the Scherzo from Mendelssohn's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," the first movement of Schumann's A minor piano concerto, "Silent Night," by Gruber, and the waltz from Tschaikowsky's "Sleeping Beauty."

SCHOOL MARM

Frances Gifford plays a pretty school marm in "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes." McVickers.

Hans Schwieger, conductor of the Fort Wayne, Ind., Philharmonic orchestra, who already has conducted one of the Chicago Symphony broadcasts and is scheduled to lead another this season, will appear as guest conductor of Saturday night's Pop concert. His program lists the overture to Reznicek's "Donna Diana," the Prelude and Love-Death from Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde," the suite from Stravinsky's "Fire-Bird," and Tschaikowsky's Symphony No. 5, in E minor.

Albert Spalding, noted American violinist, will give a recital in the History and Enjoyment of Music series at Orchestra Hall this afternoon at 3:30. He will play two movements from Tartini's Sonata in G minor, Mozart's Concerto in D major, Brahms' Sonata in A, Opus 100, Paul Sladek's "The Isle of Mists," Benjamin Primrose's "Jamaican Rhumba," Debussy's "En Bateau," De Falla-Kreisler's "Spanish Dance," and Saint-Saens' "Rondo Capriccioso."

A jazz concert will be given at Orchestra Hall Monday night at 8 by the Max Miller quintet. Guest soloists will be Sidney Bechet, soprano saxophone; Tony Parenti, clarinet, and Bill Funkey, alto and tenor sax. The program will include traditional New Orleans jazz—"High Society" and "Steady Roll"—popular standard pieces such as "Lazy River," "Caravan," "The Shiek," "Stardust," as well as originals by Messrs. Miller, Bechet, and Parenti—"Blues at Moonrise," "Carmen Avenue Special," "Heartbeat Blues," "Tony's Warm-Up," "Solar Plexus Blues," and "Fantasia of the Unconscious." The management stresses the fact that some of these originals have a playing time of from 10 to 15 minutes.

Jakob Gimpel, Polish pianist, will give a recital in the Temple Sholom Concert-Forum series on Wednesday at 8:15. He will play rondos by Beethoven and Weber, Chopin's Fantasie-Impromptu and Sonata in B minor, Chabrier's "Bourée Fantasque," three Preludes by Rachmaninoff, and Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2.

Smetana's "The Bartered Bride" will be presented by the Citizens Opera company in Ashland Boulevard auditorium this afternoon at 3 as the first of a series of performances in English for school children. The project is sponsored by Helen Howe, director of music of the board of education. Jarmila Novotna will be the Marie and Jerzy Bojanowski will conduct.

Victor Borge, pianist-humorist, and his concert orchestra will play a reëngagement at the Civic Opera House this afternoon at 3.

The Universal Opera company will present Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor" at the Eighth Street theater tonight at 8.

The Bloomington-Normal Symphony orchestra and the Bloomington-Normal Civic chorus will give a Christmas concert under the auspices of the St. James Choir school in the Sanctuary of the St. James Methodist church, 46th st. and Ellis av., tonight at 7:30. Bethuel Gross, recently appointed director of the graduate division of Illinois Wesleyan university, is conductor of both the orchestra and chorus.

Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel" will be presented in two performances sponsored by Helen Howe, director of musc of the board of education, at the Civic Opera House next Sunday and Monday, Dec. 23 and 24. Both performances will be at 3 p. m. Felix Wolfes of the staff of the Chicago Opera will conduct, Maria Matyas will be the Hansel, Eunice Steen Lamont the Gretel, Sonia Sharnova the witch, and George Tozzi the father. The Carla Bradley ballet will stage the dance of the angels.

The Swedish Choral club will give its annual performance of Handel's "Messiah" in Orchestra Hall next Sunday, Dec. 23, at 3. Harry T. Carlson will conduct and the soloists will be Maud Nosler, soprano; Lillian Chookasian, alto; William Miller, tenor, and John Macdonald, bass. Members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra will play the accompaniments.

The Austin Choral club will give its 15th annual performance of Handel's "Messiah" at the Austin Methodist church, Race and Central avs., tonight at 8. Paul Vernon will conduct and the soloists will be Esther Ament, contralto; Ralph Niehaus, tenor; Harry Swanson, baritone, and Maurine Smith, soprano. Preceding the performance the Oriana a cappella choir will sing Christmas carols.

"The House on 92d Street." The first film to be made with the official coöperation of the FBI presents an inside look into its war time operations and features William Eythe, Signe Hasso, and Lloyd Nolan. It tells the true story of how war secrets were kept from enemy spies. Garrick.

BOOK NEWS AND REVIEWS

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

NOW, as the Christmas season approaches, the little Christmas books again are beginning to come in. They are, I think, the most delightful development in bibliomania in our time. Whoever established the precedent should be counted among the biblioblessed. I am thinking, of course, not of bookstore books, but of those little brochures, privately printed at the donor's expense, which among bookmen have to some extent taken the place of the conventional Christmas card. Handsomely printed in limited editions, and not for sale, they are rare items to begin with, and are among the most eagerly sought after of bookly treasures.

The origin of the custom is not known. In all probability, thinks Walter Klinefelter, who is publishing a continuing bibliography of the subject, it postdates by some years the issue of the first Christmas card [approximately 1845], of which it is a refinement. The card undoubtedly sprang out of the humanizing influence of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" [1843], and the private opuscule probably followed quickly. It is possible that the first Christmas book of this kind was "Christmas: A Vigil," by C. J. C. [Charles James Cruttwell], issued by the Daniel Press in 1851, but search for an earlier specimen continues. Dr. C. H. O. Daniel was an English clergyman, who began to play with types at the age of nine. His "press" books, later in life, were issued from Oxford.

The earliest American item also offers difficulties. Mr. Klinefelter's wonderful collection of private opuscula contains nothing before 1894, in which year the Boston publishing house of Copeland & Day issued Lamb's "Detached Thoughts on Books and Reading" for special presentation at Christmas, continuing the practice—with other titles—until 1899. Other publishers and individuals were quick to follow, and today the number of Christmas books that pass in the mails is, I suppose, well into the hundreds. Among the famous printing imprints found in these fascinating trifles are those of Bruce Rogers, D. B. Updyke, Frederic Goudy, and William Edwin Rudge.

The forms taken by these "little" books are sometimes strange and are always unpredictable. In my own collection there is one specimen of "elephant folio" size—produced by S. A. Jacobs for Charles Honce—possibly the biggest little book in the world; on the other hand I have some so small that it is more convenient to read them with a glass than with naked, as the old phrase has it, eye. Bruce Rogers, in merry mood, once sent out a booklet of two-cent stamps, gaily bound in colored papers, with an introductory note calling attention to the "elegant engravings on steel"—an excessive outlay since, presumably, he could have made the same point with a book of one-cent stamps.

In general, the subjects chosen for private print at Christmas are timely. Always popular have been the Christmas essays of Washington Irving, Moore's "Visit from St. Nicholas," and the many stories of the Nativity, biblical and otherwise. And, of course, Christmas carols beyond counting. Where the subject is not some aspect of Christmas, it is usually bookish. One ardently sought item concerns Sherlock Holmes; another relates a strange, uncanonical adventure of that reckless Alice who followed a White Rabbit underground with memorable consequences. For 30 years the late A. Edward Newton sent out little Christmas gift books on a variety of bookish subjects, which now bring handsome figures in the auction rooms.

"In the book collector's calendar all days are rubricate," says Mr. Klinefelter. "None passes without leaving him the richer by some experience associated with the love of books." That is undoubtedly true; but the reddest of all red-letter days for the collector, perhaps, is Christmas. It is well that the great holiday comes only once a year; if it came oftener he would vanish slowly like the Cheshire Cat, leaving only his grin to celebrate his bibliosatisfaction.

The fairy tale quality of daily life has seldom been better captured than it has been captured by Arthur Meeker Jr. in "The Far Away Music" [Houghton], a story of Chicago in the 1850s that is, I think, the best Chicago novel since Henry B. Fuller laid down his pen. With fine accuracy, a keen wit, and a delightful sense of humor, he has given us a comedy of our early days over whose pages the spirit of Jane Austen hovers with smiling, ironic scrutiny. A fastidious craftsman, his satirical intention is implicit on every page, and so also is his sympathy and his sensibility. The net result is a distinguished novel of the sort too easily called light when, in fact, its implications are serious and universal. Mr. Meeker works under the lamp of comedy, but he is aware of the shadow outside the radius of his illumination.

Lacking the colorful background of "The Ivory Mischief," his best selling novel of the court of Louis XIV., it is unlikely that the present work will have the wide appeal of its predecessor; but that is not important. Let it be another of those happy secrets shared by the few who care for good work and are able to recognize it when they see it. And since there is no Prix de Chicago, let us establish one and give it to Mr. Meeker.

Before Nat Cowen took over the Central Book Store at 16 N. Dearborn st., he and Jerrold Nedwick were partners in the antiquarian book business. Before that he was one of Jerry's star customers who, fascinated by the book trade—as who isn't?—decided he would like to enter it. Now, after five years of partnership and seven of sole proprietorship, he has taken a six story building at 36 S. Clark st., to give his friends and customers more browsing space. The Dearborn st. shop, altho a snug and genial place—it will remain open for the time being—was getting pretty crowded. In the new establishment, with Carl Johnson as general manager, three floors will be thrown open to the public, thus offering collectors three times the number of previous opportunities to discover rarities unknown to the proprietor. It was Mr. Cowen who, some years ago, when his shop was obstructed by workmen, put a huge placard above his door announcing "alterations as usual during business."

If Delos Avery had not gone on so interminably about David McCord's anthology, "What Cheer" [Coward-McCann], I should have gone on at similar length myself. It is a fine gathering, anyway; and I am happy to supply one of Mr. McCord's omissions. The farrago called "The Great Panjandrum Himself" [p. 175], credited to Anonymous, was written by Samuel Foote, the 18th century humorist, to test the memory of Macklin the actor.

THOMAS MANN REINTRODUCES DOSTOEVSKY

Short Novels in a Welcome New Omnibus

"THE SHORT NOVELS OF DOSTOEVSKY," with an introduction by Thomas Mann. [Dial, $4.]

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

Thomas Mann

One of the most welcome omnibuses of many a year is this reprinting of six of the shortest novels of the great Russian novelist whose "Crime and Punishment," "The Idiot," "The Brothers Karamazov," and "The Possessed" are studied in every history of modern literature. One of them, "Notes from Underground," is said by authorities on Russian literature to have been the pivotal book of the author's career, when he turned from a humanitarian and idealist and dreamer in his writing into the tragic creator.

Any critical writing from the pen of Thomas Mann carries weight, and the fact that Mr. Mann contributes the introduction to this collection gives the book added importance. But this reader confesses that of the great German-American's writings, this critical essay seems to her to be the least impressive. In it Mr. Mann takes as his theme the effect of illness on creative work and compares Dostoevsky and Nietsche, the German creator of the superman ideal, two writers who, to most readers must seem to have little to compare in their creative phases.

Mr. Mann ends his brief introduction to the book: "As this edition of Dostoevsky compares with his complete work, and as his published work compares with that which he could and would have created if the limitations of human life had not prevented him—so the things I have said here about the titanic Russian compare to what could be said about him. Dostoevsky in moderation. Dostoevsky in reason, that was the watchword. When I told a friend of my intention to provide a preface for these volumes he said, laughing, 'Be careful! You will write a book about him.' I was careful."

To most readers of Mr. Mann's preface he was too careful. He propounded a book size thesis which demands elaboration, and then left the reader with his interest piqued with an idea which was so novel, that only elaboration and explanation would satisfy. Perhaps some day Thomas Mann will write a book on his thesis that disease is creative and elaborate the sentence "In their cases [Nietzsche and Dostoevsky] the disease bears fruits that are more important and more beneficial to life and its development than any medically approved normality."

The preface is divided into two distinct parts in the first of which Mr. Mann propounds the novel theory of the relationship of these two diseased creators, and in the second of which he makes brief critical comments on the six short novels which fill these over 800 pages: "The Double," Dostoevsky's second novel written in 1845, which shows a strong influence of Gogol; "The Friend of the Family" which he wrote during his imprisonment and exile in Siberia; "Uncle's Dream" "which followed immediately" according to Mr. Mann, and "must frankly be regarded as a retrograde step" and "is filled with unbearable sentimentalism derived from the early influence of Charles Dickens"; "Notes from Underground" which Mr. Mann calls "an awe-and-terror-inspiring example of Louis Aragon, whose wartime poetry is reviewed below.

Hard, Bright Poetry Born in the French Resistance

"ARAGON—POET OF THE FRENCH RESISTANCE," edited by Hannah Josephson and Malcolm Cowley. [Duell, Sloan, and Pearce, $2.]

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan

In her brief editorial introduction to this small book Hannah Josephson explains that "Aragon—Poet of the French Resistance" is a volume put together "in homage to the poet and the fighter," Louis Aragon, one time Dadaist and for 20 odd years a prominent figûre in French letters, "whose achievements in a period of terror and catastrophe may well give heart to men and women of good will everywhere."

The selections here collected attempt to represent all types of writing which Aragon produced during the war years. There are about 50 pages of bright, hard, lovely, impassioned poetry, brilliantly translated by half a dozen hands.

It is impossible, of course, to sum up intricate and profound work in a word or two; yet if any single line could suggest the feeling of all these various poems at once it might be the line from one of them: "I am monarch of my sorrows still." There is a proud and honorable torment here, a fierce dignity.

In the 50 pages of prose the feeling is the same, but less intensely projected. There is a bitter little short story, a vivid report of a nazi mass execution, an editorial, an exhortation to French intellectuals, and a pair of essays, ostensibly on poets but actually concerned with the magnificent patriotism which, almost luminously, occupies all this writing.

Malcolm Cowley's introduction to the poems is a fine, perceptive piece of critical writing. With Peter C. Rhodes' somewhat ambling but richly informed essay on Aragon as a resistance leader, it furnishes a good background of fact for the particular selections reprinted. Waldo Frank's brief contribution, "Aragon Between Wars" helps to establish the poet's general background.

The effect of the book is a double one. In revealing bits of Aragon's war work it discloses, sketchily but remarkably, some of the desperate and noble humanity of the whole French resistance. "We have seen . . . the heroic moment when everybody was ready at every moment to die for anybody."

Slobodkin Pens a Tale of the Sea (Not for Children)

"FO'CASTLE WALTZ" by Louis Slobodkin. [Vanguard, $2.75.]

Don't jump to the conclusion that "Fo'castle Waltz," written by an artist-sculptor well known for his children's books and their illustrations, is a dreamy, unsophisticated, lilting tale of hamonious happenings in the for'ard part of a ship. It's not. It's a rough, extremely tough, and at times dirty chronicle of what pre-war salt water sailors did on ship and ashore.

It's definitely a man's book.

"Fo'castle Waltz" is at times mildly humorous and is uniformly well written and entertaining. It's the story of a voyage the author made when many years younger on a Yankee freighter from New York to Argentina.

The reader may sometimes wonder where the facts end and fiction begins. Slobodkin's illustrations add much to its readability.

AL CHASE

Enchanted, Vital Tale Told by Claude Silve

"EASTWARD IN EDEN," by Claude Silve. Translated from the French by Evelyn Hatch. Illustrated by Garth Williams. [Creative Age Press, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Let's bring out another Christmas book number of THE TRIBUNE so that I may treat this story as it deserves by listing it as one of the best books of 1945. Its title is clear.

The pseudonymous work of a distinguished Frenchwoman, active thruout the war in the underground, it is dedicated "to the dear and great memory of Edith Wharton"; but it has a rich quality of inwardness, a shimmering spiritual vitality that did not lie within that fine writer's range. "There exist two kinds of truth, the wingless and the winged: Peter followed that which has wings." And "Claude Silve" too. Send out the word to all lovers of such artists as Alexander Smith, Forrest Reid, and Walter de la Mare that this is a book they must not miss.

"Sometimes only a very narrow opening is needed for an entrance into enchanted land." "Eastward in Eden" provides such an opening.

A painting of Claude Silve

The fable is simple. At Versailles, in the days of the Empress Eugenie, a little boy is kidnaped by a gypsy with a Pied Piper whistle, and carried to "Sablomine," an enchanted realm of fairylike charm, where "nothing ever dies." But nothing died in Eden either—nothing except everything—and when destruction has fallen upon Sablomine, Peter is returned to his family and the world of every day.

"You went away, incurably smitten with a happiness you could never put into words, and destined, wherever you went beyond the rusty gates of Sablomine, to be a little stranger." Searching for his lost Eden, the child goes "farther still"—into Eternity.

The charm of the book is indescribable. Strangely enough, it is not the second part, which describes the fairylike life in the broken Moorish palace which is Sablomine that I care for most. It is part I, in which this strange otherness is seen impinging upon the solid realm of France, and especially upon the little girl who was Peter's playmate.

And I like the book as reflective, meditative literature quite as much as I admire it as fiction; for it is full of passages that bring us suddenly into that realm which we really inhabit in our deeper selves but which so seldom gets its record written down on paper. "One visiting day this marvelous word [stranger] had suddenly struck them, like a pebble thrown thru a window into a quiet room. How often, unwittingly, we may break some window of the hidden chambers into which children are powerless to bring us, and which we have not quite the power to recall in ourselves."

When I say that I care comparatively little for the second part, I must indeed specifically exempt the lovely passages which concern the animals—Belcanto the centenarian parrot, Cornarina the doe, Clarinetta the donkey, and others.

War's Lesson Discussed by Nickerson

"ARMS AND POLICY, 1939-1944," by Hoffman Nickerson. [Putnam, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Walter Simmons

In the first worthwhile consideration of military strategy and policy to be printed in this country for many months, Maj. Hoffman Nickerson, author of "The Armed Horde," analyzes World War II. in detail up to the end of 1944. His study of the war's lessons is followed by a discussion of post-war American military policy.

Maj. Nickerson disagrees violently with the theory of strategic bombing, which he consistently refers to as "baby killing." In pointing out the difficulty of precision bombing, he cites a number of misadventures during the war: the strafing of Russian troops by American fighter planes; the third erroneous bombing of Macao, Portuguese colony in China, when an apology was being delivered for the second; the raiding of Swiss cities by American planes; the bombing of The Hague by the British, and the mistake of American pilots in bombing a French city and showering it with surrender leaflets while Yank troops were billeted in its homes.

Nickerson contends the retention of our hard won Pacific bases is unnecessary to defense and says "the only rational object of our keeping them will be either to defend some one else or to promote some imperialistic policy concealed from the American people." If we must defend the Australians, he suggests, "they are hardly worth defending if they will not even keep up the bases which our fleet would need."

He opposes compulsory military training as unjustified and is against war with Russia for several realistic reasons, including "the obvious difficulty of gaining a final military decision over so vast a country."

As for future peace, Nickerson charges that we have been as blind as the Germans "in waging a sort of war unlikely to achieve any real peace."

The major's scholarship comes close to being unexceptionable thruout, but on page 244 he slips twice; once in suggesting that MacArthur's Leyte armada "had originally put to sea with the intention of landing in Mindanao," and again when he asserts "for the first time in the Pacific, battleships exchanged salvos" in the battle of Leyte gulf. He forgets the battle of Guadalcanal, Nov. 14, 1942.

Dean's Fantastic Cartoons Make Harry Hansen Uneasy

By Harry Hansen

New York.

NO cartoonist is ever as ironic, sarcastic, or even morbid in a magazine as when he assembles his drawings in a book. A book can really bite a man. Whereas drawings in a magazine are offset by those of other hands, by pure reading matter and lovely pictures of model kitchens, in a book we have the cartoonist's measure; the forcefulness of his drawing, the bitterness of his irony, the pattern he has set for expressing his ideas, and his draftsmanship—all stand fully revealed.

This season the editors of Farrar & Rinehart are wondering just what the public reception will be for Abner Dean's book of cartoons, "It's a Long Way to Heaven." Philip Wylie, who urged their publication, calls his drawings proper murals for hell as well as suitable souvenirs for saints. They made me uneasy, even while I marveled at the ingenious manner in which Dean expresses his ideas. He deals in psychological quirks, not mere mannerisms and foibles. His drawings invite guarded questions about the artist. You wonder if he is like other people—say Peter Arno, or Alan Dunn, or Syd Hoff.

For those members of the literary world who were not afraid of getting their feet wet on an afternoon of sleet and rain this was happily answered at a reception for him in the Barberry room. It turned out that Abner Dean was a thoughtful man of 34, unmarried, with a studio in the East 50s. Did he put in all his time drawing these fantastic nude figures that illustrate some of man's worst follies? No, indeed; Mr. Dean works in commercial design and paints. He did some covers for the New Yorker years ago, but has not appeared inside the magazine. But Life became sufficiently interested in his drawings to reproduce some of the best, and now the publishers are asking themselves: Will those pictures help stimulate interest in the book or scare buyers away? It's too early to tell.

The Diaries of Tchaikovsky

The man who translated "The Diaries of Tchaikovsky" from the Russian for W. W. Norton & Co. is Wladimir Lakond, a Russian-born American and an accomplished musician who studied piano with Artur Schnabel in Berlin. Mr. Lakond wrote the English libretto for Shostakovich's "Lady Macbeth of Mensk," which was presented here a few seasons ago. In New York he is associated with the Edward B. Marks Music company. Altho parts of the diaries have been known, the present work is reported to contain all that have been found in the soviet union. Several years are missing and believed destroyed. It is also sad to read Tchaikovsky's mention of the house at Klin, which later became a museum of his works and was destroyed by the Germans. Many of the woods in which Tchaikovsky walked while brooding over his compositions also fell victim to the ravages of war. This is one of the two fine books on music added to the Norton list this season, the other being "The Bach Reader," by Hans David and Arthur Mendel.

Mrs. Janeway Protests

Mrs. Elizabeth Janeway takes exception to my comment, in these columns, that her novel, "Daisy Kenyon," was the subject of ballyhoo, whereas she declares that the publicity it has received is legitimate, in view of its advance orders of 35,000 copies before publication. She has written Mr. Babcock "a long and detailed communication taking issue with Mr. Hansen over every point raised and rebuking him for using criticism as a vehicle for dealing in personalities." I do not ascribe the campaign to Mrs. Janeway personally and agree that it can be called publishing enterprise. This column is not intended to be criticism but a record with comment of the activities of authors and publishers, and is always open to correction.

New Edition of 'Fountainhead'

The other day Ayn Rand's novel, "The Fountainhead," appeared anew on the best-seller lists of the Doubleday, Doran bookshops, and since these shops are up to date and have a big demand for the latest books I wondered why a novel issued in the spring of 1943 should again attain such popularity. The house of Bobbs-Merrill replied: "We have just put out a new edition of 30,000, because the demand continues large." It's back on the Bobbs-Merrill list, after a short flirtation with Blakiston, because paper is now more readily available. Altho it's a fat book, it has sold 260,000 copies.

I made an effort to find the reason for the popularity of a book that may be described as solid reading. A few years ago it was said to present the argument for intelligent conservatism so well that early readers saw in it a repudiation of the methods of the New Deal, even tho Miss Rand went quite deeply into architectural controversy. But this, apparently, does not operate today. There are two reasons for its sale, a combination of the educational or cultural appeal with a sex situation that carries a wallop. The intensity of the love and hate of the chief woman character and her battle with the man may account for a great deal of the present demand.

The story was sold to Warner Bros. a few seasons ago and is expected to be in the making soon. Miss Rand, who became a clerk in an architect's office to soak in the background of the action, took a job with the movies and is now living in Hollywood.

Short Story Gems Found by Miss Foley

"THE BEST AMERICAN SHORT STORIES 1945," edited by Martha Foley. [Houghton Mifflin, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle

Martha Foley

For 30 years, first under the editorship of the late Edward J. O'Brien and now under Martha Foley, this annual collection has been one of the finest publishing events of the year. This volume is as high in quality as any published. It is a very great pleasure to read story after story of high intent and high skill and force of execution. There isn't a bad story in the book.

The feeblest effort is a very amusing piece called "Alabama Sketches" and this is weaker only because it seems thin alongside the more serious efforts.

The most powerful story is "Cass Mastern's Wedding Ring," by Robert Penn Warren. This is not only the longest selection, it is the only one to attempt a sustained piece of fiction based solidly on a search for morality and on a close concern for human motive. The remarkable quality of all Robert Penn Warren's writing [and it is as distinguished as any being done in America just now] is its wholly successful mastery of many styles.

This is the finest prose in the book, varied and supple and always rhythmical. The dilemma of Cass Mastern is that of a man who feels he has done his best friend a wrong [taking from him the love of his wife and driving him to suicide] and all the rest of his life he searches for the fullest manner of punishment. He finds it in the Civil war and a bullet and dies in Atlanta with a certain grim content. Many of the other stories, for all their skill, seem trivial by comparison.

"Rain in the Heart" by Peter Taylor is the story of a sergeant at a camp in the south who gets an overnight leave and spends it with his wife. It has a marvelously gentle and revealing quality as it tells of the long street car ride out to the house where the wife has a room, and of the Civil war battle that once took place on the same hill. I want to put myself down in cold black and white as predicting that Peter Taylor [late sergeant in the army of the United States] will be one of our recognized writers within 10 years. His sense of human character is not only warm and sympathetic, but also deep and psychologically subtle.

The book itself is remarkably varied, no two stories being closely alike. One of the most firmly achieved stories is "Animal Fair," by Warren Miller, which slowly reveals the desperate quality of a middle aged woman's effort to find in a week-end the passionate love she has never had from her husband. The story is completely original in its handling of the theme.

"Gunner's Passage," by Irwin Shaw, has already been praised for its terse and tender account of a group of air force men waiting to be flown back to the United States after the most extraordinary adventures. Shaw manages better than any other writer to get that clipped, unemotional and yet very moving manner of talking which Hemingway brought to perfection.

It is a matter of pride that this country, in the final year of its immense war, could produce so many stories of excellence. This book is merely a sample. It could have been twice its length with little drop in quality. It is to Miss Foley's credit that she has stuck firmly to the sole principle of good writing wherever it could be found, often in the small literary reviews, now and then in the popular magazines. She might even help to raise the level of popular magazines in this country. A dreadful labor.

Wilson's Acts Defended by Miss Cranston

"THE STORY OF WOODROW WILSON," by Ruth Cranston. [Simon & Schuster, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Avery Craven

In these days when democracy and world organization are uppermost in men's minds it is not surprising that there should be many books on Woodrow Wilson. His contribution to both fields was substantial. What is surprising is that so many of these books are definitely valuable in spite of the fact that little or no new material has been used.

Ruth Cranston's addition to the list is of that kind. It has some value as a one volume story of Wilson's entire life and work. Its real value, however, comes from the fact that it is the most frank and honest effort to defend the World War I. President that has yet been made. And defend him she does with a vigor and decisiveness that demand instant respect. There is nothing halfway or feminine about this lady's punches and not all of them are above the belt!

First there is insistence on the hard, practical character of Wilson's acts and programs. Then there is equal insistence on his ability to work with others and to make concessions when they were necessary. He was no cold, imperious egoist. All that talk came from enemies who wanted to distort for selfish ends. And the cold facts are there to defend such a position!

This makes a good start for a thoro knock-down and drag-out handling of Col. House, Theodore Roosevelt, and Sen. Lodge. This much for House: "His heart was big, his knowledge negligible, his political experience outside his own country nil. Yet he aspired to remake the world. Magnificent—ridiculous—and more than a little touching." Or again at the peace conference: "House expressed House's view—which was not the President's at all; but he gave it as the President's. This caused a maze of misunderstanding and confusion."

As for Theodore Roosevelt and Lodge, their motives were "partisan politics and personal hatred of the President: hatred so intense that it swallowed up all national loyalty and human feeling." They planned from the first to defeat the peace treaty by the reservation method. "They didn't care for one damned thing but to 'get' Woodrow Wilson—to beat that man in the White House."

All this should not suggest that Ruth Cranston has simply written a book filled with invective. It is much more than that. Her facts are cold and hard. Her understanding of events and what lay back of them is clear and comprehensive. She is simply making a good case for the man who stood for a better working democracy at a time when the going was hard and for world government when the going was impossible.

A New Book Helps Student of Algebra

"ALGEBRA FOR HOME STUDY," by William L. Schaaf, Ph. D. [Home Library, 69c.]

Dr. Schaaf reviews all the essentials of algebra in a way that any one conversant with arithmetic should be able, with a little application, to acquire the knowledge necessary to making use of the science. Practice exercises are well designed. DAVID WAITE

Mann Reintroduces Dostoevsky Novels

the sympathy and frightful insight of "an author whose Christian sympathy is ordinarily devoted to human misery, vice, the depths of lust and crime, rather than to nobility of body and soul"; "The Gambler" written three years later and "The Eternal Husband," written 11 years before the author's death. Dostoevsky lived to be 60 but Mr. Mann seems to see death as his lifetime companion.

Nowhere in this estimable volume do I find the name of the translator of these stories. I judge that the acknowledgment: "These novels are published by special arrangement with the Macmillan company" means that the translation used is theirs by Constance Garnett. Mrs. Garnett won a noble place in literary history by her translations from the Russian. Not naming her here is a sin of literary omission.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock

IT was obvious, when the "Game of Books" program started on radio station W-G-N three weeks ago, that we so-called experts were going to have a lot of fun—and education. . . . Under constant but good-humored prodding by Prof. Paul Engle, his pupils—Kenneth Horan, Kelsey Guilfoil, and myself, along with a weekly guest expert—didn't expect praise whenever we came up with the right answers, and we knew we were in for it whenever we failed. . . . But nobody knew for sure what would be the reaction of all the radio listeners who were trying to outguess us.

So far the response has been terrific. . . . Librarians, teachers, book publishers, booksellers, and book lovers thruout the middle west have phoned and written in by the many hundreds to express their appreciation and to voice their critical comments.

Here are a few excerpts from the letters.

"We'll be tempted to break Saturday evening engagements from now on to listen to your fine variety of entertainment. . . . It familiarizes us married fogies with many more books than we've had time to read, and thrills us when we recognize a passage before the experts do. . . . You're letting us in on a splendid half hour of adult education and literary appreciation."

"A wonderful addition to radio fare for book fans everywhere."

"A large group of us stopped playing cards to listen, and all were delighted."

"Leave it to THE TRIBUNE to realize that book lovers need a real radio program!"

"Inspiring!"

"It's a 'must' program for bookish people to hear."

"I was in a world of books all my own. . . . Thanks to W-G-N for bringing such a grand show right into our living room."

"Congratulations on your stimulating new program. We liked the genial informality with which it is conducted, and found the subject most interesting."

"A novel idea [and no pun intended]."

"Refreshingly different and entertaining."

Spry Humor in Owen White Story of Texas

"TEXAS, An Informal Biography," by Owen P. White. [Putnam's $3.50.]

Reviewed by Stanley Vestal

Owen P. White has already earned a well-deserved reputation for salty and colorful writing. Here he has a subject made to his hand, and he takes full advantage of his opportunity.

Owen P. White

His history of Texas is something new and different from the formal accounts of that nation within a nation. He writes with great gusto and zest from a wide and deep knowledge of the state, a knowledge extending beyond mere fact to comprehend the legends characteristic of the region. He knows his Texas not only from the ground up, but from the inside out. Tho he regards Texas with a pride almost sinful and a zest that might consume a less robust writer, he is not unaware or unappreciative of the absurd antics of some of its politicians. He regards Texas "as the most powerful, most envied, and most emulated state in the American Union."

Texas, as he portrays it, began as a land of miracles, was soon populated by American freebooters, pestered by pirates, and quickly involved in war with Mexico. All this Mr. White narrates in the most lively fashion with much humor and picturesque language.

Such a book is, of course, by no means free from the personal prejudices, both positive and negative, of the author.

THE Murder Chart

BY DREXEL DRAKE

ENTRY	PERFORMANCE	PAY-OFF
"DEATH, MY DARLING DAUGHTERS," by Jonathan Stagge. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]	The middle aged New England Hiltons, boasting a vice president as ancestor, wore enamel of prestige; but among younger Hiltons there was cancerous revolt, as Dr. Westlake learned when he investigated death of domineering old servant, Nanny, and puzzling murders that followed.	Author does commendable job giving life to aggregation of preposterously satirical characters. Deftly planned and unfolded murder puzzle, in which reader reaches one wrong conclusion after another.
"SHE CAME BACK," by Patricia Wentworth. [Lippincott, $2.]	After believing himself widower for three years, and deeply in new romance, Sir Philip was in tragic quandary whether woman who came back from occupied France was really his wife, Lady Anne Jocelyn, or extraordinarily equipped impostor. There were sinister developments and murders before Sir Philip was set right.	Grand amount of dramatic material in this intricate puzzle, but reader's ultimate enjoyment is marred by this experienced author's amazing slip of deception at outset of tale.

Soviet Trend Analyzed by Prof. Laserson

"RUSSIA AND THE WESTERN WORLD," by Max M. Laserson. [Macmillan, $2.50.]

Reviewed by David Dallin

Prof. Laserson, born in Mitau, studied and taught afterward in Russia and Latvia; he therefore is able to use abundant Russian material in this book. In his analysis of the newest soviet trends, Mr. Laserson records the new attitude toward family, law, religion, Russian history, world revolution, etc. He honestly states that the "four freedoms" are not attained in Russia since her citizens cannot be said to have been provided freedom from fear.

Max M. Laserson

In Russia, he says, "there is neither freedom of political opposition nor competition of movements, parties and ideologies at the elections." The author stresses the fact that in the last, so-called Stalin's, constitution, so often praised abroad, "in no place is the soviet state-order called a democratic one. . . . Dictatorship is retained while democracy is not introduced." Local self-government does not exist in Russia, while the constitution is often violated.

These critical remarks are drowned, however, in a stream of highly optimistic, often uncritical theories, derived from official statements and opportunistic moves on the part of the soviet government. The author takes it for granted, for instance, that the aim of the soviet policy in regard to Poland is really "to create a strong, democratic, independent nation." As far as Finland and the Finnish-soviet relations are concerned, the author concludes his analysis with the statement that the policy of Finland, not that of Russia, "must be fundamentally revised."

Mr. Laserson approves of the soviet policy concerning the united nations organization and even of the famous veto-right of the great powers; he praises Mr. Molotov's speeches and policies in San Francisco.

JUNIOR THE BOOKSHELF

TITLE	SUBJECT	VERDICT
"THE ADVENTURES OF THE REDCROSSE KNIGHT," by Sister Mary Charitina, B. V. M. Illustrated by Jeanyee Wong. [Sheed and Ward, $3.]	A simplified prose retelling of the first book of Spenser's "The Faerie Queene" which will serve as an excellent introduction to the great allegory for the fairy tale reader.	A fine edition of this old tale, marked by simplicity and dignity in the telling, and presented in language children will understand. Symbolic illustrations add to the young reader's enjoyment. Gift for the home book shelf.
"DUMBEE," by Loyd Tireman. Adapted by Evelyn Yrisarri. Layout and illustrations by Ralph Douglass. [University of New Mexico Press, $1.25.]	Dumbee was a big lazy bumblebee who made a lot of noise and always got into trouble. But one day he really surprised his family and proved that he wasn't always wrong after all.	A third most attractive little volume carrying on the series dealing with animals and plants of the mesaland. A fine introduction to nature in both pictures and text. For younger readers.
"SING MOTHER GOOSE," by Opal Wheeler. Illustrations by Marjorie Torrey. [Dutton, $3.]	A selection of 50 favorite Mother Goose rhymes set to music which is peculiarly a part of the lilting rhymes. Full page pictures in color, and in black and white tell the story of the rhymes.	A lovely companion book for the "Sing for America" and "Sing for Christmas" volumes which preceded it in this delightful series of singing picture books.

An Eloquent Plea in Behalf of Workers

"NORTH STAR COUNTRY," by Meridel Le Sueur. [Duell, Sloan, and Pearce. $3.]

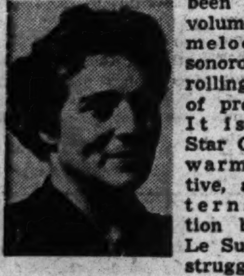
Reviewed by James Gray



Meridel Le Sueur

To the admirable Folkways series, edited by Erskine Caldwell, has just been added a volume which is melodious and sonorous with the rolling rhythms of prose poetry. It is "North Star Country," a warm, appreciative, almost maternal celebration by Meridel Le Sueur of the struggle of workers to subdue not merely the land, but also to overcome the predatory ambitions of those who imagine themselves to be the possessors of the land.

As short short writer, as interpretor of social history in terms of poetic rhapsody, Meridel Le Sueur has always been concerned with the fate of the man who produces with his hand and who, as she sees his situation, is constantly in danger of having his legitimate rewards taken from him.

Here she sees that enduring conflict set, not in the narrow framework of a single industrial dispute, but against the background of a fight for empires in lumber, wheat, iron. Indeed the conflict begins with a one-sided struggle in which a minority group, the Indians, unprotected except by an occasional white leader of vision and decency, lost the land itself to the hearty dispoilers.

Such a sidelong view of a social history, considering it chiefly as a battle between exploiters and the exploited might tend toward the monotony of a dirge. But Meridel Le Sueur is able to lend great sprightliness to her point of view by showing the worker, the democratic man she calls him, entering his arena with enormous gusto and confidence. His tongue is salty with humor.

His expressiveness, Meridel Le Sueur believes, is the most notable thing about him. She is able to assure a reader that she has guessed him true by quoting from his diaries, his newspapers, his pamphlets, and his manifestos passages that are rich in comedy, in appreciation of the folk spirit, in a kind of robust, manly poetry. From the ribald voyaguer, down to the farmer on a "holiday" from serving the market, or the striker on the picket line, her democratic men are vivid creatures. Their wives are no less so.

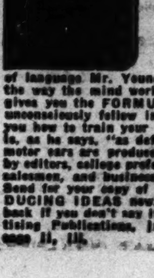
From sketches turned into the creative writing classes which she has long conducted in Minneapolis and St. Paul, Meridel Le Sueur quotes liberally to show how untiring and ardent is the worker's temperament and how full of exuberance he remains at the end of his life.

To the long list of interpretations of the middle empire of America this one which is so distinctly drawn from the worker's philosophy adds fresh, hearty, and very useful observations.

A Technique for Producing Ideas



Where do the money-making ideas come from—those ideas that make successful novels, radio programs, moving pictures, advertising campaigns, and businesses? James Webb Young, one of the highest paid idea men in the advertising business, set out to answer this question for his students at the University of Chicago. The result is a little book that you can read in an hour but will remember the rest of your life. In the simplest and clearest of language Mr. Young has succeeded in describing the way the mind works in all creative people. He gives you the FORMULA which they consciously or unconsciously follow in producing ideas. He shows you how to train your mind so that idea production is, as he says, "as definite as the process by which motor cars are produced." Enthusiastically endorsed by editors, college professors, poets, advertising men, salesmen, and business executives who have read it. Send for your copy of A TECHNIQUE FOR PRODUCING IDEAS now. Only $1 postpaid. Money back if you don't say it is worth $10 to you. Advertising Publications, Inc., 104 E. Ohio St., Chicago 11, Ill.

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

MORE peoplse said that reading is their favorite recreation than any other single diversion when they were interviewed recently by the National Opinion Research center of the University of Denver. . . . The survey was made for the American Library association and 17 coöperating city libraries. . . . Chicago was one of the cities. . . . It wouldn't be a surprise to any busy librarian that reading is the spare time occupation of 41 per cent of the adults of the country. . . . A majority said they preferred magazines and newspapers to books . . . however, 22 per cent spend an hour or more a day reading books.

What did they find that the reading public likes best? . . . Forty-five per cent prefer nonfiction, with "Human Behavior," "Interesting Personalities," "Homemaking," "Foreign Countries," and "Religion," being the expressed preferences in that order, with others trailing . . . 35 per cent liked fiction best . . . 16 per cent said they read about as many novels as they do books of nonfiction.

Ninety million copies of books were sent overseas in the Armed Services editions by the army and navy . . . they were the result of the splendid volunteer service of the Council on Books in War Time, an organization of the country's leading publishers, librarians, and booksellers . . . and if you think that those armed service editions haven't created a vast new reading public you are neither a service man nor the relative of one, for they were all lyric about those little books which were read literally to shreds. Contemporary fiction led in the Armed Services editions. . . . Second in popularity were books of humor. . . . Historical novels were next

Figures on Historical Novels

And while we're on the subject of historical novels and statistics, here are a few late figures about that novel which in one sense least of all of the decade's books has lived up to its title . . . "Gone With the Wind," but it has gone like the wind all over the world. . . . Published 10 years ago, to date it has sold three and a half million copies in English . . . 100,000 in tiny Denmark . . . 164,391 in France, with, incredibly, 56,891 during the war years . . . almost 55,000 in Hungary . . . over 37,000 in Norway . . . 30,000 in Czechoslovakia.

Growth of Pocket Books

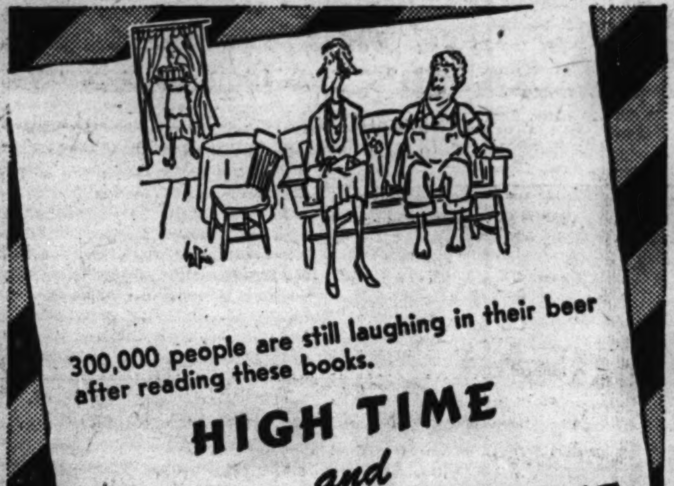
And take a gander at the figures on the 25c pocket books, also first published about 10 years ago. . . . They sold their 125 millionth copy about seven weeks ago. . . . You heard me, 125 millionth. . . .

All of which exciting statistics on the mounting interest of the American reading public in their favorite pastime points to the inevitable spectacular success of the new Bantam books. . . . A new series of paper bound books, coming out Jan. 3, which will sell at 25 cents and will be published by a combine of the book trade's most powerful factors, The Curtis Publishing company, and Grosset & Dunlap, which is jointly controled by Harper, Little, Brown, Random House, Scribner's, and the Book of the Month club. . . . Twenty books will be on the first list, with, incredibly, "The Grapes of Wrath," complete and unabridged. . . . Mark Twain's "Life on the Mississippi," "The Great Gatsby," by F. Scott Fitzgerald, "The Last Time I Saw Paris," by Elliot Paul, "Wind, Sand and Stars," by Antoine de St. Exupery, "Seventeen," by Booth Tarkington, and "Oil for the Lamps of China," plus a collection of thrilling murder mysteries and westerns. . . . There isn't a title among the first 20 that will disappoint any one.

Book on Quiz Kids

A popular Chicagoan has just signed a contract for the publication of a book which the publishers are already crowing about . . . Eliza Merrill Hickok, affectionately known to every one as "Roby," general watcher over of the Quiz Kids [she auditions them, selects them, helps select the questions and write the show, travels with them, and has one of the most spectacularly eventful young lives in radio] has just signed a contract with Houghton Mifflin company for an autobiographical book about those wonder children. . . . Those who have had a peek thru the keyhole at the mss. say the book is sure to be one of 1946's funniest as well as most popular. . . . Hilarious illustrations are planned.

And speaking about books on the fire, Ludwig Bemelmans has got as far with his next book as the title. . . . The book isn't written yet, but he had an inspiration for a title and, like the impetuous boy he is, he rushed to a Western Union office with the news for his publisher, Viking Press. . . . Luckily the wire was addressed merely to the firm and not to the editor's attractive private secretary . . . the wire read merely, "Will You Marry Me?"



300,000 people are still laughing in their beer after reading these books.

TODAY, four kinds of reading enable you to keep up with things. The first three bring the news and the developments in the world to you. But the fourth shows how YOU can fit such information into your life—make it work for you—help bring you success and happiness. Here are the four types of reading and what they do:

1. A good daily paper brings you the news of the past twenty-four hours in terse dispatches.
2. A good weekly, like Time or Newsweek, crisply summarizes and interprets the news for you.
3. A good monthly survey, like Reader's Digest, keeps you posted on the important articles in the magazines.
4. A new kind of monthly magazine—YOUR LIFE—helps to solve your personal problems—brings you real inspiration and guidance in solving perplexities of marriage, money, jobs and health.

Each of these types of reading fills for you a very definite need. At the left are the titles of some of the articles that have already appeared in YOUR LIFE. These titles show you, better than anything we could say, the sort of help this unusual magazine is giving to thousands of enthusiastic readers.

These articles are written by top-flight specialists. The names of some of them are given in the panel to the left. Each month writers like these contribute 30 original feature articles. Each month you also get a 10,000-word condensation of a best-selling book written specifically to help you physically, financially, mentally or socially.

The authors who write for YOUR LIFE know what they are talking about. They say it clearly, frankly, without beating about the bush or pulling punches for the sake of the Mrs. Grundys. YOUR LIFE is not written for Mrs. Grundy! It's written for YOU—whether you are 16 or 60, married or single. It talks in your language about the things you want to know.

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Delos Avery

EXCERPT from a letter signed "English Teacher":

"Excuse the pseudonym, please. I'd probably lose my job if the board's thought police discovered my secret heresy. But I do yearn to know why it is that poets who call themselves modern write the way they do. Is it because they really hate to rhyme? Or because they can't?"

We think the answer is that some don't want to and that others are simply not clever enough. For the former, probably nothing can be done—since physicians are helpless when patients won't coöperate. But for those poets who merely lack the know-how, there is hope—thanks to our Mr. Jinks.

Mr. Jinks is the spritely pantologist to whom a thousand limping poets owe devotion because he gave them "puv" and "tuv" [which he found in an old book] to enrich their stock of rhymes for "love" [v. Bookman's Holiday, Nov. 25].

He now returns from the jungles of research with treasure trove for those rhyme-starved bards who hitherto have found no worthy mates for such words as "month" and "orange," formerly held to be impossible.

Even Clement Wood's unabridged rhyming dictionary, which rhymes "corpse" with "dorp's," confesses defeat on "month"; and the best it can do with "orange" is "mock orange," which is like proposing "red apple" as a rhyme for "green apple."

Jinks, however, remembers a seminar at the Lambs' Club, sometime in the 90's, when a bet was won by the late Harry B. Smith, who scored a double triumph by rhyming both "month" and "orange" in a single quatrain:

From the Indus to the Blorenge
  Rode the prophet in a month—
Now a-sucking of an orange,
  Now a-reading of his Dunth.

The Lambs [says Jinks] accepted Smith's explanation that the Blorenge was a "tributary of the Ganges" and that the Dunth was "the sacred book of the Afghans," tho in fact the Blorenge is not a river at all but a hill in England and a mountain in Japan, and as for the Afghans, they never had a Dunth—nor any other "sacred book."

So it appears that the net result of Jinks' diligent research and the ingenious trickery of Smith, plus the gullibility of the lamb-like Lambs who paid the bet, is nothing but a hoax—a phony.

This column, however, felt that the human brain if taxed to the uttermost might do better. Accordingly—

"Before you go to lunch," we said to Cyanide Sally, who was putting on her hat, "please write a four-line poem using a rhyme for 'orange.'"

Without removing her gloves she seized a pencil and, leaning over our desk, scribbled:

said a girlie with an orange to a gentleman who kissed her,
" don't you think that I am more ang
  elic than my sister, mister?

"Splendid," we exclaimed with pretended enthusiasm [because she is usually responsive to praise]. "Now write one with a rhyme for 'month.'"

"No!" said she. "I've got a date. And anyway, why don't you do some of your own work some of the time?"

Cyanide can afford impertinence because she never gets any pay. And on the whole we were glad of her rebellion because it stimulated our own inventive faculty, with a result definitely superior [we think] to the best she could have done. We decided to write the "month" poem ourself.

Admittedly the problem looked difficult. But in less time than it takes to fly from Chicago to London the solution flashed like a meteor across the vast void of our mind. A little word-surgery, we decided, would suffice. We would slice a word straight thru the middle and rearrange its parts to fit our purpose.

"Eureka!" we cried. [Memo: Rhymes with paprika and Topeka.]

"Eureka!" we cried again. "The thing is as good as done. All we need is a word with the sound of 'unth' in it.''

After a brief session with the Webster we completed the poem:

oysters, in an r-less month,
inkable are surely unth!

For a moment we had mercenary thoughts of taking out a patent on the device, but a more generous impulse prevailed and we offer the idea free to the poets of the world, hoping for nothing more than a Nobel prize and the gratitude of millions of people who otherwise might eat oysters in August.

This Book Is Better Than It Appears

"TALES FOR MALES," edited by Ed Fitzgerald. [Cadillac, $2.]

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil

James M. Cain

The making of anthologies has developed to the point where it is difficult to find a new excuse for putting one together. This one is better than it looks, because it appears from its title and jacket design to be the sort of thing usually sold to an accompaniment of leers and winks. In other words, an appeal to what older writers called man's baser instincts.

Actually, it is nothing of the sort. There are a few stories and articles in this collection that touch upon humorous aspects of sex, and two—"Helen, Thy Beauty Is to Me," by John Fante, and "Getting On in the World," by Morley Callaghan—revealing how heartless a woman can be. "The Girl in the Storm," by James M. Cain, also is a good revelation of the different views of the sexes in their mutual relationship.

Most of the selections are of too high a quality to put them on a level with smoking compartment stories—by the way, did anyone ever hear any good stories in a smoking compartment? The list of authors is an assurance of this quality, altho the selection from Donald Ogden Stewart is not the best of his now outmoded humor, and I don't find W. C. Fields amusing when separated from his husky voice. Dorothy Parker, too, has written a good many things better than "Dusk Before Fireworks," but I suppose the Parker pickings were slim after the other anthology makers got thru with her.

But for the modest price of this book the reader gets selections from James Thurber, Ring Lardner, Frank Sullivan, Clarence Day Jr., Arthur Kober, E. B. White, William Saroyan, Corey Ford, Konrad Berkovici, Fred C. Kelly, Bernard Sobel, George Weller, John Collier, and George S. Chappell, in addition to those already named, with such old timers as Benjamin Franklin, Mark Twain, and H. C. Bunner thrown in for good measure. Among a few not mentioned is John Langdon, whose "The Girls of Tongatabu" is a masterpiece of male psychology.

Altogether "Tales for Males" is a mulligan cooked up for masculine tastes. Like most mulligans, it contains some ingredients which are a bit stale and some not so choice, but the resulting stew is savory and will suit the taste it is meant for. It achieves its purpose, which is more than one can say for some anthologies.

A Dog Tells Story of Italian Campaign

"UNEXPECTED JOURNEY" by Dorothy Childs Hogner. [Creative Press, $2.50.]

A jolly little "true-to-life" story of a dog named Topper which after hard training goes to the Italian front where he shows that bravery doesn't depend on one's ancestors. Much of the story is written from the dog's viewpoint and the doggy dialog.

BAD MEN OF DELIGHT

By FREDERICK R. BECHDOLT

(Copyright: 1945: Frederick R. Bechdolt)

INSTALMENT X.

JIM CURRY did not know that the headlights were approaching, and if he had turned his eyes toward them he would have ignored them, for the long trail which he was retracing had begun, where he was standing, many years before the internal combustion engine transformed the neighborhoods of the old west into city suburbs.

The cool, smooth scent of living water had snatched him back to his youth, and now old memories brought another scent, the perfume of yellow roses. Four tall bushes had bloomed beside the gateway in a picket fence. The yellow lamplight from two windows of the little house behind them was on his face. His hand was on the latch of the gate and the face of the man who confronted him was enshadowed but the light was shining on the barrels of the shotgun in his hands, and the ring in his voice was as hard as the ring of an iron bar striking on iron.

"She's in the house and she's staying in. And——" a sunbrowned hand patted the double barrel—"there's two loads of buckshot. You'll get 'em both if you show up again. No outlaw comes here co'tin' my daughter!"

Old memories. The perfume of freshly cut hay at night, the chattering of leaves in the cottonwoods, a girl's soft laughter. It is curious how many things begin with stolen laughter and wind up with twisted hearts.

The foremost car was so near now that the sound of the motor was audible here, but Jim Curry didn't notice it yet, for the next memory had been an abiding comfort during the years of self-reproach . . .

The smell of old dust, the circle of light under the hanging lamp, the shabby office chairs and battered desk, the bearded justice of the peace, the frightened face of the girl beside him—

"And I pronounce you man and wife."

Looking back on it all tonight he couldn't help feeling a little sorry for that young rowdy of the saddle who had fought hard and loved hard and ridden away. And now, as his old age returned to him, he spoke aloud. He said to the boy that he had been:

"I reckon you done the best you could, kid." And his voice was soft when he said it.

He had already lived three lives, one reckless and carefree, a second brief hard span while he was a hunted man riding with others outside the law, and the longest of the three on the remote South American pampas where he had sobered down and done well as the saying has it. Now, returning to Delight, he was embarking on a fourth. He had looked forward to the renewal of old ties like a stray dog coming back home. But this evening he had discovered that the reckless boy had become a legendary figure modeled after the fashion which Hollywood has set. He was a two gun killer.

"And how," he asked himself, "are you going to explain that away when you talk things over with her tomorrow evening?"

He faced about as he was saying it and he heard the whine of a high speed motor. The headlights were swinging around a curve, they swung into the tangent where the dirt road straightened out along the hillside less than 100 yards below him. And suddenly they swerved again, abruptly this time they zigzagged crazily and the noise of the exploding tire was like a gunshot. Jim had started down the hill before the headlights stopped.

The headlights had been switched off and the car was a dark bulk. Its rear wheels were in the ditch and its front wheels were in the middle of the narrow road. William Wash was standing with his back toward the open door, he was holding the town marshal's sawed-off shotgun in both hands and he was watching the little man who was coming down the hill. The moon was shining on William Wash's face, his eyes glittered like two narrow black jewels. They were within 10 feet of each other when his dull voice broke the silence.

"Okay. I know you now."

Jim Curry had slackened his pace when he saw the shotgun. His hands were in his pants pockets and his face was placid. He had never laid eyes on William Wash before, and the contrast of this barbaric figure to the late model roadster behind it was astonishing. He halted.

"What you doing with that shotgun?" he asked mildly. William Wash turned his head and pointed across the flat; the two pairs of headlights were growing brighter. The individual lamps were distinct pin points now.

"The law," William Wash announced dully. "I. Thomas Strunk. I stood him up in the lounge. I was heading for Harvey's place when I had that blowout. Now I have got to stand him up again and I think he has got two carloads of Salt River farmers to back his play. Harvey Furlong is my friend. And I think she is his girl. She got into a jam."

Jim Curry stepped past him and looked into the car. He swore under his breath. William Wash said:

"She fell on a rock and cut her head. She banged it against the windshield when we went into the ditch just now. It didn't do her any good."

"What," Jim Curry demanded, "is it all about?"

"Murder," William Wash replied dully. "It was in her room, but she wasn't there when it happened. I know it. They were pushing her around. That Four F manager and that hick cop. She was the only one to grab and so they grabbed her. I was taking her to Harvey's ranch——"

Jim Curry looked across the flat. He said:

"They sure are burning up the road. We got a quarter of an hour—mebbe 20 minutes."

"Farmers," William Wash said. "You saw 'em in the lounge. The marshal is a fat fool. A kid could stand 'em off with this shotgun if we get her to the waterhole."

"Reckon we will have to carry her," Jim Curry said.

Then he fell silent and sucked in his breath. Barbara was stepping down from the running board. The cloth which William Wash had laid upon her forehead was gone. Jim Curry saw the ugly lump and the gash. Her lips were pale and her eyes were half closed. She laid her hand on the car door to steady herself.

"I can walk," she announced quietly. Jim came beside her and laid his hand under her elbow. A 14 year old boy stepping out with his first girl friend would have been less diffident.

"Easy." His throat was dry, his voice was harsh. She glanced at him and was surprised at the concern in his eyes. She said,

"I'm dizzy, that's all. And I want Harvey."

Old Jim Curry was stabbed by a pang which gave him shame. It was his shame that kept him inarticulate. He said:

"He ain't here now." He would have given everything he owned to put his arm around her, or just to smooth her hair, and to tell her that she needn't worry any more for he was here, and she was his, and he was going to protect her. And why, he was asking himself, couldn't he talk nice?

"Let's start," he bade her gruffly.

There was a trail of sorts along this side of the draw. The moonlight bathed the trail and the grade was easy, but she stumbled twice, and if it hadn't been for the pressure of his hand under her elbow she might have fallen. These two moments always lingered in his memory like precious possessions which a man keeps stored in a secret place.

William Wash was walking behind them with the shotgun under his arm, but the trail took a turn before it reached the waterhole and he halted to watch its length down to the road.

The lights of the oncoming cars were within five miles of them when Jim Curry and Barbara reached the pool. He withdrew his hand reluctantly and said:

"Sit down and wait. It won't be long." He turned away abruptly and, as she watched him going down the path, she was thinking he would be some prosperous farmer, and she was wondering if he had been as stingy with his money as he was with words. She seated herself beside the pool and her head was aching badly. She was wishing Harvey were here—or Bill Pope. Some one in whom she could trust.

William Wash was sitting in the trail with the sawed off shotgun across his knees. He looked around when he heard Jim Curry coming. He said:

"Mebbe you know this girl?" Jim sat down beside him.

"How'd you get that into your head?"

"It is none of my business," William Wash replied in his slow voice, "but, like I told you, Harvey is my friend. I fixed the room off the lounge for him so that it would be private, I saw you come with him to sit down in the dark and watch those folks without anybody knowing you are there. I saw the way you looked at her when you helped her out of the car. I would," he added, "go to hell for Harvey Furlong."

Jim Curry bowed his back and folded his hands between his knees, he gazed across the wide flat where the two pairs of headlights were creeping onward thru the moonshine.

"I reckon you can keep your mouth shut. I am her grandpa." He drew a deep breath. "But she don't know it. How did this play come up tonight?"

"I will tell you what I saw," William Wash replied and, when he had done so, he added, "Old blood. And she was out riding with Harvey in his car. Bill Pope was hanging around the place. He was hiding behind a bunch of rocks when I ran up the hill. I saw him poke his head out. I think it was him that phoned down to the office. He would frame his own mother if there was anything in it. So I figured I better get her to Harvey and he would look out for her."

"Harvey ain't home," Jim Curry said. "It's up to us."

"I have kicked myself out of a good job," William Wash went on dispassionately. "The district attorney don't like me and I will get a year in Florence if he has his way. But I don't see any sense in quitting now."

"Fifty years ago," Jim Curry told him, "I killed a man up there by the waterhole and I was outlawed for it." He nodded toward the Agua Fria. "I aimed to keep it quiet on account of her. She wouldn't want a killer for her grandpa. But it's plumb sure to come out if I get mixed up in another gunplay here. O well. Give me that shotgun."

The foremost car was within two miles of them and the other was half a mile or so behind it. The two watchers were calling each other by their first names when they rose and started down the hill. William Wash slapped his thigh.

"Do you savvy how to change a tire?" he asked. Jim Curry nodded indifferently.

"We got other things to think about before we put on a spare."

William Wash's mouth had become an enormous gash. It was the first time he had smiled that evening.

"I was thinking about this car, Jim. The manager bought it off of an army major down in Tucson last week and it hasn't been outside the garage since until I stole it tonight. Far as I know, Bill Pope is the only man in Delight that had a look at it."

"How about the town marshal?" Jim Curry objected. "He would of seen it when you pulled out."

"He saw the tail light," William Wash replied. "I was half a mile away when he busted out of the lounge and started shooting. I think you better get to work on that spare before they show up." Jim Curry handed back the sawed off shotgun.

"Just in case the manager's along," he said. "Stick around where you are out of sight. I'll call you if I need you."

The road was beginning its climb into the lower foothills when it reached the dry wash which came down from the Agua Fria to the flat. The manager's car had slewed around and stopped in the bottom of the gully and the enclosing ridges were one hundred yards apart here. I. Thomas Strunk was gunning his car up the grade. He reached the low crest overlooking the gulch and threw on the brakes so abruptly that the locked wheels slid half way down the depression before the sedan jolted to an abrupt stop in a thick cloud of dust.

Four doors flew open, six men leaped out. I. Thomas Strunk unbuttoned his holster flap and dragged forth his big revolver. Five elderly citizens, somewhat disheveled from rough riding, trooped down the hill at his heels with their thumbs hooked on the hammers of repeating rifles.

Jim Curry was sitting in the middle of the road. The long handle of a jack was between his outspread legs. His back was rising and falling as he pumped upon it.

"Any of you men got a flash?" he asked without looking up. "I can't place this jack right. She's slipped off four times."

I. Thomas Strunk strode to the near door, and flung it open with his left hand, holding his leveled revolver in his right hand. He said:

"Come out of this!" in a determined voice. Jim Curry glanced around and regarded him in mild astonishment. He let his eyes go over the group of possemen and shook his head.

"Nobody in there," he announced wearily. "How about a flashlight, officer?"

The town marshal shoved his revolver back into its holster and he was buttoning the flap when a rifle went off three feet behind him. He withdrew his weapon hastily and faced about. Jim Curry got to his feet.

"You might as well kill a man as scare him to death." Jim spoke unhurriedly, but there was a trace of bitterness in his voice. "Who is the fool that turned that gun loose?"

It was the retired veterinarian. He was doing all that a man could to preserve an unconcerned demeanor with his companions drawing away from him in the unmistakable aversion which they would have shown to a coiled rattlesnake. Out of the confusion of tongues which followed, one point emerged on which agreement was unanimous. The luckless man yielded to popular clamor and he was turning his rifle over to the town marshal when Bill Pope's car topped the rise. Its headlights illuminated the group at the bottom of the wash for a few minutes, then they winked out, but no one paid any attention to this last arrival.

The breaks had been coming fast with Bill Pope and he was not swift at thinking, but the drive across the flat had given him time to catch up with the significance of the last instructions which Vilas had given him before he had left the big house on the ridge:

"You're the big shot here and you hand a good line. Make it stick. Tell them you'll be responsible for her. Tell them anything you please. But bring her back. . , . No one will ever find her . . ."

Bill Pope did not miss the implications. Martin dead. . . . The woman who was suspected of murder in flight. If she disappeared it would mean an end of investigation; security once more restored; resumption of the old easy life. All danger of exposure would be erased.

He had reviewed the situation step by step while he was following the tail light of the town marshal's car. As far as Martin's murder was concerned he was, as he would have put it, in the clear. If there was to be another murder he intended to remain in the same position. This girl was Vilas' affair, not his.

There was one catch. He had to find her and to bring her back.

He braked his car to a stop at the summit of the grade and leaned out of the window. He saw the group at the foot of the little hill and he heard their voices above the purring of his motor. His eyes went past them and he recognized the manager's roadster. He realized that William Wash had stolen it.

Where, he asked himself, were the Apache and the girl? And how did that little old man fit into the picture?

He switched off the lights and, as he sat there thinking it over, he recalled a visit he had made to this spot a few years ago, seeking data concerning the man whom he claimed he had killed in Skull canyon. That waterhole would be an ideal hideout. He turned his eyes again to the little man in the bottom of the wash. He murmured:

"Handing 'em a line. And the other two are waiting until he steers 'em off."

He backed his car in a Y turn and headed it into the road toward Delight without the benefit of lights. He switched off the ignition and climbed out.

On this side of the wash the flank of the hill was shadowed. He walked slowly up the gulch and he had his revolver in his hand. He was nearly half way to the pool when he halted at some slight sound behind him and glanced back. But what he had heard was only a night animal and, as he stood there, he caught his breath sharply. William Wash was in plain sight on the other side of the gulch. He had a clump of greasewood between him and the road, and he was sitting in the moonlight with the sawed off shotgun across his knees. There was no sign of the girl nearby and Bill Pope smiled.

"Ready to stand 'em off if they don't fall for the little guy," he told himself. "She's at the waterhole all right."

He tucked the weapon back beneath the waistband of his trousers and went on. Barbara was sitting beneath the pin oak beside the pool when she heard him coming. She got to her feet He saw the alarm in her eyes, and the relief that followed it when she recognized him. She came to meet him. And his heart had never been as cold as it was in this moment of exultation when he greeted her with words of comfort and assurance.

Considering the fact that he was not an habitual liar, Jim Curry was doing remarkably well. He was making few statements and sticking to them and, whenever the going got rough, he fell back on his need for a flashlight. In addition to his own shortcomings as an investigator, I. Thomas Strunk was being handicapped by the well intentioned heckling of his followers. The discussion was carried on with an informality which would make a radio round table debate sound orderly. Its upshot was the establishment of two contentions: The fugitives were not here; therefore, if they had come this way—which most of the possemen scoffed at—they were somewhere ahead.

"Bill Pope," the marshal reminded them, "says she would go to the horse ranch."

"It looks to me," the bald headed farmer from Iowa maintained, "like Bill Pope don't take much stock in his own idea." And by way of clinching the argument he pointed up the hill. The whine of a self-starter ceased. A glow of departing headlamps and the red spot of a receding tail light vanished under the sky line, to reappear a moment later where the road turned into the flatlands.

What Has Gone Before

Barbara Curry is herding sheep in the Utah uplands, struggling to prevent foreclosure of the ranch her father left her. A stranger, a soldier on leave, brings news that she has a benefactor who arranged with him to open an account for her at the local bank. She is to visit Delight to meet her benefactor. About to board a stage for Delight, she is thrilled to have pointed out to her a famous western character, Bill Pope. Bill is sitting in a chauffeur-driven sedan beside a man in a wheel chair. The man recognizes a woman wearing blue slacks and about to enter the stage and orders Pope to follow her and get rid of her. A flash flood engulfs the stage. Pope mistakes Barbara for the woman and attempts to drown her. Harvey Furlong, the stranger, rescues her. As he shows her the town a bullet barely misses her. Pope explains the bullet as a Mexican's careless shot. Harvey arranges for Barbara to stay at the stage station and meet Jim Curry, Barbara's grandfather, formerly known as Brazos. Pope reports to Vilas at the big house on the ridge. An invalid only in public, Vilas follows Martin, his chauffeur. He overhears Leola Burke tell Martin that she and other victims of Vilas are going to seize his fortune. Vilas kills Martin and, believing he is implicating Leola, puts the body in Barbara's cabin. Terrified at finding the body, Barbara, remembering Pope's offer of aid, rushes off toward the house on the ridge. Falling, she cuts her head. William Wash, Harvey's loyal friend, carries her off in a stolen car. Vilas and Pope plan to double-cross each other. Vilas orders Pope to bring the girl to his house. Constable Strunk calls a posse to follow Wash. Pope suggests they try Harvey's ranch, then realizes he must find Barbara first.

An Invitation To Readers of This Newspaper

FROM THE PUBLISHERS OF THE

FUNK & WAGNALLS New Standard ENCYCLOPEDIA

Please Accept WITH OUR COMPLIMENTS

Volume One of the New 1945 Edition—Now On Press!

[ALL WE ASK YOU TO PAY IS TEN CENTS TO COVER COST OF MAILING IT TO YOU]

WE ARE now on press with our new 1945 Edition of the Funk & Wagnalls New Standard Encyclopedia, which in previous editions sold over 15,000,000 volumes—an amazing record.

This latest edition, newly revised, we have allocated among the newspapers and magazines carrying our Fall advertising program. In accordance with this plan we have set aside 1,500 sets for readers of this newspaper and now invite you to become the owner of a set—making you this extraordinary offer to enable you to become acquainted with the volumes before you decide to buy.

We want to send you Volume I of the set with our compliments. Merely send us 10c to cover our mailing cost—more as evidence of your good faith than anything else. This volume is yours to keep without any further obligation on your part. If, after examining Volume I, you want the rest of the 27-volume set, you may receive it at a ridiculously low price through our book-a-week plan, explained later in this announcement. Or, if you want no further books, you merely drop us a postcard saying so, and that ends the matter.

SOME FACTS ABOUT THIS ENCYCLOPEDIA

We expect to enclose with Volume I a small pamphlet giving the facts to show that this is one of the finest encyclopedias anyone can buy for home use—unsurpassed by any other at any price.

In the meantime, we want to give you a few of the facts printed in the pamphlet, so as to interest you in taking the trouble to send for Volume I.

The new 1945 Edition contains over 52,000 subjects, covered in separate articles. Compare this with any other encyclopedia in the world. You will find that it is at least 30% more than encyclopedias costing you up to six times as much as ours.

Each volume (comprising about 500 double-columned pages) contains over a quarter of a million words—over 7,000,000 words in all—which will give you some idea of the completeness of coverage of each subject.

Copyright, 1945, Unicorn Press

Each volume is as up-to-date as human ingenuity can make it. In this edition the subjects have been revised to cover events of this past year, and each volume as it goes to press, is brought finally up-to-the-minute. Our unique book-a-week delivery plan, bringing you the volumes almost as they come off the presses, makes it the most up-to-date of encyclopedias. Better still—later volumes, delivered to you during this Winter and Spring, will contain events which have not yet occurred!

EASY-READING, AUTHORITATIVE, HANDY VOLUMES

Editor-in-chief of the original edition was Frank H. Vizetelly, the beloved "Viz" of radio fame, and editor of the unexcelled Funk & Wagnalls New Standard (unabridged) Dictionary. Surrounded by a host of authorities in many fields, he brought this immense work into being.

But the books are easy to read! Your children in grammar and high school can read them, use them with profit. Free of technical detail, abstruse wording, and dry-as-dust-research-specialist attitude—and free also of concise, over-abbreviated, fact-omitting brevity—this grand encyclopedia will be your rainy-evening companion for many years to come.

And, in spite of their truly enormous contents, each volume can be held in one hand! Gone is the old-fashioned, bulky, cumbersome format—big, heavy books that easily drop and as easily break. Here is a new, streamlined, usable set that is attractive, interesting and handy for daily reference.

Nor does the almost incredible low price we have set on the remaining volumes indicate the quality of materials and labor that went into the printing and binding of the set. We have used a high-grade book paper, cover board, and binding cloth. The printing is crisp and clear-cut, and the work of binding has been done by one of the largest and best known firms in the field. These are first quality books, as, of course, you will soon see for yourself.

UNIQUE BOOK-A-WEEK PLAN FOR THE BALANCE OF THE VOLUMES

Our plan, which has been tested and approved by many thousands of appreciative purchasers, gives you the books almost as quickly as they come off the presses

The first few volumes are now on press. Volume I is delivered to you immediately. Two weeks later, unless you cancel your reservation after examining Volume I, the next two volumes are mailed to you. Two weeks after that the following two volumes are sent you, and so on. You thus receive your volumes, freshly off the press, at the rate of a volume a week.

You do not pay for any books in advance. We enclose a bill with each two volumes, which you pay within five days after receiving the books. Considering the amazingly low price of the set, and the fact that you pay for it at the rate of only a book a week, our own pay-as-you-go plan therefore puts no strain at all on any pocketbook

How much are the volumes? Here's the surprise. You pay only 89c per volume, plus 11c mailing cost. The complete set thus costs you only a small fraction of what other high grade encyclopedias would cost you—and we want only the opportunity to prove to you that ours is unexcelled for your use.

DE LUXE EDITION IF YOU PREFER

For those who desire an especially attractive binding for their book shelves, we have prepared a de luxe edition that is especially handsome. The de luxe set is bound in dark blue, leather-grained material, stamped in red and gilt, with page-tops harmoniously stained, and with head and tail-bands. End-papers and frontispieces are excellent reproductions in full color and duotone of wood-cuts by Hans Alexander Mueller, world-renowned artist in that medium, the frontispieces being a collection of wood-cut portraits of American Presidents

Remember that the contents of both Regular and De Luxe Editions are exactly the same—only the binding is different. And although you may have Volume I in our choice of editions for the same 10c, the balance of the volumes in De Luxe Edition will cost you somewhat more ($1.39 per volume, plus 11c mailing cost) since they cost more to make. We want to make perfectly clear what you are getting.

Don't delay! Fifteen hundred sets are not many for a newspaper of such large circulation as this one. Our motto will be first come, first served, and you may lose out if you do not send off the coupon below at once. Please print clearly your name and address, enclosing just 10c in coin or stamps—and please do not forget to indicate your choice of Regular or De Luxe Editions.

UNICORN PRESS, Authorized Publishers
80 Willoughby Street
Brooklyn, New York

I enclose 10c in coin or stamps, for which please send me Volume I of the New 1945 Funk & Wagnalls 27 Volume New Standard Encyclopedia in the edition checked below.

☐ REGULAR ☐ DE LUXE

Please also reserve the balance of a set of 27 volumes for me in the same edition.

If I decide to cancel this reservation after examining Volume I, I will write you saying so and there will be no further obligation; otherwise you may send me two more volumes every two weeks, and I will pay within five days after receiving them, at the rate of 89c per volume plus 11c mailing cost for Regular Edition (or $1.39 per volume plus same mailing cost for De Luxe Edition)—and that is all!

Volume I is mine to keep in any event.

Mrs. Grover C. Baldwin Jr. will have more occasion to dress formally when Capt. Baldwin comes home from the Mariannas, where he is serving with the army air forces. The former Dale Bogert is living temporarily in Winnetka with her parents, the Gilbert P. Bogerts, and will return Tuesday from a trip east.

Plans for The Tribune's 1946 Fashion Contest Announced

By Norma Lee Browning

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S seventh annual American Fashions Contest will open officially on Jan. 1. This announcement was made yesterday by Mrs. Grace Pickering, one of America's leading fashion authorities, who has acted as director of this outstanding nation-wide competition since its inception in 1939.

Mrs. Pickering predicted that entries in the 1946 contest will be heavier than in any previous year because of the brilliant success of THE TRIBUNE'S 1945 Fashion Show presented in late October, which is still being widely acclaimed.

"There is no doubt that THE TRIBUNE'S contest is the outstanding annual event in the world of fashion," she said. "No other contest offers such generous prizes or has such nation-wide appeal for both professional and amateur designers."

The last year's contest was considered a triumphant climax to all previous ones, the 1946 competition promises to outshine them all—with requests already received for more than 500 entry blanks even before the contest was announced and before the entry blanks are printed!

Entry blanks will be ready for mailing the first of the year.

Prizes will be the same as last year—$2,000 for first place, $1,000 for second and $500 for third.

Cash awards of $50 each will be given to the designers of 30 costumes from which the grand prizes will be chosen.

In addition, THE TRIBUNE will again offer a special award of $500 for the best teen-age design. The Tenn-Age Group which was inaugurated for the first time this year as a contest within a contest proved refreshingly popular and fashionably worthwhile from the standpoint both of those who entered the contest and the audience who judged it.

A 32 page Teen-Age Fashion Pattern Book, a result of the TRIBUNE'S contest, has been in great demand.

The purpose of THE TRIBUNE'S annual fashion contest is to encourage American designers, to promote American fashions for American women, to strengthen America's position as the leading fashion center of the world.

For those who plan to enter the contest for the first time it should be pointed out that sketches may be made of any garment of outer wearing apparel suitable for introduction on the commercial market.

Originality will be the basis of selection.

No actual garments will be accepted. From the 30 best designs costumes will be made up with the finest materials and under the expert supervision of Mrs. Pickering and will be modeled by professional mannequins at the annual Tribune Fashion Show next fall.

Contestants will have from Jan. 1 to May 1 to enter their designs.

Further details of the contest may be had by writing to the American Fashions Contest, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower, 435 N. Michigan av., Chicago.

Women's Patriotic Groups Schedule Festive Gatherings

Two women's patriotic groups have yuletide gatherings on this week's calendar. The Woman's Overseas Service league will hold a Christmas party at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the Fine Arts building, 410 S. Michigan av., and Wednesday night will find members of second district of the American Legion auxiliary, department of Illinois, meeting in the Morrison hotel. The latter group will have a traditional "grab bag" and later will join Legionnaires of second district to hear a talk by the department commander, Omar J. McMakin.

The Service league, composed of women who have served abroad with the military, has opened its meeting to all women who have been on overseas military assignment. The league's Christmas charity this year is the supplying of candy, tobacco, cigarettes, magazines, and playing cards to residents of the Oak Forest infirmary.

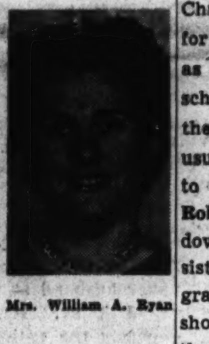
Campion Mothers Club Plans Dance Friday Night

The Belden-Stratford hotel will be the setting Friday night for the annual Christmas dance given by the Campion Mothers club for students of the Campion High school in Prairie du Chien, Wis.

Fashions and Fancy

By Judith Cass

"Think of looking after 220 babies—and I have trouble taking care of my one!" remarked a recent visitor to St. Vincent's Infant and Maternity hospital, as she looked thru the walls of glass that separate the ultra-violet lighted nurseries from the peaceful halls of the home. The 220 young charges, all under 3, are the cause of the pale blue pamphlets mailed out last week by the Crib society of the hospital, its largest single source of income. More than 5,000 envelopes were mailed inviting Chicagoans to become members of the Crib society by sending checks to Joseph M. Cudahy, treasurer of the asylum. Wearing an unusual black suit stitched in cocoa brown and a crownless black felt Homburg, Mrs. William A. Ryan, president of the Crib society, welcomed guests at a tea the other day to open the drive for new patrons of the home, which since 1881 has sheltered homeless babies of all creeds and races. There was a forecast of Christmas when Mrs. Styvesant Peabody, 1st vice-president of the society, stood beside the Christmas green tea table in her striking costume of poinsettia red boucle. Her handsome two piece dress was belted in red jewels alternating with beaded circlets, and little silver rosettes twinkled in her red felt toque. Her initials, "A. H. P.," were intertwined in a giant gold medallion marking her handbag. Mrs. George Fiedler, the recording secretary, wore black, relieved only by a narrow red piping around her becoming hat. Winey purple was the shade of Mrs. John S. Miller's suit and hat, contrasted by a creamy pink print blouse. She is the society's corresponding secretary. Another attractive suit was a rust tweed one fastened with natural buttons, worn by Mrs. Charles H. Sethness Jr., one of the directors. After tea the guests toured the handsome six story red brick building, located at 721 N. La Salle st., and looked on while the youngsters were fed their suppers and tucked into their pastel cribs. Most of the children, the guests learned, are juvenile court cases kept for temporary care, altho some of the babies are born in the home's maternity hospital and given out for adoption if their parents wish. But babies for adoption are much less numerous than the families that constitute a waiting list for them. "One family wrote recently from the east asking for a little blonde blue eyed girl for Christmas," said genial Sister Mary Alice, one of the Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul who conduct the home, "but I don't know where we'll get her."



Mrs. William A. Ryan

Definitely "Santa Claus's helpers" are the members of the women's committee of the Chicago and Cook County war finance committee, who are saving Chicagoans many a weary mile of Christmas shopping with their practical suggestion for stuffing a holiday stocking with a Victory bond as an ideal yuletide gift. At the Chicago Latin school the parents and teachers have come up with the idea of having the children chip in the coins usually saved for a Christmas present for teacher to purchase a composite gift—a Victory bond. And Robert Hall McCormick has a number of relatives down on his Christmas list to receive bonds, his sister, Miss Elizabeth Day McCormick, and his nine grandchildren among them. Impromptu fashion shows result whenever the women's committee of the organization meets. Among the most eye catching hats seen recently on feminine members are Mrs. Walter R. Kirk's draped turban of Persian lamb with a crown of heavy black lace, worn above her blonde hair dressed in a Psyche knot; Mrs. George W. Scupham's flattering beret of hunter's green felt with touches of rose; and Mrs. William D. Saltiel's Egyptian turban circled in inch wide bands of yellow, blue, and green studded with gold nailheads. Mrs. Kirk is one of three vice-chairmen serving under Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, who often presides at the meetings in a stunning black tricorne. Mrs. Wolf, executive chairman of the women's committee, is the only feminine vice-chairman of the entire war finance committee. Her other vice-chairmen on the women's committee are Mrs. Donald F. McPherson, who owns a smart bonnet of brown circles decorated in whirls of speckled feathers, and Mrs. Leo P. Cummings, who usually comes to the meetings dressed in black. One of Mrs. Cummings' most attractive hats is a modified Homburg of moss green felt decked in blush pink roses of silk and velvet. Mrs. Max Epstein, who has been in charge of the volunteer booth sales for four years, recently wore a dark brown costume with a scarf of brown and white Roman striped silk. Mrs. Thomas A. Connors, chairman of the national groups of the women's division enlivens a dark blue suit with a blue and green paisley print blouse, and another attractive suit combination is sometimes worn by Mrs. Charles A. Peace, whose ensemble is of furred brown tweed harmonizing with a hat of beige and brown roses.

Spectacular Benefit Raises $100,000 for Children's Aid

By Thalia

The most spectacularly successful single benefit ever given in our town was the Victory Derby ball a week ago last night which made the treasury of the Illinois Childrens' Home and Aid society richer by well over $100,000. It set a new high in more than one phase of money raising. On a nice solid foundation of $75,000 which was part of the profits of an extra week of horse racing at Sportsman's Park which J. L. Keeshin operated for charity was added $26,022, a new high in returns from sales of advertising for souvenir programs; $9,378.75, a new high in the sale of share books; a new high in contributions of articles to auction, and $8,380, a new high in returns from the auction sale.

If over 800 wasn't also a new high in the number of people present at a benefit it was only because the Gold Coast room of the Drake and its adjoining game room and halls couldn't possibly have acommodated another person. The city's established pillars of society gathered in often astonished groups to view with beaming happiness the lavish financial success of the evening at the bar and the real pari-mutual windows where bets were taken on the horse races which were a special feature of the Victory Derby ball.

Three races were run by mechanical horses ridden by pretty models in bright colored satin shirts and white satin shorts. The names of the races, "The Happy Children Handicap," "The Future Citizens Sweepstakes" and "The Victory Derby" were not only prophetic of the evening's success but the names of real races which had been run at Sportsman's Park during the charity meet.

The mechanical horses had an unbeatable rival in a real race horse. Ensconced in a handsome green stall he greeted the guests as they arrived. It was Sweep Flag, a beautiful 3 year old bay gelding which has been trained for racing but still has his first race to run. His aristocratic nose sniffed curiously at the assorted aromas which were wafted his way, the latest expensive perfume and the most expensive Scotch. He allowed himself to be petted but never lost his air of aloofness, and even the row of shocking pink ribbons which tied the tiny braids of his fine mane didn't make him look like a sissy. He was a thorobred and knew it—in any company. Outside his stall was an enormous horseshoe of shocking pink carnations and laurel leaves which, with the horse and stall, went to the highest bidder for $1,500 at the auction.

Never was there such an array of valuable things to be sold—all donated to the fine cause of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society whose aim, as expressed by Hermon Dunlap Smith, president of the society, is to "provide a happy home for every child whose own home is unable to care for him."

Sweep Flag was the most spectacular donation, the gift of Mrs. Peter Miller Jr., daughter of the late Ruth Hanna McCormick.

Mr. Miller bought his wife a quintet of thorobreds at the auction to take the place of Sweep Flag. They were fashioned of gold kid and their heads, with green jewel eyes gleaming, flew over a gold kid race track which had been fashioned and donated by the town's "mad hatter." Mr. Miller paid $225 at the auction for the confection.

Among the items which were not at all overadvertised as "Impossible to get" was an oil burner which dealers won't have until spring, but which Mabbett K. Rickord, general director of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, can have installed right away [if he wants to] for the $750 he bid. A deep freeze

Fresh from the Hills . . . . By Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm . . . . Invitation

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

FAR be it from me to urge people to travel in the Ozarks if they are a-mind to go any place else. We hill people believe that any one who has to be coaxed to come down and see our scenery and eat our fried chicken just naturally isn't entitled to such pleasures. We don't tempt travelers by saying we have the highest mountains in these United States. We just claim they are the oldest, and dig up onyx and agates and even diamonds to help prove it.

The story goes that the Ozarks were even taller, eons ago, than another famous range in this country [I think the name begins with R]. Erosion, it is said, has worn the Ozarks down to a mere nub of their former selves. But that nub, clad in tall thick forests, or dotted with little fields and houses and veiled with pale blue haze, has just about as much beauty as any traveler could hope to find.

It's true, you may find the Ozark air a little hard to take, because it is so clean and fresh and sweet smelling, with a caressing gentleness like soft white hands and tender kisses. However, many folks never notice it, because about the time they begin to feel that Ozark air, the breath-taking Ozark beauty has come into sight, and they can't think of anything else. That beauty has a way of smacking you right between the eyes.

You'll be driving along, and all at once you turn a corner, or cross a long bridge, or get out of a big town, and golly there are hills. Lots of hills. Scattered so thickly over the countryside they are practically standing on each other's toes. They look alike, yet each has its own distinctive beauty, like a family of good looking girls. Some will be in full sunshine, with the trees standing clearly defined to their very tops; others will be in shadow and the woods will seem dark and mysterious as they crowd around little silvery-gray unpainted houses.

The color of the hills will depend upon the season. In summer they are rich plushy green. In autumn they are colorful as an oriental carpet. Right now they are a golden tan, with splashes of crimson and bronze lingering in sheltered coves, and accented with the rich deep green of pines and cedars. If you come in late March or early April you will find the Ozarks pale green, shot with white, purplish-pink and a creamy color that sometimes verges on chartreuse. Those will be the wild plum, redbud and dogwood trees, planted by Mother Nature, the most lavish of all landscape gardeners.

What's the good of one little old skimpy tree when I can plant a dozen, she seems to say. With that, she spreads a whole hillside with redbud trees, or fills a valley with dogwood blooms, making it look like a bridal arbor. She lets you put in a clump of wild plum trees along a mirroring pool, or stand them out in a clearing against a background of soft, tender young green, looking for all the world like a bevy of eighth grade graduates, swirling lovely new white dresses before proud parents.

If I were a doctor in a crowded, noisy city, I'd send troubled, nerve-racked people down to the hills to meet the springtime. But, of course, I'm not urging that it be done. There are enough of us here to enjoy the songs of the birds and the flash of brilliant wing or topknot in pale gold spring sunshine before it is hidden by the new leaves on the hickory tree. We aren't so busy that we can't take time to watch a pair of cardinals or orioles house hunting, the male so gay and so splendid with his fresh new coloring and the little mate so drab and demure, but with eyes bright as jewels.

We can even take time to catch some of those big fish that leap up from the cold clear depths of spring fed streams apparently just out of sheer spring exuberance. But, of course, fishing gets one all messy, and it tires one's arms to stand before a camera holding up a long string of glistening small mouth black bass each weighing anywhere from 3 to 5 pounds. So perhaps it would be better if you went somewhere else.

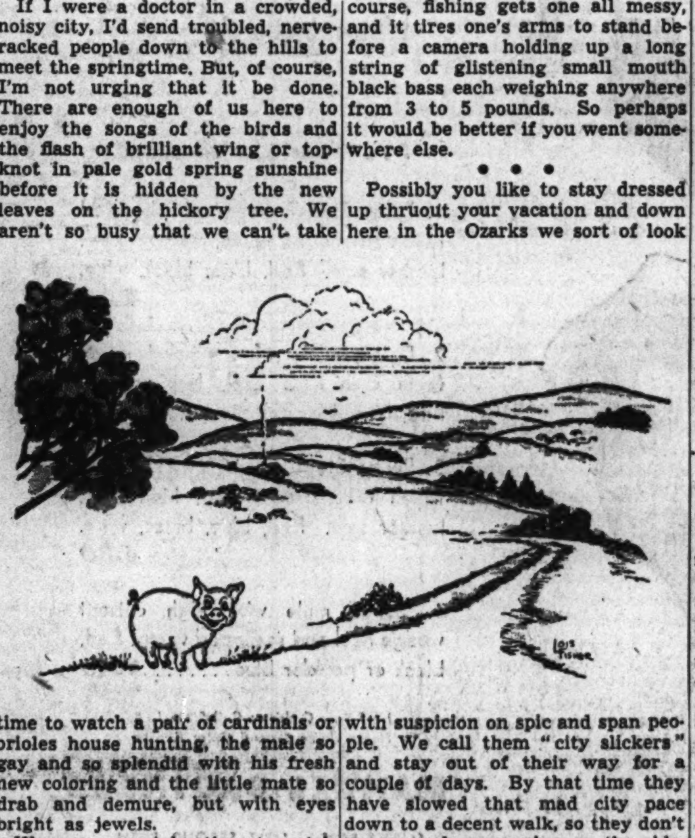
Possibly you like to stay dressed up thruout your vacation and down here in the Ozarks we sort of look with suspicion on spic and span people. We call them "city slickers" and stay out of their way for a couple of days. By that time they have slowed that mad city pace down to a decent walk, so they don't run over dogs napping on the sidewalks, and they can take time to say "Good morning" to the folks waiting at the postoffice for the 8:26 mail to be distributed.



When the 5 o'clock shadow has become downright shade on the city slicker's chin and his wife has gotten herself into something comfortable, we begin to get right chummy with them. We trade recipes with the Missus and suggest to the Mister that the apple wine out at the Log Cabin tavern doesn't hold up for shipping, but it's good when it's drunk on the premises. But maybe you don't like people who look you squarely in the eye and obviously consider themselves as good as you, even when they're the one-gallus, feed-sack dress type. That's too bad!

You'll miss meeting some unusually nice people. Like the old gentleman who can tell you about finding the Indian baby, buried centuries ago in a coon skin that had been split open down the stomach and how the baby's arms and legs had been tenderly eased into the four furry legs of the skin just as your own baby is put into sleepers at night. You'll also miss hearing about the great ball of fire that came floating up from a valley one night and went right between a no-good fellow and the neighbor's wife with whom he was out walking, scaring both of them into leading exemplary lives forever after.

But perhaps you don't like to hear such tales. You may be one of those restless souls who like to drive far and fast when they're on vacation. Well, you could drive fast in the Ozarks, because we have some mighty fine roads, paved as smoothly as a boulevard and banked on the curves. But it isn't exactly healthy. For one thing, a lot of this country is free range and that means animals have the right of way. Of course, a great many motorists who have run over big fat hogs moseying across the highway have lived to brag about it, but the percentage is small. And another thing, you miss so many interesting things when you go careening thru the country as tho the devil were after you! You might miss that great white sycamore, a veritable tree giant with branches that look whitewashed from root to tip, which stands between Eureka Springs and Gateway, Ark.

You might miss those caves which farmers find under cliffs and in which they keep meats and canned goods cool and dark the year around. You could easily miss cool little springs which trickle out of hillsides, ready to quench your thirst, and the long arching boughs of wild blackberry vines dripping with moist ripened fruit as big as your thumb, as well as the wild grapes, black walnuts, and persimmons which come along in their turn.

You might even miss the sign: "Fried Chicken and Huckleberry Pie" which stands in front of Mount Air at Eureka Springs. No, indeed, we aren't urging you to come down to the Ozarks of southern Missouri and northern Arkansas. But if you really want to come, we're willing to share our hills with you just for the fun of seeing your tense nerves relax and the look of peace come into your eyes.

Benefit Raises $100,000 for Children's Aid

unit was bought by a man who lives at the University club. He's going to keep it for game. Since it was complete with a 25 pound turkey and a big roast of beef, I withhold the gentleman's name because he has probably already been deluged with invitations to dinner [if he brings the makin's].

Jewels—a diamond horseshoe ring was one of the door prizes—lovely clothes, household furnishings, and what were listed as "Christmas spirits" lured the rest of those eight thousand products of Uncle Sam's mints.

During dinner, with the aid of a loud speaker over the din that made ear drums feel like tom-toms, Mrs. Jacob Baur, chairman of the woman's board, thanked the members of her group who had done such phenomenally successful work, and and Chauncey McCormick, president of the board of the Children's Home and Aid society, gave the evening its only seriousness. In the spirit of the gay Derby ball, Mr. McCormick's fine linen covered chest was embellished by a cartoon of a jockey drawn by John T. McCutcheon.

Friends of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, who did not attend the gala benefit had the opportunity this week of contributing to the Merry Christmas fund for the 1,400 dependent children in the care of the society. An appeal in the shape of a red Christmas stocking went out to the society's mailing list. Nearly 20,000 annually send contributions.

Appeals for help for children always touch one's heart, especially. On Monday 5,500 families received an appeal from the Crib Society of St. Vincent's Infant and Maternity hospital. The irresistible little face of one of the babies, now in the hospital, half smiled at the recipient from the cover. On Monday afternoon the officers and directors of the society had a tea at the hospital to launch the drive.

Mrs. William A. Ryan, the Crib society's president; Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, vice president, and Mrs. John S. Miller, corresponding secretary, received the directors, among whom was Miss Harriet McLaughlin, whose mother, Mrs. George D. McLaughlin, is honorary president. The now white haired, but perennially youthful "Hattie" McLaughlin was chic in her Red Cross uniform.

A tour of the hospital followed tea and it was a moving journey. All of the rooms of the hospital have at least two walls of windows, the one which brings in the out of doors and the one which is the friendly barrier between the wide corridors and the nurseries and playrooms. Room after room is filled with little cribs of the older babies or the baskets of the newly born. The babies graduate at the age of three, matriculate at any age before that and receive a physical training and education in cleanliness and comfort which their little minds can't grasp but which their bodies will never forget.

A grateful foster father equipped the whole first floor with ultra-violet lamps to kill air borne germs and it proved so successful that now, thru the generosity of others, including the Crib society, the whole hospital is ultra-violet lamp lighted.

We were guided in our tour by Sister Mary Alice, assistant director. She has the bounding vitality and warmth and outgiving affection of motherhood with a capital M. Into her welcoming arms are placed waifs, doorstep abandoned infants, the nameless and the unwanted, and it is her great pride that they are turned immediately into the wanted that there is always a waiting list of adoptors, never of adoptees.

Unmarried girls who have no one to turn to come to the hospital to have their babies where an average of 320 are born yearly. Penniless married mothers are also cared for free while those who can pay, do so. One mother has come back to have each of her four children, the last times proudly paying in gratitude what she would have paid in any hospital. Sister Mary Alice's office is practically papered with the pictures of boys and girls which she placed for adoption.

As many Chicagoans as could be accommodated in the grand ballroom of the La Salle hotel turned out to hear their fellow citizen, Laird Bell, talk before the Council on Foreign Relations about "Policy Over Berlin." Mr. Bell has just returned from six months in Germany where he served as deputy director of the economic division of the office of military government. He is a former president of the council and his audience was filled, not only with those eager to have first hand knowledge of the state of Germany, but with old friends who thus had their first glimpse of him since his return. "All of Winnetka is here," some one observed. I would have said, "All of Chicago." Mr. Bell was introduced by another member of the council happily welcomed home from his country's service, Maj. Graham Aldis.

Mr. Bell made a forthright denunciation of the policy of the United States government in Germany. "It is a policy designed to punish Germany. It is designed not to prevent her from again plunging the world into war, but I believe, rather to invite such a war," he declared. He felt free he said, as a citizen in a democracy "to speak my piece" and he intended to say what he thought even if he were accused of favoring a soft peace.

There was too much of the Morgenthau plan in directive 1067, he said. "It was conceived in hate and born in war hysteria. If it is followed," he declared, "we condemn our friends to blame for inevitable failure; and we condemn the most vigorous elements of the people to a life without hope of anything but revenge."

Germany is now a fertile field for a new Fuehrer, Mr. Bell thinks and he went on to say that "we should have let the Germans clean their own house, let the decent element work out the future of the country." The Germans would then have seen what their leaders had taken them into and that war was not a good thing. But now we have taken charge and it is we who are blamed for the inevitable chaos, for the inevitable starvation, he declared.

Germany has always been a pivotal economic center of Europe and her economic distress will cause a convulsion in many countries in Europe Mr. Bell concluded. His audience was left vehemently discussing his speech, which had convinced them with its sincerity and logic but had given their emotions some abrasions.

Children Will Be Entertained Friday by Woman's Aid

Around 600 youngsters will be entertained by the Chicago Woman's Aid at holiday parties Friday in the Lower North center, which was moved last week to new quarters in the Eli Bates settlement house, 621 W. Elm st. Entertainment for primary grade children will be provided from 3:30 until 5:30, and an intermediate group will gather in the center from 6:30 until 8:30. A program for teen aged youngsters will be held from 9 until 11 o'clock. There will be a puppet show for the younger group, and Eugene Berstein, magician, will perform for the intermediates.

Mrs. Edward S. Dauber, chairman of the Aid's Lower North Center committee, reports an urgent need in the center for usable chairs, tables, or desks. Those wishing to make such donations should contact her. The center is supported by the Community fund, neighborhood contributions, and contributions from the Lower North Neighborhood league, an all colored membership league.

Social Events Speed Tempo of Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith

PALM BEACH, FLA. Time is tripping along right merrily in Palm Beach. The Four Arts opened on Friday with a preview and tea. Luncheons at the Bath and Tennis club are daily affairs. The Whitehall opened on Friday, and the Breakers opened informally on Saturday. There is a constant stream of traffic, streamlined and otherwise, going south as far as the Gulfstream track, near Fort Lauderdale, where races are held.

Holiday shoppers in Palm Beach have all the advantages of a metropolis without the huge crowds to contend with. For the most part shoppers go hatless and wear no stockings. For that matter, there aren't any nylons in Palm Beach to hang by the chimney with care.

The expression "all dressed up like a Christmas tree," has about lost its meaning here. Christmas trees in this atoll are going to have a hard time this year to glitter, scintillate, shine, or shimmer. In fact, the shimmer is likely to be more like the glow worm's glimmer unless more tree ornaments are found. The leftovers are few, far between, and somewhat tawdry.

Many of the angels have lost a wing and are looking shopworn and second hand; cornucopias are bent and blistered; the fragile balls of crimson, gold, and blue, and all the other glistening doo-dads, either are smashed to smithereens or are lackluster. Even the tinsel of yesteryear is tranished, as yesteryear's tinsel too often is, and the artificial snow has melted.

Scarcity of ornaments will cause the Worth av. Christmas tree lane to be somewhat curtailed in splendor this year, altho there will be trees sprayed in white and a 12 foot Santa.

Expected last week-end at their home on Middle rd. are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy of Lake Forest. Maj. and Mrs. Henry L. McIntyre and their children, Robert, Wheeler, and Shelby, have taken Aloha, the ocean front villa of Mrs. Thomas L. Chadbourne, for the season. The McIntyres have been duck hunting at Boca Grande. Maj. McIntyre has just been released from the army.

Mrs. Henry Paulson of Chicago gave a tea recently at Oceanedge, her Palm Beach residence, in honor of her daughter, Phyllis, and to announce the date of Miss Paulson's marriage to Veazy Rainwater Jr. of Pensacola, Fla. The marriage has been set for Jan. 18, and will be at the Everglades club, the first time the club has ever been the setting for a wedding. Parties for Miss Paulson will begin soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hughitt Jr. of Chicago are at their Lakeside home, and have with them Mrs. Hughitt's sister, Miss Lillian Scheer. Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Goode of Moline, Ill., have opened their Brazilian av. villa, and are expecting their daughter, Mrs. Honore Lyeth of New York for the holidays. Col. and Mrs. Robert H. Morse have been at their Dunbar rd. home for more than a month.

Mrs. Elmer Rich also came from Chicago early in the season to open her home. Josephine Rich attends the Graham Eckes school here, while Franklin and Kenneth Rich recently enjoyed a leave from the naval gunnery school in Jacksonville. Elmer Rich Jr. attends the University of Minnesota under the naval program.

Expected any day now at Villa Today is Mrs. Le Ray Berdeau, who will be joined soon by Mr. Berdeau. Mrs. William F. Bode, long a resident of Chicago, but now calling New York her home, is at the Villas, awaiting the opening of the Breakers.

Chicago continues to function as a suburb of Palm Beach. Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Braun have opened their villa, Boulderhurst, on Australian av. Mrs. A. Parker Bryant has returned from Chicago and has joined Mr. Bryant at their apartment here. Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Baum are now with Mr. Baum's parents, the James E. Baums. Richard Baum has just been released from the service.

Mrs. Mario de Tullio has joined her husband at their apartment on Worth av. Mr. De Tullio spent nearly the entire summer in Palm Beach supervising the remodeling of the building which he bought jointly with Frank Kolb.

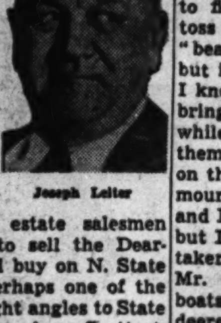
When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Dec. 15, 1897.

Dear Julia: Martha and Sandy have been here for dinner and we have had a serious discussion about a change of residence for them. When they moved there we had thought it would be a permanent home, but the street has changed so greatly that many of their neighbors are moving. Sandy says he is haunted by real estate salesmen who advise him to sell the Dearborn st. house and buy on N. State or Astor st., or perhaps one of the short streets at right angles to State st., such as Burton pl. or Scott st.



Joseph Leiter

A great city is subject to changes. The west side, once such an exclusive district, is much less desirable than it was 20 years ago. Will attributes this change to the Metropolitan and Lake Street elevated railroads which have disfigured the streets once so beautiful and have made them so noisy. I remember when Monroe, Adams, Washington, and Jackson sts. were all fashionable thorofares. Then Ashland blvd. took the center of the stage and, because of Mayor Carter H. Harrison's living at Jackson blvd., on Ashland, residents were proud to give that address. But now many of the prominent families so long identified with west side glory have left, either for the north or the south side, or for a suburb.

I admit it is a fine thing for parents with young children to have a suburban home, where there is room for play, and I don't blame them for moving out to Austin and Oak Park, now that the elevated trains can transport them there so quickly, but I hate to see those fine neighborhoods deteriorating.

Michigan av. is changing, too. North of 22d st., where some of the most important people of the city had their homes, the street begins to look forlorn, with signs on many of the old residences offering "Rooms for Rent." Many tradespeople have come into these once fine homes, too. I have my lingerie made in a shop near 20th st. where once I used to call!

The north side has been less affected, but there are alterations there, too, and will be more, Sandy says, when the new Northwestern "L" is completed. People talk of going out farther and building along the lake shore in Edgewater or Rogers Park, or even Evanston. There is a great expanse of territory near Lincoln park where there has been little building. Thus Dearborn av. is gradually being deserted by the old families who used to live there, and these homes look untidy and distressing.

Later.

There is much excitement in business circles here. Mr. P. D. Armour and young Joseph Leiter, son of L. Z. Leiter, a former partner of Marshall Field, are battling over wheat, which Mr. Leiter, who is still in his twenties, is trying to "corner." I never can understand how they do that, but I know Mr. Armour is a "bear" and Mr. Leiter a "bull." [I had trouble in remembering what those animals stand for until dear old John Crerar told me to fix it in my mind that "bulls toss up with their horns," while "bears bear down," a silly phrase, but it has helped me remember, so I know that Mr. Leiter is trying to bring about a rise in wheat prices, while Mr. Armour is trying to make them go down.] Will says he'll bet on the veteran speculator, P. D. Armour. Both families are our friends and I should hate to see either lose, but I fear Joseph Leiter has undertaken more than he can carry out. Mr. Armour has chartered lake boats at fancy prices and commandeered trains to bring wheat from the northern states to dump on the market. I do wish men wouldn't gamble on wheat and stocks.

Now, with love, I'll close. I'll let you know if Martha and Sandy move.

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES

Changes in near north side streets have been going on for a long time. The two notable houses dating from the '80s will soon be razed, according to recent statements in the press. These are [1] the Potter Palmer castle on Lake Shore dr., [2] the Cyrus H. McCormick residence, 675 Rush st. The former was built, says Thomas Tallmadge, in 1882. The McCormick house is a little older, having been erected in 1879. . . . The celebrated "wheat corner" of 1897 ended in defeat for Joseph Leiter, entailing a loss of several millions.

Phoenix Adds Some Culture to Winter Fare

PHOENIX, ARIZ. This is an arid country, but not from one standpoint, as was brought home this week with the announcement of the winter lecture series by Phoenix Town hall. Chicagoans who fear they may miss out on "culture" by wintering on the desert may set their minds at rest.

The town hall course will be presented at the North High school auditorium, out in the country club district, close by the golf course over which many Chicagoland vacationers have played. Col. Gregory Boyington, Will Durant, Vincent Sheean, and Mrs. Roosevelt are a few of the top flight lecturers who have been secured for the course, which starts in January.

So much for mental nourishment. In the department of more substantial fare Jack Stewart's Camelback inn boasts one of the finest cuisines of any resort in the nation. Or such, at least, is the emphatic judgment of many Camelback patrons who are old hands at resort living.

The Camelback cookery looks like all the kitchen-of-the-future ads put together. Clean and spacious, the gadgets would seem to do all the work, with the hired hands standing idly and immaculately by. But under the direction of Clarence Woods, steward and premier food man in the west, the chefs and waitresses work swiftly and efficiently to produce recurrent gastronomic miracles.

"Let only good food and cheerful girls pass thru these doors" is the gayly painted legend over the portals from the kitchen to the spacious Camelback inn dining rooms. And at the used dish repository there is another, "A soft touch turneth away breakage."

Out at the Jokake inn, nestled against the hump of Camelback, a new glassed-in cocktail lounge and recreational room has been built, running the length of the tennis court. A cactus bar made from the stately Sahuaro brings the desert in for a drink. Chartreuse walls set off the western furnishings, which are highlighted with hand blocked slip covers of galloping horses. The recreation room is done in terra cotta and the Kentucky cardinal motif is carried out in the card room. Red birds perched on bits of cactus are in recessed shelves in the wall, and the room is warm and gay.

Lt. Comdr. James Beach Clow and Mrs. Clow of Lake Forest are enjoying a month's vacation at the Jokake inn. Others who will be out this winter are Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Smith and daughter, Mary Jane, of Evanston, and Mrs. H. Pauline Donnelly of Chicago.

The little town of Chandler, where the famous San Marcos hotel is located, is rightly proud of being a one-horse town. There is one main block, with its plaza and covered sidewalks, so when it rains—and it never does—the cow pokes and Indians may window shop and visit with each other without getting wet. There are many Spanish-speaking people in the town, who lend color and atmosphere to the place.

The San Marcos opened this week and already is making great preparations for its annual Christmas and New Year's parties. Eggnogs on Christmas morning are as much of a tradition there as the New Year's eve dinner-dance.

The popular Westward Ho hotel opened for the season last Saturday with the arrival of the new social hostess, Mrs. Beulah Norman, who is well known to the summer colony on Mackinac Island. The hotel's famed Continental room will be opened Jan. 1. It is in this room where weekly western square dances are held. Among the Chicagoans who are booked at the hotel for later in the season are the De Forest Smith Colburns and Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Davis of Highland Park, the Frank Newhalls, and the George E. Houghs of Chicago, and the Frederic L. Copelands of Evanston.

One of the newest and quaintest guest resorts in the Valley of the Sun is the Casa Blanca, located on the very edge of the desert 15 miles from Phoenix. It originally was built by an easterner, who sent his architect to Morocco to learn from the Moors their skill of gracious desert living. Its thick adobe walls are white, and within the rambling structure the ceilings are high and the long dining room almost monastic but for its comfort. The enchantment of the desert has been brought indoors with rare artistry in the draperies, upholstery, and carpeting. One of the most restful spots at the Casa Blanca is its deck house on the edge of the 60 foot swimming pool, with its back drop of desert and mountain.

Van Wagoner, formerly assistant manager at the Westward Ho, is managing Casa Blanca, and expects this winter to be host to several Chicagoans he previously knew while at the downtown hotel.

Cannon Communication

When the Erie canal was opened the telegraph was not known, and the news was carried in 81 minutes 550 miles from Buffalo to Sandy Hook by the successive reports of a line of cannon 10 miles apart.

Drama League Plans Program for Tomorrow

By Irene Steyskal

These hectic days have their shining hours. The week will see a score of clubs and meeting places opening their doors again to the bands of fresh faced youngsters from Chicago parks and playgrounds whom the Civic Music association calls its children's choruses. Many who have heard and been enchanted by the young carolers' singing are more inclined to the fancy that they are choirs of adventurous cherubim who probably are concealing their halos under knitted caps and ear muffs and their baby size star-embroidered togas under plaid mackinaws—slightly mischievous angels on a masquerade party.

Other groups are gathering in their members from wearing shopping tours for an afternoon or evening of pleasant and relaxing entertainment in rooms garlanded with evergreens and bright with lights of Christmas trees and bayberry candles. Among these is the Chicago Drama league, whose members and guests are to see the story of the Nativity enacted in a marionet play tomorrow afternoon in Curtiss hall. Later in the Cordon there will be a festive holiday reception and tea.

The marionet show is a novel entertainment anticipated with unusual interest by the league members. It is a creation of Martin and Olga Stevens of Middlebury, Ind. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens were actors who left the theater to start a school of drama and puppetry. Their busy center, "off in the woods," as Mr. Stevens describes it, is whimsically known as the Mouse Trap, a name which the implied claim seems to have justified, for the artistic world has indeed beaten a path to the Stevens' door. Their marionet Passion Play is an achievement that has been widely praised for its reverent spirit and artistic integrity, and other of their puppet productions have been as warmly welcomed.

In their Christmas Nativity play, the Stevens operate 24 marionets, and, both ventriloquists, they read the lines for the entire company. Recorded music is used for background. The figures, made on a third of life size scale, are worked in a stag frame measuring 10 by 3 feet. Eight scenes in the Nativity play include a temple sequence, showing Mary as a young attendant; King Herod's palace, the annunciation scene which Michael, the archangel announces to Mary that she is to be the mother of Jesus; the Judean hillside where the shepherds are watching their flocks when the star appears and the angel choirs sing, and the stable in Bethlehem.

Mrs. Alvan W. Jenkisson, president of the league, will be here for the Christmas party, altho she plans to leave later in the week for New York, where she will spend the holidays with her older son, John, and his family.

The marionet performance in Curtiss hall is set for 2 o'clock, and the running time is one hour and 30 minutes. Immediately after, Mrs. Jenkisson and the board will receive at the tea party in the Cordon.

One of the first of the Christmas songs by the Civic Music association's carolers will be given Wednesday afternoon after school at the Martha Washington home for crippled children. The association has plans under way to start a chorus at the home, and the Christmas party is an introductory move toward that undertaking. Some 25 youngsters from Grand Crossing park are in the chorus that will sing for the Martha Washington children. Mrs. Earl Wilcox is the director.

The annual sing for the Sunday Evening club, which is personally directed by Max E. Oberndorfer, for 13 years the association's director of music, is set for 7 o'clock next Sunday night in Orchestra hall. Children from the Chicago nursery, the home at 2801 Foster av., a chorus of 100, will give that concert.

It is the custom for the Cliff Dwellers, of whom Mr. Oberndorfer is a member, to give a Christmas party for the boys and girls who sing for the Sunday Evening club. This year the party will anticipate the concert. The group will entertain the youngsters Friday afternoon in its rooms, and the young guests will sing some of their new songs and the old favorites.

Saturday afternoon, choruses from Sherman and Gage parks will sing at the Service Men's center at 176 W. Washington st., and a band from Russell square will carol at the center in the old Auditorium.

The Illinois Athletic club is giving a party for members' children on Dec. 27, and another of the Civic Music association's groups will share in the festivities and sing a program. A Chase park group will carol at the dinner hour in the Webster hotel, and will have a party there later. Another chorus will sing at 12:30 o'clock Saturday in Lyon and Healy's store, and later at the Piccadilly tea room, where they will have a luncheon party.

This afternoon scores of members of the Lutheran Woman's league and their friends will gather at the league-sponsored Children's Receiving home in Maywood for the annual Christmas festival—a party at which the children are the hosts.

All of the youngsters, from the tiniest tots to the teen-agers, have an active part in the festival, singing in the chorus, playing in the Nativity pageant, reciting "pieces," or, if too small for anything else, ringing the Christmas bells.

The dining room for this happiest day of the year is festooned with garlands, the windows are gay with Santa Claus and reindeer cutouts emulating frost pictures, and the table is bright with candles and silver bells.

AT HOME IN NEWPORT, R. I.

Mrs. John Martin Gent, the former Barbara June Engle, and Lt. (j. g.) Gent, son of Mrs. J. J. Gent of Nokomis, Ill., were married recently in the chapel of the First Methodist Church in Evanston. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Everett R. Engle of the Lake Shore club. Lt. Gent who recently returned from Toyko, and his bride are at home in Newport, R. I.

Woman's City Club Party Set for Tomorrow

Mrs. Laura H. Lunde
[Root Photo]

It's a traditional holiday story at the Woman's City club. All of those civic ills that trouble the conscientious brows of members thruout the year could be so many hobgoblins making a hurried exit before a jaunty army of gingerbread men in Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde's command. Tomorrow Mrs. Lunde will pack her generous basket with the perky little raisin-eyed men that are her culinary specialty, and off they will go to the club's Christmas party.

Rooms are festive with garlands and holly wreaths tied with red satin bows, and on the long white sweep of the tea table, polished silver glints in the light of Christmas candles. It will be an afternoon for informal entertainment and friendly chatter.

The club's history writing project this year suggested an idea for the party to Mrs. Edward L. Murfey, the present recording secretary and one of the founders. Past officers and chairmen have been asked to give highlights of the periods when they were in service for incorporation in the written history, and Mrs. Murfey plans to read tomorrow several of the responses which she has received.

One from Mrs. Benjamin F. Langworthy, who served a presidential term in the '20s, recalls that the club's Christmas parties were started during her regime by the library committee, then under Miss Isabelle Mitchell's chairmanship.

Miss Harriet E. Vittum, head resident of Northwestern university settlement, has written about the 1913-'14 season when she was president of the club, and Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, whose name is woven with Jane Addams' in Hull House history, of her long tenure. Mrs. Bowen served the club the season following Miss Vittum, and after a year's interval, when the late Mary McDowell headed the organization, she again was elected and continued in office into 1924. For her distinguished record, the club made Mrs. Bowen its honorary president.

Memories of Mrs. Murry Nelson, who succeeded Mrs. Langworthy, are an inspiring account of devotion and coöperative effort in the club that achieved notable results in civic relief during the depression. Excerpts will be read also from letters from Miss Lea D. Taylor, Mrs. H. S. Paine, Miss Amelia Sears, Mrs. Duanne McNabb, Mrs. Harvey S. Tyler, and Mrs. George Packard, all of whom have figured prominently in the club's history.

Setting the key for the party, Mrs. Leo Brown will give a reading of the "Christmas Story."

In the tearoom, the social committee will serve mulled cider with Mrs. Lunde's gingerbread cookies.

Stuyvesant the Farmer

Peter Stuyvesant lived 18 years of pleasant rural life on his Bowery farm after the British seized New York in 1664. Stuyvesant, who said that in preference to surrender he "would rather be carried out dead," was not allowed by his people to join battle.

D. A. R. Unit to Hold Party on Thursday

Mrs. Herbert J. Maass
[Nelidoff Photo]

Members of Chicago chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will gather at 2 o'clock Thursday in the South ballroom of the Stevens hotel for their annual Christmas party and tea. There will be a program of carols, and speaker for the afternoon will be V. S. Peterson, consultant of the public relations department of the du Pont company.

Mrs. Herbert J. Maass, regent, will preside and introduce Mr. Peterson, who will illustrate his talk on "Research in Every Day Living" with samples of such new products as plastics, nylon, and flame proofed cloth and wood. The lecturer is a former faculty member of the Iowa and Pennsylvania state colleges.

Another patriotic organization with a yuletide party on the week's calendar is Fort Checaugou chapter of the Daughters of the American Colonists. This gathering, set for 10:30 o'clock Saturday in the Republic building, will bring as speakers Mrs. Harry T. Tillotson, who will tell of food preservation in colonial days, and Charles Van Buskirk, whose talk will be on modern methods of preservation and distribution of perishable food products. Mr. Van Buskirk is affiliated with a transportation and refrigerator line corporation.

A side attraction at the party will be a gift exchange, with Miss Mary A. Holden, regent, and Mrs. Harold Leopold, social chairman, in charge. Mrs. Francis E. Thornton arranged the program.

General Henry Dearborn chapter of the D. A. R. will hold its annual holiday meeting at 2 o'clock Tuesday in the Cordon clubrooms, 410 S. Michigan av. Ruth Louise Oliver will give a program on "Famous Women of the Bible," and music will be provided by Paula LaRose, flutist. Mrs. Roy Allen Graham is chapter regent.

Wednesday afternoon will find Aaron Miner chapter of the patriotic society gathering in the Central Eleanor club quarters. Guest speaker will be Mrs. Ernest R. Charlton, a member of Isaac Hull chapter, Salem, Ill., whose discussion will be on "Granite Laughter and Marble Tears."

Week's Plans of Clubwomen in Chicagoland

The Christmas holidays, with their hustle and bustle and evokement of warmhearted emotions, continue to provide the program theme for the greater portion of women's club and organization meetings.

Mrs. M. A. Graettinger
[Walinger Photo]

The yuletide meeting of the women of the Rotary Club of Chicago, set for 1:30 o'clock Wednesday in the Hotel Sherman, will sound a serious note with the Rev. Charles Ray Goff, minister of the Chicago Methodist temple, as guest speaker. Following Dr. Goff's talk on "The Miracle of Christmas," there will be a program of carols by the nurses' sextet of Augustana hospital. A gala distribution of gifts will be included on the program, with St. Nicholas himself expected to make an appearance. Mrs. Martin A. Graettinger, who heads the club, will preside and introduce as a special guest Mrs. Thomas Warren of Wolverton, England, wife of the president of Rotary International.

Among the club's Christmas philanthropies is the furnishing of baskets of fruit for veterans of one of the wards of Vaughan General hospital.

In keeping with the holiday spirit, members of the Chicago Altrusa club and their guests will take articles of clothing or household goods for the Goodwill Industries when they gather at 6:15 o'clock tomorrow evening in the Cordon club for a Christmas dinner. There will be a community sing of carols, and afterward the group will move on to the Blackstone theater to view a performance of "A Joy Forever" with Guy Kibbee. Miss Alva Lowrey arranged the program.

Thursday night will find members of the Chicago Office Supervisors' club and guests gathering for 6 o'clock dinner and a Christmas party in the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 S. La Salle st. Speaker for the evening will be Miss Anita Blair of El Paso, Tex., who will be accompanied by her Seeing Eye dog, Fawn.

Mrs. Albion L. Headburg, president of the Chicago Woman's club, will conduct her club's regular business session at 2 o'clock Wednesday. At 10:30 o'clock, Mrs. Ethel Colson Brazelton will give a current events talk, and later will review Susan Glaspell's book, "Judd Rankin's Daughter."

Mrs. Paul J. Wimsey

Mrs. Paul J. Wimsey has arranged a Christmas program and tea for the Native Daughters of Illinois when that group gathers Tuesday afternoon in the Fine Arts building, 410 S. Michigan av. Speaker for the afternoon will be Paul M. Angle, director and secretary of the Chicago Historical society, and musical selections will be given by Maurine Smith Gross, soprano; Corp. Robert Barry, baritone, and Sgt. Albert W. McMackin, pianist. Linnea Hendrickson will be Miss Gross' accompanist. Invited as special guests are Mrs. Dwight H. Green, Mrs. Charles S. Deneen, Mrs. William J. Corboy, Mrs. Phillip Miller, Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer, Mrs. Mary Small Inglesh, and Miss Florence Deneen. A preliminary history study session conducted at 1:30 o'clock by Mrs. S. S. Pearson, will bring as speaker Mrs. Peter F. Barber.

The Walnut room of the Morrison hotel will be the setting on Wednesday for the annual Christmas luncheon and afternoon card party of the Lake City Woman's club. Luncheon is scheduled at 12:30 o'clock.

TO WED OFFICER

Miss June Olsen, whose engagement to Lt. (j. g.) Cecil A. Polk of the naval reserve is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman M. C. Olsen of Lincolnwood, Lt. Polk, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Polk of Rochester, Ind., is stationed on the west coast. He is an alumnus of Purdue university.

Members of the Chicago Culture club will gather at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow in the Republic building to hear a Christmas message by the Rev. Paul Bolman, minister of the Oak Park Christian church. There also is to be a program of song by Mrs. Bolman, and a tea.

A gala holiday party, replete with "grab bag" and community sing of carols, is scheduled by the Half Century Civic club for 1 o'clock Wednesday in the Morrison hotel. Mrs. Mabel Kipta is chairman for the fete.

The Mothers' Drama club will have a social gathering at 1:30 Wednesday in the Lake Shore field house. Chief topic of conversation at the meeting doubtless will be the holiday party that members plan to give for their children at 8 o'clock the night of Dec. 28 at the same location. Mrs. William F. Noelle is club president.

Miss Estelle A. Johnson
[Maurice Photo]

Miss Estelle Ayer Johnson, reader and speech instructor, will give a demonstration of proper carriage and voice modulation at a meeting of the Career group of the National Council of Jewish Women, set for 7:30 o'clock Wednesday in the club rooms, 185 N. Wabash av. The program is to be followed by a tea and social hour.

• • •

The Andoka Philanthropic club will have a noon luncheon and Christmas card party Tuesday in the Morrison hotel. At a 1:30 o'clock board meeting, distribution of the club's Christmas philanthropies will be decided upon.

The Woman's auxiliary of the German club will hold a yule luncheon and card party at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

The annual Christmas fete of the Independent German American Woman's club has been set for 12:30 o'clock Wednesday in the Belmont hotel. Luncheon is to be followed with a pageant, "Christmas-Eve," by a group of members.

Because of the pre-holiday rush, the Cook County Federation of Women's clubs will have a morning program tomorrow instead of the usual day-long session. Mrs. J. B. Davison, chairman of the American Home department, wil present John T. Holsman, architect, in a talk on "Economic Pattern for Living." A preliminary business session will be conducted by the president, Mrs. Charles J. La Hodney, at 10:30 o'clock.

• • •

Mrs. Howard G. Mesirow, 422 Briar pl., will open her home Tuesday night for a dinner party for a group of young girls who are under guidance of the Jewish Big Sisters. The party has been arranged by the society's recreation committee, of which Mrs. Benjamin H. Adler is chairman.

Miami Beach Like Colorful Holiday Card

By Martha Lummus

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.

Like a huge, panoramic Christmas card is Miami Beach, with vivid poinsettias stealing the limelight in every scene. These large, bright hued yule flowers add splotches of color everywhere, and while other sections anticipate a white Christmas, Floridians look forward to a green and red yuletide season, made so by these gorgeous blossoms.

A poinsettia hedge in Coral Gables, abloom with flaming red, attracts many visitors, more accustomed to seeing these Christmas flowers in flower pots behind the glass windows of florist shops, or guarded carefully in greenhouses. Here they grow out of doors, and time their blooming with the arrival of Christmas. The double red variety resembles a ball of fire, its petals extending like flames. White poinsettias may be seen in many yards, but the single blossoms such as those that adorn most Christmas cards are by far the most prevalent.

Outstanding event of the second week in December this year was opening of the Surf club. Luncheon on opening day found many Chicagoans present, among them Mrs. Harry L. Vaughan of Chicago and Miami Beach, Mrs. Harvey Hanson of Chicago and Golden Beach, and her sister, Mrs. Charlton Mewbourn of Detroit.

Mrs. William F. Whitman of Glencoe, Ill., and her son, William, have motored here and are occupying a villa at the Surf club. Harold L. Barnes of Chicago, has been named chairman of the backgammon tournaments to be held at the Surf club this winter.

Entertaining at the Surf club's victory ball last night were the Albert I. Appletons of Evanston, Ill., who have joined the winter colony here for the season.

The Albert W. Wigglesworths of Kenilworth, Ill., are back, and occupying their Lagorce Island home at Miami Beach.

Also back for the winter is Mrs. August B. Kochs of Chicago. Mr. Kochs is expected shortly. Recent guests at the Kochs home on Lagorce Island were their granddaughter and her husband, Mrs. Eustace Shaw and Seaman First Class Shaw. The navy man is based at Banana River, Fla.

The Clyde E. Larishes of Chicago have been spending some time here, and have made plans for a trip to Haiti, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. They are members of the Chicago Yacht club and are frequent Miami visitors.

Clubs in the Miami Beach area continue to announce important yuletide functions. The Brook club, fashionable night spot in Surfside, has announced Christmas night as opening date for this year. Prior to the opening, the Spinsters, feminine club here equivalent to a debutante club, will have its annual formal dance on Christmas eve at the Brook, which has been the scene of many elaborate functions in the past, including balls for the Red Cross and other welfare purposes.

Wesley Student Nurses' Candle Service Today

The annual candlelight service conducted by student nurses of the Wesley Memorial hospital has been set for 4 o'clock this afternoon in Thorne hall, Lake Shore dr. and Superior st. Mrs. Russell L. Dicks, wife of the hospital's chaplain, will be in charge of the program, which will include sacred hymns, Christmas music, and devotionals. An open house party will be held afterward in the nurses' residence, 201 E. Delaware pl.

Is it Christmas in your Heart?

It may be hard to find the sparkle of tinsel, the shine of candles, in hearts torn with sorrow, in changing times . . . but faith still looms as high and as confident as the evergreen trees . . . hope burns as brightly as the Yule log . . . and love sends forth its guiding light as brilliantly as the Christmas Star. While these three endure, Christmas too will live . . . the spirit of peace and good-will somehow prevail. Mark the day with gifts, then, in remembrance of things past, in trust of things to come . . . and make the gifts as lovely as you can . . . for even a little gift may have beauty . . . may, in truth, BE beauty . . . if it is a gift by ELIZABETH ARDEN.

These Books Make a Fine Holiday Gift

By Eleanor Jewett

If we could think of any way to word it without being undignified, we would like to start this column today with capital letters saying: HOLD EVERYTHING! and all because six books have just come in for review, any one of which would be the perfect Christmas present to give an adult or a child. A gayer, more colorful package of books has rarely been found in one issue than these six books from the Hyperion Press.

Three of the books were compiled strictly with children in mind. They are "Gulliver's Travels," by Jonathan Swift [adapted and illustrated by Patrick Bellew, who has done an impressive job with the drawings]; "The Seven Voyages of Sinbad the Sailor," rewritten by Eugen Sharin and illustrated by Oscar Fabres [Fabres is guilty of the finest color and most pleasing drawing], and "The King of the Golden River," that perennial favorite by John Ruskin, illustrated by Ben Wolf, to the detriment of the text. "The King of the Golden River" needs an artist of more sensitive and whimsical approach than Mr. Wolf. If Ruskin's masterpiece could be spoiled, the common clod treatment meted out by Ben Wolf would certainly have dealt the death blow. The story survives. We hope Tasha Tudor, who is responsible for the exquisite illustrations in the new Oxford edition of Hans Christian Andersen's "Fairy Tales," can be persuaded to try her skill with the adventures of Gluck and the King some future Christmas.

The three books for adults put out by the Hyperion Press are "Rodin," by Philip R. Adams, with illustrations strong in line and composition, illustrating sculpture is a difficult task at best; "Degas," by Camille Mauclair, interesting text and a host of glorious reproductions of Degas' most important and popular paintings in black and white and in color, truly fine; and "Rouault," by Edward Alden Jewell, a scholarly introduction to excellent reproductions in color of this painter's involved and primitive art.

A line from Mr. Jewell's preface gives the impression many of those who see Rouault in gallery exhibits cherish in their hearts but refrain from voicing: "In painting those ugly daubed and smeared forms." Later, honestly supporting Rouault, comes: "Rouault set out to cope with various aspects of a vast octopal corruption." The two statements explain the painter satisfactorily. He was a crusader; his weapon was a blurred and remorseless technique. His early training in the art of glass staining carried over when he worked on canvas. His crusader's spirit never flickered. Whether by intention or not, his brush was as cruel as a lash. He found his generation wanting in the decencies of civilization and reported accordingly.

Degas for delight; Rouault for conscience; Rodin for thought; a stirring trio to stimulate the art lover this holiday season.

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts has hung a gay and colorful Christmas exhibit in the galleries at the Drake hotel. There are oils and water colors. Three of the pictures already have been sold. To give a few details about the show, William H. Eppens has a beautiful landscape, "Woodland Reflections"; Jessie Field offers two decorative paintings, "Copper and Brass" and "Fall at Lake Geneva"; Ramon Froman has an exquisite child portrait, "Three Year Old"; James H. Vail offers a brilliant bit of sophistication done in amusing, provocative upward tilts, "Victoria," and Ted Vognild reveals an unfamiliar side of her well known engaging talents with two demure but fascinating still lifes, "California Berries and Flowers" and "Roses of Sharon."

Louis Jensen contributes one of the finest marines seen in a Chicago gallery in some time, his stunning "The Play of the Surf." Erwin G. Kummer shows two delightful, vibrant, little landscapes, "Lake Sentinels" and "Summer's Vibrate." E. G. Dannhausen offers a beautiful study of water in "The Bridge"; Nan Rice gives us again her capital character study, "Cross Word Puzzle"; A. Alfredson is responsible for the stunning "Sunflower" and Alice Brening for the enchanting "Dresden Doll."

Ada V. Dallas, Effie Pugh, Blanche Rose, Nelly Deachman, Gerda Ahlm, Olive Newton, Charles Minghi, John F. Nachorny, Tunis Ponsen and Debrila Hansen are among the other artists who make up this unusually fine show of oils.

In the east mezzanine galleries, Drake hotel, the All-Illinois has hung the new water color exhibit by members and among the outstanding works there are delightful pictures by Pearl Dawn Nutt, Ella Pruss, Harry Sheckles, Rachel Stearns, Miles Buzek, and Valon Ingstrup. Also here Nelly Deachman is showing "The Chinese Lady" with her background of daffodils, a charming composition, sensitively painted. The interest which it awakened at the Cordon club last spring increases with the second seeing of it.

The Arts club, Wrigley Tower, has two new exhibitions which are unusually fine. The delightful primitives by the French painter, Louis Vivin, fill the round gallery. Against flat backgrounds of Paris streets and parks, the Chaplinesque paper doll people of M. Vivin's imagination carry on a two dimensional life of activity and pleasure. His are intriguing compositions, subdued in color, reminding one to a certain extent of the posy gardens of Kate Greenaway and the fairy tale paintings of Chicago's primitive, Hoyer.

The other galleries at the Arts club are filled with the dominant, vigorous paintings of the late Marsden Hartley, an American painter of great ability. His group of pictures in the first gallery struck us as mannered, cold and lifeless, but the pictures and drawings in the adjacent galleries stirred us to enthusiasm.

BRIDE OF CAPTAIN

Mrs. John F. Lewis, the former Helen Louise Goss, whose marriage to Capt. Lewis took place yesterday in St. Philip Neri church. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Goss of Constance av., was graduated from Rosary college. Capt. Lewis has returned from two years of European duty. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Lewis of Paxton av.

Several Music Clubs Schedule Gala Meetings

Carolers from its young artists wing will interpret the Christmas story in music for the Chicago Artists association Tuesday night in Curtiss hall of the Fine Arts building. Directing the vocal ensemble will be Ruth Heizer. Evelyn White, pianist, will participate in the annual holiday program. Guest speaker for the special occasion will be Cecil Smith, chairman of the University of Chicago music department.

The Chicago Musical Arts club is gathering at 4 o'clock today in the Fine Arts building for a yuletide program and wassail party. "Christmast Moments Musicale" is the title given the entertainment in which music, dancing, drama, and poetry are correlated. The director is Theo Verlyn Pallma. Soloists with a singing chorus are Edalyne Bledsoe, Rose Abrams, Patricia Fawcett, June-Marie Heinrich, Vera Jeske, Elaine Myers, and Helen Strauss. Christine Baker is the accompanist.

One sequence of the program will be a reading from Van Dyke's "The Other Wise Man" by Frances Weege, with Virginia Pardee assisting as vocal soloist, and Clarence Zollicoffer, as piano accompanist. A characterization dance of a shepherdess will be given by Zaka Simitch.

Mrs. Theodore W. Passallaigue will preside later at the wassail bowl of spiced cider. Flanking the bowl on the festive table will be trays of crab apples and Christmas cakes. Mrs. Emil Heinrich and Mrs. W. Lyle McDaniel will be on hostess duty.

For the American Daughters of Sweden, the Christmas meeting means music, and this year's musical event will be a gala occasion with the club's large chorus augmented by the Norwegian Ladies Singing league and the Danish Illinois Singing society. The program is set for 7:45 o'clock Tuesday night in the Fine Arts building. The three choruses will be heard separately and, for the singing of carols, as a massed choir. Miss Mildred Frohman will conduct and Mrs. Alice Regnell will be at the piano.

Literary Circle Plans Holiday Party Tuesday

They could, of course, have invited Santa Claus. But the program committee had a more original idea on the matter of guest timed to occasion. The speaker at the Bookfellows' Christmas dinner Tuesday night is to be Federal Judge William H. Holly.

John G. Neihardt also will be at the party, which is to be held in Huyler's restaurant. Dr. Neihardt is the writer of a cycle of poems of the west, ambitious works in epic style, which have won several important literary awards. Facile with the spoken as well as the written word, he is a favorite with literary groups as a dinner speaker, and the Bookfellows have assigned him the toastmaster's role at their celebration. John Hooks, whom readers of Charles Collins' "Line o' Type or Two" in THE TRIBUNE know as Quizzicuss, will call the roll, and Adele Jordan Tarr will dispense quotation calendars, blotters, stationery, bookmarkers, and similar articles from a grab bag.

Verse, violin music, carols, and white elephants all will have their part in the Christmas program of the Illinois Woman's Press association Friday night in the Cordon. Hilda Butler Farr, contributor to Arch Ward's Wake of the News column in THE TRIBUNE, is in charge. It was Mrs. Farr who started and helps to arrange the Wake's annual banquets.

Several press association members, among them Mrs. Farr, Hazel Duncan, Clara Edmunds-Hemingway, and Annette Victorian, will read original poems at the party, and Glenn Bruce will give readings. The guest artist will be Anya Joseffer, violinst.

The white elephants will figure in a gift exchange, devised as an economy move. Money which ordinarily would have been spent on new gifts for fellow members is to be deposited in a fund which the association is raising for subscriptions to home town newspapers for veterans at Gardiner, Vaughan, and Hines hospitals.

Matrix club members will exchange their Christmas greetings Tuesday evening over a turkey dinner in the Normandy House. Favors and wine will add to the table's holiday air. On the committee arranging the party are Mrs. Erwin Knehans, Miss Tillie Solfermoser, and Miss Hazel Duncan.

The Poet's forum meets at 8 o'clock Thursday night in the Fine Arts building to hear a talk by Charles Lanigan. Mrs. Lucile Pittman Leech will preside.

College Auxiliary Will Observe Its 15th Year Tomorrow

The Women's auxiliary of the Chicago Colleges of the University of Illinois will mark its 15th anniversary tomorrow with a Christmas party for 100 children confined to the outpatient wards of the University's Research and Educational hospitals, and with a tea.

The Elmhurst Association of University Women is assisting with the annual party for the children, which has been set for 1 o'clock. Entertainment, refreshments, and toys will be provided, and the auxiliary women will present each child with a pair of hand knit mittens. Candy has been contributed by the social service committee of the Woman's association of the First Congregational church of Oak Park.

The anniversary tea, scheduled at 3 o'clock in the lounge of the Chicago Illini Union building, will bring as special guests Mrs. A. A. Eisentrout, who in the last five years has given the hospital 17 storybook quilts for the youngster's wards. The quilts, each depicting a story delightful to children, will be displayed at the tea. Also prsent at the gathering will be 12 charter members of the auxiliary which is composed of University of Illinois faculty wives. Mrs. O. F. Kampmeier, one of the original members, is in charge of arrangements.

WED RECENTLY

Mrs. Arthur V. Appel, the former Mary Jane Herzog, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Herzog of Ellis av., and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Appel were married recently in the Graham Taylor chapel at the University of Chicago. The bride is a graduate of the university. Mr. Appel is a graduate of Wilson Junior college and attended the University of Notre Dame and the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Bette Carpenter, Donald Derrico Engaged to Wed

Miss Bette Carpenter

The engagement of Miss Bette June Carpenter to Donald A. Derrico is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Carpenter of S. Bishop. Mr. Derrico, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Derrico of Chicago, recently was released from the army following more than two years of duty. He participated in the European campaign in which he was awarded the Purple Heart and five battle stars.

Take Time Out to Enjoy Spirit of Christmas

By Gladys Huntington Bevans

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Altho the sadness in many hearts is too deep to be talked about, the happiness in countless others, equally deep, will want to find expression this Christmas. I think it can be done by making this Christmas an unusually beautiful one, not hectic and not concerned alone with gifts and feasting, tho even the spirit connected with those can be right.

Now there's such a thing as pleasant excitement and enjoyable bustle, but it's also possible to overdo both, so the first becomes hectic and the second exhaustion. I know how it's possible to allow yourself to get so tired and so concerned with the business of Christmas that you don't get all you can of its flavor, its savor, and its spirit, in the days that precede it.

So halt in your mad rush this Sunday morning—get your breath—and look around you. Make up your mind that you will take time out for the spirit of Christmas, because time is really what you need for that, time out so that you can see and hear and sense this lovely thing, this Christmas spirit, which fills the world each year. Time is the first element needed.

How you'll do it will be an individual matter. You may pare your buying list down to essentials; you may slash your pencil thru your list of things to do, or you may decide to simplify the cooking preparations, so that you will have time to feel rested enough to enjoy the days before the 25th, or to plan for carol singing, stories, going to church, or a little party, or a simple Christmas day ceremony.

Here are some suggestions:

Try to leave Christmas eve uncluttered, so don't crowd the day before Christmas too full. Arrange to have time at the end of the day to be with the children so that their stockings are hung up in a leisurely way; that you, their father, or grandfather may perhaps read them once more "The Night Before Christmas," or tell them once again the story of the Christ child; that, if they're old enough for it, they can trim the tree without being all tired out or wrap and pile under it their presents for the family.

Christmas eve is a lovely time for carol singing, too. Be sure to have the house decorated at least by the afternoon of the 24th, or a few days before. Holly, wreaths, loops of green, and candle light actually exhale a Christmas fragrance.

Some families have a tradition for reading Dickens' "Christmas Carol." Look this classic over first, because parts of it are too spectral for young children, and even for the older ones it may be cut. It's pretty long to be read thru at one sitting.

Instead of keeping your nose glued to the Christmas grindstone, take in some of the jolly before-Christmas events that are going on: See the community trees and let the children enjoy them, too. Have time for your friends, deliver presents or goodies, enjoy "visiting" with them when they drop in during the days before Christmas.

Some families enjoy giving a Christmas play, either on Christmas eve or Christmas night. It may consist of the simple dramatizing of an old carol or story; a few days are plenty for the costuming and rehearsing. A picture pantomime of the scene in the stable on the first Christmas is planned easily. Singing carols dressed in old English costumes which may be copied from Christmas cards is an even easier thing to plan.

Planning a party for Christmas afternoon is a festive thing in the Christmas spirit, or preparing for family games or charades. This sort of thing, after the sleepy lull that usually follows Christmas dinner, makes the day, instead of falling flat, end on an up-note.

Having leisure these next few days to plan or even rehearse some little ceremonies connected with the day or its eve is jolly. Having some one act Santa Claus and give out presents with jingles read, or a candle light procession down to breakfast in the morning, singing as you go—these or others may be little ceremonies you arrange differently each year, or they may become a family tradition.

Opening lead: Four of diamonds.

There is very little future in wishing for things that just can't come true. It seems somewhat better business to resort to methods that give you at least a reasonable chance for success, not to mention absolute certainty.

South opened the bidding with three no trump, for which he had the high card strength required by all recognized systems. His distribution was not exactly the prescribed 4-3-3-3, but it was close enough so that only the hair splitters would take issue.

West made the conventional lead of the four of diamonds and East played third hand very high. There were three good clubs languishing away in the far off dummy, with no apparent means to get over there to use them. South played the deuce of diamonds, hoping somehow that the jack would subsequently drop and the 10 become an entry. This was not a hope. It was an empty pipe dream. It is apparent that West must be leading from a four card suit [if he didn't have four diamonds there must have been some better lead he could have dug up]. This would make it clear that East's ace was a singleton and that the jack would not fall.

A heart was returned and ducked by declarer. The suit was continued and declarer cashed his high hearts, diamonds, and clubs, throwing West in with a diamond and compelling a spade lead up to his hand for the eighth trick.

Gratification at having perpetrated an end play blinded declarer to the fact that he could have made the hand on straightforward methods, by simply making sure that he could get into dummy to use the clubs. This he could have accomplished by playing the queen of diamonds under the ace. And it would not even have cost him a trick, because two diamond tricks were all he could ever really hope to gather in any event.

Now when the heart comes back, the trick is taken and the high clubs cashed. The deuce of diamonds is then led towards dummy and whether West takes the Jack or not is immaterial. The three of diamonds will be the key that will open dummy's door to the good clubs. This gives declarer the opportunity to take the spade finesse for an extra trick, if he is so inclined. But 10 tricks are there for the asking.

Women's Finance Forum to Meet on Thursday

The rare privilege of meeting on the floor of the Chicago Stock exchange has been extended to the Women's Finance Forum for next Thursday evening. At that time the business women's group will conduct the fourth session in its course on "Personal and Family Finance." Cooky Flavor Is Enhanced by Shortening

By Mary Meade

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

Sugar shortage or no, every homemaker seems to be making cookies. The approaching holidays have something to do with the zooming popularity of cooky recipes, of course, but I suspect that a pretty important factor is the availability without ration points of the shortenings which are so important in most cookies.

Butter isn't plentiful, but it can be had, and the same is true of margarine. These two shortenings are first choice for the making of many kinds of cookies, especially those which are unspiced and simply flavored. Shortbread, holiday butter cookies, and snowballs are crisp tea party style delicacies which depend almost entirely upon shortening for flavor. The fat isn't so important in orange date drops.

Orange Date Drops

[About five dozen]

½ cup butter or margarine
¾ cup brown sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
3 tablespoons orange juice
Grated rind of 1 orange
2¾ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped dates
½ cup chopped pecans or other nuts

Cream fat and sugar and add well beaten eggs, juice, and rind. Sift flour with salt and soda and add to creamed mixture, blending thoroly. Add dates and nuts. Drop from the end of a teaspoon onto greased cooky sheets and bake at 375 degrees about 8 minutes, or until done.

Holiday Butter Cookies

1⅓ cups butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
1 egg
¼ teaspoon salt
4 cups flour
2 teaspoons vanilla

Cream butter and sugar, add egg and salt, and work in flour. Add vanilla. This is a basic dough capable of a hundred variations. As it is, it may be shaped into rolls, chilled and sliced for refrigerator cookies, or it may be put thru a cooky press directly onto cooky sheets. Bake at 375 degrees until barely touched with brown, in either case. Cooky press cookies may be garnished with a dab of jelly in the center of each. Dough may be shaped into tiny balls, flattened with fork tines, then baked.

Variations of Holiday Butter Cookies

1. Chocolate. To a part of the mixed dough add grated sweet or unsweetened chocolate. Or add enough cocoa or melted chocolate to color it.

2. Add finely chopped maraschino cherries to part of the dough before shaping.

3. Add ground pecans or other nuts to part of the mixture, if it goes thru the cooky press. For refrigerator cookies or cookies shaped by hand, leave the nuts in broken pieces.

Snowballs

[About 4½ dozen]

½ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup evaporated milk or cream
½ teaspoon vanilla
1¾ cups sifted flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
1 cup chopped nuts

Cream butter and work in evaporated milk and vanilla. Sift flour, salt, and sugar, and work into the creamed mixture. Add nuts. Shape into tiny balls between the palms of the hands, place on lightly floured baking sheet, and bake at 375 degrees until golden brown, about 12 minutes. Roll in sifted confectioners' sugar while still warm.

Shortbread Cookies

1 pound butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
4 cups sifted flour

Cream butter, blend in sugar, and add flour. Work together until mixed, and pat into a shallow cake pan, a little more than ½ inch thick. Cut into inch squares before baking and prick each square with the tines of a fork. Bake until light golden in a 375-400 degree oven. These are very rich cookies which depend for flavor upon the fat used. They need no other flavoring, altho grated lemon or orange rind may be added as a variation to part of the mixture.

Sleek Winter Sports Wear Available Now

By Rea Seeger

It takes skilled and experienced designers to fashion winter sports clothes successfully. Such outfits must fit meticulously, allowing freedom for action without excessive bulk. Ski pants, for instance, are the test of the designer. Sleek tailoring, flawless details of stitching, and perfection of fit, fore and aft, make all the difference between professional looking costumes and those that droop, bulge, or wrinkle. The now famous "down hill" ski pants are regulation or choice selections. These ski pants are to fashion designers what streamlined automobiles are to industrial designers—sleek, whittled-down affairs to assure more speed.

Wind, snow, and water repellent materials, gabardines, and a few specially processed woolens are the accepted and official materials for ski pants. Colors make little difference.

The preference is for classic navy or winter navy blue shades, dark beige, a few grays, and the handsome spruce green tone—all unostentatious! The more you are prepared to pay for a flawlessly fitted and tailored pair of ski pants, the more comfortable and the more good looking you'll be.

Under all are worn all-wool "longies," actually 1945 versions of the well known long underwear. Only now the stuff is gossamer sheer. This, too, when procurable, is anything but modest in price, but well worth every penny, considering the cozy comfort assured, the fit, and its feather weight. Undershirts with either long or short sleeves are featured.

The rest of the costume is the jacket. Jackets are the means to add color contrast, and there are dozens of different models. You will find snow cloth used for both pants and jacket. You'll see and succumb to the swank reversible affairs: Scarlet on one side, navy blue on the other. Plaid wool with beige gabardine is another clever bit of double talk in one jacket.

New this year are the trim ski jackets, copied from the battle jackets of the military, altho more vivid colors are used instead of olive drab. Padded and quilted jackets, both long and short, also are new. The knee length models serve a double purpose—for active sports or for spectator sports.

Accessories are legion. Most of the ski outfits are completed with hoods. Some are attached securely to the jackets to which they are matched in color and material; others are detachable. All fit like warm, snug aviator helmets. Sweaters, feather weight or the big husky affairs copied from the Norwegian models, are absolutely necessary. Scarfs, mittens, socks, and scarfs that can be worn warmly around the middle as decorative belts, complete the brilliant array. All the carefully designed outfits and the colorful accessories are on display now.

Sketched are representative selections, all available in a Chicago shop for women. For further information call Superior 0200.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

We have obtained some 15 rules for nonprofessional painters, rules which will be of help to the family man or woman who would like to do simple painting jobs around a house and who could turn out neat performances with a little effort and definite knowledge of fundamental rules. . . . Some of them are new, some long established, all are simple and worth keeping on hand and checking over when the day comes when the amateur painter yields to a yen to paint some piece of furniture, floor, or wall.

If you grow weary on occasions of having the warm air in your rooms rise blithely to the ceiling while your feet are uncomfortably cool—for there can be a difference of as much as 20 degrees in floor and ceiling temperature—check on a new control system that will correct this situation. . . . This system nearly equalizes floor and ceiling temperatures, is not expensive, and can be installed if you have an automatic heating system.

Colosseum

The name Colosseum was formerly given to the gigantic bronze statue of Nero. In the eighth century the name was transferred to the amphitheater which was originally called the Amphitheatrum Flavium.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

By this time we hope you've settled all the vexing problems about what to give your sisters and your brothers and your cousins and your aunts for Christmas. You're probably worn out from the prodigious effort involved, too. So today, reflect on the wisdom of giving YOURSELF a bangup Christmas present. Or, by devious ways, suggesting a purely personal one that some one in your family might give you.

Maybe you need a permanent. Why not wangle one for Christmas? Not a cheap one, but a good one, given by the best operator you can find, and with a test curl first that will help make it failureproof. The good permanent that leaves your hair lustrous and manageable isn't the kind of Christmas present that gives you a lift for a day or a week; it will bolster your sense of well being for months to come.

Or maybe you've been a little careless lately about eating between meals and exercising as you should. Why not, as a special kind of private present to yourself, start tomorrow on a little reducing program that involves professional assistance? Sign up, immediately, for a course of treatments. Try to find time to take two or three at least during the next week or two.

By the time Christmas arrives you'll be pounds lighter and inches smaller if you really work at it. And working at it isn't hard if you go to a good salon, where an intelligent adviser shows you how to exercise and tells you what you should and shouldn't eat. What's more, you'll find that the exercise and the massage replenish your store of vitality. You'll be a better looking woman this winter, and a better natured and better poised one if you get yourself in shape, literally and figuratively.

Or maybe the thing you've yearned for but never indulged in is a professional face treatment. That's luxury for you. To have your face and neck creamed luxuriously, massaged firmly but caressingly, too, to stretch out in a salon chair in a quiet booth and be the sole object of skilful attention for at least one hour in your life—that's a divine experience! But it's more than that, actually. That creaming is a balm and a blessing to your parched skin. That massage is passive exercise that helps stay the muscle sag that bespeaks advancing years.

Give yourself the gift of face treatments, or frankly ask your family to underwrite them. Your favorite beauty salon will be happy to coöperate.

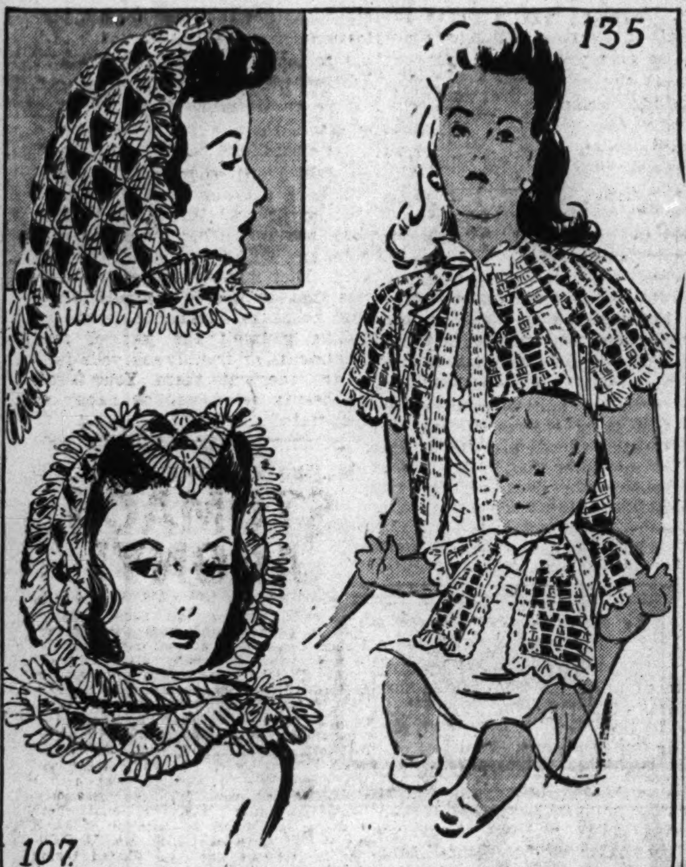
Designs for Needlework

By Ellen Bruce



The days are upon us when a crocheted fascinator is the warmest type of head-dress especially for those with upswept hair-dos. The fascinator, No. 107, is attractive, flattering, and warm, and works up quickly in an interesting stitch. It is trimmed with a decorative edge.

A mother and baby set, No. 135, is the newest of the crocheted duets. The lacy patterns of the jackets make them quick and easy to crochet. Crocheted of fine wool, they are warm and lightweight.

For instructions in making either of these items send 15 CENTS in coin [30 CENTS for both patterns—wrap coin securely] to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

New Color Schemes for the Holidays

By Edith Weigle

NEW YORK [Special]—The old red and green color scheme for Christmas has gone by the boards here. It's white that you see everywhere—white with shocking pink, or with a metallic blue or garnet red.

And Christmas trees, too, have undergone a remarkable sea change. Some of the most unusual and beautiful are not of the spruce or fir family at all. They are the common or garden variety of small, low branching tree and they have been stripped of all their leaves and sprayed with white calcimine. The beauty of the delicate, lacey pattern made by the tiny twigs and branches is clearly seen in this way.

They are hung with good, old fashioned Christmas tree balls, but these are kept in one, or at most, two colors, and all are the same size, which makes for uniformity, of course. One white tree had nothing on it but balls of shocking pink. Another was all done in deep, metallic green balls, and a third had delicate rose pink balls hanging from the branches. Then, attached to the twigs were flocks of pale blue butterflies made of heavy, glazed paper. The effect was very lovely.

It was odd, but these very simple, branching white trees had a spiritual quality about them, a delicacy and a subtlety that we've never found in the old fashioned variety. And they would all be so easy to duplicate.

Any shapely small tree you choose to select can be quickly and easily sprayed with white calcimine. If you don't have a regular paint spray gun use the type that is sold with insecticide. You can get a small bag of white calcimine at the paint store. Mix it with water until it is the consistency of milk.

One of the trees, described above, was only about 3 feet nigh and was placed on a white table in an entrance hall, the walls of which were deep green. Above the table and reflecting the beauty of the tree was a large, oval mirror in a rococo Victorian frame which had been painted dead white.

The streets of the city are ajingle with the sound of bells and alight with decorative splendor befitting the season. In remembering those nearest and dearest to us, let us also be mindful of those who have claim upon us by reason of their need, whose Christmas will be completely satisfying if only protection from the icy bite of winter is provided in the form of discarded, but usable, stoves, bedding, or apparel.

An emergency request has come to us from the M. family, living on the west side of the city. Their children were rescued by firemen when a recent fire destroyed their uninsured home, consuming many of their possessions in its flames. We hope their most urgent replacements may be found in attics or basements of our readers. These include bedding, rugs, linoleum, a single bed for the 6 year old boy, and a chest of drawers.

Mrs. F. is the mother of five small children, living in a four room basement flat on the south side, dependent upon relief for support. The health of the youngsters is endangered because of the chilly dampness of the rooms. All are now suffering from colds. A coal heater or garbage burner is urgently needed.

The dank basement rooms in the home are not conducive to the good health of its members, comprising parents and two children, a boy, 13½, and a girl, 10. Both parents are ill and unable to work, the father, an arthritic, has been a shut-in for three years, and the mother suffers with a leg ailment necessitating the use of casts. Their badly broken stove emits gas and affords little heat. We hope a stove can be found for them.

Lady of the House

"A Visit from St. Nicholas"

While our forefathers brought many of our Christmas traditions from older countries, America has had a big hand in perpetuating and building them up.

It was Clement Clarke Moore, American educator and poet, born during the Revolution, who immortalized the Christmas saint for his own and other children by writing that much loved poem, "A Visit from St. Nicholas." Those who attended grade schools when it was a Friday afternoon custom to "speak pieces" know it well by its first line, "'Twas the night before Christmas, when . . ."

With our young men coming back from the wars, there will be more "kissing under the mistletoe" than for many a long year; and some oldsters may even recall that melancholy old song by Thomas Haynes Bayly, "The Mistletoe Bough," often played by romantic serenaders at old time Christmases. [The bride of Lord Lovel, on her wedding night, playfully hid in a large oak chest; when the lid snapped down and the spring lock fastened her in; and for many years nobody knew what had become of her].

Mistletoe is celebrated on account of its religious significance to the ancient Celtic nations of Europe, having been held in great veneration by the Druids, especially when it was found on the oak. [It also grows on wild apple, pear, hawthorne, maple, lime, and other trees]. A very similar, partly parasitic mistletoe is found in America. Having green leaves, it gets a part of its sustenance from the air.

Alice Harris Wheeler sends greetings from southern Illinois, where they "celebrate in the old fashioned way with ballad and song."

A Holiday at Grandma's

Here come Willis and Jimmie, too,
Meldean and Paul and Carolyn Sue.
My, but it's cold and snowy outside.
But so warm and cozy by Grandma's fireside.

It's warm and cozy in the kitchen, too,
Where they are roasting turkey and making stew.
Grandma, with her sleeves rolled high,
Bakes more sweet potatoes and rolls more pies.

"Willis, keep your finger out of her eye,
Hush, little Sue-Sue, don't you cry.
Jimmie, pile the fruit up high,
You can set the table, Joan, if you try."

Jimmie steals the nuts off the cake,
Willis spills cranberries, Joan breaks a plate.
All is confusion, happiness and fun,
But the biggest surprise is yet to come

The candles are lighted, the prayers are said,
As we all sit quietly with reverent bowed heads.
In comes the smoking, big brown bird.
"Carve it, carve it," the cry is heard.

We laugh and we play until the day dims,
Then gather around to sing our hymns,
My, but it's cold and snowy outside
But so warm and cozy by Grandma's fireside.

A Christmas Prayer

The world knew stars as red as Mars,
And those of lesser light;
But never one shone, like this alone,
O'er Bethlehem that night.
It lighted all the lowly stall,
The manger where Christ lay.
And at His birth came peace to earth,
That first glad Christmas day.

O, let us pray, this Christmas day,
For Good Will to all men;
May this vast throng hear angels' song
And feel its joy again.
May the Star of Peace that will not cease
With new hope light the skies;
Nothing but love comes from above,
With love, dissension dies.
Katharine Isabelle Dignum.

Candle-Shine

This year the Christmas candles brightly burn
They shed their light against a darkened world
And nations cloaked in blackness still must turn
To where the free men's banner is unfurled.

The merry part of Christmas must be stored
Against the day when all men can be free
When lasting peace will be our great reward
Then we will know a final victory.

Altho the candle-shine falls short this year
While nations strive to keep alive this light
The blackness tends to make the glow appear
A burning torch that puts all dark to flight.

The hope of lasting peace cannot depart
As long as we keep Christmas in the heart.
Helen Virden.

This year we are devoting these last two Sundays in advent to Christmas verse. Some of it you may wish to include in your letters to friends. And for those to whom this season brings much sadness, Lela Rosamond Wright, a newcomer to our "House," sends this special little prayer—

Beacon Light

Embracing all the city with its arm
Of satin sheen, it pauses in its scope
And reaches to the lake front's brilliant rope
Of twinkling lights; its guiding hand is warm
And gentle in the somber winter eve
Of purple velvet; challenging its gleams,
The moon and stars shine brightly as its sleeve
Of misty gray envelopes iron beams

Of sturdy towers, idle, empty, still,
While ruffled waves are folded on the shore;
The light repeats its cycle and the street
Consumes its steady crystal glow until
The morning rises from its calm retreat
And daylight softly opens wide the door.
Lillian Oswald.

Common Clay

Bless me, Lord
I pray Thee,
For I know
The path is steep
And when I come
To jagged rocks
That tear and cut
My feet,
Forgive me, Lord,
If I forget—
And weep.

American Discovery

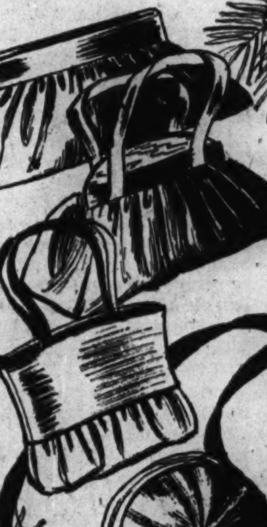
An American trader discovered the Columbia river while a British naval captain with an elaborate expedition was trying to find and claim it.

Fashions

By Angela

Plastic purses are just one of the vast number of exciting items which have found their way to the counters in a short time since V-J day. These new handbags in a variety of shapes and sizes, have a similar appearance to what we so fondly recall as pin seal leather. They are soft, pliable, durable, waterproof, stain resistant, and may be cleaned by sponging the surface with soap and water. They are priced to fit the most modest budget.

The person whose favorite is the underarm type, will find the black plastic, top, definitely to her liking. It has a flat band across the top and adequate room inside for a career girl's impedimenta, as well as a mirror and coin purse. It is fastened with a gold metal zipper.



A beautiful pouch type bag, second from top, has an interesting tortoise-like trim and two sturdy handles of the plastic. Wide side gussets account for its perfect upright balance.

The interesting handbag, third from top, has a wide band at top and narrow folds across the bottom. The back is perfectly smooth. An inset band around sides and bottom allows for necessary inside roominess. Lined in black faille, it is priced under $3.

The smart disc purse with the shoulder strap appeals to the teen-agers. The back is flat, and the front is cleaverly draped and knotted in the center. A gold metal zipper fastens it from strap to strap.

Service Association to Entertain Blind at Thursday Fete

One of the city's most unusual holiday fetes, the annual Christmas party of the Blind Service association, is expected this year to draw more than 600 blind and near blind persons of Chicago and their families to the 5th floor auditorium at 185 N. Wabash av. The party is scheduled for 8 o'clock Thursday night.

There will be a gala holiday program, toys and candy for the children, and gift packages for adults.

Tomorrow afternoon the association will sponsor a theater party for blind and near blind persons and their escorts at the Chicago theater. Guests are asked to assemble not later than 12:30 p. m. at the south side door of the theater. Children under 5 years of age will not be admitted. Mrs. Alger D. Goldfarb and Mrs. Milton E. Zuckermann are in charge of arrangements.

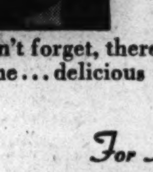
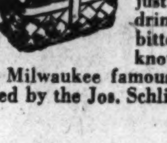
A Weekly Sponsored Column of Things Advertised and Interesting.



NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 16—Here's wishing us all "good eating" through the holiday festivities,—for no one wants to forego the goodness of turkey, stuffing and all the trimmings that go along with Christmas! But remember that you'll need "bulkage" for the regularity that helps tone you up. And that's where RY-KRISP, the 100% rye bread made of salt, water and rye baked in the traditional Scandinavian manner, can help. It is rich in the minerals and Vitamin B^1 of rye grain . . . and gives necessary bulk to the system. So eat all the "specialties" the cook provides . . . but eat RY-KRISP right along with them. And don't forget, there's nothing quite like RY-KRISP for those last get-together snacks before bedtime . . . delicious with cheeses, cold meats and special spreads! Ask for RY-KRISP this week!

For A Perfect Holiday Treat—Add This Beverage To Your Shopping List!



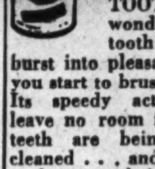
Check off the traditional holiday gooderies—turkey, pumpkin, fruit cake, puddings and other specialties. Then make a special note on your shopping memo to stock up on the beer that brings good cheer in every pale-amber bubble. Yes—SCHLITZ . . . made with just the kiss of the hops to give you a refreshing drink that's full-flavored without EVER being harshly bitter! Your Food Store can supply you with SCHLITZ, known everywhere around the world as the beer that made Milwaukee famous, unequalled for its fine bouquet and fine flavor! Brewed by the Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

Viceroy Cigarettes Make Ideal Xmas Gifts!

Since cartons of cigarettes are now yours for the buying, let our Little Lord VICEROY carry your seasonal greeting! Send cartons to your friends . . . put several packages into Christmas Stockings . . . keep a goodly stock on hand to take care of spontaneous and unprepared-for remembrances! The smooth smoking that comes from a superior blending of Turkish and domestic tobaccos will delight any smoker . . . both men and women. Those unacquainted with VICEROYS will be intrigued with the unique filter tip, and delighted with the way it keeps all tobacco crumbs IN the cigarette for full smoking enjoyment. They'll notice, too, how the filter checks out resins, tars and throat irritants. VICEROYS are popular priced—ask your Tobacconist for them this week.

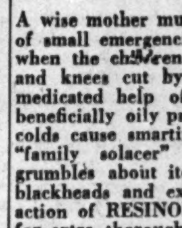
If you want an UNFORGETTABLE FOOD TREAT for the holiday season, let me advise a WALDORF RUM and BRANDY FRUIT CAKE. Loaded with fancy fruits and nuts—generously flavored with REAL imported rum and brandy—these fresh, moist cakes are light enough to serve with any beverage as a tasty snack. The mellow aroma will cheer and delight you the moment the hermetically sealed canister (which really preserves its full flavor and freshness) is opened. WALDORF RUM and BRANDY FRUIT CAKE costs only $2 at food, candy and department stores. Just try ONE—and you'll probably buy TWO!

You'd look high and low for a Christmas gift to bring happiness . . . now wouldn't you? There is such a gift and shopping for it is simple! A canary! . . . perfect gift for a child, an invalid, or a person who lives alone! Here's joy, personality and sweet music all in one gift! And give a copy of "Keep a Song in Your Home" right along with the canary. The makers of FRENCH'S Bird Seed and Biscuit will send you a FREE copy. Address request to Nancy Sasser, 271 Madison Ave., New York 16.

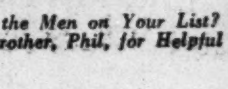


For everyone in the family—from Junior, with funny little gaps in his smile, to the older members who realize the importance of taking care of teeth—LISTERINE TOOTH POWDER is a wonderful buy! This fine tooth powder is ready to burst into pleasant foam the instant you start to brush your teeth with it. Its speedy activating ingredients leave no room for doubt that your teeth are being THOROUGHLY cleaned . . . and that the accessible surfaces are being really scrubbed! You'll like the clean, fresh taste of LISTERINE TOOTH POWDER, too . . . and the gentle way in which the satin-smooth polishing agents go to work in polishing enamel to help emphasize the full and NATURAL lustre of your teeth! Ask your Druggist for LISTERINE TOOTH POWDER! . . . It economically, safely and quickly serves your teeth!

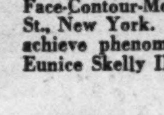
Wintertime Is Cocoa-Time! Try Van Houten's!



What's more heart-warming on a cold Winter's Eve than a steaming cup of cocoa? What's a better "starter" for the busy day than this nutritional drink in the morning? I think you'll agree with me that NOW is cocoa-time . . . which is why I want to recommend that you insist on VAN HOUTEN'S, the very BEST cocoa money can buy! That's because it's richer in exquisite chocolate flavor, is concentrated and full-bodied. A little goes a long way—making VAN HOUTEN'S Cocoa more economical to serve—less than 1c per cup! Consult the FREE booklet that comes with each package . . . it contains wonderful chocolate desserts for Christmas!



A wise mother must always be prepared to take care of small emergencies that happen in her family. So when the children fume and fuss about cheeks, lips and knees cut by keen winter winds, call on the medicated help of RESINOL! Its medication and beneficially oily properties give soothing relief when colds cause smarting about the nostrils. This famous "family solacer" again takes over when father grumbles about itching of eczema or an occupational rash! Irritation of blackheads and externally caused pimples quickly yields to the soothing action of RESINOL—especially if mild, pure RESINOL Soap is used first for extra thorough cleaning of disturbed areas. So ask your Druggist for RESINOL Soap and Ointment—the whole family will thank you!



If your mirror reveals discouraging lines, flabbiness, crepy throat, double chin and relaxed contour, you're going to be just one of many to be elated with news of an amazing radio-wave controlled device: EUNICE SKELLY'S Face-Contour Molde! Invented by a Plastic Surgeon, this machine gives you a veritable "facelift", without Surgery and without Peeling, by simply helping nature in the normal retoning and rebuilding of flabby, aging tissues. You'll really look younger, day by day! For information about Eunice Skelly's Face-Contour-Molde, write to Eunice Skelly's "House of Youth," 5 E. 57th St., New York. Ask about the technician in your vicinity, or how to achieve phenomenal results in your own home. . . . Or if you can, see Eunice Skelly IN PERSON!

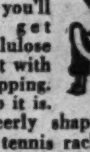
Clever and unusual gifts are highly appreciated at Christmas—so why not introduce your friends to SILVER SHEETS? They're novel sheets of paper that have been impregnated on both sides with super-action silver polish. No matter how badly your silver is stained, just rub a SILVER SHEET across wet silver, rinse the silver and dry . . . and tarnish and dullness disappear with miraculous quickness! These handy pieces of "polish paper" come in a packet to be hung near the kitchen sink. Cost for a packet of 2 doz. is only 25c. Why not buy several for each friend who treasures her silver? Ask your Dept. or Neighborhood Store for SILVER SHEETS!

Looking for an aura of romance for this brilliant season? Then take my advice and go no farther than HARTNELL'S three new triumphs! "Bright Stars" is a truly magnificent fragrance that is delicate and long-lasting. Or, if it's drama you want—try "Stolen Heaven" . . . brilliant, persistent and compellingly sophisticated. My third suggestion is "Gay Glitter"—a happy selection if you like to waft a lighthearted spirit of gaiety everywhere you go. HARTNELL masterpieces come in perfume AND cologne—wonderful ideas for Christmas gifts!

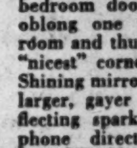
Holiday Greeting Cards!

DON'T WORRY if you're late in selecting your holiday cards, for the makers of GIBSON Greeting Cards knew that this peacetime Christmas would bring an unusual demand for happy, friendly cards. So they created an unusually full assortment of gay or serious Christmas cards . . . to phrase your greeting exactly as you'd like it said! And don't forget that when you send a GIBSON card, you're sending the very finest in both quality and good taste! You'll want to see your GIBSON dealer tomorrow!

Use "Scotch" Tape To Help At Christmastime!



Happy Holiday for sure . . . 'cause you'll be able to get "Scotch" Cellulose Tape to help out with your gift wrapping. And what a help it is. Even those queerly shaped things like lamps and tennis rackets, toys, and so on, are easy to wrap into beautiful packages when you use "Scotch" Tape to hold the paper in place. And you know what else? "Scotch" Tape's swell for holding sprigs of holly or evergreen or big fancy bows to Christmas packages . . . and sticking cards down firmly. It sticks without moistening and is as transparent as glass. So when you buy your gift paper and trimmings be sure to remember a roll of "Scotch" Brand Tape in its gay plaid dispenser. Your favorite store may have it now—25c complete.



Say It With Mirrors!

Mirrors make really exciting "family" gifts—ones that will add sparkle and distinction to the home. Get a full length mirror for the bedroom door, or a lovely oval or oblong one to hang in the living room and thus double and triple the "nicest" corners through reflections. Shining mirrors make any room look larger, gayer and "newer" with reflecting sparkle. Look in your telephone directory under PITTSBURGH Glass Products for names of reliable mirror dealers. Remember the blue label, "Made from Genuine PITTSBURGH Plate Glass," always assures you the finest in Plate Glass Mirrors! Use PITTSBURGH Plate Glass this Christmas!

STOCKING STUFFERS

nicknacks and niceties to tickle their toes

It's only right to be serious about "important" Christmas presents—but when it comes to stocking-stuffing, the first rule is: have fun!

How about a gay piggy bank for Father's used razor blades, for instance? A sheaf of the latest song sheets for a swing-conscious younger sister? And by all means, for Mother something deliciously feminine—like a little satin sewing bag, with a bottle of YARDLEY HAND CREAM inside!

Yardley Hand Cream is one of those fragrant niceties every one loves to get—goes on so smoothly, sinks in so quickly, keeps hands pampered-soft. And extra welcome right now, with chapping weather in full swing. She'll use it, not just on hands, but on elbows, legs, and for after-bath—and you'll feel like quite a Santa Claus, for an outlay of 65c!

While we're on the subject of gift shopping, do see that it doesn't leave you with winter-nipped skin at day's end. Notice how your face tingles, coming home from town? Feels taut, looks scuffy when you put on powder? Definite signs your skin's too dry—but happily, that isn't hard to undo!

Complexions recover a satiny, supple texture quickly when you coat over with Yardley Dry Skin Cleansing Cream. Tissue off—follow with a light film as you blanket your face in a dry-wrung hot wash-cloth. Dash on cold water. Now see what a radiant difference? Yardley Dry Skin Cleansing Cream is yours for $1 the regular jar, $2 the larger size.

Both these Yardley favorites are on your gift-gathering route—at most any drug or department store. (Prices quoted plus tax.)

Yardley products for America are created in England and finished in the U. S. A. from the original English formulae, combining imported and domestic ingredients. Yardley of London, Inc., 620 Fifth Ave., Rockefeller Center, New York 20, N. Y.

ROGER & GALLET

Here's Outlook of Housing in St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Fla. [Special]—Are living accommodations available in St. Petersburg this winter? What about hotel rooms, apartments, dwellings for rent, beach cottages, rooms in private homes?

The general picture shapes up something like this:

Hotels: Rooms are available, in almost every price class, and probably will be thruout the winter season. Those hotels which are booked thru February are referring old and new patrons to hostelries which have space. In any case the wise vacationist will make definite reservations as far in advance of his trip as possible.

Apartments and dwellings for rent: Scarce. During the last five years St. Petersburg's permanent population has soared from 60,000 to 85,000, with virtually no new construction, due to wartime restrictions. This influx of new residents has absorbed nearly all the apartments and houses which in the past were available to winter visitors.

Beach cottages and tourist camps: Only a few such are available. Best chance to get accommodations is to be on the spot when space is vacated by departing guests. There is considerable turnover in this type of facility.

Rooms in private, or guest homes: A fairly good bet. Many St. Petersburg residents will open guest rooms and spare rooms to visitors this season. Again, this kind of accommodation is best obtained by being on the ground, and shopping around.

The Sunshine City is making every effort to place every visitor in the type of living facility suited to taste and purse. The best all-around advice is: Come as early as you can, make a definite reservation when possible, or best of all, try April and May, when the winter crowd is heading northward.

New Lodge Will Open on Jan. 1 in Warren, Ariz.

Loma Linda lodge, one of Arizona's newest vacation spots, will open Jan. 1 under the management of Robert D. Hess, formerly of Wilmette. Loma Linda lodge is a 30 room English type mansion situated atop a hill of lush green foliage in Warren, Ariz. Warren is the residential suburb of Bisbee.

Guests at the lodge are offered comfortable living and excellent cuisine in quiet, peaceful surroundings. Each lodge guest automatically becomes a member of the Bisbee Country club, all fees being paid by the lodge. Besides golf, the lodge provides excellent riding horses and recreation facilities, including tennis, badminton, ping-pong, and archery.

Four miles south of the lodge is the Mexican border and just across it is the Mexican town of Naco, where guests may see bullfights, visit curio shops, and dance at a colorful Mexican cabaret.

Cunard Line Appoints New Canadian Manager

Cunard White Star Line has announced the appointment of T. C. Lockwood as general manager in Canada for their Canadian services, who has been associated with the company's Canadian services since 1920. He will be assisted by T. J. Royden, who has been with the company for the last 10 years.

FASHION CASTS A SPELL OF

Holiday Enchantment

…snares you in a trailing mist of net…a dramatic sweep of faille…illuminates you with the larkish flicker of sequins. For this is a season charged with drama…a season when you and your gown reflect all the soaring excitement…the skylarking fun of a peacetime Christmas

1. Faille formal with decolleté neckline, 35.00

2. Rayon crepe dinner dress with sequin trim, 79.95

3. Net formal with full skirt, 110.00
